[1st SESSION.

KASKASKIA LAND CLAIMS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, DECEMBER 22, 1815.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 22, 1815.

I have the honor to transmit a copy of a letter from the Register of the Land Office and Receiver of Public Moneys at Kaskaskia, accompanied by a list of persons who have had less than four hundred acres confirmed to them, and a statement of claims for donations as heads of families, improvement rights in virtue of cultivation, and militia rights; all which are respectfully submitted to the consideration of Congress.

Most respectfully, I am, sir, your obedient servant,

JOSIAH MIEIGS.

The Hon. SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

SIR:

KASKASKIA, November 29, 1815.

Herewith you will receive a statement of claims, for some of which no notices were filed with the register within the time limited by law; but, in justice to the claimants, and believing that it would render unnecessary the reorganization of a new Board of Commissioners, we have ventured to make a statement of them, together with the substance of the testimony adduced in their support. Should these be confirmed, it will relieve the Government from the importunity of the claimants, and render unnecessary the reorganization of a new board; since there are at present no pretensions to claims of this description kept up other than those contained in the accompanying document; and, should any be presented hereafter, they may be disposed of in like manner. We think it most advisable that these claims should be confirmed to the original claimant, or his legal representative, as the chain of titles of such as have been conveyed have not been examined nor recorded.

It is proper to state that these claims, if confirmed, should be declared unlocated, and that they should not defeat the locations made in virtue of other claims on lands improved by these claimants. We would suggest the propriety of making these, as well as all other confirmed unlocated claims, receivable in payment for public land, in conformity with the provisions of the act of the 16th April, 1814, any time prior to the 1st of May next. The claimants, or their agents, reside in the country, and no inconvenience can arise from the want of time; yet, a proviso in favor of claimants residing out of the Territory, (if any,) extending the time as to them to the 1st of October next, may be proper. This would prepare the country for the sale of public lands by the time contemplated in our letter to you of the 16th instant. It will be perceived by our expressions above, "as well as all other confirmed unlocated claims," that we contemplate a revival of the forfeited claims, which were not tendered within the time directed by the act of the 16th of April, 1814, which amounted to about four thousand acres. In our communication of last year, we stated that the pre-emptioners on fractional quarter sections without the reserved tract, were not provided for by the act of the 5th February, 1813; in favor of whom we advised the passage of a law extending to them the right of entering one or more adjoining fractional quarter sections, including their improvements, or the fractions improved, and the quarter section or fraction adjoining, or, at their option, only the fraction improved, although less than a quarter section. This measure would place them on an equality with their neighbors. Those persons who have had confirmations made to them by the Governors, in virtue of actual cultivation and improvement, for less quantities than four hundred acres, have frequently petitioned the commissioners to solicit a grant of the complement to be located as within stated. In favor of this description of persons, the quarter part of whom are early settlers in the country, and cultivators of the earth, we can only say that the late board of revision, on inquiry into the facts, found that all of these claimants were entitled to the right of a donation, by virtue of actual cultivation and improvement, as will be seen by the reports of that board, and that no additional quantity was granted. We are, however, of the opinion that the same measure of justice and rule of decision ought to be extended to all having similar pretensions; and, as these form an exception, we think it but just to interest the Government in their behalf. The enclosed list contains the names of all those whom we find entitled.

The other confirmees, on the abstract of Governors' confirmations for less quantities than four hundred acres, have no claim; they are bounded by their grants, or had obtained confirmations of fifty acres on a species of non-descript claims, called sugar camp rights.

During the last session we transmitted to Colonel Stephenson the grants and locations made on section No. 16, from which it will be seen that about three thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine acres have been appropriated out of these sections in this district, in satisfaction of ancient grants, improvement claims, &c., confirmed and located. May it not become necessary to pass a law quieting these in their rights, and providing for selecting other sections, or parts of sections, in lieu of those thus appropriated?

We are, very respectfully, your obedient humble servants,

MICHAEL JONES,
SHADRACH BOND.

DEAR SIR:

The preceding is a copy of a letter transmitted by this day's mail, together with the statement of claims therein spoken of to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to whom we refer you for more particular information on these subjects. Should the forfeited claims be revived, and these now transmitted be confirmed, it will, you know, sir, be extremely desirable that they should be tendered in payment under the act of 16th April, 1814, on or before the first of May next. Should some still remain after that day unsatisfied, it might be well to provide for their location in a way that would not interfere with, or retard the sale of, public land. A clause might be inserted, that any unsatisfied claims, owned by persons living without the Territory, should be received in payment for land purchased at public or private sale any time prior to the 1st of October next. We having written to Mr. Meigs on the subject of opening the office, and have requested that it might open on the 15th of May next, in addition to the reasons there assigned, you can point out others, and such as will show that the prosperity of this country, as well the neighboring States, and the interest of the United States, will be thereby greatly promoted; and our claim to some perquisites, which we have so long anticipated, might probably have some weight with the President in directing the sale of the public land in this district on the 15th of May next. On this day we have received the connected plat from the Surveyor General. There is now no further obstacle, that we can see, to forbid this measure.

Very respectfully, we are, your obedient servants,

MICHAEL JONES,
S. BOND.

A statement of claims coming within the provisions of the several acts of Congress of the 20th of June, 1788, granting donations of four hundred acres to heads of families in the Illinois country; of the 3d of March, 1791, granting donations to persons enrolled in the militia, and doing militia duty on 1st August, 1790; and donations of four hundred acres to such as had actually cultivated and improved land under any supposed grant from any court or commandant claiming the right to grant, &c.; some of which were not entered within the time limited by law; but as those which have been approved by us are thought to be just and equitable claims, they are submitted for the approbation of Congress.

No. of claim.	Original claimant.	Present claimant.	Donations of 400 acres as heads of families.	Improvement claims of 400 acres in virtue of cultivation.	Militia donations of 100 acres.	Names of witnesses.	Proof.	Remarks.

That said Golding continued in the country until he died, which happened, he thinks, in 1791. In the transcript of claims confirmed by the Governor, we find in page 11 the following entry, to wit: "Josiah Ryan claims land adjoining Katy Ryan." "Likewise land bequeathed to him by Henry Golding, deceased." "Approved."	This claim is approved.
	Ephraim Story,	-	400	-	-	William Robins and Daniel Raper.	William Robins states that he knew Story to keep house, and live in the county of St. Clair, in 1787. Raper, that he knew said Story to keep house in said county, Illinois Territory, in 1788.	This claim is approved.

	Rene Locat's heirs,	Heirs of Rene Locat,	400	-	-	-	The heirs of Rene Locat are found on the list of Governor's confirmations as entitled to a donation of 400 acres; and from testimony on record, page 75, relative to Pierre Locat's donation claim, it is incidently proven that Rene Locat died in Cahokia, in the Illinois, before 1779, and that his widow continued to be head of a family until she died in the year 1786.	Approved.

143	Pierre Verbois, (alis Blondeaux.)	Nicholas Jarrot,	400	-	-	-	-	-	The donation claim of Pierre Verbois stands confirmed to Nicholas Jarrot, on the records of decisions made by Jones and Backus, (commissioners,) under No. 143; but it is not found on the abstract of confirmations forwarded by them to the Secretary of the Treasury, nor on the one transmitted by him to this office. This was an omission; the claim remains unsatisfied, and ought to receive a legislative sanction. But, as a militia right of 100 acres has been confirmed to P. Verbois, (alias Blondeaux,) the same man, under claim No. 898, only 300 acres ought to be confirmed.	Approved.
1773	John Dumoulin,	John Dumoulin's heirs,	400	-	-	-	-	-	The case of John Dumoulin is precisely similar to the preceding. He is, by the records of decision, under No. 1773, entitled to 300 acres, having received a militia right.	Approved.

That Maria Louisa, wife of Joseph Cecel, was the daughter of said Levy, one of his three children. That Emili Cecel, the wife of François Demit, is the daughter, and only heir now living, of the said Maria Louisa, deceased.	Approved.
	Jean B. Parant,	Nicholas Jarrot,	400	-	-	-	-	-	That Jean B. Parant was head of a family in Peoria, in 1783, before and after that year. That he had a house built, and cultivated lands near the old fort of Peoria, in the year 1780. Bihore and Verbois state that the said Parant was the head of a family in 1780 and 1783; and, at that time, had a farm, and raised crops. This man has been confirmed in a militia donation of 100 acres, under No. 121, and is, therefore, entitled to only 300 acres as head of a family.	The improvement right and 300 acres donation, approved.

LAND CLAIMS EAST AND WEST OF PEARL RIVER.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JANUARY 5, 1816.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 2, 1816.

I have the honor to transmit, herewith, two reports on claims for land in the State of Louisiana, viz.

The report of William Crawford, Commissioner for the district east of Pearl river; and

The report of James O. Cosby, Commissioner for the district west of Pearl river.

The first mentioned report contains—

1st. A register of claims founded on complete grants from the French, British, or Spanish Governments; which claims are, in the opinion of the Commissioner (east of Pearl river) valid, agreeably to the laws, usages, or customs of said Governments. This register comprises seventeen claims, the greatest for 1,600 arpens, the smallest for 150 arpens.

2d. A register of claims (founded as the foregoing) for five lots in the town of Mobile; which claims are, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, valid, agreeably to the laws, usages, and customs of said Governments.

3d. A register of claims founded on orders of survey, (requettes,) permission to settle, or other written evidence of claim, derived from either the French, British, or Spanish authorities. This register comprises 106 claims, some of which are large, say 10,000 to 20,000 arpens, and some of them are for quantities unknown. The said Commissioner recommends the confirmation only to the amount of 800 arpens for each claim.

4th. A register of claims founded on orders of survey, requettes, permission to settle, or other written evidence of claim, derived from either the French, British, or Spanish authorities; and which claims ought, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, to be confirmed. This register comprises 48 claims for lots in the town of Mobile.

5th. A register of three claims, amounting to 7,440 acres; which claims, in the opinion of said Commissioner, are not valid, agreeably to the usages of the former Governments.

6th. A register of one hundred and eleven claims, of various dimensions; which claims ought not, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, to be confirmed.

7th. A register of forty-seven claims; (for lots in the town of Mobile;) which claims, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, ought not to be confirmed.

8th. A register of eight claims, (from 100 to 4,650 acres each,) founded on grants derived from the British Government, with the conditions on which the grants were made, which conditions do not appear to have been complied with. The said Commissioner has not expressed his opinion whether these claims should be confirmed or not.

9th. A register of five claims, respecting which the said Commissioner has given a special report. Those claims are for large tracts; and the opinion of the said Commissioner is, that three of them are fraudulent, and ought to be rejected. Respecting the other two he has not given an opinion.

10th. A register of claims founded on private conveyances, which have passed through the office of the commandant, but founded, as the claimants suppose, on grants lost by time or accident. This register comprises 67 claims of various dimensions, and the said Commissioner is of opinion that such of them as were inhabited and cultivated under the Spanish Government, ought to be confirmed for a reasonable quantity.

11th. A register of eighty-eight claims (founded as the foregoing) for lots in Mobile. The said Commissioner is of opinion that such as were inhabited and cultivated under the Spanish Government, and such as were built upon by permission of the Spanish authorities, ought to be confirmed.

12th. A list of one hundred and seventy-four actual settlers, who have no claims derived from the French, British, or Spanish Governments.

The second report contains—

1st. Register (A) of claims founded on complete grants derived from either the French, British, or Spanish Governments; which claims are, in the opinion of the Commissioner (west of Pearl river) valid, according to the laws, usages, or customs of such Governments. This register comprises four hundred and thirty-two claims of various dimensions.

2d. A register (B) of claims founded on orders of survey, (requettes,) permission to settle, or other written evidence of claims derived from either the French, British, or Spanish authorities; which claims ought, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, to be confirmed. This register contains three hundred and twenty claims of various dimensions.

3d. A register (C) of claims founded on grants said to be derived from the French, British, or Spanish Governments; which claims, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, are not valid, according to the laws, usages, or customs, of such Governments. This register comprises fifty-five claims of various dimensions.

4th. A register (D) of claims to land founded on orders of survey, (requettes,) permission to settle, or other written evidence of claim; which claims, in the opinion of the said Commissioner, ought not to be confirmed. This register comprises one hundred and eighty-seven claims of various dimensions.

5th. A list of thirty anomalous claims. In most of these cases the title papers are said to have been lost. The report closes with the remarks of the said Commissioner on the last named claims.

6th. A list of actual settlers.

7th. A supplementary list of actual settlers.

The report of the Board of Commissioners for the Western District of Louisiana has been received in part. That part is transcribing, to be laid before Congress. When the remainder arrives it shall be transcribed, and the whole transmitted without delay.

I have the honor to be, most respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

The Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

Remarks upon the preceding grants, according to their numbers.—No. 1. It appears from the face of this grant, that, on the 10th day of March, in the year 1788, twenty arpens front by forty deep, lying on Pearl river, were granted by Stephen Miro to Charles Louigny; and that the same quantity of land, lying on Pearl river, was granted, on the 2d of June, 1788, by Governor Miro to Jean Bte. Rousseau; and that Jean Bte. Rousseau, having purchased the title of Charles Louigny, the two grants were united in favor of Jean Bte. Rousseau, by John V. Morales, on the 21st day of June, 1805. No. 4. Though all grants in Louisiana, since the treaty of St. Ildefonso, are void, and thus declared by the act of Congress passed on the 26th of March, 1804, yet, as that act continues grants by the Spanish Government to actual settlers, if such settlement was made prior to the 20th day of December, 1803, that being the day on which the Government in Louisiana, west of the Mississippi and Lake Pontchartrain, was changed, it is conceived that, under the equity of that law, this grant ought to be confirmed. The same observations may be made upon all the grants derived from the Spanish Government which have originated since the 1st of October, 1800.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

Register of claims to land in the district east of Pearl river, in Louisiana, founded on complete grants derived from either the French, British, or Spanish Governments, which, in the opinion of the undersigned Commissioner, are valid, agreeably to the laws, usages, or customs of such Governments.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

* Note to 103—W. E. Kennedy.

SIR:

I beg leave most respectfully to solicit your attention to a part of my report on the land claims in West Florida. The claim to which I particularly refer is that of William E. Kennedy, No. 103, under the following head: "Register of claims to land in the district east of Pearl river, in Louisiana, founded on orders of survey, permission to settle, or other written evidence of claim, derived either from the French, British, or Spanish authorities, which, in the opinion of the commissioner, ought to be confirmed." When this claim was reported on, there was no evidence to impeach it, and evidence was adduced to prove that the land claimed had been cultivated, according to the Spanish regulations for granting land. No survey accompanied the claim, and it was impossible to know what ground was covered by it; but it is now ascertained that this claim takes in Fort Charlotte, and most of the public buildings in and near the town of Mobile. From this circumstance, and some others, I am now convinced that this claim is fraudulent, and ought to be rejected. I beg that this letter may be taken as a part of my report upon the above claim of William E. Kennedy, and that it may be laid before Congress, together with my general report.

Hon. J. MEigs, Commissioner General Land Office.

I have the honor to be, with very great respect, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM CRAWFORD.

Remarks on the preceding claims.

Though many of the preceding claims have originated since the treaty of St. Ildefonso, and are therefore void, yet it is conceived that they ought to be confirmed, so far only as they do not exceed eight hundred arpents, under the equity of the 14th section of the act of Congress passed on the 26th of March, 1804, and the 2d section of the act passed on the 2d of March, 1805, which last secures to the actual settler, on the 20th day of December, 1803, (that being the time of the establishment of the American Government in part of Louisiana,) a tract of land of one mile square, provided such settlement was made with the permission of the proper Spanish officer.

Most of the preceding claims which originated previous to the 1st of October, 1800, are forfeited under the Spanish law, for the want of inhabitation and cultivation within the time required by that law, and must rest for confirmation on the acts of Congress above recited. It is conceived, therefore, that the quantity confirmed ought not to exceed eight hundred arpents. It may also be observed, that many of the claims have emanated from commandants, whose powers to permit to settle did not extend beyond eight hundred arpents.

Where a settler who has a claim has fairly purchased other claims, it is supposed that the law recognizes in the purchaser all the right which the original claimant had, and that two or more such claims, where the requirements of the law have been complied with, ought to be confirmed.

The instructions of Gayoso seem to acknowledge a right in the settler, after three years' inhabitation and cultivation.

Where a tract of land has been inhabited and cultivated for three years, with the permission of the proper Spanish officer, I have supposed that the claim ought to be confirmed, though the land has not been regularly inhabited and cultivated afterwards, if it has not been subsequently granted by the Spanish Government.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

Register of claims to land in the district east of Pearl river, in Louisiana, founded on orders of survey, (requettes,) permission to settle, or other written evidence of claim, derived from either the French, British, or Spanish authorities, which, in the opinion of the Commissioner, ought to be confirmed.

* Memorandum, in pencil mark, in copy, referring to letter of 4th April, 1828, from the Register at St. Stephen's, stating the claim to be fraudulent; and letter of 12th April, 1830, to same.

Register of claims to land in the district east of Pearl river, in Louisiana, founded on grants said to be derived from either the French, British, or Spanish Governments, which, in the opinion of the undersigned commissioner, are not valid, agreeably to the laws, usages, or customs, of such Governments.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

Remarks on the preceding grants.—All these grants have been made by the Spanish Government since the right of Spain to Louisiana has ceased to exist, and are therefore void; nor are they entitled to the benefit of the proviso contained in the 14th section of the act of Congress, passed on the 26th of March, 1804, in favor of settlers, because the grantee was not a settler at the date of grant, nor has been since, except in No. 2, which cannot be confirmed, because the quantity exceeds that allowed by law, and the claimant has other claims coming within the proviso of the law. Some of these grants refer to ancient grants or concessions, and purport to be made in consideration thereof.

No. 1 refers to a grant said to have been made by the French Government, and destroyed at the time of the conquest of the Floridas by the Spaniards. These claims cannot derive any validity from the grants or concessions said to have been anciently made, because they do not appear; nor from the subsequent confirmation, because at the time of confirmation Spain had no right to Louisiana; nor can the subsequent grant be any evidence of a former grant or concession, because the evidence adduced, if any, to prove that there was a former grant, was before a tribunal which had no cognizance of the case.

It is certainly remarkable that Spain should not have confirmed, until the year 1807, a grant said to have been destroyed at the conquest of the Floridas, after a rightful possession of the country for twenty years. If any reference in a grant, void in itself, were sufficient to render it valid, the whole of Louisiana might have been granted by Spain after she had transferred her right, even without the control of the true proprietor.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

Remarks on the preceding claims to lots.—The preceding claims to lots are forfeited under the Spanish law, for the want of inhabitation and cultivation, and do not appear to be entitled to confirmation under any law of the United States. It is probable, in the highest degree, that most of those orders of survey and permits to settle, which bear an ancient date, but the inhabitation and cultivation are recent, or where the land claimed has not been inhabited nor cultivated, are ante-dated.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner.

Register of claims to land in the district east of Pearl river, in Louisiana, founded on grants derived from the British Government, with the conditions upon which the grants were made; the land claimed being neither inhabited nor cultivated.

The following grants were upon these conditions, viz: That the grantee should, within three years from the date of the grant, clear and cultivate three acres for every fifty acres of plantable land, and should further, for every fifty acres of barren land, put and continue upon it three neat cattle, until three acres out of every fifty of barren land be fully improved, or should drain three acres of marsh land for every fifty. That if the land be rocky, and unfit for present cultivation, he should build a house upon it within three years, and should employ one able hand for every hundred acres thus granted, in digging a stone quarry. It has not been proved that any of the above conditions have been complied with.

Special report on the preceding register of claims.

The claim of the heirs of NICHOLAS BAUDIN to an island in Fowl river, being ten or twelve miles in length, and from two to three miles wide, is founded on the following documents:

Translated from the French.

We, lieutenant of the King, and commandant of Fort Louisiana, and Dartiguette, King's counsellor, commissary ordinary of marine, sent by the order of the court into this colony, have agreed, for the good of His Majesty's service in the advancement of this colony, to give contracts of cessions (des contrats des cessions) to several inhabitants, to wit: to Mr. Nicholas Baudin the land of Gross point, to begin at, and run along the course of, Fowl river till it reaches the oysters (oyster pass) which separate Massacree island from the main land, in order to raise cattle thereon. Of the said land we have made to him for, and in the name of, His Majesty the entire cession and transfer, with its circumstances and dependencies, in order that he, his children, heirs, or assigns, may enjoy and use it from henceforward and forever, without being liable to be troubled or disturbed in the peaceable possession thereof: not pretending, nevertheless, to derogate in any manner from the rights and pretensions which His Majesty might have thereto for the good of his service.

Done at Fort Louis, of Louisiana, this 12th November, 1710.

BIENVILLE.

Below is witten—

We, the Governor of the province of Louisiana, approve and ratify the said present concession.

Done at Fort St. Louis, this 15th September, 1713.

In presence of, and assisted by, Claude Boriteldet la Leine, her son-in-law.

Inhabitation and cultivation.

THOMAS POWELL, being sworn, saith that he knows, of his own knowledge, that land claimed by the representatives of Nicholas Baudin on Fowl river, called the island, has been inhabited and cultivated since the year 1804, and that he believes it was inhabited and cultivated before that period: and that four or five acres had been cultivated.

The claim of the heirs of JOSEPH CHASTANG to a tract of land called St. Louis, lying on the west side of Mobile river, three miles above the town of Mobile, is founded on the following documents:

Notice to the Commissioner.

To the Commissioner of Land Claims for that part of Louisiana which lies east of Pearl river: Be pleased to take notice, that Gabriele Montelimar, widow of the late Joseph Chastang, now deceased, and Pierre Chastang, Eugene Chastang, Bruno Chastang, Elizabeth Chastang, Benjamin Dubroca, (husband of Jeane Chastang,) Daniel Jussant, (husband of Magalatte Chastang,) and Manette Chastang, heirs at law of the said Joseph Chastang, do claim a tract of land lying one league from the town of Mobile, known by the name of St. Louis, bounded on the north by the creeks called Boucouma and Techibeau, on the south by the Cheateaque creek, on the east by the river, on the west by vacant land, containing about one hundred and fifty arpents front, with the same number deep; which tract of land was originally granted on the 7th November, 1733, by Monsieur Bienville, Governor, and Salmon, commissary ordinary of Louisiana, to M. Diron, by whom it was transferred to Charles Marie de la Lande, and sold eventually, on the 6th of June, 1746, to Joseph Barbant, from whom it passed to his sons Louis, Joseph, and Antoine Barbant, and was by them sold on the 19th of July, 1759, to Monsieur de Bonville, and descended by inheritance through Jean Baptiste Louisa to Margaritte Clavallier Deville, by whom and her husband, Peter Mary Cabazet, it was sold in 1797, and the sale confirmed on the 30th June, 1807, to John Baptiste Lorending, and by him sold on the 25th August, 1807, to Joseph Chastang: all of which will more fully appear from the original documents accompanying this notification. Wherefore, the widow of the said Joseph Chastang, and the heirs at law above mentioned, claim the said tract of land in the proportions established by the laws existing at the time of the decease of the said Joseph Chastang, which took place on the — day of —, in the year of —.

All of which is respectfully submitted, in their behalf, by their attorney in fact; as witness my hand this 13th day of June, 1813.

HARRY TOULMIN.

Certificate translated literally from the French.

We, the undersigned, ancient inhabitants of this place, certify that we have an entire knowledge that the boundaries of the plantation called St. Louis, distant one league from Mobile, begins towards the south from the entrance of bayou Chatogue, and run to the north to the disembouement of bayou Baukouman, which forms a peninsula.

In testimony whereof, we have signed the present.

Inhabitation and cultivation.

PIERRE LORENDINE being sworn, saith, that the land claimed by the widow and heirs of Joseph Chastang, called St. Louis, has been inhabited and cultivated, to his own knowledge, for sixteen years last past; and that he has understood, and believes, that it has been inhabited and cultivated for many years previously under the same title.

The claims of HARRY TOULMIN to three tracts of land, containing, together, though not surveyed, probably not less than three or four hundred thousand acres, are founded on the following documents:

Notice to the Commissioner.

To the Commissioner of Land Claims for that part of Louisiana which lies east of Pearl river: Please to take notice, that, by virtue of a Spanish grant executed by the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, bearing date the 29th January, 1793, in favor of Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, I claim a tract of land on Pearl river, bounded on the south by the bayou known by the name of Bolo Chitto, on the west by Pearl river, on the north by a line beginning opposite the mouth of bayou Lousa, or Black creek, and extending towards the east back to the path of the Choctaw Indians, and on the east by the said path, including the island in the barranca of Wakia, a Choctaw Indian; which will more fully appear from the copies of the original papers, duly authenticated, accompanying this notification; and which said tract of land has been transferred to me by the said F. H. Hevia, by endorsement on the said papers, bearing date the 9th day of November, 1813.

HARRY TOULMIN.

Translation from the Spanish.

Don Vincent Sebastian Pintado, captain of infantry and Surveyor General of West Florida: I certify that in one of the rolls of decrees of concession, executed by the General Government of Louisiana, which are deposited in this office under my charge, a document is therein lodged of the following tenor:

MR. COMMANDANT:

MOBILE, January 1, 1793.

Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, with due respect, presents himself before you, and declares that, having found a vacant tract of land, situated in the district of Mobile river, within the jurisdiction of Mobile, bounded on the south by a creek known by the name of Bolo Chitto, on the west by Pearl river, on the north by a line beginning opposite the mouth of bayou Lousa, or Black creek, and extending towards the east as far as the Choctaw Indian path, and on the east by the said path, including an island in front of the barranca of Wakia, a Choctaw Indian; and, as the said tract of land is not, nor has been granted, being desirous of establishing a cowpen on the above land, and making provisions on the said island, as well for my own support as that of my servants, he solicits you to grant him permission to settle himself as above mentioned, and, when what may be necessary has been completed, to transmit whatever has been effected, to the Governor General, to obtain the requisite title in form.

MOBILE, January 4, 1793.

By the representations which this person makes in the preceding memorial, you are to notify Domingo de Oliva and Urbana de Mui, inhabitants of the district, of this petition, that, from their knowledge, they may inform you of what they know, whether it can occasion or not any injury in the concession; which information will be returned in form, as by this decree I have ordered, and thereunto set my hand this day and date.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

On said day, the 4th of the current month of January, I notified the inhabitants, Domingo de Oliva and Urbana de Mui, of the preceding decree, who, being informed of the contents of the memorial, and of the concession of land which it solicits, under oath, which they made to state the truth, they declared that, from the knowledge which they have of some old inhabitants of the country, they know that the lands and island which Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia petitions for by memorial, are vacant tracts, and that, in the concession thereof by Government, no prejudice will be done to any person, it rather favors the country by clearing and by roads; that what they have said is the truth; and Domingo de Oliva, not knowing how to write, made the sign of the cross; Urbana de Mui signed it with me, the commandant, which I certify.

Mark of the cross of Domingo de Oliva, Urbana de Mui, before me.

LANZOS.

MOBILE, January 7, 1793.

In consequence of the two preceding depositions, made by two of the oldest inhabitants, known to be men of probity, and being invested with powers from the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, for these concessions, with the knowledge of his lordship, and in consideration that no prejudice can ensue from what is petitioned for, the special surveyor of this jurisdiction will measure the land solicited in the memorial, provided it be vacant, and cause no injury to any person neither in its ingresses nor egresses; drawing a figurative plat in form, to remit to the Governor General, that, on his inspection, (should his excellency find it convenient or suitable,) he may transmit me his title of property in form; this in interim serving as such until he receives it.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

NEW ORLEANS, January 29, 1793.

In consequence of the information communicated by the commandant of Mobile, concerning the land which Francisco Hermeterio Hevia solicits in his memorial, you may put him in possession of it, it being well understood that it be vacant, and causes injury to no person; and let it be returned to me, that it may be deposited in the Secretary's office of this Government, and for the information of the Surveyor General of this Province.

CARONDELET.

MOBILE, March 3, 1793.

In compliance with the order of the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, bearing date the 2d January, 1793, the special surveyor of this jurisdiction will put Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia in possession of the land he petitions for, which, under the same date, I have executed.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

Manuel de Lanzos, captain of the Louisiana standing regiment, civil and military commandant of the town of Mobile and its jurisdiction, sub-delegate of Royal finance in the same: I certify that the preceding copy is taken from the original, which has been transmitted to the Governor General of these provinces.

In testimony whereof, I sign this in Mobile, on the 9th of March, 1793.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

It agrees with the document to which I have recourse, and in consequence of a decree from the principal minister of public revenue, bearing date the 28th September last past, at the request of the party, I give the present on two sheets of common paper, there being no stamp paper in use in the town of Pensacola, on the 12th day of October, 1813.

VINCENT SEBASTIAN PINTADO.

Mathew Gonzales Manrique, Colonel of the national army, military commandant of West Florida, and sub-inspector General of the troops within the same, &c.: I certify that Vincent Sebastian Pintado is a captain of infantry, and Surveyor General of this province, and that the preceding signature is his hand-writing; that it is the same he makes use of in all his judicial and extra-judicial writings, and that full faith is given to it both in and out of courts of justice.

And in testimony whereof, I give the present in Pensacola, signed with my hand, and sealed with the escutcheon of my arms, and countersigned by the underneath Secretary of this Government, on the 15th October, 1813.

MATHEW GONZALES MANRIQUE.

CHARLES REGGIO.

In English.

For a valuable consideration, I do hereby assign, transfer, and make over to Harry Toulmin, of Mobile, all my right, title, claim, and interest, to the within described tract or parcel of land, as witness my hand, at Pensacola, this 9th December, 1813.

FRANCISCO HERMETERIO DE HEVIA.

Witnesses present:

MIC'L BETANCOURT,

Documents.—Registered.

We, Pierre Annibal Deville, knight of the royal and military order of St. Louis, ancient King's lieutenant at Mobile, do certify that M. Bonville holds and possesses, about four and a half years, a plantation called St. Louis, a league from this town, on the river Mobile, such as it exists and extends every way; to begin from the bayou called Chateaugite, the which he bought by sale of a private signature, dated the 19th July, 1759, of Sieurs Louis, Joseph, and Antoine Barbant Borsdore, brothers, whose fathers had purchased it of Mr. Charles Marie de la Lande d'Apremont.

In testimony whereof, we have delivered to the said M. de Bonville the present certificate, to serve and avail to confirm his titles of property to the said plantation and its dependencies, at Mobile, 28th December, 1765.

DEVILLE.

Remark.—By comparing the above copy, which is taken from a translation which appears to have been made by order of the British Government, with the original written in the French language, it appears there is a mistake in the date, and that 1765 has been put instead of 1763.

We, the Director General, commanding for the King at New Orleans, do certify that the plantation above mentioned, is to belong, in full property, as well as its dependencies, to Monsieur de Bonville, agreeable to the intentions of his Most Christian Majesty, and the power by him granted to his Governors and ordonators to permit his subjects to settle in this department of Mobile, where they saw fit.

In testimony whereof, we have signed the present certificate, and caused our seal at arms to be set thereunto, and to be countersigned by our secretary, at Mobile, this 28th December, 1763.

DABBADRE.

By my lord: DUNERGE.

A just translation of the annexed.

E. LAGARDERE, T. P. & J.

Remarks.—The original grant stated that, in the notice to have been made on the 7th November, 1733, by Monsieur Bienville, Governor of Louisiana, to M. Diron, has not been produced, and is not mentioned in any of the papers accompanying the notice, except the conveyance from Charles Marie de la Lande and his wife to Joseph Barbant de Borsdore; nor does it appear from the papers that there has been any conveyance from M. Diron, the original grantee, to Charles Marie de la Lande, the first seller, yet it appears to have been subsequently confirmed to Monsieur de Bonville by Dabbadre, the Director General, commanding at New Orleans, and the chain of title from Monsieur de Bonville to the present claimants is unbroken. Though the heirs of Joseph Chastang claim, in their notice, one hundred and fifty arpents front, by the same quantity deep, yet none of the papers show the front or depth, or the number of superficial arpents contained in the tract of land called St. Louis. A map has been produced and certified, on the 27th May, 1807, by a Mr. Lafon, of New Orleans, engineer and geographer, to be conformable to the original, which had been put into his hands; though the boundaries of the said tract of land are marked in the said map, yet the quantity is unascertained.

MOBILE, November 17, 1813.

To the Commissioner of Land Claims for that part of Louisiana which lies east of the Pearl river:

Please to take notice that, by virtue of a Spanish grant, executed by the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, bearing date the 3d of October, 1793, in favor of Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, I claim a tract of land on the river Pascagoula, bounded on the north by Black creek, on the west by the river Pascagoula, on the south and east by a large creek, known by the name of Escataba, and opposite to a red bluff, bounded on the northeast and west by the said river Pascagoula, comprehending the bayou Creole, and on the south by the bayou Rigolet and the passage; which will more fully appear from copies of the original papers, duly authenticated, accompanying this notification; and which said tract of land has been transferred to me by the said F. H. Hevia, by endorsement on the said papers, bearing date the 9th day of November, 1813.

HARRY TOULMIN.

Translation from the Spanish.

Don Vincent Sebastian Pintado, a captain of infantry, and Surveyor General of West Florida: I certify that in one of the files of decrees relating to concessions, executed by the General Government of Louisiana, which remains in this office under my charge, there is deposited a document of the following purport:

MR. COMMANDANT:

MOBILE, July 17, 1793.

Don Francisco de Hermeterio de Hevia, with due respect, presents himself before you, and says that, having found a vacant tract of land, situated in the jurisdiction of Mobile, bounded on the north by Black creek, on the west by Pascagoula river, on the south and east by a great creek, known by the name of the Escataba, including the island which is a little above the mouth of the said Escataba, and opposite a red bluff, bounded on the northeast and west by both Pascagoula rivers, the Creole bayou included, and on the south by bayou Rigolet and the passage; and being desirous of establishing a plantation for pitch and tar, and on the island to make his provisions and cotton, he solicits you to grant him permission to settle himself on said island, and, when the business is completed, to transmit what is effected to the Governor General, to obtain the requisite title in form.

By the representations which this person makes in the annexed memorial, and in consideration of the prayer which it contains, the original will be sent, for the best of purposes, to Joseph Krebs, syndic of Pascagoula, that, by his information, and that of any other ancient inhabitant, they may give me such knowledge as they have, that I may grant or not the tract of land and island which Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia solicits, that by its concession it may not prejudice any one; which I have so ordered by this my decree; which I sign on the day above written.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

MR. COMMANDANT OF MOBILE:

PASCAGOULA, July 28, 1793.

In consequence of what is commanded by your decree preceding, on the petition of Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, being accompanied by Augustin Krebs, an ancient inhabitant of the district, and both being informed of the contents of the petition, we learned that the lands and the island for which he solicits a concession, are vacant, and that the concession will not be prejudicial to any person, by cultivating it as his own property; on the contrary, it will be a benefit to the district, by being more cleared and cultivated; upon which you will determine what to you may seem meet.

JOSEPH KREBS.

MOBILE, September 2, 1793.

By virtue of the foregoing information, upon Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia's petition, whereby it does not appear to be prejudicial to any one, according to the information, being empowered therefor by the Governor General of the province, the Baron de Carondelet, for these concessions, the surveyor appointed for this jurisdiction, will measure the land petitioned for in the preceding memorial, provided it be vacant, and cause not the slightest prejudice to any person in its ingoings or outgoings, drawing a figurative plat in form to transmit to the Governor General, who, in his wisdom, will be pleased to furnish the interested with the title in form, should these vouchers meet his approbation.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

NEW ORLEANS, October 13, 1793.

By virtue of the information communicated by the commandant of Mobile, respecting the land which Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia solicits, let him be put in possession of the same, provided it be vacant, and cause not the slightest injury to any person, and return me the original, that it may be deposited in the secretary's office of this Government, and for the Surveyor General of this province.

CARONDELET.

MOBILE, January 19, 1794.

In fulfilment of the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet's order, bearing the above date, the special surveyor of this jurisdiction will put Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia in possession of the land which he solicits, which, under this same date, I have executed.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

Don Manuel de Lanzos, a captain of the standing regiment of Louisiana, civil and military commandant of the town of Mobile and its district, sub-delegate of royal finance in the same: I certify that the preceding copy is taken from the original, which has been transmitted to the Governor General of these provinces; and to serve and avail all purposes, I sign it in Mobile, on the 23d January, 1794.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

It agrees with said document, to which I have recourse, and in consequence of a decree of the principal minister of public revenue, bearing date the 28th of September last, passed at the request of the party, I give the present on two sheets of common paper, there being no stamp in use in the town of Pensacola, on the 12th of the month of October, 1813.

VINCENT SEBASTIAN PINTADO.

Don Mathew Gonzales Manrique, Colonel of the national army, military commandant of the province of West Florida, and sub-inspector of the troops in the same, &c.: I certify that Vincent Sebastian Pintado is a captain of infantry, and Surveyor General of this province, and that the preceding signature is his hand-writing, and the same he makes use of in all his judicial and extra-judicial writings, and to which full faith is given both in and out of courts of justice.

And in testimony whereof, I give the present in Pensacola, signed with my hand, and sealed with the escutcheon of my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten Secretary of this Government, on the 15th of October, 1813.

MATHEW GONZALES MANRIQUE.

CHARLES REGGIO.

In English.

For a valuable consideration, I do hereby assign, transfer, and make over, to Harry Toulmin, of Mobile, all my right, title, claim, and interest, in and to the within described tract and parcel of land.
As witness my hand, at Pensacola, this 9th of November, 1813.

FRANCISCO HERMETERIO DE HEVIA.

Witnesses present:

MICHAEL BESSAMONY,
MARIANO LATADY.

MOBILE, November 18, 1813.

To the Commissioner of Land Claims for that part of Louisiana which lies east of Pearl river:

Please to take notice that, by virtue of a Spanish grant, executed by the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, bearing date the 3d of November, 1793, in favor of Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, I claim a tract of land lying on both sides of Mobile river, that is to say, the western channel thereof, viz: an island situated in the said Mobile river, bounded on the north and northeast by the bayou called Lizard's creek, on the east by the river Tensa, on the south by the same river Tensa and a portion of the bay of Mobile, and on the west by the river Mobile, together with the high lands on the west side of the said river Mobile, in front of said island, that is to say, beginning ten arpents lower than the first barranca, which is a little above said Lizard's creek, and extending down the river Mobile, as far as Mill creek, with a depth having ten arpents more to the west than the old mill of Lizard; and which said tract of land has been transferred to me by endorsement on the said papers, bearing date the 9th day of November, 1813. And whereas it has been attempted to be proved, on the part of the representatives of William Simpson, to whom a part of said land was granted by a commandant of Mobile, long after the grant of the Governor to the said F. H. de Hevia, that the grant to Hevia was not made at the time expressed therein, I have deemed it proper to annex to the papers accompanying this notice, the official certificate of Don Francisco de Lambarre, formerly of the secretary's office, in the time of the Governor de Carondelet, proving that it is within his full recollection, that, during the administration of the said Governor, such titles to land in favor of Don Hevia actually did pass the secretary's office; reserving, however, to myself full power to exhibit hereafter, whenever the question as to the authenticity of Don Hevia's claims shall be legally and judicially a point of controversy, other documents and evidences in behalf of the same; solicits, at the same time, more for the detection of fraud, and the establishment of justice, than the ratification of any individual claim.

HARRY TOULMIN.

Translation from the Spanish.

In consideration of the foregoing statement in the memorial of Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, Vincent Pinado, captain of infantry, and Surveyor General of West Florida, I certify that in one of the files of decrees relating to concessions executed by the Government of Louisiana, which lies in this office under my charge, there is a document of the following tenor:

MR. COMMANDANT:

MOBILE, August 23, 1793.

Don Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia with due respect presents himself before you, and says, that his intentions being to establish a rice plantation on Mobile river, he solicits you to grant him the island in said river, bounded on the north and northeast by the bayou called Lizard's creek, and on the east by the river Tensa, and on the west by the said river Mobile, which is only suitable for the cultivation of rice; and as no place is found high enough on said island to build upon it a dwelling house and other edifices which are necessary for the lodging of negroes and storehouses, in order to lay up the crop, I have concluded to obtain of you permission to erect the said buildings on the land in front of the said island, that is to say, beginning ten arpents lower than the first bluff, which is a little above the said Lizard's creek, and extending below Mobile river as far as Mill creek, with a depth of ten arpents more to the west than the old mill of Lizard; a favor which he hopes to receive from your kindness; and when the necessary documents are completed, to remit them to the Governor General, to obtain the due title in form.

FRANCISCO HERMETERIO DE HEVIA.

MOBILE, August 24, 1793.

By the representation made by this person in the preceding memorial, you are to notify Peter Trouillet and Anthony Espejo, that, as ancient inhabitants in the district, they may depose what they know concerning the lands which Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia solicits, and whether this concession can or cannot be made without injury to a third person; and when the business is completed, it will be returned in form, as I have decreed and ordered by this my decree, at the town of Mobile, dated as above.

LANZOS.

In the town of Mobile, on the 1st of September, 1793, before me, Manuel de Lanzos, captain of the standing regiment of Louisiana, military and political commandant of the said place and district, appeared Don Pedro Trouillet and Anthony Espejo, who, under oath which they made in due form, to communicate all the information they had concerning the lands solicited by Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, whether they really belong to the King, and do not belong to any person, reply, that they are in fact vacant; that they have always known that they do not belong to any individual; and that by their concession a benefit will ensue by clearing the uncultivated lands, tending to the health of the country, and being informed of this deposition, they signed it before me, the aforesaid commandant, which I certify.

Before me,

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

Witnesses: PETER TROUILLET,
ANTHONY ESPEJO.

MOBILE, September 2, 1793.

In consideration of the foregoing statement in the memorial of Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, by virtue of what the aforementioned Peter Trouillet and Anthony Espejo have declared, as old inhabitants, under oath, and no injury resulting to any person, as is reported, the proper permission is granted him to use and cultivate the said land, as his memorial points out, as if it were properly his own estate; and for that purpose, the surveyor will draw a plat in due form, and send it to the Governor General, that his excellency, being informed of the formality of these proceedings, may condescend to grant him the property he solicits, as he thus petitions it of his excellency.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

NEW ORLEANS, November 3, 1793.

In consequence of the information of the commandant of Mobile, Don Manuel de Lanzos, relative to the land which Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia solicits in his memorial, let him be put in possession of it, if it be vacant, and if it be in no manner prejudicial to any one, and return to me the original, that it may be deposited in the Secretary's office of this Government, for the information of the Surveyor General of this province.

CARONDELET.

MOBILE, November 25, 1793.

In compliance with the order of the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, bearing date the 3d of November, 1793, the special surveyor of this district will put Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia in possession of the land he solicits, which under this same date I have executed.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

Manuel de Lanzos, captain of the standing regiment of Louisiana, civil and military commandant of Mobile and its jurisdiction, and sub-delegate of royal finance, in the same: I certify that the foregoing copy is taken from the original, which has been sent to the Governor General of these provinces; and in testimony whereof, I sign this in Mobile, on the 23d of November, 1793.

MANUEL DE LANZOS.

It agrees with the document to which I have recourse, and in consequence of a decree from the principal minister of public revenue, bearing date the 28th of September last past, at the solicitation of the party, I give the present on two sheets of common paper, there being no stamp in use in the town of Pensacola, on the 12th day of the month of October, 1813.

VINCENT SEBASTIAN PINTADO.

Mathew Gonzales Manrique, a colonel of the national army, military commandant of the province of West Florida, and sub-inspector of the same, &c.; I certify that Vincent Sebastian Pintado is a captain of infantry, and Surveyor General of this province, and that the preceding signature is in his hand-writing, the same which he uses in all his judicial and extra-judicial writings, and to which full faith is given, as well in office as out of it.

In testimony whereof, I give the present in Pensacola, signed with my hand, sealed with the escutcheon of my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten Secretary of this Government, on the 15th October, 1813.

FRANCISCO HERMETERIO DE HEVIA.

Witnesses present: MICHAEL BETANCOURT, and
MARIANO LATADY.

Translation from the Spanish.

Francisco de Lambarry, lieutenant of the Louisiana regiment of infantry: I certify that, on the different and repeated occasions which I have been employed by the Baron de Carondelet, who was the Governor of the province of Louisiana at the time of the Spanish domination, to write in the Secretary's office, I passed through my hands various concessions in favor of Francisco Hermeterio de Hevia, which I know passed at the same time to the archives of Charles Trudeau, Surveyor General, that they might take the proper course, putting the interested in free and complete possession of the same.

In testimony whereof, I give this, at his request, in Pensacola, on the 29th of October, 1813.

FRANCISCO RODRIGUEZ DE LAMBARRY.

PENSACOLA, October 29, 1813.

Mathew Gonzales Manrique, colonel of the national army, political and military Governor of the province of West Florida: I certify that the preceding signature and declaration of Francisco Rodriguez de Lambarry, is from under his own hand, and the same which he is accustomed to use in all his writings, and to which full faith and credit has been given both in and out of office; and to serve and avail all purposes, I give the present, signed with my hand, sealed with the seal of my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten Secretary of this Government.

MATHEW GONZALES MANRIQUE.

CHARLES REGGIO.

Evidence introduced to show that the preceding claims of Harry Toulmin are fraudulent.

Agreement between Harry Toulmin and John Smith with Francisco Hevia and his wife, under the following conditions, to procure titles to the following tracts of land:

The said Harry Toulmin and John Smith pledge themselves to pay all costs and charges which may be incurred in obtaining the titles of the above tracts of land, without having any claims against the said Hevia or wife, should the titles be confirmed or not. And we furthermore pledge ourselves to remit to the said Hevia or his wife, or any other person who hereafter may be appointed by them, authentic plans and titles of the abovementioned tracts of land, that they may know the contents of each tract, and to dispose of them according to the intention and sentiments of the contracting parties.

We, Hevia and his wife, have agreed that, after the said H. T. and J. S., or either of their representatives, remit to any of us, or those we may hereafter appoint, the plans and titles of the Government in due form, to give a bill of sale to the said H. T. and J. S. of two-thirds of the lands which may be confirmed by the Government, more or less, and to consent that they should be divided immediately into three equal parts, in a manner that it may be equitable to the concerned. Or we, Hevia and his wife, will consent that they should be sold, and the proceeds to be divided into equal shares, one to us, and the other two to the said T. and S., drawing the writings in a manner that we may secure the amount of our third part, that we may receive it, or the person we may hereafter appoint.

In testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, in Pensacola, this ———; the said Smith pledging himself to carry the same to be signed by H. T. in Mobile, in presence of two witnesses.

I, Joseph M. Fernandez, do depose and say that the above is a correct translation of an original paper written in the Spanish language, with the exception of the lands, and the names of the witnesses, and formal part, which are omitted; which original paper was presented to me for translation by Harry Toulmin; and that I was requested by Harry Toulmin to keep the contents of the said paper secret.

Question by James Innerarity. Do you know that the island called Isla de las Chosas, or Simpson's island, bounded by bayou Beauchamp, Lizard's creek, Mobile river, and Raft river, belongs to the estate of William Simpson, or that he got a grant of it from the Spanish Government?

Answer. I have understood, and heard it generally said, that the said island has belonged to William Simpson, since the year 1803, by virtue of a grant from the Spanish Government, and that this has been generally understood in the town of Mobile.

Question. Has not lieutenant Hevia, for the most part of his time, resided in the town of Mobile, since 1803, until about two years last past?

Answer. In the affirmative.

Question. Do you suppose Hevia could be ignorant of what all the town knew, viz: that the said island belonged to William Simpson?

Answer. I do not suppose that he could be ignorant that the island belonged to Simpson.

Question. Did you ever hear, before this day, that Hevia had any claim to said island?

Answer. I never heard, before this day, that Hevia, or any person other than Simpson, had any claim to the island.

Question. Did you ever know or hear that Hevia, or any person, ever cultivated the island?

Answer. I never did.

Question. Do you know that Simpson ever cultivated the island?

HILAIRE DUBROCA being sworn. First question repeated.

Answer. I have generally understood that this island belonged to Simpson.

Question. Did you ever hear, before this day, that Hevia had any claim to said land?

Answer. I never did.

BENJAMIN DUBROCA being sworn:

Question. Did you rent the island for your mother from Simpson, in July, in the year 1803, and pay rent for it?

Answer. I did rent it in July, 1803, and paid rent to him for it.

Question. When you rented the island, had you heard any thing of Hevia's claim to it?

Answer. I had not.

Question. Did Hevia, or any person for him, cultivate the island?

Answer. He never did cultivate the island, nor any person for him.

Question. Did Simpson cultivate it?

Answer. Yes, he had negroes upon it.

Question. Has it not been generally known, since 1803, to almost every person in Mobile, that the island belonged to Simpson by virtue of a Spanish grant?

Answer. In the affirmative.

Question. Had not lieutenant Hevia been a resident at different times, for a number of years, in the town of Mobile; and has he not, in the absence of the commandant, sometimes acted as commandant, and at others as secretary?

Answer. He has at different times resided at Mobile, and has, in the absence of the commandant, sometimes acted as commandant, and at others as secretary.

Question. Did he live on terms of intimacy with Mr. Simpson?

Answer. He appeared friendly to Mr. Simpson, and I never heard of any difference between them.

Question. Do you suppose that Hevia could be possibly ignorant of Simpson's claim and right to that island?

Answer. I do not suppose that he could be ignorant that it belonged to Simpson.

Question. Did you ever hear that Hevia, while he resided here, ever made any question of Simpson's right to that island, or ever claimed it for himself?

Answer. I never heard that Hevia ever questioned Simpson's right, or ever claimed it for himself.

Question. What was Hevia's relation to Don Manuel Lanzos?

Answer. Hevia married the daughter of Lanzos.

Question. Suppose copies of titles were now shown to you, dated while Lanzos was commandant at this place, being previous to Osorno; and of course previous to the grant to Simpson, granting to Hevia three large tracts of land, one of which being the island claimed by Simpson, with a certificate attached to the bottom of them, stating that he had sent on the originals to the Baron de Carondelet, what would you think of such a paper?

Answer. I should really think that they were antedated.

Question. Supposing Lanzos now alive, would it not be as easy for him to issue as many pretended titles and certificates as he pleased, of this nature?

Answer. I suppose it would be easy for him to issue them if he were not an honest man.

Mathew Gonzales Manrique, colonel of the national army, military commandant of West Florida, and sub-inspector of the troops of the same, &c.: I certify that Louis Piernas, by whom the preceding certificate appears subscribed, is sergeant major of the Louisiana regiment of infantry, to whose signature full faith and credit are and ought to be given, as well on duty as off; it being his proper hand-writing, and which he makes use of in his judicial and extrajudicial writings; and that it may be made manifest, when required, I give this present, in Pensacola.

Signed with my hand, and sealed with my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten Secretary of this Government, December 15, 1813.

The following letter and accompanying papers were received from Harry Toulmin:

SIR:

FORT STODDART, August 29, 1814.

Be pleased to file among the papers relating to the claims of Hevia the following documents. It was a matter of much more importance, in my view, to rescue my character from the imputations thrown upon it by the false oath of Warren Dodge, than to establish any land claim whatever. It was at the request of Governor Holmes that I applied to the Spanish Governor for the public records. A trunk full was accordingly delivered to me at Mobile. I found not among them the original titles to town lots in Mobile. I, therefore, made a second application. It was this that was carried by Mr. Dodge, and no other whatsoever, from me. I have not been able to find any copy of my letter; but the oath of Mr. Garrow shows its substance. I annex the Governor's reply, and also his reply to Captain Wilkinson. As to the claims themselves, I have taken what pains I could to obtain testimony both for and against them; but no additional light, either one way or the other, has come to my knowledge since they were filed; and the situation of public affairs has been such as to render it prudent or expedient that I should myself visit Pensacola in search of testimony. The Spanish papers annexed, and marked D, E, F, were sent to me before the claims were filed; but I did not deem it important to send them with the original papers. Let them have whatever weight they are entitled to, be it in one scale or the other. I am, sir, yours, &c.

HARRY TOULMIN.

TO WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Esq., Land Commissioner.

The affidavit of Mr. Dodge was omitted in its proper place, but is here inserted.

I, Warren Ross Dodge, do depose and say, that, on or about the — day of September, in the year 1813, I went, at the instance of James B. Wilkinson, then postmaster in the town of Mobile, and son-in-law of Harry Toulmin, to Pensacola, for the American mails, which had been carried thither by the Creek Indians; and that I was requested by the said James B. Wilkinson to carry a letter from Judge Toulmin to the Governor of Pensacola, which I refused to do unless I was permitted to see the letter, as I might thereby be brought into difficulty; that the letter was then shown to me, and that it was for the purpose of inquiring whether entries for certain lands were on record in Pensacola; that I believe that the lands respecting which information was asked, consisted of three very large tracts, and know that one of which was on Mobile river; and that he did not pay sufficient attention to ascertain the situation of the other tracts; that the said James B. Wilkinson informed me that the letter was of a private nature, and requested me not to speak of it; that Pintado, the Surveyor General, was translator of the said letter which I bore to the Governor, and acted as interpreter between the Governor and me, and answered for the Governor to my inquiries; that no such lands had been granted; and that there were no entries on record for such lands; and that Pintado, the said Surveyor General, informed me for himself that no such papers were on record in his office.

W. R. DODGE.

Sworn and subscribed before me, at the town of Mobile, this 17th day of February, in the year of our Lord 1814.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD,
Commissioner east of Pearl river, Louisiana.

The following are the papers or documents which accompany the letter of Mr. Toulmin:

I, S. H. Garrow, do depose that, on or about — day of July, 1813, I was requested by James B. Wilkinson, then postmaster in the town of Mobile, to copy a letter written by him to the Governor of Pensacola, to demand a mail bag that had been taken by the Creek Indians, and carried there. Captain Wilkinson, at the same time, showed me a letter written by Judge Toulmin to the Governor of Pensacola, the purport of which was, to request the Governor to send titles and records belonging to the lots of the town of Mobile; and that the letter did not contain any inquiries respecting any particular tracts of land; that, after copying the abovementioned letter, it was closed, together with Judge Toulmin's letter, under one cover, and sealed in my presence. I do not believe Mr. Dodge had any access to any of the letters, or that any other letters were sent except the above-mentioned. And Mr. Dodge was employed after the package was closed. Mr. Dodge was not employed in September, as Captain Wilkinson left Mobile in August, and died at Dauphin island in the commencement of September. I do certify that the following is a true and correct translation of the Governor of Pensacola's answer to Judge Toulmin's letter:

PENSACOLA, July 29, 1813.

I have received your letter of the 2d of the present month, containing a representation, that among the records which have been delivered, there are not found the titles of individual property of the lots in the town of Mobile, nor a plan of it. I am very desirous of giving liberty to the powers which might afford the means of effecting any thing for the advantage of the good inhabitants, but as they are in the possession of the fugitive from arrest, Don Cayento Perez, to whose care the said documents had been committed, it does not come within my means to effect that object. May God preserve you many years.

MATHEW GONZALES MANRIQUE.

DON HARRY TOULMIN.

Sworn before me, at St. Stephen's, 4th June, 1814.

WM. HENRY, J. P.

DEAR SIR:

GENERAL POST OFFICE, July 10, 1814.

Enclosed you have the Spanish Governor's letter, which you requested might be returned to you in your letter of the 28th February. Yours, respectfully,

ABRAHAM BRADLEY.

TO HARRY TOULMIN, Esq.

Translation from the Spanish.

PENSACOLA, July 29, 1813.

By Mr. Dodge, I received your letter of the 25th, in which was enclosed another from the judge of your district, calling for one hundred papers relative to the land titles of those inhabitants. Under the same date I reply to the said magistrate, and take the liberty of enclosing my letter to you, to have it sent to him. It is certain that many Indians of the Creek nation have come here to receive presents, which the munificence of my Sovereign has assigned to them annually. Arms they have not received, the custom not warranting the distribution of any. To Mr. Dodge I have ordered the delivery of the valise of letters which the said Indians left here, which you have requested in your favor to which I reply. God preserve you many years.

APRIL 30, 1792.

The Minister of War, under date of the 10th of January last, gives me the following advice: By your excellency's letter of the 27th August last, there have been received the extracts of inspection returns, and the rolls of service of the officers, first sergeants, and cadets, of the standing regiment of Louisiana; but it is observed, that in those referring to the members of the last class, notwithstanding what has been represented in the royal order of the 20th January last, a seniority [anteguedad] of more than two or three years service is given to Anthony and Joseph Ninez and to Anthony Gayarre, who are not sons of captains or officers of a superior grade; nor are they more than sixteen years of age; (the eldest of all at the time of the dates of said rolls of service;) wherefore, by the King's order, your excellency will inform the sub-inspector and colonel of the corps to arrange them conformably to the ordinance; as neither in this, nor in the royal decree, nor any resolution, is there any decision that can have given them foundation or power for a procedure, whereby a known prejudice ensues to so many others, who, to be admitted in the service, have waited to arrive at the age prescribed by the ordinance. I transmit it to your excellency for your information and government in future, enclosing the rolls of service.

God preserve you many years.

LOUIS DE LAS CHOSAS.

BARON DE CARONDELET,
Colonel of the Louisiana regiment of infantry.

Francis Maxim. de St. Maxent: I certify that the preceding copy is conformable to the original which is in the archives of this regiment under my charge, and that Captain Francis Hermeterio, of the same corps, was one of those comprehended in the loss of seniority [anteguedad] by virtue of the preceding royal order, by being placed in the same situation as those therein mentioned. And that it may be made manifest, and at his request, I give the present, in Pensacola, 30th October, 1813.

FRANCIS MAX. DE ST. MAXENT.

PENSACOLA, October 29, 1813.

Mathew Gonzales Manrique, colonel of the national army, civil and military Governor of the province of West Florida: I certify that Manuel de Lanzas has been a captain of the Louisiana regiment of infantry; and that in the years 1793 and 1794 he was commandant of the town of Mobile; and was, at that time, commandant of the posts; had the power to allow the establishment of vacant King's lands, by persons known to aid those under the licenses or vouchers effected by said commandant to the General Government of the province, in solicitation of titles in form, who had the power of granting them at that time. And to serve and avail the purposes required, I give the present.

Signed with my hand, and sealed with the seal of my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten Secretary of this Government.

PENSACOLA, October 29, 1813.

I, James McBoy, do certify that, having been at the house of Madam Fisher, I heard Jacob Galgari say to said lady, that Francis H. de Hevia, who was then commandant of Pascagoula, was desirous to purchase of him or make an exchange for a piece of land, which descended from Madam Bochas, his mother, which was adjoining John Baptiste Baudrieua, for a like quantity on the river of said Pascagoula, of a concession which the said Hevia holds; but it did not take place, through the insurrection of the inhabitants in that year, 1810. The whole whereof, I pledge myself to depose in court and swear to, as I now do.

In testimony whereof, I give this, in presence of Mariano Latady and Francis Martines, officers of the Louisiana regiment.

JAMES McBOY.

FRANCIS MARTINES.

Remarks.—The three preceding claims of Harry Toulmin purport to be founded on orders of settlement, given by the commandant of Mobile, at different times, in the year 1793, at the instance or on the petition of Francis H. de Hevia, dated at the town of Mobile, in the same year. But it is proved by official documents that Francis H. de Hevia was not at the town of Mobile in the year 1793, and that he did not arrive there until the year 1799; and it is further proved that, in the year 1793, Hevia was only a cadet, and the seventh in his class, and not more than sixteen or seventeen years of age. Here it may be remarked, that the claimants in these cases were furnished with a copy of this evidence many months before the close of the office, and if Hevia had been at Mobile before the year 1799, it would have been easy for them to have proved it by some person in Mobile or Pensacola; or if he was of higher rank than cadet in 1793, it would have been easy to have proved it by the commission of Hevia, who appears to be one of the partners in the claims. By the instructions of Governor Gayoso de Lemos, and also by those of John V. Morales, the commandants of posts had not power to grant permits for more than eight hundred arpents, and permits could be granted only upon condition of inhabitation and cultivation within one year thereafter. Yet the papers in the three preceding claims of Harry Toulmin purport that permits or orders of settlement were given in the year 1793, by the commandant of Mobile, in favor of Francisco H. de Hevia, then a boy, for not less than three or four hundred thousand acres of land. It appears that no part of the above claimed lands were ever cultivated by Hevia, or any person for him; and that no one ever heard of these claims of Hevia until the commissioner in that part of Louisiana which lies east of Pearl river had opened his office for the purpose of receiving land claims. The late commandant of Mobile knew nothing of such claims. If the orders of settlement, under which Harry Toulmin claims, had actually been made by the commandant of Mobile, the originals should have been placed among the archives at Mobile; but the archives of record have been delivered up, and no such papers are found among them. In the papers upon which Mr. Toulmin founds his claims, it is stated that the orders of settlement were made by the advice of Domingo Dolives, Urbana Demouy, and two other persons. All of these persons are dead, so that it is impossible to prove any fraud by them; and it is equally impossible to prove that they did not sign such papers, because the papers produced are said to be copies. The only testimony attempted to be rebutted by the claimants is that of Mr. Dodge. In this case it is not material as to the validity of the claims, whether Mr. Dodge was mistaken as to the particular lands about which Harry Toulmin inquired of the Governor of Pensacola or not. But no one can decide upon the relative weight of the testimony of Mr. Dodge and of Mr. Garrow, without some knowledge of the circumstances, and also some knowledge of the persons.

It appears by the secret agreement between Harry Toulmin, and John Smith, and Francisco H. de Hevia, which is recorded with the other evidence, that Toulmin and Smith were to have two-thirds of the lands, and Hevia and his wife the remaining third part. It is certainly remarkable that, if Hevia knew his claims to be genuine, he should consent to give Harry Toulmin and John Smith two-thirds of three or four hundred thousand acres of land for the small service of laying his claims into the Land Office; and it is certainly extraordinary that Harry Toulmin and John Smith, if they believed the claims of Hevia to be genuine, should have demanded a reward so enormous for a service so small. In this case as in others of the like nature, the pretence of fairness, after the fraud has been detected, can operate but little in favor of the transaction.

From the evidence adduced in this case, it is believed that the three preceding claims of Harry Toulmin or of Toulmin, Smith, and Hevia, are fraudulent, and ought to be rejected.

From a desire that every thing touching the preceding claims might be laid before Congress, a letter from Judge Toulmin has been spread on the record; since the preceding report was concluded, a letter has been received from James Innerarity, executor of the last will of William Simpson, deceased, on the subject of these claims, which, from a like desire of presenting a full view of the case, I beg leave to return into the General Land Office, and to make a part of this report.

SIR:

WASHINGTON CITY, July 20, 1815.

I have the honor to enclose a letter from James Innerarity, executor of the last will of William Simpson, deceased, relative to the claims of Harry Toulmin, Smith, and Hevia. This letter was received after my report upon those claims was concluded. From a desire that Congress might have a full view of the subject, a letter from Harry Toulmin, touching those claims, was entered on the record; from the same desire, I beg leave to make the letter of James Innerarity a part of my report upon those cases.

I have the honor to be, with very high esteem, sir, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, Commissioner of Land Claims.

HON. JOSIAH MEIGS,
Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SIR:

As from what you were pleased to inform me of in a late conversation, it appears that Mr. John Smith and Judge Toulmin still continue to press upon your attention and that of the Government, their extensive, and, as I deem, surreptitious claims to land in your district, under titles transferred to them by Captain Hevia, and as it is interesting to me that their pretensions should be viewed in their proper light, I now take the liberty of troubling you in this manner, as I formerly did verbally, with a history of those claims, so far as it has come to my knowledge, and with a few comments, that will probably serve to show their true character. Being at Pensacola during the latter days of March, 1813, when some rumors had transpired of the intended occupation of this place by the troops of the United States, a gentleman, in conversation with me, mentioned that Hevia held considerable tracts of land in this district, which he believed might be purchased on very reasonable terms, and which he recommended to me to buy. I was at the moment somewhat surprised at the information, as I had known Hevia as simply a poor lieutenant ever since 1802; and for some years back, say from 1807, we had been neighbors and intimate; yet in this interval, I never heard, either from himself or others, a single syllable that could give an idea of his being a land owner. It struck me, however, as I had heard that there existed some considerable old French grants in the place, more particularly mentioned (Pascagoula) that he might latterly (since he had left Mobile for Pascagoula, about eighteen months before) have acquired the property or disposal of some of these. This idea passed transiently and indifferently through my mind, as I had at the moment but little inclination to purchase, and I so expressed myself to my informant; at the same time, however, saying that if the titles were good, and the price not too great, I would give the matter a consideration. The gentleman promised to procure me a sight of the titles, and inform me of the price demanded; but a few days afterwards I left Pensacola without again seeing or hearing from him. Towards the end of April (the change of Government here having taken place) I wrote to my brother at Pensacola, desiring him to procure and send me sketches of the different tracts, the titles, terms of sale, &c., &c. In the beginning of May I left Mobile for New Orleans, and returned the latter part of June. Soon afterwards I received from my brother copies of the titles of Hevia to the three tracts now claimed under him by Messrs. Smith and Toulmin, one of which I perceived, with astonishment, interfered with the title of my lately deceased friend William Simpson, to the Isla de las Chosas. Up to the moment of their reception I never had an idea in anticipation of their true character, but this burst upon me by a single reading: the fabrication, (for such it most decidedly was and is, in my opinion,) although extremely well calculated for imposing on those ignorant of the Spanish usages, would not bear the touch of my examination: accordingly I wrote my brother in answer (without inquiring about the terms on which they were offered, and which I had not yet learned,) that I would have nothing to do with them, as they were not worth sixpence, being gross fabrications.

I heard no more about these pretended titles until some time in the ensuing October, when I chanced to make, in a very singular manner, the discovery that they were in the hands of Judge Toulmin and Mr. Smith, who had made a very curious bargain for them (through the agency of the latter) with Hevia and his wife. The information was given me by my clerk, Joseph M. Fernandez, to whom the agreement for the purchase, and other papers respecting them, had been given by Toulmin (then holding court here) for translation, accompanied by an injunction of secrecy. Nor was it the young man's fault that this pledge was violated: an unintentional word gave me a key to the mystery, and on finding I was interested, he thought himself bound to disclose to me the whole. You happened, sir, to be in town, but about to set off for Pascagoula, and believing that your office would close in December, and that another favorable opportunity of producing evidence in support of the claim of W. Simpson's estate to the Island de las Chosas, in opposition to the probable pretensions of those gentlemen, might not offer, I deemed that no time was to be lost. I went immediately, therefore, to see Judge Toulmin, in the hope, by a fair statement of Simpson's claim, (which, however, he could not be ignorant of,) and of my knowledge of the nature of Hevia's, of inducing him to desist from his pretention. The judge, however, was busy with his court, but I saw Smith, and determined on opening the matter to him. I called him aside for that purpose; mentioned to him what I had discovered; stated to him Simpson's claim, and my knowledge of the nature of his; informed him that the same titles had previously been offered for sale to me, but were rejected as fabrications; and concluded, after some conversation, by requesting to know how he intended to act; as, if he persisted in prosecuting the claims, I should be under the necessity of producing such evidence as would go to d—n them. He tried hard to get from me the grounds of my strong assertions, but as I did not choose to give him that satisfaction, from a conviction that he only wanted to profit of my superior knowledge of circumstances for covering the weak parts of his pretensions, he finally told me that his determination was to persevere. I, therefore, left him, called upon you, sir, informed you of what had occurred, produced evidence before you in support of Simpson's claim in opposition to those intended to be presented, and informed you of all the particularities of these latter, (although I had not seen the titles in Smith and Toulmin's hands,) which you have since found to be correct, on the presentation of them by those gentlemen.

I will now take the liberty of troubling you with some comments on the titles themselves, although your own penetration must, on their perusal, and that of the evidence adduced, have disclosed to you their no value.

The first petition, dated 1st January, 1793, is for a large tract of land on Pearl river, said to be within the jurisdiction of Mobile. I believe, sir, that the records of your office will not show another instance of land granted on Pearl river by a commandant of Mobile; their jurisdiction never extended so far to the best of my knowledge. The tract is petitioned for as for a cowpen, and a large island to raise provisions on for himself and servants. On this petition, the commandant, Lanzos, demands and receives information from Domingo de Olivia and Orbanne Demouy, neither of them inhabitants on Pearl river, but residents on this bay. These men, plain, worthy farmers, who knew as much of the state of property on Pearl river as they did of the geography of the moon, who would have shuddered at the idea of an oath on any subject that they were not perfectly acquainted with; these men are made to have sworn, from the hearsay of others, that the lands in question are vacant, and that to grant them to the boy, Hevia, will be a public benefit. Of course, Commandant Lanzos grants them by a decree, dated 7th January, 1793. The Baron de Carondelet (the most able and vigilant Governor that Louisiana ever had) confirms the grant. Lanzos, in consequence, on the 3d of March, orders the deputy surveyor for the district to put Hevia in possession, and it is incumbent on us to believe that Mr. deputy surveyor did so, although there was no such officer at the time for Mobile district. To all this the commandant, Lanzos, certifies; and, further, that he had sent on the originals to the Baron de Carondelet, as witness his hand, at Mobile, the 9th March, 1793.

The second tract petitioned for 17th July, 1793, for a pitch and tar plantation, to raise provisions and cotton, comprises a great extent of ground on Pascagoula river. The same formalities appear to have been practised on this petition as on the former, and the grant is doubtless entitled to equal credit.

The third tract petitioned for, the 23d August, 1793, comprises, besides the island claimed by me for W. Simpson's estate, an extent of country on the main land on the west side of this river, of about twelve miles in length, by six or seven in breadth. On this petition, Commandant Lanzos calls on Peter Trouillet and Antonio Espejo, as old inhabitants, for information, and who are made to have given it, as in the former cases, very favorably: the other formalities of the grant, confirmation, &c., follow of course. It may be observed, en passant, that if this petition had truly been made at the date it bears, Commandant Lanzos would not have asked for information from Antonio Espejo, "as an old inhabitant." This Espejo was a discharged soldier, who came from Pensacola to Mobile at or about that very time, certainly not many years before, and settled here: he made himself a kind of busy body, spy, and half domestic, to the different commandants. Now although at that time this man would never have been consulted, yet his name was one that would very readily occur as proper to be made use of for sinister purposes at an interval of 16 or 18 years afterwards. Another observation occurs more particularly on this grant: it treads so fast on the heels of the former, that they appear as if both had been going the rounds of official formalities at the same time: it is petitioned for only five weeks after the former, and appears as if confirmed by the Baron de Carondelet only three weeks after he is made to have put his signature to its predecessor. It is to be remarked, also, that all the persons from whom Lanzas pretends to have asked information on each and all of these petitions previous to issuing the grants, are long since dead. This may be said to show policy—dead men tell no tales.

The incongruities in these pretended titles, taken in whole, are indeed so many and so glaring, that it appears to me no person, save one wilfully blind, and who hoped, at the same time, by his arts of deception, to be able to blind others, would have had the folly to have purchased the claims, or the unblushing effrontery to have prosecuted them.

In the first place, sir, I would beg you to inquire among the Creole French and Spanish inhabitants, whether any of them ever knew or heard from Hevia or others, during a period of eleven years that he principally resided here, any thing that could lead to an idea of his being a great land owner. Whether he was not known to every one in or near the place as a poor ensign or lieutenant, who subsisted scantily, although with some decency, on his pay and his wife's industry? Whether any one ever knew Hevia to be possessed of a single negro, other than one or two house wenches? or that he ever cultivated a spot of ground, other than a little garden attached to his rented dwelling-house? or that he ever owned a head of cattle, even a single milch cow? You will find, sir, no one who will say he was a land owner, a cattle or slave proprietor, in the sense these pretended titles appear to indicate. His circumstances could hardly be supposed to have escaped Judge Toulmin's knowledge, who lived in our neighborhood, and knew every one of the least note in our little village; at least he certainly knew that the Island de las Chosas had been claimed and occupied by W. Simpson since the year 1803, without molestation by any one; and that there were other inhabitants, (the Hartleys and Powells,) on the main land, part of the tract lying on this river, who, although Hevia himself had at sundry times occupied the situation of commandant ad interim, had never been troubled in their possessions. It is, indeed, remarkable, that both Simpson and Hartley derived their titles from Commandant Orsono, to whom Hevia was second in command; yet no claim or opposition to those grants was made by him at that time or afterwards, until those fabricated grants were brought forward. Surely such circumstances alone ought to have made Judge Toulmin doubt and inquire as to the validity of these titles. He was, however, it appears, contented with the bargain, and he consented to run the risk; the gain, if gained, was immense; the loss, in a pecuniary view, could be nothing, although the risk of character attendant on the prosecution of a fraudulent claim on that Government which had adopted him, a stranger, and invested him with the sacred functions of a judge, ought to have made him pause. He has not paused, however, but proceeded onward; and I am, therefore, bound to proceed in dissolving the visionary fabric of his claims, till not a wreck is left behind.

You will have observed, sir, that no originals are shown or pretended to be shown; the titles are only copies of copies. It might be well to cause the original copies said to be deposited in the land surveyor's office at Pensacola to be examined by competent judges in those matters. But supposing these to be complete, to be wanting in no essential requisites as copies, to what would this amount? Their authenticity must still depend on the truth of Lanzas' certificate attached to the bottom of each, purporting that he had transmitted the real originals to the Baron de Carondelet. If this was the case, then one of the two alternatives must be admitted—either they were lost on their passage, which is not pretended, but the contrary, or they must be still in the land office of Louisiana, and it is the business of the claimants to produce them. Is it to be believed, however, that these originals ever had existence? Is it probable that Lanzas, a man of mature age, sound and penetrating judgment, no ways calculated for a dupe, would, at that time, when he could not, even in prospect, have had any connexion with Hevia, have granted to him, to a boy of 16 or 18 years of age, (at the utmost,) within the short space of eight or ten months, those tracts of land of such extent, of the richest in this part of the province, on the three principal rivers in it, and at such distances from each other? Supposing him capable of acting so absurdly, provided he had had no superior to whom he owed an account of his actions, would he, a subaltern commandant of a post or district, have dared to have transmitted such evidences of his folly or of his guilt to the Baron de Carondelet? No, it is not credible. Is it then possible to believe that the Baron would or did confirm those lavish grants to a youth of that age, not distinguished by talents, birth, or powerful friends? to a cadet, (and only the seventh of the class,) who probably was at the very time standing sentry at his door? It will not be believed. It is unfortunate for those gentlemen that they have presented the three claims—one might with difficulty have got down, but the three, under such circumstances, can never be digested.

I have rested the argument hitherto on the evidence furnished by the pretended titles themselves, tested by Hevia's age at the time of their date, and his posterior circumstances, &c. I will now, sir, take other ground. Many a thief has escaped the gallows by a false alibi; a true one shall, I hope, condemn those claims to their deserved fate. The two certificates that I have furnished you with from the office of the major of the Louisiana regiment in Pensacola, where all its records are kept, will show that, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, Hevia was a cadet in that regiment, and only the seventh in rank of his class; that he was stationed during that year in New Orleans, and not in Mobile, where his petitions are dated; and that he was not detached, and consequently could not come to the latter place until the year 1799. If these official documents should be deemed insufficient to establish this point, you can take the testimony of Don Cayetano Perez, late commandant, Don Miguel Eslava, late public store-keeper, Mr. Benjamin Dubrocat, Mr. Louis Dolive, or any other old inhabitant you may please to select. Against such evidence, I presume the certificate produced by Smith and Toulmin, from a Spanish officer, stating that he had seen the original titles in the Government secretary's office at New Orleans, will weigh as nothing. The certifier is an insignificant drunken wretch, that would sign any thing for a gill of taffia.

It may be asked, what could have induced Lanzas to have lent his name to this fraud? Possibly the following reason: Hevia had married his daughter some time in or about the year 1801, and had a family of children by her. Lanzas was alive, in New Orleans, about two years ago, and I believe these titles to have been fabricated some short time previous to his death. The American Government had claimed the country as far as Rio Perdido, and no one doubted but it would speedily take possession, and Lanzas might think it a venial crime to enrich his son-in-law at its expense. There was nothing to prevent him from signing away the whole province in the same way the day before he died; and if his signature alone authenticates impossibilities, that of others, who are still alive, may yet do the same. Moreover, sir, is not the bargain made by Messrs. Toulmin and Smith with Hevia, of itself a strong proof that the titles were not worth a rush; and ought not the very terms of it to have excited in the minds of those gentlemen the greatest suspicion of their real nature, supposing them to have been ignorant of it? Could they imagine that any man, not absolutely a candidate for bedlam, possessing a good title to a very extensive property, would give two-thirds of that property to any one merely for the trouble and expense of having it surveyed, (which it ought to have been before,) and taking the easiest steps necessary to have his good title confirmed? Or if they were persuaded it was a good title, must we not be constrained to think rather uncharitably of their procedure, as taking a very unfair advantage of the ignorance of a simpleton? All these difficulties vanish, however, if we suppose both parties informed of the real nature of the claims. The transaction then becomes (between the individuals at least) a fair bargain and sale. We may then figure to ourselves Mr. Smith addressing Mr. Hevia in some such terms as these: "Your titles, sir, are pretty well contrived, and although there are some strange incongruities in them, these may not be apparent to every eye; nevertheless, I could not venture to give real value for them; but, sir, you know the standing I hold in the United States: I have great connexions there and powerful friends. I am intimately acquainted with all the leading men in the Government and country, and possess some influence with them. You know his honor Judge Toulmin also, who is to be concerned with me in this business; he has great interest, and a very general acquaintance with all the principal characters, with whom he keeps up a constant correspondence, and even with the President himself; by his exertions and mine, united, I have no doubt but we could get your titles confirmed; but as it is a matter of much trouble and great delicacy, and not unattended with risk, you must give us two-thirds of the whole as our compensation." We may then suppose Hevia answering: "I am very sensible of the correctness of what you say, sir; the titles might have been better contrived; but, as they cannot now be altered, my good father-in-law being dead, and as I have great confidence of success from your exertions, and those of his honor Judge Toulmin, I accede to your proposals, as, after all, half a loaf is better than no bread, according to the adage."

One word regarding myself, sir, and I shall close this long address, which must, I fear, have tired your patience. I am very sensible, and, indeed, meet daily proofs that I have made Mr. Smith and Judge Toulmin my most bitter enemies, by thus daring, in a contest that they forced upon me, to assert rights that I was bound to protect. They have, I am pretty well informed, done every thing in their power to instil the most villanous suspicions of me and my connexions in the minds of the officers of Government, both into this quarter and at the city of Washington. They have, however, confined themselves to private slander, dark hints, and artful innuendoes. When they shall think proper to bring forward their charges in a tangible shape, I shall feel bound to answer, as, until then, I do to despise them. Suffice it at present to say, that all my views and prospects, for many years back, have been turned towards the United States; that by far the most valuable part of my property lies within their dominions; and that, setting aside these considerations, I trust I have so much honor as never to be, directly or indirectly, in thought, word, or deed, the enemy of the country or people where, or among whom, I find protection. Let these gentlemen lay their hands on their hearts and say as much if they can. I beg your pardon, however, for introducing these observations into a discussion to which they are totally irrelevant.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

Remarks.—Though the original grants, upon which the preceding claims are founded, have been lost, yet it is conceived that the claims to such lots as were inhabited and cultivated under the Spanish Government, or such as were built upon by permission of the Spanish authorities, ought to be confirmed.

Remarks.—On the tract of 120,000, claimed by Brown and McDonough, there are thirty or forty families established, who have cultivated the land for several years. Some of them hold under Brown and McDonough; others have entered their places as settlement claims. Brown and McDonough have also a large farm, grist-mill, saw-mill, &c. on the same tract. The patent for 10,263 arpents, No. —, in the name of T. Urquhart, claimed by Chew and Relf, executors of Daniel Clarke, proved to be a part of 50,000 arpents granted at the same time to the said Urquhart, both by reference to the patent and by the oath. Mr. Cox, of Philadelphia, who deposes that the other grants, &c., making up that quantity, were destroyed by fire. Certified copies of the plats and certificates thus burned, given by N. Finiels, keeper of the Surveyor General's archives P. T. given in 1809, and entered with the above patent.

D.—Register of claims to land in the district west of Pearl river, in Louisiana, founded on orders of survey, (requettes,) permission to settle, or other written evidence of claim, which, in the opinion of the Commissioner, ought not to be confirmed.

Remarks on the preceding report.

Register A—Comprehends patents derived from the British and Spanish Governments, at a time when they possessed and exercised the undisputed sovereignty of the soil; and therefore they ought, in the opinion of the undersigned commissioner, to be confirmed by the Government of the United States.

In relation to the claims derived from the British Government, it may not be inapplicable to remark, that they are distinguishable, in one prominent feature, from those granted by the Spanish Government prior to her treaty of retrocession to the French Government. By the treaty of peace between Great Britain and Spain, in 1783, the absolute time of eighteen months was given to His Britannic Majesty's subjects to enable them to sell their estates, and remove their effects; accompanied by a declaration that, should not that time be sufficient to answer those purposes, His Catholic Majesty would give a prolongation proportioned to that end. In 1785 a prolongation of four months was given by the King of Spain. Not one out of fifty of the British claimants availed themselves either of the original limitation, or of its subsequent extension. Hence the Spanish Government considered the lands held under British patents, which had not received its confirmation, as being vacant. That such was the decision of that Government is clearly demonstrated by the course which it pursued in relation to them.

So far as comes within the commissioner's knowledge, it is a fact that the lands covered by British patents, of the last mentioned description, were indiscriminately re-granted by the Spanish Government, whenever application was made for them, conformably to the laws, usages, and customs of that Government. How far this circumstance ought to affect the validity of those patents, in relation to individual conflicting claims, or what its operation ought to be consistently with the laws of nations, the principles of distributive justice, and the rights of individuals, the commissioner leaves for the consideration of those who are the constitutional guardians of public and private property. He deemed it his duty simply to note the fact without subjoining any comments.

Register B—Comprehends orders of survey, &c., issued by Miro, Carondelet, De Lemos, Morales, and De Grandpre.

Those grants which were made by Miro, Carondelet, and De Lemos, and, in some few instances, by Morales, ought, in the opinion of the commissioner, to be confirmed by the Government of the United States. They were originated by the Spanish authorities, prior to the purchase of Louisiana by the United States, and, agreeably to the laws, usages, and customs of the then existing Government, would have been completed by the same power which granted them.

In relation to those claims issued by Morales, subsequently to the aforesaid purchase, and to the whole of those which emanated from De Grandpre, the commissioner begs leave to observe that, although in his estimation, they do not occupy the same grade with those of the first class, yet he conceives it just and equitable that they should be confirmed. This opinion is not predicated upon the validity of their orders of survey, but simply upon the fact that they occupied and cultivated their lands, and complied with all the requisitions of the Government which at that time exercised ownership over the soil. By reference to the register, it will be seen that some of the last mentioned claims exceed in quantity the ordinary donations made by the Spanish Government, prior to the purchase of Louisiana by the United States. Where this is the case, it is believed that the Government of the United States may limit its confirmations to any extent which it may be deemed just, both in regard to the number of arpents claimed in each tract, and the number of tracts claimed by the same person.

Register C.—The claims embraced in register C are such as, in the opinion of the commissioner, ought not to be confirmed by the Government of the United States. This opinion is founded upon the following considerations:

1st. The Government of the United States claim an absolute property in all that country comprehended within the boundaries of Louisiana, in virtue of her treaty with France.

2d. It is believed that the Spanish Government herself considered that treaty as divesting her of all right, title, or interest in the soil.

That such was the understanding of that Government is inferred from the following fact: The course which she pursued in the distribution of her unappropriated territory, posterior to her treaty with France, was materially and essentially different from what it had been prior to that time. In all her grants, made anterior to that epoch, the number of arpents given was apportioned to the situation and circumstances of the applicant. Patents for large extent of country had been issued, but they were granted for specific purposes, and were defeasible upon a non-compliance with certain prescribed conditions.

So far as comes within the knowledge of the commissioner, sales of land were never made in the above-mentioned country by that Government, until after she had ceased to be the legal owner of the soil. This departure from her known laws, usages, and customs, previously adopted, and invariably observed, warrants the inference that that Government was sensible of the illegality of her claim, and had a view only to her own emolument. The fact also that the King of Spain, by a special royal order, in 1805, ratified and confirmed the sales made by Morales, enjoining him to make that branch of his business as profitable as possible to the coffers of the royal treasury, is an additional evidence in support of this inference. By a reference to the register, it will be discovered that the patents for lands purchased from the royal treasury at a price of estimation, generally refer to orders of survey given in the latter part of 1803, and specify the valuation per arpent. The payment of the whole amount is uniformly acknowledged in the patents; admitting the claim of the United States to the country above mentioned to be unquestionable, (and I see no reason to doubt it,) the question then arises how far the possession of that country by the Spanish Government, after the right of the United States accrued, ought to affect those claims which were granted by the former Government, during the time which intervened between the purchase, and the time when possession was taken by the United States. If the United States had taken possession of West Florida at the same time that they did of Louisiana, west of the Mississippi, many serious injuries to individuals might have been prevented. As this was not the case, it becomes an inquiry of interest and importance, whether the Government is not morally bound, both by considerations of equity and policy, to make them a compensation commensurate to the injuries they may have sustained? This could be done by making them donations of any quantity of land which the Government may deem just; particularly that class of claimants who have improved and cultivated their lands. They are not numerous, and, with few exceptions, their claims are moderate.

It may not be impertinent also to remark that, generally speaking, they were such persons as were most liable to be deceived by the Spanish officers.

In relation to that class of claimants who have not inhabited or cultivated their lands, which is generally the case with those who hold large claims, it appears to the commissioner that the Government of the United States is not legally bound to confirm them. Nevertheless, from a variety of considerations which will doubtless enter into the decision of this question, the Government may deem it politic either to confirm their claims to a certain extent, or in some way to effect a compromise with them. Their unlimited confirmation would, in the opinion of your commissioner, seriously injure many individuals, some of whom probably resided on the lands before they were surveyed for the patentees.

Register D.—The claims embraced in register D ought not, in the opinion of the commissioner, to be confirmed by the Government of the United States. The reason for this opinion will be found in his report on the claims contained in register C. They apply with additional force to the claims embraced in the present register. He deems a repetition of them unnecessary.

The above claims are founded upon orders of survey, &c., given by De Grandpre; the applicants generally petitioned for leave to purchase lands of the royal treasury at a price of estimation; De Grandpre's orders only authorized the surveyor to survey the lands, directing the party to make application to the office of the Intendancy General for title. Except in a very few instances the lands were never valued, and, of course, nothing was paid for them. In the few cases where the lands have been inhabited and cultivated, such inhabitation and cultivation commenced since the organization of the American Government in West Florida.

Anomalous Claims.

In relation to these claims the commissioner conceives it useless to make any remarks. A reference to the list will show that, in most cases, the title papers which ought to have accompanied the notices, are stated to have been lost or destroyed. The same provisions which shall be made respectively for the claims embraced in registers A, B, C, and D, will, he presumes, be applicable also to Anomalous Claims, when the nature of the titles upon which they are said to be founded shall be established by satisfactory proof.

JAMES O. COSBY,
Commissioner of Land Claims.

[1st Session.]

LAND CLAIMS IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, JANUARY 19, 1816.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 18, 1816.

I have the honor to transmit, herewith, a report of the commissioners appointed for the purpose of ascertaining and adjusting claims to land in the western district of the late Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana. This report is in continuation of their report transmitted to Congress, from this office, on the 21st June, 1813. Their supplementary report is daily expected to arrive. [See No. 237.]

The claims, marked B, ought, in the opinion of the said commissioners, to be confirmed. The claims, marked C, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

The report embraces claims in the counties of Natchitoches, Opelousas, and Attakapas; in the county first named there are six claims, not marked B or C, and on those claims the commissioners have declined to decide, for reasons given in the report.

I have the honor, &c.

JOSIAH MEIGS.

The Hon. the PRESIDENT of the Senate of the United States.

SIR:

REGISTER'S OFFICE, OPELOUSAS, May 26, 1815.

The Board of Commissioners appointed for the purpose of ascertaining and adjusting claims to land in the western district of the late Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana, closed their duties, and made a final adjournment on the 11th of the current month. They have decided on three thousand one hundred and sixty-five claims, of which they have confirmed - - - - - 2,278

The report on claims in the counties of Concordia, Washita, and Rapides, have been transmitted to the Treasury Department for the consideration of Congress. The report on claims in the county of Natchitoches you will receive herewith; those on claims in the counties of Opelousas and Attakapas by the two mails succeeding the one by which this will be transmitted; and the supplemental report as soon as it shall be transcribed. The claims, embraced by the supplemental report, are such as were postponed at the time of making our former reports, from the expectation that we should derive such information from oral testimony, or survey of the lands, as would authorize their confirmation.

Some of them are for lands so subject to inundation as to render the surveying of them difficult, if not impracticable, at most seasons. Those in the county of Natchitoches are principally for lots in the village of Natchitoches, where, from controversies between the proprietors, they seem reluctant to have them surveyed.

The certified extract from the minutes of the Board of Commissioners, at their dissolution, is enclosed, to establish their claim to draw for the five hundred dollars to which each commissioner and clerk is entitled by law, on the completion of the business assigned to them.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

LEVIN WAILES.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, *Commissioner of the General Land Office, Treasury Department.*LAND OFFICE, WESTERN DISTRICT, STATE OF LOUISIANA, May 14, 1815.

The undersigned, commissioners appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the rights of persons to lands within the district aforesaid, have the honor to report, in continuation, the following list of claims to land within the county of Natchitoches, classing the same agreeably to the order observed in their report made on the 16th of October, 1812, of claims in the county of Concordia, to which they beg leave to refer.—[See Vol. II. Remarks on the foregoing list of land claims, with references to the reported numbers.

No. 1. JOHN ADLEY, one hundred and sixty acres on Red river. No evidence to establish a title to this claim has been adduced. The tract claimed is believed to be embraced by a confirmation to Thomas M. Lennard, certificate B, No. 2,117. This claim, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 2. JOHN ADLEY. This claim is for fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on Red river, and appears to be a duplicate entry for a tract of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 2,132. This ought not to be confirmed.

No. 3. JOHN BAPTISTE ANTY. This claim is for two acres on each side of Red river, the depth not mentioned. No proof or other evidence of title has been adduced in support of the claim. Supposed to be confirmed to Remy Lambert.

No. 4. WILLIAM ASH, six hundred and forty acres, claimed under settlement, on the east side of the Sabine. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 5. JOSEPH MARIA ARMAND claims the "land on which the ancient village or settlement, called Adaize, was situate, bounded westwardly by the bayou Adaize, eastwardly by the bayou Le Gleese, and extending up and down said bayous two leagues." The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and ought not to be confirmed.

No. 6. HYPOLITE BORDELIN. This claim is for a tract of land of about four arpents and eight poles in front, on each side of Red river, with all the depth thereunto belonging, and claimed under a purchase from an Indian chief of the Natchitoches village, by deed, bearing date the 23d June, 1808, for the price and sum of eighty dollars. The following is the translation, in substance, of a document filed with a notice of the claim:

OCTOBER 3, 1790.

In consequence of the death of Tomoc, chief of the Natchitoches nation of Indians, and finding that the said Indians are now inhabiting land not belonging to them, in the settled parts of this post, I grant to them, subject to the will of the Governor, Don Estevan Miro, twenty arpents of land on each side of Red river, at a place called Lac de Meures, about ten leagues above the post of Natchitoches.

LOUIS C. DE BLANE.

Bertrand Pleasance, before the Board, the 24th January, 1812, hath deposed "that the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated for eighteen consecutive years, immediately preceding the present date, by Dehuste and the present claimant." Gaspard Boudin, on the 21st October, 1812, hath deposed "that the said tract was the property of the claimant twelve years ago; and that he, the deponent, was, for that time, residing for the claimant on that land, which was cultivated ever since, and some time before." The evidence of François Grapp, taken, without commission from the Board, before John C. Carr, then parish judge of Natchitoches, the 19th July, 1812, has been filed in the claim, and, translated, is as follows: "That the said Grapp was called about seven years ago, by the Indian tribe Natchitoches, to be interpreter for them in making a sale of a portion of the land granted to them by the Spanish Government, on Lake de Mure, above Compté, to erect their village, and that, to his knowledge, the said portion of land was then adjudged to Hypolite Bordelin for ninety dollars, by consent of all the Indians; which sum of ninety dollars was paid down by said Bordelin." The Indians had only a provisional grant of the land claimed from the commandant. No evidence has been adduced of the ratification of the title by any Governor of Louisiana. Even if their title was valid, the land was purchased from them at a time when the laws of the United States, then in force in Louisiana, forbade such purchases. The claimant can have no pretensions to a right from occupancy; his occupancy could not have commenced previous to the purchase, and the occupancy of the Indians could vest no right in a person to whom they could not legally sell. The claim, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 7. JOHN BURNET, six hundred and twenty and seventy-five hundredths acres. The notice of this claim is accompanied with a deed of conveyance from Louis Cuyerrier to the claimant, dated 8th October, 1804, and a plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated 14th February, 1806, from which survey it appears that five hundred and four thirty-eight one-hundredths acres of the land claimed, is within the claim of the heirs of James Morrison, deceased. No other document of title has been adduced.

The deposition of Placide Bossie, Sylvestre Bossie, and François Perot, and Alexis Cloutier, taken before Judge Carr, of Natchitoches, the 9th October, 1811, by commission from the Board, are as follows:

Placide Bossié hath deposed "that, in December, 1803, Louis Cuyerrier was in possession of a tract of land, situate on the left hand side of the bayou Saline, in ascending the same; that the said Louis had inhabited and cultivated the same many years previous to the said epoch, and that this deponent heard the commandant of the post of Natchitoches give to the said Louis permission to establish the said land." Sylvester Bossié hath deposed "that Louis Cuyerrier established the tract of land on which the salt wells of Mr. Burnet are now situate, about eighteen or twenty years ago; and that he remained thereon seven or eight years to the best of the knowledge of this deponent." François Perot hath deposed "that, in the year 1794, the commandant of the post of Natchitoches, for the time being, (Mr. De Blane,) directed the deponent to mark out a piece of land for Louis Cuyerrier, to include a lick and salt well, which the said Cuyerrier had then made; and that this deponent marked out the land, and put the said Louis in possession thereof, the said saline situate on the left side of bayou Saline, in ascending the same—the Grand Saline or the public saline being on the right thereof." Alexis Cloutier hath deposed "that, between sixteen and seventeen years ago he was at the saline, and saw Louis Cuyerrier at work, making salt; that the said Louis had a house, and a small crop of corn, pumpkins, &c.; that the deponent believes that the said Louis, from all appearances, might have been three or four years established at said place, previous to the epoch above alluded to. This deponent cannot tell how long the said Louis remained thereon since that time. The claimant has exhibited no document of title from the former Government of Louisiana. The donation from the United States to actual occupants does not extend to a claim embracing a salt spring." This, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 8. FRANÇOIS BOSSIER, two hundred and thirty-seven arpents on the river of the Black lake. The claimant sets forth in his notice that he has taken his wood from the land claimed since 1794, and claims the land in consequence of having made such use of it. No document of title, or proof of occupancy has been offered in support of the claim. One claim, under a title to François Bossier, has been confirmed by certificate B, No. 220; and this, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 9. MARY, ROUTH, BOOKER, and WILLIAM ETRIDGE claim one league square, under a title said to have been made to Antoine Booker. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 10. PLACIDE BOSSIER, three hundred and twelve acres on Red river. This claim is founded on occupancy; but no evidence has been offered in support of it. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated 29th December, 1806, is the only document accompanying the notice. The claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 11. SYLVESTER BOSSIER, eight hundred arpents. This claim is held under an order of survey of the usual form and conditions, and bearing date 18th April, 1789.

Joseph Lamber, before the Board the 23d February, 1813, hath deposed, "that the land was always known by him, and every other person that he spoke with on the subject, to be the property of the claimant; that he had every opportunity to know it, as he has been constantly residing in the quarter where the land lies, where he was born and raised, being now aged thirty-two years."

Joseph Touzin, before John C. Carr, then parish judge of Natchitoches, the 9th September, 1811, commissioned by the Board to take his evidence, hath deposed, "that he recollects very distinctly that Sylvester Bossier was living upon the tract of land granted to the said Bossier by the concession, (above mentioned,) some time in the year 1788; and that the said Bossier was then occupied in clearing said land by his slaves." The deponent says the said land is situate on the bayou plat, in the parish aforesaid.

Louis Metoyer, by his attorney, has made known to the Board that the said Louis Metoyer claims the land in question, under an order of survey dated 18th May, 1796, and that the said Louis has complied with the requisitions of the Spanish Government in perfecting his title, except in having the land surveyed, which could not be done, on account of the then surveyor of the post having become blind, &c. There has also been filed with the notice of the claim, a certificate by John Baptiste Paillett, calling himself surveyor of the district of Natchitoches, dated 11th June, 1815, and setting forth that he had, at the request of Sylvester Bossier, surveyed the land claimed by said Bossier, according to his concession, dated 18th April, 1789, in presence of the adjoining neighbors, who made no objections thereto; but they found on the land Louis Metoyer, a free man of color, who said he considered himself as having an equal right to said land.

A letter from Louis C. De Blane, justice of peace in Attakapas, to the judge of Natchitoches, of which the following is a translation, has been filed:

That, having been commandant at Natchitoches, gives the judge information that there is in his office a file containing several requêtes for land, which has been remitted to the domain by several inhabitants; among others, one of S. Bossier's, who, in relinquishing his, said to me that the land was not worth the expense of the half of a bridge he should have to make on bayou plat, his limit. The said land was afterwards granted to Louis Metoyer, a free mulatto, who has been for several years in peaceable possession of the same. I swear on my religion, my conscience, and my honor, that this declaration is true, that you may be on your guard against those who now wish to claim those titles, to make an unjust use of them, having lost all right to them, not only by their reunion to the domain, the same land having been granted to others, but because they have not complied with the words of the decree, as the law directs.

Another letter from M. De Blane to Pierre Metoyer, on the same subject, and of the same date, is likewise filed with the notice. The original petition of Bossier for the land in question, together with the order of survey, having been adduced and filed with the notice, and there appearing no written abandonment of title, the undersigned commissioners are of opinion that the claim of the said Bossier ought to be confirmed, leaving the question of right between the adverse claimants for their own adjustment, or to be determined by course of law.

No. 12. LEWIS GODFROY BELHUMEUR, five hundred and sixty arpents. The original claim, of which this title is a part, having been confirmed to the grantee, Pierre Gagnier, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1791, it is deemed unnecessary to notice the documents filed in the claim, which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 13. DAVID CASE. This claim is founded on an order of survey to Mary Antoine, for ten arpents front, with the ordinary depth, if found on each side of the river of Cannes, at a place called St. Morris, &c. The order of survey, dated 12th May, 1792, of the usual form, and on the usual conditions, is filed with the notice of the claim. No proof of occupancy has been offered, nor any deed of conveyance from the original claimant adduced; presuming, however, that such a conveyance may have been made, and considering it to be such a claim as would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, the confirmation is recommended.

No. 14. ALEXIS CLOUTIER, six hundred and forty acres, claimed by settlement. Baptiste Rachel, before the Board, 16th November, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated for these last thirteen years." No other evidence of title has been offered, and the claimant having one claim, of which he is the original proprietor, confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1701. This is not embraced by the provisions of any act of Congress, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 15. PIERRE CHELETRE. This claim is for part of a tract of land, the title to which has already been confirmed to the grantee by certificate A, No. 1733; this claim, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 16. SAMUEL COBURN, $585\frac{40}{100}$ acres, including two salt wells on the right bank of bayou Saline. With the notice of this claim are filed a deed of conveyance for six hundred and forty acres, from Antoine Lenoir to Samuel Coburn, and witnessed by Ger. M. Tier and John Burnet, under date 21st October, 1805, and acknowledged before John Silby, justice of the peace, the 17th February, 1806, and not appearing to have been recorded. Also, a plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated February, 1806, embracing the quantity of $585\frac{40}{100}$ acres, of which quantity $292\frac{80}{100}$ acres appears to be within the claim of the heirs of James Morrison, deceased. No other evidence of title has been adduced, and no proof of occupancy. Goodin & Bailey claim 640 acres, by purchase from Antoine Lenoir, supposed to be the same land, (see report, &c., No. 25,) embracing a salt spring; is not within the provisions of any law of the United States, and, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 17. LOUIS CLAUSEAU, two hundred and fifteen acres claimed under a Spanish grant. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and it is believed the claim is for the same tract of which the title has been confirmed to the claimant, by certificate A, No. 1,647, under another entry; consequently, this claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 18. DAVID CASE, four hundred and eighty arpents. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and ought not to be confirmed.

No. 19. LOUIS CUYERRIER, six hundred and forty acres, claimed under settlement. A plat of survey dated 1806, is the only document filed with the notice, and no proof of occupancy adduced. It is supposed that a part, if not the whole of the claim, is within that of the heirs of James Morrison, deceased. The claim, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 20. FRANÇOIS DUBOIS, two hundred and eighty arpents. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and is believed to be for the same tract of which the title has been confirmed by the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 2,203. This claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 21. WILLIAM DUNCAN and ALEXANDER BAILLIE, 5,890 acres, claimed under a title to Marcel de Soto. The following document accompanies the notice of this claim, a requête, of which the following is a translation:

NATCHITOCHES, September 11, 1769.

To Monsieur Chevalier De Villier, captain commandant, &c., for the King, at the post of Natchitoches, humbly supplicates Madame Maria de St. Denis, wife of Mr. Manuel de Soto, saying, that wishing to form an establishment for herself and successors, if it please you, sir, to accord her, on her ordinary depth, a piece of land named the Laurel, between two little bayous which run out of the Quesechase, above that which is cultivated by the name Goutier, for cultivation, and as much land on this side of the said bayou, to establish a vacherie. The supplicant desires to work there at the present time.

MARIA DE ST. DENIS.

From the above petition we have accorded, on the ordinary depth, to the aforesaid Madame de St. Denis Soto, the land which she demands, as much for to make a crop as to establish a vacherie.

In testimony of which, we have signed at Natchitoches, 12th September, 1769.

LE CHEVALIER DE NILLIER.

On the back of the requête are the following endorsements, without date: "I assign the within requête to François Perault, value received." Marcel de Soto. "Pass to Fulsom." François Perault.

A deed of sale passed before Edward E. Turner, Esq., one of the justices of the peace of the county of Natchitoches, the 14th July, 1806, by which, for the consideration of $1,000, Ebenezer Fulsom conveys the land, agreeably to the requête of Chevalier de Villier, to Alexander Baillie and William Duncan, reserving one thousand acres conditionally sold to Josiah S. Johnson. Following the deed of conveyance, and on the same paper, is a short mortgage of the premises, by Baillie & Duncan, to Edward Murphey & Co., dated the same 14th day of July, 1806, and executed before private witnesses, to secure the said Edward Murphey & Co. the payment of the sum of $1,000. The commissioners have examined the requête and commandant's certificate, which appear to them to be authentic documents. The deed of conveyance and mortgage appear to be copies unauthenticated. It would seem, from the notice, that the claimants have supposed themselves entitled to the quantity contained in a league square measure of Paris. It should be noticed, however, that no area is specified in the original documents under which they claim. No evidence of occupancy has been adduced, and, with papers so vague, the undersigned must report this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed for the quantity claimed. They recommend the confirmation to the extent of six hundred and forty acres only.

No. 22. LOUIS FOSTIN, three acres and two-hundredths, claimed by settlement. A plat of survey, dated 1807, is the only document accompanying the notice of the claim; no proof has been offered; the claim, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 23. BENJAMIN GOODIN and ALEXANDER BAILLIE, four hundred and eighty arpents on the bayou Saline, claimed under an order of survey to Joseph Petit. With the notice of this claim is filed the petition of Joseph Petit, addressed to Felix Trudeau, then commandant of Natchitoches, for a grant of land of twelve arpents front, by forty arpents of depth, at a place called the bayou of the Saline, that he may render it valuable to himself, and promote the interest of his Majesty.

FEBRUARY 4, 1798.

Felix Trudeau, as commandant of Natchitoches, certifies that no objections are known by him to exist to granting the request of the petitioner. The order of survey, bearing date in New Orleans, 5th March, 1798, under the signature of Emanuel Gayoso, and conceding the land conformably to the said petition, and on the usual conditions of cutting the roads, making levies, &c., is annexed to the said petition. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated 1806, is filed, but is not in conformity with the usual mode of laying out lands under the Spanish Government, held under such titles. A greater extent of front on the bayou has been given, than the title would embrace, and not giving the depth required. It may be remarked, too, that the survey should, perhaps, have been confined to one side of the bayou, and not have extended to both sides, as has been done. The whole of the claim appears to be within that of the heirs of James Morrison, deceased, and one hundred and forty-two acres are covered by that of Samuel Coburn, reported under No. 16. A receipt, dated 28th February, 1806, for the deed of conveyance from Joseph Petit, taken out of the claim by Alexander Baillie, is also filed with the notice. The deposition of Baptiste Mignerone, taken in the claim before Judge Carr, of Natchitoches, the 15th May, 1812, by commission from the Board, is as follows:

"That Joseph Petit, in the year 1798, settled on, and cultivated the said land; that he resided thereon for upwards of five years, and sold the same to Goodin & Baillie; and that the said land was actually inhabited and cultivated the 20th day of December, 1803."

The said witness, Baptiste Migneron, before the said Judge Carr, (then not in office,) and John Sibly, justice of the peace, the 26th November, 1812, and being requested to give such information as he might be in possession of, respecting the above claim, and some others on the bayou Saline, hath deposed, "that Joseph Petit lived at the Saline about eighteen years ago, and made salt thereon, and continued to reside thereon, and to make salt for at least six years thereafter; and that about eighteen years ago, Mr. Lenoir, commonly called Leston, resided on the land opposite the land claimed by Petit, on the bayou Saline; that he built a house thereon, and resided there, to his knowledge, near one year at one time; and that he saw him making salt there in the fall of several years afterwards; that Mr. Petit was living on the land claimed on the right bank of the bayou Saline, during the year 1803, and in the fall and winter particularly; and that Lenoir was living, during the same year, opposite; and in the fall of 1803, and winter following, the deponent saw both Petit and Lenoir making salt on their respective places (but he cannot say particularly with regard to the occupation) on the 20th day of December, 1803; but believes they were there on that day." The deponent further states, "that, during all that time, from the beginning of the establishment until the change of Government, Mr. Petit kept his stock of cattle on his vacherie, near the Saline, particularly during the year 1803."

The concession to Petit appears to have been made with the usual conditions to be performed by grantees, and the evidence has established, very satisfactorily, the performance of these conditions. The commissioners have no power to confirm the claim, because of its embracing a salt spring, but believing it to be such a one as would have been valid, under the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation, not according to the plat, but agreeably to the concession with which the survey seems to be at variance, taking a much greater front than was conceded.

No. 24. BENJAMIN GOODIN and ALEXANDER BAILLIE, 585 $\frac{40}{100}$ acres on bayou Saline. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated 1806, by which it appears that 292 $\frac{60}{100}$ acres of the claim is within that of the heirs of James Morrison, and one hundred and forty-two acres within another claim of the said Goodin & Baillie. A deed of conveyance from Baptiste Migneron to the said claimants, dated 17th May, 1805, by which the said Migneron conveys his right to a certain saline, called Bardash, with the buildings and improvements thereon, is also filed.

Remy Perot, before Judge Carr, of Natchitoches, the 14th June, 1812, hath deposed, "that about thirteen or fourteen years ago, Antoine Lenoir, with his wife, and a child he had brought up, inhabited a tract of land on the right hand side of said bayou Saline, in descending the same; but the deponent doth not know how long said Antoine resided thereon." Deponent says that about the same time, viz: thirteen or fourteen years ago, Joseph Petit inhabited and cultivated a tract of land on the left hand side of the said bayou, nearly opposite to the first mentioned tract, and who resided upon, and cultivated the same four or five years consecutively from that time; and further saith not. No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim. It may be proper to remark, that the claim under consideration, (as appears from the plat,) is situated on the right bank of the bayou Saline. The witness hath stated that the said Antoine Lenoir, about the years 1798 and 1799, inhabited a tract of land on that side of the bayou Saline, but could not say how long he resided there; nor is it established that his residence was on the tract claimed. It will be seen, also, that Migneron has only conveyed his right to the saline called Bardash, with the buildings and improvements, without having mentioned any quantity of land. The undersigned commissioners are, therefore, of opinion that it is such a claim as ought not to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 25. BENJAMIN GOODIN and ALEXANDER BAILLIE claim six hundred and forty acres on bayou Saline, by assignment from Antoine Lenoir. With the notice of this claim are filed a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and an assignment from Antoine Lenoir, in the following words:

"NOVEMBER 3, 1805.

"We, by these presents, do certify that myself and Michael Rombar improved and cultivated a place and saline, on the Salnie bayou, by consent of the then commandant, in the year 1799, and we, for a consideration, do relinquish all our rights and titles to Benjamin Goodin.

ANTOINE LENOIR, his x mark."

No other evidence of title has been adduced, although the claimants have set up a claim for six hundred and forty acres of land, under the transfer from Lenoir. It will be seen, from the above assignment, that no quantity was mentioned by the original claimant. The transfer is very informal, not even having been attested by any witness. One claim of eight hundred arpents, of which Antoine Lenoir is the original claimant, has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,884. The undersigned commissioners are of opinion that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 26. ANTOINE GRILLET, two hundred and eighty arpents, claimed under a grant to Marin Grillet. A deed of gift from the widow Mary Louise Grillet, to her son, the claimant, dated 9th April, 1805, is the only document accompanying the notice of this claim. On the abstract of complete titles, one is found which corresponds in name, quantity, and date, with the claim under consideration, and the next following claim, each being for a moiety of the grant to Marin Grillet, under a belief that this claim is held under a complete title, as above mentioned. The confirmation is recommended, and the claim only reported for the want of the title to enable the commissioners to describe its situation and boundaries according to the patent.

No. 27. MARIA LOUISE GRILLET, two hundred and eighty arpents, being the other moiety, or half part of the grant to Marin Grillet, as mentioned in the claim next preceding this. The claim is reported, and the confirmation recommended for the same reasons as expressed in No. 26. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document.

No. 28. GENEVIEVE GRILLET, one hundred and forty-six and fifty-seven hundredths acres, having five arpents front, with a depth of twenty-five, and claimed under a purchase from Antoine Prudhomme. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, except a plat of survey, dated in 1806. The claim, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 29. FRANÇOIS GRAPP claims a tract of land on Lake Bastiano, under a purchase from Cahada, an Indian. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat not signed by any surveyor; a certificate by John Paul Badin, stating that the said Badin was employed by the claimant to make an improvement on the land claimed; and that he resided on the land three years before 1790; that he heard, from the Indians, that the claimant purchased the land three years previous to that time, (1790,) from an Indian called Cajadet. The certificate bears date the 14th of September, 1806. Another certificate of Louis C. de Blanc, dated 5th of October, 1806, in Attakapas, stating that, in the year 1788, when he was commandant of Natchitoches, the Indian of the Cado tribe, called Cajadet, came before him, and declared to have sold to François Grapp a tract of land, which was known by his nation to have been his property, by inheritance, from his ancestors; and which had been inhabited and cultivated by him and them at a place called Lake Bastiano, on the east side of Red river, on the road from Compté to the little Cado village; that he had received pay from the purchaser, and relinquished his right and claim to the said land.

The affidavit of François Durcey, taken before Judge Carr of Natchitoches, the 4th of March, 1812, stating that the deponent was present when the surveyor, Mr. Cook, attempted to survey the land in question; and that Mr. Cook told him he could not run out the depth from the lake on account of high water.

Barthelemy Rachel, before the Board, 22d of January, 1812, hath deposed that the tract of land has been inhabited and cultivated for more than twenty consecutive years immediately preceding this date.

The undersigned commissioners refer to their report of claims in the county of Opelousas. From the investigation of the Indian title in No. 1 of that report, it will be seen that the ratification by the Government of the province was necessary to the validity of any sale from an Indian or tribe of Indians, except from those denominated Christians. The claimant, in this case, has not only failed to show any ratification of his purchase, but has not even established satisfactorily a sale from the Indians. A plat of survey, by William B. Jackson, a deputy surveyor, dated 12th of December, 1813, has been lately filed in this claim. This plat represents the land as lying nearly in form of a parallelogram, stretching in a direction nearly parallel to the general course of the lake on the east side, for upwards of seven and a half miles, and taking in an area of five thousand seven hundred and sixteen acres. In the opinion of the commissioners there is nothing in any document filed that could authorize a survey for such a quantity, or in such a form. The claimant does not prove that, "within the ascertained boundaries of the tract claimed" by him, a quantity equal to two thousand acres is included; otherwise, under the second section of the act of the 3d of March, 1807, his occupancy might have entitled him to the confirmation of his claim to that extent. Nevertheless, the length of time which this tract of land appears to have been in the possession and occupancy of the claimant, and the general understanding that vacherie claims are seldom for a less quantity than two thousand acres, induce the commissioners to recommend the confirmation to that extent, either in an oblong to embrace the buildings, and other improvements at the vacherie, and extend thence towards the lake, or in a square, if the claimant shall prefer it in that form.

No. 30. PIERRE GAGNIER, two hundred and thirteen and thirteen-hundredths acres, claimed under a purchase from John Sohano, an Indian, with settlement, &c. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, embracing forty-two and twenty-hundredths acres on the left, and one hundred and sixty-eight and ninety-three-hundredths acres on the left bank of Red river; and a deed of conveyance from said Sohano to Pierre Gagnier, dated 26th of September, 1804, for two arpents and a half, and twelve feet front, with the ordinary depth, on the right bank of Red river, at a place called Lac aux Mures, and four arpents front by the ordinary depth, on the left bank of said river. Pierre Elie, before the Board, 15th of June, 1812, hath deposed "that the land claimed has been inhabited more than twenty years by John Sohano, a civilized or Christian Indian, and other Indians of the Natchitoches village, and those claiming under the said John Sohano. No evidence has been offered to establish that John Sohano was of that class of Indians denominated Christians, under the Spanish Government, by which he might have been entitled to the privilege of holding and conveying land in his own right." The oral testimony which has been adduced has not been deemed sufficient to establish that fact. The confirmation of the claim cannot, therefore, be recommended.

No. 31. ANTOINE GRILLET claims seven arpents front, with forty arpents in depth, on both sides of Red river. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of conveyance from François Le Vasseur, dated 26th of February, 1790, setting forth that the land had been conceded to the seller by a title from Estevan Miro, then Governor of Louisiana, the 18th of January, 1787. In the deed the land is described as lying about five leagues below Natchitoches on both sides of the river, bounded above by the said François Le Vasseur, and below by John Louis Verchier. This deed appears to have been executed with all the necessary formalities, before the commandant of the district, is found on the records of the parish of Natchitoches, and contains a reference to the concession from the Spanish Government to François Le Vasseur. This is strong presumptive evidence that such a grant did exist. Not being found on the abstract of complete patents, it is presumable it was what was usually termed Primere concession, (order of survey,) which were seldom recorded. No evidence or occupancy has been adduced, and the commissioners cannot, therefore, confirm the claim; but as, from the early date of the concession, the formal sale passed before the commandant, and the particular description of the land, they can entertain no doubt of the conditions on which the completion of the title depended having been performed. They are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed.

No. 32. ANTOINE GRILLET, fifty-four and ninety-nine hundredths acres, claimed under different conveyances and occupancy. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice. Bertrand Plaisance, before the Board, 24th of January, 1812, hath deposed "that, from his earliest recollection, (being more than thirty years,) the land claimed has been constantly inhabited and cultivated, first, by a person named Dubois, who, as the deponent supposes, sold to a Mr. Pin, through whom, and Madame Mongenot, it has been transferred to the present claimant." This claim is supposed to be embraced by the confirmation to François Dubois, by certificate B, No. 1,669; and, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 33. ANTOINE HYMEL, seven hundred and eighteen and a half acres, claimed under a grant to the widow Hy mel, dated 24th of May, 1796. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title. The abstract of complete titles made by the Spanish Government shows one which comports with the notice of this claim. It is, therefore, presumable that the claim is valid, and ought to be confirmed; but as the title has not been produced to enable the Board to describe the situation of the land claimed in their certificate, it is thought best to report it, recommending the confirmation conformable to the tenor of the grant, which it is incumbent on the claimant to produce.

No. 34. NICHOLAS LAUVE claims a lot in the village of Natchitoches, by virtue of a deed of conveyance from Joseph Armand and wife. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and it has been understood that the claim has been confirmed to the original claimants, Joseph Maria Armand, and Theresa, his wife, by commissioners' certificate A, No. 1,679. This claim ought not, therefore, to be confirmed.

No. 35. THOMAS M. LEONARD, six hundred and forty acres. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is believed to be for the same land, of which the title has been confirmed to Charles Woolsoncroft, by certificate B, No. 1,777. Consequently, this claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 36. PIERRE JOSEPH MAES, thirteen arpents front, on both sides of Red river, with the depth which may be found, claimed under a grant to the widow Dartigaux, dated 16th of May, 1794. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of the claim, and it is believed to have been embraced in the confirmation of the grant, by commissioners' certificate A, No. 1,676, to the grantee. This claim, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 37. PIERRE JOSEPH MAES, seven arpents front, by what depth may be found on each side of Red river, claimed under a grant to said Maes, dated 1794. The notice of this, as in the next preceding claim, is unaccompanied by any evidence of title; but it is believed to be for the same land, of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate A, No. 1,733, and, consequently, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 38. EDWARD McLOCHLIN, four hundred acres, claimed under occupancy and purchase from Joseph Procilas. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a certificate of Felix Trudeau, dated 23d July, 1804, setting forth that he gave Joseph Procela permission to settle on bayou Jean de Jean, on a tract of land of ten arpents front, in December, 1801. The deed of conveyance from Joseph Procela to Edward McLochlin, duly executed, and acknowledged before Edward D. Turner, acting as commandant of Natchitoches, the 24th of July, 1804, is also filed, with a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated 1806. No proof of occupancy has been offered. This is, therefore, such a claim as, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 39. MARIA LOUISA MARIOTTE, free negress, claims two acres front on each side of Red river, with a depth of forty arpents, if so much may be found, by deed of conveyance from Antoine Bergeron, with occupancy, &c. No document of title, or proof of occupancy, has been adduced; consequently, the claim is such as, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 40. BERTRAND MAILLOUX, seven hundred and twenty-three arpents, claimed under a patent to Santiago Faure, dated 27th of March, 1795. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of evidence of title; but, on the abstract of Spanish grants, there is one which comports with the description given in the notice of the claim, from which it is presumable this claim may be a valid one, and ought to be confirmed. From a want of the documents of title to enable the commissioners to describe the land, and designate its limits in their certificate, they are constrained to report this claim, but recommending its confirmation, agreeably to the tenor of the patent, which may hereafter be produced by the claimant.

No. 41. PIERRE MAILLOUX, forty-six and seventy-seven-hundredths acres, claimed under occupancy. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice, and no proof of occupancy has been offered. The claim, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 42. MARIA JEANE, free negress, claims four acres front, on each side of Red river, with all the depth thereunto belonging. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and it is believed to be for the same land, of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 2,009. This claim, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 43. PIERRE METOYER claims a piece of ground, with the buildings, in the post of Natchitoches, by purchase of the estate of Paul McCally, in August, 1804, who held it under François Prudhomme, by act, dated 9th of November, 1781, who claimed under John Peperes, who purchased it from the widow Alorge, by deed, dated 15th of February, 1778. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title; and although it is presumable that the deed, mentioned in the notice, may exist, and the claim be a valid one, yet, without there having been adduced, or proven to have existed, the confirmation of the claim cannot, consistently, be recommended; and it is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 44. PIERRE METOYER claims land adjoining the post of Natchitoches, by virtue of a purchase made at the sale of Mr. Hubert, who held it under Daniel Pain, by sale, dated 7th of June, 1771, as set forth in the notice of the claim. No document of title, or proof of occupancy, has been adduced in support of this claim, and the undersigned are under the necessity of reporting it as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 45. THE HEIRS OF JAMES MORRISON, deceased, claim a league square of land, embracing the salt springs on the bayou Saline of Natchitoches; and, also, two thousand acres to be located in said county, or that of Rapides, by virtue of a concession of the Spanish Government, of which the following is a translation:

NEW ORLEANS, June 12, 1790.

DON ESTEVAN MIRO, brigadier of the Royal Army, Governor and Intendant of the Province of Louisiana and West Florida, and Inspector of the King's troops, &c., I grant permission to James Morrison to explore both banks of Red river, the lands under the jurisdiction of Rapides and Natchitoches, but not to enter those belonging to Nacogdoches, or any of the internal provinces of New Spain, for the purpose of finding a situation fit to erect salt works, and these ascertained, and, in conformity to the notice which he is to give to the Government, there shall be granted to him the land that shall be necessary for the said fabric; and, moreover, two thousand arpents of land to make a plantation for the subsistence of his family. He is also permitted to go to the United States of America, from whence he may return with his property, converted into the produce of the settlements of Ohio, utensils and implements of agriculture, house furniture, and provisions for one or two years, giving him all the protection, depending on the Government, for the encouragement of said fabric. These presents, signed with my hand, sealed with my arms, and countersigned by the Secretary of this Government, for His Majesty.

ESTEVAN MIRO.

By order of his lordship.

ANDRES LOPEZ ARMESTO.

At the bottom of the same paper Mr. Filihol, the commandant of the post of Washita, certifies, that he has seen, and taken a copy of the foregoing, 24th April, 1796. The above, with two plats of survey, by Samuel Cook, a deputy surveyor, dated 1806, are the only documents which have been filed with the notice of this claim. No evidence to establish occupancy has been adduced. It should be noticed that it was incumbent on Morrison to notify the Government of the place he might have selected for his establishment: that, conformably to such notification, the land necessary to erect his fabric, and thousand arpents for the establishment and subsistence of his family, should be conceded to him. No quantity of land was specified for the establishment of the salt works. This, it is presumable, was to depend on the knowledge the Government should acquire of the local situation, after a selection had been made. In thirteen years, which had elapsed between the time of granting this permission to Morrison, and the session of Louisiana to the United States, there is no evidence of his having made the contemplated selection of the site for the salt works, nor of the tract for cultivation. The only evidence, (and that merely presumptive,) of his having explored any part of the country, whilst it was subject to Spain, for the purposes specified in his permission, is to be inferred from the note of the commandant of Washita, subjoined to the Governor's permission. The survey, under which the heirs claim, was made nearly three years after the change of Government. That the Government must have proposed to itself some advantage, from the promised concession of Morrison, cannot be doubted. Either it expected to derive some direct revenue, or anticipated benefits to the community, which would result from cheapening the article of salt. It appears that, through the default of Morrison, none of the benefits were realized. The value which the Government set upon salt springs, and the determination not to deprive the community of the benefit of them, is manifested in a concession by Governor Miro to a former commandant of Natchitoches, Pierre Rousseau, made four years prior to the permission granted to Morrison for land on the same bayou, if not the precise situation now claimed by Morrison's heirs, in which is the following reservation: "It is well understood that the salt spring on the said land shall be always free to the public, and that neither the present holder, under this concession, nor his successors, nor assignees, shall, in consequence of this grant, or any other pretext, impede, or hinder any person from making salt at said saline at any time." From a full and deliberate investigation of the pretensions of the claimants, the undersigned commissioners are of opinion, that the engagement of Governor Miro had, through the delinquency of the party claiming, ceased to be binding on the Spanish Government before the cession of Louisiana; that, consequently, it cannot now be binding on the Government of the United States. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 46. EDWARD MURPHY, SAMUEL DEVANPORT, WILLIAM BARR, AND LUTHER SMITH, claim four leagues square of land, situate east side of the river Sabine, in that part of the country called the province of Texas. The following is a translation, in substance, of the document of title under which the land is claimed:

Edward Murphy represents to Don Maria Gaudiana, second lieutenant of artillery, and commandant military and civil of the post of Nacogdoches, that, having, with the knowledge of the predecessor of said commandant, established a vacherie at a place known by the name of Laguna de Juan Mora, on which he has paid tithes to the priest, and this not being sufficiently stocked with cane for his large stock of cattle, he asked a concession of a tract of land at a place called Nana, (mother,) on the east side of the river Sabine, about seven leagues from its margin, on the road from Nacogdoches to Natchitoches, to be taken by lines from the centre of the tract, to be each two leagues in length, making four leagues on each front of the tract, running north and south, east and west.

EDWARD MURPHY.

At Nacogdoches, 1st July, 1798. The commandant orders that the proper officer shall put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited.

On the 1st of August, 1798, being on the land petitioned for, Joseph Cayetano de Sapeda, syndic, &c., certifies, that, being on the land solicited, and having satisfied himself that there were no neighbors who could receive any injury from the possession of this land by said Murphey, the nearest inhabitant being at least eight leagues distant, he has put the said Murphey in possession, conformable to the decree of the commandant, by taking the said Murphey by the right hand, stepping several steps in each direction from the centre of the land, the said Murphey pulling up grass, cutting twigs, and taking turf, &c., as an evidence of the full possession of the land given, in presence of witnesses, in the name of his Majesty, &c.; and, as a further proof and evidence of possession, he has given to the said land the name of St. Pedro de la Nana, (St. Peter's mother.) Under date 4th of August, 1798, the commandant ratifies the possession given by the syndic, and concedes the land to the said Murphey as his full property, to be peaceably enjoyed, &c. On the 3d November, 1798, Edward Murphey conveys the land to the above named claimants. Bertrand Plaisance, before the Board, 29th October, 1812, hath deposed "that, about sixteen years ago he saw a tree on the said road, marked with the letter P, which tree was newly marked, and stands about ten arpents west of where the road from Nacogdoches to Natchitoches crosses a small bayou called bayou Pierre, and about ten leagues west of the town of Natchitoches, at which time he was told by Samuel Devanport, one of the claimants, that said tree was a boundary mark of the above described tract of land; that, at that time, he saw another tree marked in the same manner, on the said road, about six leagues from the Sabine river, which he understood, from the same person, was marked as a boundary of the said tract; that an American, by the name of Burges, was settled on the land in question, sixteen years ago, and that said Burges continued to reside there until about three or four years past, when he left the place, which was immediately occupied by a Spaniard; that Burges was employed by the claimants as a vacherie keeper; that large stocks of horses and cattle were kept on the land during the last sixteen years; that there is a house and a small farm on the land, which has been occupied and cultivated during the time above mentioned, by the said vacherie keepers." The above evidence was taken in the claim of the above named claimants, for a tract of six leagues square, reported under No. 49, but, from the description of the situation of the land given by the deponent, it appears that he must have had reference to the claim under consideration. See note at the end of this report, page 91.

No. 47. EDWARD MURPHEY, two thousand two hundred and twenty-two acres and eighty-four-hundredths, situate east of the Sabine river, in the former province of Texas, claimed under a Spanish concession, of which the following is a translation in substance:

OCTOBER 17, 1791.

Edward Murphey petitions for a tract of land on the bayou Hondo, in the limits of the province of Texas, where a cove is formed between the road leading from the bayou Hondo to the bayou St. John, and which cove forms a convenient situation for a vacherie, where the cattle of the petitioner may be collected.

NACOGDOCHES, October 18, 1791.

The commandant knowing the land to be in the province of Texas, and vacant, grants it as solicited.

ANTOINE GIL Y LEARVO.

A plat of survey, by Samuel Cook, dated 7th December, 1806, is also filed with the notice.

Samuel Devanport, before the Board, 6th May, 1814, hath deposed "that he has been an inhabitant of Louisiana for at least twenty-eight years past; that, from the year 1798 to the year 1813, his settled residence was in the village of Nacogdoches, where, from having obtained from the Commandant General of the internal provinces of Mexico, the grant of an exclusive privilege to himself and his co-partner in trade, (a Mr. Barr,) to carry on trade with the Indians, and, from his particular intimacy with the several commandants, and other Spanish officers at Nacogdoches, during the above period, he acquired an accurate knowledge of the Spanish usages, in relation to the disposition of lands, in what was at that time understood to be the province of Texas; that he is perfectly acquainted with the Spanish language, and has so thorough a knowledge of the hand-writing of the several commandants, who have served at Nacogdoches, between the terms above stated, that it is scarcely possible he could be deceived in any of them; that he has examined the documents filed in said claim, signed Antoine Gil Y. Learvo, which he knows to be the signature of said Y. Learvo, who, from circumstances within the knowledge of the deponent, and, particularly from his having been removed from office, either in the year 1798, or the preceding year, to the best of the deponent's recollection, is known to have been commandant civil and military, at Nacogdoches, for near twenty years. The deponent further saith, that the document above referred to is in the form usual in conceding lands in said province at that date. The deponent further saith, that it is a fact well understood, that the commandants of Nacogdoches, from the remote situation of the post, were vested with full powers to concede absolutely any lands within the limits of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, which, until after the cession of Louisiana to the United States, was bounded on the east and south by the river Hondo, Lake la Terre Noir, bayou Casasche, and river Kelkechute, and, on the west, by the river Trinity; that five of the internal provinces of Mexico were under the government of a Commandant General, and these provinces separately governed by a Governor, within the same, whose business it was to make periodical visits to the several posts under his jurisdiction, for the purpose of redressing grievances, and settling controversies between the inhabitants, but who always regarded the right of the commandants to concede lands as full and complete, without any ratification being necessary on his part." See note at the end of this report, page 91.

No. 48. EDWARD MURPHEY claims four leagues square on a lake called Juan de Mora, setting forth in his notice, that the land is situate in the territory in dispute between the Government of the United States and his Most Catholic Majesty, "under a deed of conveyance from John Quingetty, which deed is in the archives of the province of Texas, at Nacogdoches." The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document. Bertrand Plaisance, before the Board, 29th October, 1812, hath deposed "that the land was originally granted for a vacherie to a man by the name of John Quingetty, at least twenty-five years ago; and that it has been kept up ever since as a vacherie, having also a small part in cultivation every year, by those residing there as vacherie keepers." See note at the end of this report, page 91.

No. 49. EDWARD MURPHEY, SAMUEL DEVANPORT, WILLIAM BARR, and LUTHER SMITH, six leagues square, say two hundred and eleven thousand five hundred and seventy acres and two one-hundredths, under a Spanish concession, to Jacinta Mora, of which the following is a translation in substance:

NACOGDOCHES, November 14, 1795.

Jacinta Mora, inhabitant of Nacogdoches, solicits six leagues square of land on the eastside of the Sabine river, in the province of Texas, at a place called Les Ormigas, the place called the "los Yndios," or Indian ford, to be in the centre of the front line, and the lines to run east, west, north, and south, at right angles.

Under the same date, at Nacogdoches, Bernardo Fernandes, commandant of Nacogdoches, orders that the proper officer Jose Cayetano, syndic, put the party in possession of the land solicited, taking care that it shall not prejudice any other person. December 2, 1795.

Joseph Cayetano de Sapeda, syndic, &c., in compliance with the order of the commandant, and in the presence of J. Moras, with the assisting witness, (using the same ceremony as in report No. 46,) puts the party in possession, and names the place St. Maria Adelaid, of Ormigas. On the 15th December, 1795, John Bernardo Fernandes, lieutenant of cavalry, and Lieutenant Governor of Nacogdoches, confirmed the possession given by the syndic, and concedes the land in perpetuity to the petitioner and his heirs, &c. On the same paper, and following the foregoing, is a transfer of the land from the said Mora to William Barr & Co., passed before the commandant Dionesio Valle, dated July 22, 1805.

Gaspard Boudin, before the Board, the 29th October, 1812, hath deposed "that the land has been made use of as a vacherie for the last thirty-five years. That Edward Murphey has claimed the land from the time of his earliest recollection, he being now upwards of forty-six years of age; that stocks of horses and cattle have been kept on the said land constantly for the last thirty-five years, by persons employed by said Murphey, and that, during that time, there has been a house and small farm on the land, which was occupied and cultivated by those who resided on the place as stock keepers." Bertrand Plaisance, aged forty-eight years, deposeth "that the land above mentioned has been occupied as a vacherie as above stated, for at least sixteen years; but he is not able to say for a longer time, as he was not in that part of the country at an earlier date. October 29, 1812.

Don Bernardo Dortolant, of the county of Natchitoches, before Bartholomew Fleming, justice of peace of said county, the 14th March, 1814, hath returned the answers annexed to the following interrogatories propounded by the Board of Commissioners:

Interrogatory 1. Do you know who were the commandants at Nacogdoches from the year 1791 to 1798?

Answer. Don Bernardo Fernandes was the first, and Don Jose, Mr. Gaudina, his successor in office.

Interrogatory 2. Do you know whether said commandants had the power of granting lands, and under what restrictions?

Answer. Yes, they were authorized; and conceded lands to the inhabitants in proportion to their stock, which was the sole restriction to which they were subject, and of which the procureur of the people had to give his opinion before they got possession and titles.

Interrogatory 3. Were those grants considered as complete titles, or as mere permission to settle, subject to the future order of some superior authority or tribunal?

Answer. These grants were considered as complete titles when executed in the manner following, to wit: the individual presented to the commandant his memorial, praying the concession of a certain piece of land, situate as specified in the writing, and exposing his merit and right to such a gift. The commandant consulted with the Attorney General, and if they agreed that the petitioner merited the extent of land prayed for, or part of it, he ordered the attorney to put him in possession of all, or a part, according to the determination, without prejudice to a third. The attorney proceeded in consequence thereof, accompanied by the interested party, and two assisting witnesses, to the land where, in the form prescribed by law, he put him in possession, according to the order, giving it all possible strength with his witnesses and the person receiving the gift; gives his proceedings to the commandant who confirms them, and places them in the archives, and gives a testified copy to the individual to serve as a title.

Interrogatory 4. Were grants, of the extent claimed, common in that country?

Answer. They were common, and were conceded for grazing ground, or to increase the stocks; therefore, the inhabitants are few in that country where they keep cattle, and possess land according to their means.

Interrogatory 5. Do you know Jacinta Mora, and had he claims on the Spanish Government for larger grants than usually given?

Answer. I know Jacinta Mora. The time the Spaniards had the Adays, about forty years ago, who, with his family, claimed the land, called the Ormigas, situate on the east side of the Sabine; since when he has had his pastures there, where he had cattle, cavalcades, &c.; and that he has held in good faith since 1795; all which I know.

Interrogatory 6. Do you know the firm of Murphey, Barr, Devanport, and Smith, and had they, in consequence of any service rendered, any claims for grants of lands of greater extent than other individuals under the Spanish Government? Relate all you know with respect to the said lands.

Answer. I know the above-named company; that they had a large trading house at Nacogdoches for a long time; they were acknowledged as citizens of the Government; had a great many persons in their employ; had large stocks, and, in consequence, needed large pastures, (they had the trade with all the Indian nations of the north,) which was all seen by the Government; and, I believe, they merited much of it for their services with Indian nations.

The foregoing interrogatories being also put to Pedro Procela, of the said county of Natchitoches, at the same time and place as the above, and by the said Fleming, justice of the peace, he hath answered in the same to each interrogatory, and hath added the following: "I also know Dionicia Valle, who was commandant of Natchitoches in 1805. I also know his signature, affixed to the testified copy of the title for the lands of Ormigas, granted to Jacinta Mora, and sold by him to Barr and Devanport. I also know the signature of J. Ma. Gaudiana, affixed to the sale given to the said company." The deponents, from probably not understanding the English language, have preferred answering the interrogatories in their native tongue, (Spanish,) from which the foregoing is a translation. See note at the end of these reports, page 91.

No. 5. EDWARD MURPHEY seven hundred and twenty-seven acres on the bayou St. John, claimed under a grant from the Spanish Government. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Gaspard Boudin, before the Board, 29th October, 1812, hath deposed "that a Spaniard, whose name is not known to the deponent, but is generally known by the name of St. John, settled on the land in question for said Murphey, fourteen years ago; and has continued to reside on, and cultivate the same ever since, without intermission, for the use and benefit of said Murphey, or his representatives; (said Murphey having died about three years ago;) that said Murphey was the head of a family on the 20th day of December, 1803, and then resided in the county of Natchitoches. It is believed that the land claimed, under this entry, is embraced in the confirmation in favor of the heirs or legal representatives of said Murphey, by commissioner's certificate, No. 2,110 or 2,131. The confirmation of this claim, therefore, cannot be recommended.

No. 51. AUGUSTIN METOYER, two and a half arpents front, on each side of Red river, the depth not mentioned. In support of this claim has been filed an order of survey for two and a half arpents front, on each side of Red river, in favor of William Le Brun, dated 8th June, 1797. The land is described in the petition of the said Le Brun, on which the order of survey is issued, to be bounded on the upper side to the petitioner, and, on the lower side, by land of Margaret, a free negress, and asked for to enlarge his plantation, and not to settle on. No evidence has been offered to establish the occupancy of the land. The commissioners being of opinion that it is such a claim as would have been valid, under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation, giving the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the river, as has been customary, in such cases, under the said Government.

No. 52. JOHN NICHOLLS, seven hundred acres, claimed under a complete title to William Soderlin, dated in June, 1798. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title. The abstract of complete titles, made by the Spanish Government, shows one which comports with the notice of the claim; but no document having been adduced to show the situation or boundaries of the tract, or that it has been regularly conveyed to the claimant, it is deemed most advisable to report the claim, recommending its confirmation according to the tenor of the patent, which, with the deeds of conveyance, it is incumbent on the claimant to produce.

No. 53. JOSEPH PIERNASS, two hundred and sixty-two thousand and eighty acres (supposed to be arpents) in the former province of Texas, east of the river Sabine, claimed under a title to Jacinta Mora, from the Governor of Nacogdoches, in the said province of Texas. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a bill of sale, passed before Carlos Xemenes, notary public at New Orleans, 25th April, 1796, of which the following is a translation: Let it be known, Jacinta Mora sells to Joseph Piernass a tract of land, under the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, about twenty-five leagues from the village, at a place called the Ormigas, (pismire,) which leads from north to south on the east bank of the river Sabine, which land is the same that was granted to me the 14th November, 1795, by the Government of said place, conformable to the limit boundary, and other circumstances mentioned in the petition and concession. A plat of survey, not appearing to be authentic, nor believed to have been made from actual survey, is also filed, and no other document nor testimony has been offered. See remarks at the end of these reports, page 91.

No. 54. MARGARET B. PRUDHOMME claims a tract of land left to her by the deceased widow of Louis Antoine St. Denis, by will of which the following is a translation in substance: the testatrix gives to Mary Margaret Prudhomme a tract of land, and its appendages, opposite the post of Natchitoches, and any other land of which she may be possessed. January 21, 1799. A certified copy of the will is the only document or evidence of title accompanying the notice of the claim, the claimant not having exhibited any document or evidence whereby it might be known what lands the testatrix died possessed of, and to which she, as legatee under the will, may be entitled. This claim is classed among those which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 55. THERESE MALLETTE, widow of Gaspard Phiole, claims one league square of land on the bayou Goutier, by virtue of a Spanish concession, which is supposed to be lost. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Gaspard Boudin, before the Board, the 16th June, 1812, hath deposed "that the land claimed was inhabited and cultivated upwards of twenty years ago, by the husband of the claimant, and that the same has been inhabited and cultivated by Emanuel Flores, and others, without intermission, until two years ago, when the house was destroyed by fire." Louis Derbanne, before the Board, the 10th October, 1812, hath deposed "that he is now forty-five years of age, and that whilst he was a boy, at least thirty years prior to the present date, he was with his father on the land above mentioned, and that, at that time, Gaspard Phiole, husband of the claimant, had a large vacherie on the place, with considerable improvements, such as buildings and cultivated lands, &c.; and that, from common report, he has reason to believe that the place has been occupied in the same way to this time, by the widow of the deceased, as above mentioned; but this he does not know of his own knowledge." The commissioners have no data by which to determine the limits or situation of the land claimed; and, if there has actually been a concession, they are uncertain whether it may not have emanated from the authorities at Nacogdoches, in which case the land would be found to be within the disputed territory, or what was considered a part of the province of Texas. The length of time which, from the testimony, the land appears to have been occupied, would entitle the claimant, under the third section of the act of the third of March, 1807, to a part of the land claimed. The commissioners could only confirm, under that section, the title to two thousand acres. If the original documents in the claim had been produced, it is probable the Board might have been induced to recommend the confirmation to the full extent claimed. Under the circumstances of the case, they can only recommend a confirmation of the title to two thousand acres, with the proviso that so much shall be found within the acknowledged limits of the tract claimed.

No. 56. MARIA LOUISE PORTER claims, by settlement, ten acres front on the left hand side of the bayou which empties into the Lake de Yate, on the southeast of the prairie called De Koocoque, (or Yanacoco,) at the junction of a run which comes from said prairie. The notice is unaccompanied by any document. No proof has been offered. Supposed to be for the same tract claimed by Mrs. Porter, and reported under No. 63.

No. 57. ANTOINE PRUDHOMME, fifty-nine acres, claimed under a grant to Jacques Le Vassure, dated May 24, 1796. The notice is unaccompanied by any document, and the claim has been confirmed to the grantee, by commissioners' certificate A, No. 1,732. This claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 58. JOHN BAPTISTE PIEDFIRM claims twenty arpents front, with the ordinary depth, on each side of Red river. The notice is accompanied by a relinquishment by John Baptiste Larenaudier to the claimant, of his right, and that of his partner, Antoine Lenoir, to twenty arpents of land, which he possessed in common with Antoine Lenoir, at the place called Leguna Pauledeau. Another instrument of writing, dated June 25, 1808, by which Antoine Lenoir certifies that John Baptiste Larenaudier has sold to John Baptiste Piedfirm twenty arpents of land, that is to say, ten arpents front on each side of Red river, at a place called Lake Pauldeau, the joint property of him the said Lenoir and John Baptiste Larenaudier, to each of whom one hundred dollars had been paid. (Signed,) mark ordinary of Antoine Lenoir. Attested by Benoist Montanery and Etienne Lauve. No testimony has been taken in the claim. The claim, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 59. JOHN BAPTISTE PIEDFIRM claims twenty arpents front on each side of Red river, by virtue of two different purchases, one from Antoine Lenoir, and the other from John Baptiste Larenaudier. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a certificate of Antoine Lenoir, dated June 25, 1808, acknowledging to have sold to John Baptiste Piedfirm ten arpents front on each side of Red river, with the ordinary depth, at a place called Lake Pauldeau, and for which he had received one hundred dollars in payment. No testimony has been taken in the claim, and, from the description of the land in the above certificate it is supposed to be for the same tract claimed and reported under No. 58.

No. 60. CHARLES PAVIE claims a lot in the post of Natchitoches, supposed to have one hundred and twenty-two or one hundred and twenty-seven French feet in front, with the depth to the hill, bounded above by land of Madame Fontenot, and below by Joseph Maria Armand. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence or document of title. The Board are, therefore, constrained to report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 61. CHARLES PAVIE claims eight arpents front, with the ordinary depth, on each side of Red river, conceded to Joseph Dartigaux, March 13, 1797. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the order of survey, dated as above, (March 13, 1797,) in favor of John Baptiste Dartigaux, Jun., in the usual form, and with the usual conditions, together with a deed of sale to the claimant for fifty arpents front by the depth of forty arpents on each side of that part of Red river called the river of Cannes. The said fifty arpents of front, embracing this and three other tracts sold at public vendue at Natchitoches, the 31st March, 1806, of which three tracts the title to two has been confirmed by the commissioners' certificate B, No. 2,202 and 2,204, the first having twelve arpents front, and the other twenty arpents front. No proof has been offered to establish the occupancy of the land claimed under this order of survey, but the commissioners believing it to be such a claim as would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation by Congress.

No. 62. CHARLES PAVIE, ten arpents in front by forty arpents in depth on each side of the river of Cannes, claimed under an order of survey to Athanaze Labour, dated April 18, 1789. The order of survey, of the usual form, and in the usual conditions, accompanies the notice of the claim, together with the copy of the deed of conveyance mentioned in the next preceding number. This claim being also embraced in the said fifty arpents of front, the confirmation of the claim is recommended for the reasons as set forth in preceding number.

No. 63. MADAME LOUISE PORTER claims a tract of land of two leagues square at the prairie Leunacucou, under a title to John Baptiste Dartigaux, of which the following is a translation:

NACOGDOCHES, July 31, 1797.

John Baptiste Dartigaux petitions Mr. Gaudiana, Lieutenant Governor of Nacogdoches, for a tract of land of two leagues square, so as to include the prairie Leunacucou.

NACOGDOCHES, July 31, 1797.

Ordered, by the Lieutenant Governor, that the proper officer put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, if he should find it will not prejudice a third person.

GAUDIANA.

A deed of sale from said Madame Louise Le Compté, wife of Porter, to John Baptiste Le Compté, (son,) dated June 19, 1813, is also filed with the notice, together with a plat of survey by Joseph Irwin, deputy surveyor, dated in 1813.

Gaspard Bourdin, before the Board, October 26, 1812, hath deposed "that thirteen or fourteen years ago, a man by the name of Jacques, an Englishman, was put on the land by Madame Monet, who had possession of said tract of land in exchange for another tract, and that the said land has been inhabited and cultivated ever since for the claimant's use. Lands within the disputed territory. See remarks at the end of these reports, page 91.

No. 64. FRANÇOIS ROUQUIER, Sen. claims four hundred arpents on the road from Opelousas to Natchitoches, about nine miles from the latter place. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the following documents, to wit:

AUGUST 22, 1796.

The petition of François Rouquier for ten arpents front, by the ordinary depth, at a place called the bayou Blue, between the bayou Provincial and the bayou Toris; the petitioner setting forth that he has not pasture enough for his cattle, and asks a grant of this piece of land for that purpose.

Under the same date, Felix Trudeau, then commandant of Natchitoches, gives permission to the party to take possession of the land until he could be provided with a title in form. John Riss, aged about fifty-three years, before the Board, February 17, 1813, hath deposed "that the land was inhabited and cultivated for the claimant for twenty-five years back, and has been to this day, being the vacherie of the deceased Roquier." No other evidence of title has been adduced. It would appear, from the testimony of John Riss, that the land had been occupied from the year 1788, but the petition of the party being of a much later date, to wit, 1796, at which time permission is given by the commandant to the claimant to take possession of the land, it is to be presumed that the party had no pretensions to a claim for the land earlier than the year 1796, and, having had other titles for land under the Spanish Government, which have been confirmed by the Board, the claim under consideration must be reported. The confirmation is recommended on the grounds of its being such a claim as, in the opinion of the commissioners, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 65. LOUIS BARTELEMY RACHEL, fifty-nine acres, claimed under a complete title to Jacques Le Vassure. This notice is for part of a tract of land, the title of which has been confirmed to the original grantee by certificate A, No. 1,732. This claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 66. ANDRE RAMBIN, two hundred and fifty-nine and fifty-one hundredths acres, claimed under a title to Ignace Mailloux. The notice of this claim is for part of a tract of land, of which the title has been confirmed by certificate B, No. 2,043. This confirmation was made through mistake, or a want of correct information in favor of the heirs of François Rouquier for the whole of the original tract. It is very evident that Andre Ramin is entitled to the part which he claims; and, as this right is admitted by the heirs of Rouquier, there is no likelihood of his right being impaired by the confirmation of the title as above. This claim, therefore, needs no further confirmation.

No. 67. ANDRE RAMBIN claims a tract of land under a purchase from an Indian called Cayacaillé, and his wife, in the year 1790. The quantity of land claimed is not mentioned, and the notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title. The claim, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 68. ANDRE RAMBIN claims a lot in the town of Natchitoches, under a deed of conveyance from the Chevalier Poiret, dated in the year 1678. The notice of this claim is also unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed. There can be no doubt but that the date 1678 is a mistake. It is probable it should have been 1778.

No. 69. LOUIS BATHELEMY RACHEL claims a tract of land on the river of the Lake à la Croix, forming an island containing one league in circumference, named the Island of De Maron. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by a plat of survey by Joseph Irwin, deputy surveyor, dated in 1812, and by no other document of title. The plat of survey shows the quantity of land claimed to be two hundred and eighty-seven and fifty-seven hundredths acres. Bertrand Pleasance, before the Board, October 28, 1812, hath deposed "that the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated by a son of the claimant for upwards of sixteen years past until the present date." This claim cannot be confirmed by the Board on account of the claimant's having had one claim confirmed under a title in his own name from the Spanish Government. See the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 1,678. In consideration of the length of time, however, which the land has been inhabited and cultivated by a son of the claimant, and taking into view the small extent of the claim which has been confirmed, three hundred and eight arpents, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim under consideration ought to be confirmed, in conformity with the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 70. BARTHELEMY RACHEL claims a tract of land, sixteen arpents front on each side of Pearl river, bounded above by Dorclas, a free negro, and below by Lewis Verchare, under a grant from the Spanish Government, dated March 27, 1791. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of the claim, and no proof has been offered to establish occupancy. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 71. MADAME BARTHELEMY RACHEL (François Le Barry) claims seven arpents front on each side of Red river, under a title from the Spanish Government to her brother, Louis Fontin. The title to the land claimed, under the notice, has been confirmed in the name of the original claimant, Louis Fontin, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,638. This, of course, is reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 72. LOUIS SIMION RACHEL claims ninety-two and fifty-one-hundredths acres on Red river, at a place called Ecor. A plat of survey by Daniel Coleman, assistant surveyor for Samuel Cook, dated in 1808, is the only document accompanying the notice of the claim. No proof has been offered. The claim, therefore, is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 73. PIERRE ROUSSEAU claims a tract of land of forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the right bank of the bayou Saline, in the county of Natchitoches, under a title, of which the following is a translation in substance:

JUNE 13, 1786.

Pierre Rousseau, captain of the army, and commandant civil and military of the post of Natchitoches, represents to Governor Miro that, intending to establish a vacherie on a tract of land situate on the right bank of the bayou of the Saline in ascending, taking for the centre of his establishment the source of the Saline, distant about ten leagues northeast, (supposed from the post of Natchitoches,) this land being fit only for a vacherie, and subject to inundation, begs it may please the Governor to grant him forty arpents front, by the ordinary depth, bounded on all sides by vacant land.

PIERRE ROUSSEAU.

NEW ORLEANS, July 12, 1786.

The Governor issued the order of survey, conceding the land in the usual form, except the following proviso: "It is well understood that the salt spring on said land shall always be free to the public, and that neither the present proprietor or holder under this concession, nor his successors or assigns, shall, in consequence of this grant, or any other pretext, impede or hinder any person from making salt at the said Saline at any time."

MIRO.

Louis Deblane, before the Board, 11th ———, 1809, hath deposed "that he commanded at the post of Natchitoches from the year 1787 to the year 1796, during which period the claimant regularly paid his proportion of the expenses of the said post for the land claimed, which was the only species of tax imposed by the Spanish Government upon the inhabitants of the said post; that the claimant was, from the period first mentioned, until the American Government took possession of this territory, considered as possessor of said land, subject to the conditions mentioned in the order of survey with respect to the salt water upon the said land. The deponent also believes that all the grants upon the said Saline had conditions similar to those expressed in the order of survey filed in this claim. No other proof has been offered in support of the claim. The commissioners are of opinion that the concession by the Spanish Government, above recited, has vested in the claimant a valid title to the land claimed, with the exception of the salt springs; and, therefore, report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed, with the exception aforesaid.

No. 74. JOHN SIBLEY claims six hundred and forty acres more or less on Red river, at a place called the settlement of Compté, under a purchase from Nicholas Mercier. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is understood to be for the same tract claimed by Hypolite Bordelen, to whom the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,884. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 75. JOHN SIBLEY claims a tract of land having ten arpents front on one side, and fifteen arpents front on the other side of Red river, with the depth of forty arpents on both sides, under a purchase from Louis Mercier, (supposed to be François Mercier.) The notice of the claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from François Mercier and wife to John Sibley, dated January 25, 1806, for said land. On the back of which deed, and of the same date, is a certificate by Felix Trudeau, in the French language, of the following import:

Felix Trudeau, captain of infantry, heretofore commandant of Natchitoches for His Majesty, certifies that, in the year 1802, he gave permission to Louis Mercier and his family to settle on a tract of land about the Lake Peauldau, on the river, bounded above by Antoine Poisot, and below by a bayou, and ten arpents on the opposite side.

F. TRUDEAU.

No evidence of occupancy has been adduced in this claim, and none to corroborate the declaration of Mr. Trudeau as to the fact of granting permission. This claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 76. FELIX TRUDEAU claims six hundred and forty acres under settlement. A plat of survey by Daniel Cook, dated in 1806, embracing an area of eight hundred and twenty-two and forty-five hundredths acres, is the only document of title filed with the notice of the claim. James Teal, before the Board, February 14, 1812, hath deposed "that, about fourteen years ago he was on the land claimed, when he found it occupied, and under cultivation by a tenant of the claimant, whose name the deponent does not know; and having frequently passed the same plantation since, (the public road leading through it,) and finding it inhabited and cultivated, the deponent has reason to believe that the settlement and cultivation has been regularly maintained from the time he had first a knowledge of it to the latter end of the year 1803. No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim. The only confirmations in favor of claimant are by the certificates of commissioners, marked B, No. 1,720 and 1,721, for very small tracts, the two together not amounting to eighty-five acres, and appearing not to have been conceded to him, but acquired by purchase. This considered, and proof having been made that the land was occupied as early as the year 1798, by a person acknowledging himself to have been the tenant of the claimant, induce the commissioners to report this claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed as far as the extent of six hundred and forty acres, to include the settlement made by the tenant.

No. 77. EDWARD D. TURNER claims ten and three-fourths acres of land in front, with forty acres in depth on the right bank, and seven and a half acres in front, with forty in depth on the left bank of Red river. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of conveyance from Nicholas Lauve, Jun., and wife to Edward D. Turner, dated May 26, 1804, for a tract of land "situate on the Red river, about two miles from the post of Natchitoches, being the same tract formerly owned by the widow Poisot, having a front of nine arpents or more, if to be found, bounded above by land of Madame Mongenot, and below by that of John Adley, and on the left bank of said river, having a front of seven and a fourth arpents or more if to be found, bounded as above mentioned, with such depth, not exceeding forty arpents, as may be found not to interfere with the rights of others. The following is a translation of a certificate which has been filed with the notice:

NATCHITOCHEs, February 28, 1806.

"We, the undersigned, certify and declare to have full and entire knowledge that the plantation actually possessed by Mr. Edward D. Turner, has been settled and cultivated for about forty-five years by M. Athanaze Poisot, Sen.; which said plantation has passed in succession to the children and grandchildren of the said Poisot. We also certify—though not quite certain of the precise quantity contained in the said plantation—we know that it is from the limit of Madame Mongenot to that of John Adley, owner of a part of the plantation which formerly belonged to the said Poisot: besides which, we believe that, at the time of the conflagration of the house of Madame Poisot, the documents of title of the said land situate on that side of the river called the Desert Land, were burned."

FRANCOIS GRAPP.
ANDRE RAMBIN.

NATCHITOCHEs, February 27, 1806.

I certify, that Andre Ramin and François Grapp have acknowledged, before me, that the signatures to the within certificates was their deed.

BARTHOLOMEW SHAMBURY, J. Peace.

No other evidence of title has been adduced. The declaration of Francois Grapp and Andre Ramin, though acknowledged before a justice of the peace, and although the commissioners have no reason to doubt the truth of their assertions, cannot be regarded as evidence of the facts intended to be established. The claim, therefore, is necessarily reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 78. EDWARD TEAL, ALEXANDER DOWNEY, and PIERRE SEDIC, claim a tract of land of 640 acres in the prairie Yanakoka, on a bayou emptying into the Sabine river, below the Consate village. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and, of course, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 79. NOBLE WILKINS claims twenty arpents front of land on each side of Red river, with all the depth which may be found, under an order of survey in his favor, ———, 1795. The original petition of the claimant for the land, with the approbation of the commandant, accompanies the order of survey, which is filed with the notice. The petitioner sets forth that the land has no depth at the time of high water, and obliges himself, conformable to the usages of the district, to erect half the bridge over the bayou Platt, which is the upper boundary of the tract claimed, the lower side being bounded by Baptiste Lattice. The order of survey is in the usual form, and on the usual conditions, conceding the land with the required front, because of its only having four or five arpents of depth. On the back of the order of survey is written the following words:

NOVEMBER 6, 1805.

"I, Noble Wilkins, authorize and empower Jo. A. Parrot, of Opelousas, to recover, compromise, sell, or otherwise to dispose of, all my right, title, claim, and interest to the tract of land within mentioned.

NOBLE WILKINS.

Witness: R. SMITH.

The small depth expressed in the order of survey is believed to have allusion only to the arable land. The commissioners, therefore, believing this claim to be such as would have been valid, agreeably to the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend the confirmation for the quantity of front expressed in the order of survey, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents on both sides of the river.

NOTE.—Several claims entered with the deputy register for the county of Natchitoches are known to be for lands lying west of the Rio Hondo, and within that part of Louisiana the United States' claim to which has been disputed by the Spanish Government. The commissioners have not hesitated, on account of the doubt as to which nation the sovereignty of the country may belong, to decide on the claims of persons deriving their rights from acts of Congress granting donations from occupancy, &c.; because, however the question of sovereignty may ultimately be decided, no inconvenience, they conceived, could result from their decision; but, if the question should be settled in favor of the United States, there would be this advantage, that the inhabitants would be quieted in their possessions.

The claims on this report, numbered 46, 47, 48, 49, 53, and 63, are also for lands lying west of the Rio Hondo, and the documents of title under which they are held have emanated from Spanish authorities at Nacogdoches, of whose powers and authority the commissioners have had no means of acquiring satisfactory information, and, therefore, decline deciding on those claims. It will be seen that most of them are for very large tracts of land, which, from the tenor of the petitions, were designed principally for vacherie establishments. The commissioners have remarked that, to persons holding offices under the Spanish Government, and persons who may have rendered services to the Government, it has been customary to make very large concessions of land.

That Samuel Devanport, William Barr, Luther Smith, and Edward Murphey, joint co-partners in commercial houses, established at Nacogdoches and Natchitoches, who are the principal claimants of the land thus circumstanced, did, for many years, enjoy, under the Spanish Government, in the province of Texas, the exclusive right of trading with the Indians in that quarter, is a matter of public notoriety. Mr. Devanport, one of said co-partners, has submitted to the Board a number of original letters from Governors, and other persons in authority, in the said Spanish province, dated between the years 1804 and 1812, in which they are sometimes styled "Traders General." In one of those letters, the commandant of Nacogdoches (Sebastian Rodrigus) informed William Barr that the Governor of the province (Antonia Cordera) had ordered him to furnish the said Barr with twenty soldiers, under the command of an intelligent sergeant, with ammunition and provisions for a voyage of two months, to enable Mr. Barr to explore and sound the mouths of the rivers Carriente, Sabine, and Antoyayue, travelling by land, &c. In another letter to Mr. Barr from said commandant, he acknowledges the receipt of documents of observation made for the purpose of ascertaining the mouth of the river Calcasuit, and hopes he will soon be furnished with the rest of his commission. In another letter from Simon Eterrara to Samuel Devanport and William Barr, they are requested to furnish the troops of the quarter with provisions, and that they will be thanked for this new proof of being good servants to the King. In another letter to the same persons from Governor Salcedo, it is stated that there is enclosed a memorandum of toys, goods, &c. for the use of the Indians in their jurisdiction. From the foregoing, the commissioners are induced to believe that a part of the lands above alluded to, may have been conceded as a recompense for the services and loyalty of the above named persons, and as a remuneration of disbursements which it is likely they may have made for the use of the Government. Signed duplicates.

Remarks on the foregoing list of land claims in the county of Opelousas, with reference to the reported numbers.

NO. 1. PIERRE ARSENEAUX claims one-third part of the land lying between the Coule d' Aigle and Frederick Mouton's land, being in depth forty arpents. This land was purchased by the said Pierre from Frederick Mouton, who purchased from an Indian chief of the tribe of Attakapas. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the following documents: 1st. A certified copy of a deed of sale by Achenoya, chief of the Attakapas tribe of Indians, vested with power by Jacob Le Tortue, Jun., and Baptiste (as set forth in the said deed of sale) to Frederick Mouton, for a tract of land in the quarter called bayou de Blanc, in the county of Opelousas; bounded on one side by other land of the purchaser, and on the other side by the Coule de Aigle, with the depth of forty arpents, for the consideration of $115. Sale passed 29th July, 1802, before Honoré de la Chaise, then acting as commandant for the post of Opelousas. 2dly. A sale by the said Frederick Mouton to the said Pierre Arseneaux, passed the 5th of October, 1804, before the said Honoré de la Chaise, then styling himself "Commandant for the United States of America" of the post of Opelousas, for one-third part of the land purchased by the said Mouton from the Indians, to be taken next the Coule d' Aigle. No evidence has been adduced in this claim to establish a title by occupancy. It is, therefore, to be inferred that the claimant relies on the validity of the Indian title, and presumes the transfer passed before the commandant to be good and sufficient.

It may not be improper, here, to inquire whether, and how far this case, and others similarly circumstanced, may be affected by the laws of the United States, restraining the purchasing the lands of Indians by unauthorized individuals. By an act of Congress, passed the 30th of March, 1802, for "regulating trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes, and to preserve peace on the frontiers," it is enacted "that no grant, lease, or other conveyance of lands, or of any title or claim thereto, from any Indian, or nation, or tribe of Indians, within the boundaries of the United States, shall be of any validity unless made by treaty or convention made pursuant to the constitution." And it is made a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, for any person not employed under the authority of the United States to negotiate any treaty or convention with the Indians, or treat with them, for the title or purchase of any lands held by them. See the 12th section of the above recited act.

The provisions of the statute above quoted were by an act of Congress passed the 26th of March, 1804, entitled "An act erecting Louisiana into two Territories, &c.," extended to those Territories to take effect from and after the 1st day of October, 1804. Anterior to the said first day of October, an act passed the 31st day of October, 1803, entitled "An act to enable the President of the United States to take possession of the territory ceded by France to the United States, and for the temporary government thereof," was to remain in force. By the last mentioned act neither the right of the Indians to sell their lands, nor of any individual to purchase from them, has been interdicted or restrained. No doubt, therefore, can exist of the Indians, within the limits of Louisiana, having had the same right to pass sales of their lands at any time previous to the first day of October, 1804, that they enjoyed whilst Louisiana continued to be a colony of Spain. Such sale, however, could only vest in a purchaser the kind of title which the Indians held. It therefore becomes necessary next to examine the nature and tenure of the Indian title to lands in Louisiana.

The Spanish functionaries seem to have made a distinction between Indians who had partaken of the rights of baptism, and the ordinary tribes or nations of Indians within the limits of Louisiana. The former ever denominate Christian Indians, a term usually, if not invariably, incorporated in the body of the instrument by which their titles to lands were transferred to others.

These Indians seem to have been considered capable of holding and enjoying lands in as full and ample manner as any other subjects of the crown of Spain. That the tenure of the title to lands held by Indians not denominated Christians may be more clearly comprehended, and that repetition may be avoided in the progress of this report, the undersigned commissioners think it necessary here to insert such extracts, both from the testimony adduced, and written documents filed in other claims held under purchases from Indians, as may appear in any degree applicable to the one under consideration, to which they may find it convenient and useful to make frequent references in their remarks on other claims similarly circumstanced. From testimony given in the claim of Thomas Nicholson, (which will be reported among the claims of the county of Attakapas,) by Louis C. De Blanc, Esq., formerly exercising the office of commandant civil and military for the district of Natchitoches, and afterwards the same office for the district of Attakapas, the following is extracted: "The right of the Indians to sell their lands always was recognized and admitted by the Spanish Government." "We always considered the title from the Indians to their villages the best of titles, because the original property of the soil was in them; and when this country was conquered, the laws of the conquerors were enforced, but the property of the aborigines was held sacred. Hence the difference between the titles of Indians and other subjects. The other subjects who wanted land must demand and have a written title. It was not necessary for the Indians, because they already had a title to the land they claimed. Their title originated in, first, occupancy, cultivation, and settlement. The Indians never claimed other lands than their villages, and when they did, it was given them by the Government. There never was an instance of the Government of Spain taking land from Indians, especially their villages. Even when the Indians had abandoned some old villages, because their hunting was exhausted, and had established new ones, by the grant of the Spanish Government their villages deserted were always considered as their property, subject to their disposal, and the inhabitants never suffered to settle there, but were always driven off." "There was no time fixed in which a deed must be presented for approbation. It could be presented in one year, or a hundred years, and it would receive the sanction of the Government. The laws made it necessary, when the Indians sold their lands, to have the deeds presented to the Governor for approbation. This was only a form, as the Governor in all cases approved, and never refused." "The villages of the Indians never consisted of less than a league; and often two leagues or more in front; and it was the custom of the Spanish Government, whenever they granted land to Indians, to give them a league or more square."

In the claim of MILLER and FULTON, for a tract of land on Bayou Boeuf, in the county of Rapides, purchased from Indians, which will be reported by the Register and Receiver of this district, pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress passed the 27th February, 1813, will be seen the testimony of Charles Laveau Trudeau, many years Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana under the Spanish Government, from which the following is extracted: "The deponent knows of no ordinances or regulations under any Governor of Louisiana, except O'Reilly, by which the Indians inhabiting lands within the province were limited in their possessions to one league square about their villages, but these regulations have not been adhered to by any of his successors. The deponent knows that the custom was, that when a tribe of Indians settled a village by the consent of the Government, that the chief fixed the boundaries; and when there were one or more neighboring villages, the respective chiefs of those villages agreed upon, and fixed the boundaries themselves; and when any tribe sold out its village, the commandant uniformly made the conveyance according to the limits pointed out by the chief. The lands claimed by the Indians around their villages, were always considered as their own, and they were always protected in the unmolested enjoyment of it by the Government against all the world, and has always passed from one generation to another, so long as it was possessed by them as their own property. The Indians could always sell their land with the consent of the Government; and if, after selling their village and the lands around it, they should, by the permission of the Government, establish themselves elsewhere, they might again sell, having first obtained the permission of the Government, and so on, as often as such permission was obtained; and no instance is known where such permission has ever been refused or withheld. These sales were passed before the commandant of the district, and was always considered good and valid without any order from the Government."

In the claim of MILLER and FULTON, for land on bayou Boeuf, the following is an extract from the testimony of Mr. Valentine Layssard, late commandant under the Spanish Government for the post of Rapides: "The deponent has never known a smaller quantity than a league square of land to be assigned to any one tribe of Indians, let their numbers be what they might; and in one case, namely, the Appalachie tribe (a small tribe) a much larger quantity than a league square of the first quality and situation on Red river was assigned to them." See Rapides Report, No. 125.

Extract from the testimony of the same person in the claim of Miller and Fulton for land on Red river: "The deponent saith that he had been agent of Indian affairs for many years under the Spanish Government for the post of Rapides; spoke the language of the Indians, &c. That, in the year 1803, the Appalachie and Tensaw tribes of Indians came to the deponent, as Indian agent, to inform him of their having sold their land to Miller and Fulton, and requested him to pass the sale. That the deponent replied to the Indians, that neither himself nor them could dispose of or convey their lands without the authority and approbation of the Governor of the province." By referring to the documents filed in the claim, it will be seen that application was made to the Governor, who gave his written permission for the chief to sell, with the consent of his nation. See Rapides Report, No. 126.

In the claim of PATRICK MORGAN and DANIEL CLARKE, for a tract of land in the county of Attakapas, which will be reported among other claims of the said county, it will be seen that M. Fusilier de la Clair had purchased from Kinemo, chief of the Attakapas village, called in French "Lamourier," the said village and land depending thereon, of two leagues in front from north to south, limited on the west by the river Vermillion, and on the east by the river Teche. This sale was passed in November, 1760, when Louisiana was subject to France, and being executed before Mr. Kerleric, then Governor of the province, is evidence that the consent of the Governor, to sales passed by Indians, was, at that date, considered necessary to their validity. About the same time that the above sale was passed, three or four other purchases were made from the Indians of Attakapas, by which a very large proportion of the lands of that district, and nearly or quite all the valuable lands on the river Teche were embraced. After Louisiana had changed sovereigns, and become a colony of Spain, the Count de O'Reilly, the first Governor of the province under the Spanish monarchy, passed regulations or ordinances, by which no grant for land in Opelousas, Attakapas, or Natchitoches, could exceed one league square. It would seem that, in some cases, these regulations were intended to have a retrospective operation; for we find that Mr. de la Clair, in the year 1770, petitioned the Governor for a grant of one league front by a league in depth, expressly admitting in his petition that the sale from the Indians was "not sufficient to assure to him the property of the said land." On this petition, the said Governor O'Reilly, on the 2d of March, 1770, made what was denominated a provisional concession, ordering the surveyor to mark out the limits to the petitioner of a tract of land of one league in front by one league in depth. In like manner have the other purchases from Indians been reduced to one league square, the surplussage not having been considered as reverting to the Indians, but as making a part of the royal domain, which has been granted, from time to time, as it may have been petitioned for by other individuals. In the claim of Stephen Lynch, (Rapides Reports, No. 108,) it will be seen that Lynch purchased from the attorney in fact of the Reverend Mr. McGuire, who purchased from Indians; and that the said attorney expressly covenants, in the deed by which the title to the land is transferred, that the seller is to be entitled to receive nothing in payment from the purchases until the sale made by the Indians to McGuire shall have been ratified by the Governor. In the same claim a document is filed, which appears to be a transcript of a judicial investigation and decision of the conflicting claims of the said Lynch, and a man named Carrigan, before Caesar Archinard, alcaid of the district, who has decided that Lynch's title is good, provided Carrigan shall not be able to produce a prior conveyance from McGuire or his attorney; and provided, also, that the sale from the Indians to McGuire shall be ratified by the Governor.

In the claim of Joseph Gillard, (Rapides Report, No. 67,) in passing the sale from the Indians to Collin la Cour, the commandant of Natchitoches, before whom it was executed, Louis C. De Blanc has inserted a condition making it necessary that the deed should be presented to the Governor General of the province for his approval and confirmation.

In the claim of John Lyon, for a tract of land on the bayou Queue de Tortue, purchased from an Indian of the Attakapas tribe, named Celestine, the commandant who wrote the deed of sale, and before whom it was executed, (Louis C. De Blanc,) has included a provision whereby it was made necessary to present the deed for the approbation of the Governor General of the province.

In the foregoing documents strong evidence is perceived of the general understanding that the sanction of the Governor of the province, whilst Louisiana continued to be a Spanish colony, was necessary to the validity of all sales made by Indians, other than those denominated Christians; and it necessarily results that titles held under such sales were inchoate until that sanction was obtained. The sales by the Indians transferred the kind of right which they possessed. The ratification of the sale by the Governor must be regarded as a relinquishment of the title of the crown in favor of the purchaser. May the Indians, on account of being the aborigines of the country, be considered as having, at all times, had a right to the unappropriated or unoccupied lands, and can their sales for lands, which they did not occupy, be taken as investing in a purchaser an indefeasible title? It will be noticed that, in the extract made from the testimony of Mr. De Blanc, there is an assertion that the title of the Indians, especially to the lands including their villages, was considered under the Spanish Government as "the best of titles;" and that this title was held sacred on account of their being the aborigines of the country. The same witness has also said that even the villages, abandoned by the Indians, were afterwards regarded as their property, and subject to their disposal. The undersigned commissioners do not perceive the orthodoxy of these assertions. If the Indian title really possessed the dignity which Mr. De Blanc has assigned to it, a formal extinction of that title, by treaty or purchase by the French or Spanish Governments, ought to have preceded all grants made by either of those Governments, because there was not perhaps a spot of the country susceptible of settlement which the roving natives had not at some past period occupied. It will be observed that, in another part of his testimony, Mr. De Blanc has insinuated that this country was conquered from the Indians. The inquiries and researches of the undersigned, however, afford them no evidence of any fact which can induce them to consider the country as having been acquired by conquest. On the contrary, the Indians seem to have permitted the European emigrants to usurp the sovereignty of the country without making any opposition to them; and the right, thus obtained by the crown of France, and afterwards transferred to that of Spain, has acquired force and validity by prescription; has been legitimated by the tacit acquiescence of the natives in that usurpation. If it should be asked what evidence exists of the law of prescription operating to the extinction of the Indian title to lands in Louisiana, it might be replied that the evidence is to be found in the various acts of the Spanish Government in relation to the Indians, evincing that the Government recognized no title in them independently of that derived from the crown, a mere right of occupancy at the will of the Government, else why was the sanction of the Government necessary to all sales passed by Indians, which may be clearly established by a recurrence to written documents and testimony of Messrs. Trudeau, De Blanc, and Layssard; and was it not necessary to have such sanction of the sales made by other subjects of the Spanish Government? The force and effect of prescription, in abolishing the Indian title to lands in Louisiana, is further established by the Indians permitting themselves to be removed from place to place by governmental authority; by their condescending, in some cases, to ask permission of the Governors to sell their lands, and, when that permission was not solicited, assenting to the insertion of a clause in their deeds of sale, expressly admitting that their sales could be of no validity without the ratification of the Governor.

"There was no time fixed," says Mr. De Blanc, in another part of his evidence, "in which a deed must be presented for approbation; it might be presented in one year, or a hundred years, and would always receive the sanction of the Government." Would it not be a very preposterous regulation, under any form of government, and very unlikely to have existence under a monarchical one, that should require the acts of an inferior to be submitted to a superior officer for his scrutiny and approbation, and, at the same time, deny to such superior the right of rejection? That, therefore, the Governors of the Spanish colony of Louisiana had the right not only of rejecting Indian sales, but of actually annulling them, it is conceived will not be denied. Nor is it at all probable that the Governors either "would always sanction," or have always sanctioned such sales. Let it be remembered that, in the whole extent of the western district, there are not more than three, out of the many sales made by the Indians since Louisiana became a colony of Spain, which are known to have received the governmental sanction. And let it be remembered also, that a sale which may have been rejected by any Governor, would not have been exhibited to the Board of Commissioners as evidence of title. Therefore, although the Board of Commissioners have no means of producing any proof of the rejection of any Indian sale, it does not follow that none have been rejected. The practice, by Governor O'Reilly, of reducing the quantity of land embraced by sales which had been made by Indians under the sanction of the Governors when Louisiana was a colony of France, was much more arbitrary. But, if it could be established that no Indian sale was ever rejected by the Spanish Government, this would only prove that none had been presented but such as were admissible; not that a case might not occur which would demand the exercise of the Governor's negative. Suppose, for example, a sale from the Opelousas Indians, at a time when that tribe had dwindled down to not more than twenty persons, which should embrace half the unoccupied land in the county of Opelousas, can it be imagined that such a sale would not have been rejected by any Governor of Louisiana? Many of the sales from Attakapas Indians were obtained about the time of the change of Government by which Louisiana was transferred to the United States; some of them subsequent to that change, and at a time when it is known, from good information, that those Indians were reduced to one single village, the inhabitants of which were short of one hundred. In some cases, as will appear by the subjoined schedule of Indian sales, six or eight distinct tracts have been sold by the same individual Indian. It is not probable that if sales had been passed under circumstances such as are stated above, before the change of Government, or prospect of such a change, they would have been rejected. Although no time may have been prescribed within which the sales of Indians were to have been presented for ratification, the purchasers could not have been ignorant that the regulations required that they should be presented at some time for ratification, because the condition was generally expressed in the face of the deed, and therefore they must have known that their titles were incomplete at all times before the ratification.

The undersigned commissioners are of opinion that there is a wide difference between the titles of such persons as have purchased lands from Indians, which such Indians were actually occupying at the date of their sales, and the titles and claims of persons who purchased from Indians not in the actual occupancy of the land at the date of their sales. Purchasers of the first description, although the deeds of transfer may not have been presented, and of course could not have received the governmental sanction, may be considered as having extinguished the kind of title which the Indians enjoy, and are, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, equitably entitled to so much at least of the land claimed as would be a full indemnity for the consideration they may have paid for it. Purchasers of the second description would not, in the opinion of the Board, be entitled to any remuneration, because it is conceived the Indians, in such cases, were selling a thing to which they had no kind of title.

The investigation of claims for lands purchased from Indians seems to have brought into view four distinct classes. First. Claims for lands purchased from Indians denominated Christians, whose sales are generally for small tracts of such extent as an Indian and his family might be supposed capable of cultivating: passed before the proper Spanish officer, and duly filed of record. These sales are believed to have been valid by the usages of the Spanish Government without ratification being necessary. Secondly. Claims for lands purchased from some tribe, or chief of some tribe of Indians, the sales of which may have been ratified by the Governor of the province. These are also considered as valid; the Indian sale transferring their right; the ratification of the Governor being regarded as a relinquishment in favor of the purchaser of the right of the crown. Thirdly. Claims for land purchased from Indians of the description last mentioned, who, from the evidence adduced before the Board, shall appear to have been in the actual occupancy of the land at the date of their sales, but whose deeds of sale may not have been presented for the ratification of the Governor. In this case, the Indians are considered as having transferred only the right of occupancy which they held at the will of the Government. The title is incomplete, but the purchaser supposed to have an equitable claim for the confirmation of his title to so much of the land claimed, as would be a full indemnity for the consideration he may have paid. Fourth, and lastly. Claims for lands sold by Indians of the last description, who did not occupy them at the date of their sales, and whose sales have not been ratified by any Governor of Louisiana. Such sales are considered as vesting no title in the purchasers; and the claims such (unless accompanied by some equitable circumstance in their favor) as, in the opinion of the Board of Commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

Of this last class is the claim at present under consideration, unattended by any circumstance known to the Board of Commissioners, which might entitle it to confirmation.

The number of tracts sold by each tribe, or chief of each tribe of Indians, with the date of sale, quantity sold, where it can be ascertained, &c., exhibited at one view in the following schedule.

No. 2. ANTOINE BLANC claims a tract of land of one league front by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Plaquemine Brulé. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Nementou, chief of the Attakapas tribe of Indians, signed also by thirteen of his warriors, or inhabitants of the village, to the claimant, executed on the 16th of April, 1784, before Alexander Chevalier De Clouet, then commandant of the district of Opelousas and Attakapas, witnessed by William Hays and Louis Latiolais, for a tract of land of one league front by the ordinary depth of forty arpents, measure of Paris, (giving an area of 2,820 86-100ths American acres,) on the bayou Plaquemine Brulé, "adjoining the land of Hays, an American," for the consideration of sundry articles of merchandise invoiced or specified in the deed. On the back of the deed is the certificate, dated 10th June, 1784, of Louis Latiolais and Joseph Roy, stating that they were present when the merchandise specified in the deed was delivered to the Indians. No evidence has been adduced to establish either that the land claimed was in the occupancy of the Indians at the date of the sale, or that it has been actually occupied by the claimant since that date. It will, however, be observed, that the tract is very specially located on the bayou Plaquemine Brulé, adjoining the land of Hays, an American. In the concession from the Spanish Government to Bosman Hays, whose claim has been confirmed by the Board of Commissioners, by their certificate marked B, No. 594, it is seen that the said Hays's land is situate on the bayou Plaquemine Brulé, and was adjacent to the Indian village at the date of the concession. This is, at least, strong presumptive evidence that the land was occupied by the Indians at the time of their sale to the claimant. This circumstance considered, together with the early date of the sale, the deed having been signed by a number of the Indians with their chief, and the subsequent payment of the considerations so satisfactorily established, induce the undersigned to class this among claims which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 3. WILLIAM BARD claims, by right of settlement, a tract of six hundred and thirty-nine and ninety-six one-hundredths acres of land, situate on bayou Tortue. A plat of survey by James Gordon, dated the 18th November, 1805, the only document accompanying the notice. No evidence of occupancy has been adduced. The claim is therefore reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 4. The widow of JACOB BOHM claims three hundred and twenty acres of land lying in the Prairie La-sonde. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a requête, in the name of the said Jacob Bohm, dated the 3d of January, 1794, in which he has represented that, in the year 1781, he obtained a grant from the Spanish Government for five arpents of land front, between the lands of Yarborough and Roger Fields, with the depth of forty arpents; and, finding himself deficient of arable land, has prayed a grant of the land remaining vacant between the same boundaries, being eight arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, which is conceded by the Baron Carondelet by an order of survey, dated the 14th of April, 1794. A plat of survey by Luke Collins, an authorized surveyor under the Spanish Government, bearing date the 14th of September, 1801, and filed with the notice, appears to embrace an area equal to that petitioned for. Seth Hanchet, sworn in this claim, and examined before the Board on the 28th of May, 1812, hath deposed that the land in question has been occupied by using the timber thereof, and occasionally extending the cultivated fields thereto, from the time the said Bohm petitioned for it, and some years before, to the present time; that the land was always respected as the rightful property of the said Bohm during his life-time; but the deponent was not certain whether the habitation of the said Bohm was actually on this tract or an adjoining one. This land seems to have been conceded as an appendage to the tract on which the said Bohm resided; and, although the proof of occupancy does not come within the provisions of the acts of Congress, the title is such as would have been valid under the Spanish Government; and the claim, therefore, is such as, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed. The widow claimed, as well under the title of her deceased husband, as by transfer in her favor of the respective interests of his children and heirs. Her death, since the claim was entered, having been suggested to the commissioners, they intimate the propriety of confirming the claim to her legal representatives.

No. 5. CHARLES BARRE claims eight thousand eight hundred acres (should be arpents) of land on the river Courtableau, purchased by him from William Reed and wife. This claim is founded on a complete patent to Mr. Courtableau, dated the 21st of May, 1765, and signed by Charles Philip Aubry and Dennis Nicholas Foucault, the first commanding for the King, and said to have been Governor, the latter Intendant, styling himself Ordonnateur, when Louisiana was subject to France, for one hundred arpents front, on the right bank of the river Opelousas, (sometimes called the river or bayou Courtableau,) with the depth of eighty arpents, and twenty arpents front, on the opposite side of the said river, with the depth of forty arpents. After the death of Mr. Courtableau, the lands in question were sold, agreeably to the usages of the country, at public sale on the 15th of October, 1774, by Chevalier De Clouet, and bought by Mr. Lamorandier for Madame Marcantel. This lady is said to have intermarried with William Reed, from whom the present claimant holds. The deed of sale from Reed and wife to Charles Barre, is dated November the 7th, 1786. A plat of survey, dated in 1800, representing the land claimed, and embracing the exact quantity conceded, accompanies the other documents in this claim: it was projected for Charles Barre, and is certified by Mr. Carlos Laveau Trudeau, then Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana. This claim being for a larger quantity of land than the commissioners are authorized to confirm a title for, they are constrained to report it for the consideration of Congress, remarking that the patent, which has been submitted to their scrutiny, is unquestionably a genuine one, in the form usual under the French Government. They entertain no doubt, therefore, of this being a valid and just claim.

No. 6. MANETTE BOISDORE, widow of Antoine Boisdore, claims a tract of land, of which the quantity has not yet been ascertained, from the boundary of Eugene Boisdore to the place called the Pointe of Maronnes, on the bayou Cannes, in the Prairie Mamou. A requête for the land, as above described in the name of the claimant, dated the 15th of July, 1784, approved and signed by the then commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, the 14th of August, 1784, is the only document accompanying the notice of this claim. No evidence of occupancy has been adduced. From the belief that this claim would have been valid under the Spanish Government, the confirmation is recommended to the extent of six hundred and forty acres.

No. 7. ANTOINE BOISDORE claims five thousand nine hundred and seventy-one acres of land on the bayou Canne, in the prairie Faquetke. This claim is founded on a requête and order of survey conceded to Maria de St. Denis, for eighty-four arpents front by the depth of eighty-four arpents. From the requête, which is dated the 26th of February, 1799, it appears that this land was solicited on account of services which had been rendered to the Spanish Government by the father of the claimant. The order of survey was accorded by Governor Galvez without any conditions of settlement, &c. In a deed of sale, dated the 1st of October, 1784, from the said Maria to the present claimant, which was executed before the then commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, there is an express reservation, by the vender, of the use of the plantation and houses thereon for one year after the sale. A plat of survey by William Darby, a deputy surveyor, dated 12th October, 1806, and representing the land as fronting on the left bank of the bayou Cannes, accompanies the foregoing documents. Andre Martin, sworn in the claim on the 11th of May, 1813, hath deposed that the land in question has been inhabited and cultivated for twenty-five consecutive years, immediately preceding the date of his testimony, by or for the use of the claimant. The terms of the sale establish, very clearly, that the land was occupied for some years previous to the time stated by the witness. This claim exceeds the area of one league square by about ninety-four acres. The commissioners have not the right of confirming for more than one league square. Satisfied that this claim is a just one, they recommend it for confirmation.

No. 8. MARIE THERESE BERTHELOT, widow of François Stely, claims six hundred and forty acres of land on bayou Queue de Tortue. A deed of sale from Tichaw, a chief of the Attakapas Indians, to the said François Stely, dated the 28th June, 1802, and executed before Honoré de la Chaise, then acting as commandant of the post of Opelousas, is the only document accompanying the notice of this claim, except a plat of survey, dated in 1810, and embracing six hundred and forty acres in an oblong form, 27.50 chains wide by the depth of about forty arpents of each side of the bayou Queue de Tortue. In the deed the land is described as lying adjoining the land of John Lyon on one side, and the land of the Indians on the other. John Teller, before the Board, on the 20th of June, 1812, has deposed "that the land claimed was settled about twelve years ago by the husband of the claimant, who kept an overseer and some negroes on the same until about three years past." The commissioners refer to report, No. 1, of claims in the county of Opelousas, for their exposition of claims derived from Indians, by which it will be seen that this claim falls within the fourth class of purchases from Indians, and, therefore, ought not to be confirmed. The claimant can have no pretensions to a right under the laws of the United States giving donations to settlers, because such right is barred by the titles under which the deceased husband of the claimant held other lands under the Spanish Government. The certificates marked B, No. 229, and A, No. 1,188, were issued in confirmation of claims to land conceded to François Stely, the one by complete patent, the other by order of survey.

No. 9. SIMON BURNEY claims six hundred and forty acres of land in Pine prairie, on waters of bayou Nezpique, by settlement. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice. Peter Sedick, before the Board, on the 12th of July, 1808, hath deposed "that, in the year 1802, the deponent first became acquainted with the land claimed, and the improvements on it appeared to have been made two or three years before; but it was neither inhabited nor cultivated during that year, but in the next year, to wit, 1803, an Indian with his family, at the instance, and on behalf of John McDaniel, settled upon the land, and has continued to reside there ever since." John McDaniel, before the Board, on the 10th of February, 1812, hath deposed "that, about fourteen years ago there was a cabin built, and about sixteen hundred rails split and used in enclosing cow-pens, and some small fields which were put in cultivation by the deponent, who continued to reside thereon one year, when he put a man on the land by the name of Synes, but how long the said Synes continued on the tract of land, the deponent does not know on account of his having left the neighborhood." Isaac Carpenter hath deposed "that, in the year 1803, a man by the name of Synes left the place claimed, having been placed there three or four years by John McDaniel, and who cultivated the same for that time, and that it has been cultivated and inhabited ever since by the claimant, and those claiming under him." It appears from the evidence that this claim is held under a settlement made originally by John McDaniel, to whom another claim has been confirmed under a requête and settlement. As but one claim, under the right of settlement, can be held by the same individual, Burney's right can derive no force from the settlement originally made on the land by McDaniel. The evidence which relates to the occupancy, by the Indian named Synes, is contradictory, and, at any rate, he is only to be considered as occupying the land at the will and for the use of McDaniel. Burney, the present claimant, does not appear to have occupied the land until the year 1803; has produced no deed by which the right was transferred to him by any former proprietor, and no evidence of permission from the former Government to settle. His claim, therefore, does not come within the provisions of the acts of Congress, which only embrace claims occupied at the time of the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, by the permission of the proper Spanish authority, or occupancy three consecutive years before such change, which is to be taken as evidence of tacit permission to settle. This claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, cannot be confirmed.

No. 10. ANTOINE BELARD claims five arpents front of land by the depth of forty arpents, at the Manches à Mallet, by virtue of an order of survey to Pierre Aucoin, for ten arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, sold by the widow of the said Pierre Aucoin, Jun., from whom the claimant purchased. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and two deeds of conveyance, the first from Magdalene Gautrot, widow of Aucoin, to Pierre Aucoin, her nephew, dated 20th February, 1806, for ten arpents front with the ordinary depth, at the pass of the bayou Mallet, such as it was ceded to Pierre Aucoin, her husband, which concession she has delivered to her said nephew; and the other from Pierre Aucoin, the younger, to Antoine Belard, the claimant, dated 24th February, 1806, for five arpents front with the ordinary depth, part of the tract of land described in the deed from the widow, bounded on one side by Mr. Carrier, and on the other by the seller. Both these deeds were passed before private witnesses, and do not appear to have been enregistered in the parish records, which is considered a requisite to give them validity. The original concession, referred to in the first deed of sale, has not been produced, nor any record of it, nor has any evidence been offered to establish occupancy. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 11. GENEVIEVE BOISDORE claims twenty arpents front of land by the depth of forty arpents, at a place called Point of Pines, in the Prairie Mamou, by virtue of a requête. The notice is accompanied by the requête of the claimant, dated 15th October, 1797, setting forth that the land solicited had been conceded in the year 1784; but the papers being lost, the petitioner wished to revive her claim. In the margin of the paper, and under date New Orleans, 7th December, 1797, Governor Gayoso requests information from the commandant of Opelousas. The requête is not certified by the commandant, and no evidence has been adduced to show that the information required by the Governor was afforded, and, there being no proof of the land having been occupied, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim ought not to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 12. MARIA THERESA BERTHELOT, widow of François Stely, claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from the Indians. The notice is accompanied by the deed of sale from Tortue, Indian chief, but signed by Celestine, (perhaps the same Indian,) to the said François Stely, for a tract of land on the west side of the river and lake of Nementou; bounded on one side by the bayou Chonpique, and on the other by the end of the Woods of the Lake, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting for Mr. Duralde, commandant, 10th December, 1803. No proof to establish occupancy, either by the Indians at the date of the sale, or by the purchaser at any time, the claim is reported under the fourth class of purchases from Indians, as enumerated in No. 1 of the claims of Opelousas, which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 13. FRANÇOIS CESAR BOUTTE claims three arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, in the cove of Bellevue, by virtue of an order of survey to Blaze Brasseur, by whom it was sold to Collingwood, and which the claimant purchased of Anaclet Cormier. This appears to have been a duplicate entry for a tract of land of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate marked B, No. 727. This claim, therefore, cannot be confirmed.

No. 14. FRANCOIS CESAR BOUTTE claims, by right of possession, a tract of land of about eighteen superficial arpents, situate in the Prairie Bellevue. In this claim Hubert Janis, aged forty-three years, being sworn, deposeth "that he has been raised in the neighborhood of the tract of land in question, and has known it from his earliest infancy; that it has been cultivated by Louis Chachere, by the consent of the claimant, for more than twenty consecutive years preceding the present date; that a part of the said tract is now occupied by a flourishing orchard of peach trees, and a part in sugar cane; that the said Chachere resides on an adjoining tract very near the line which separates it from the tract in question." Sworn before the Board, the 24th March, 1815. In this case, both the claimant and person occupying, by his permission, having had other lands conceded to them by the Spanish Government, neither could be entitled to a donation, under the acts of Congress providing for claims founded on settlement and cultivation, nor can they be entitled under the ten years' occupancy, because the evidence does not go back so far: nevertheless, as the land appears to have been constantly occupied and cultivated for at least eight years before the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, and ever since, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought to be confirmed.

No. 15. FRANCOIS CARMOUCH claims one-third of the land betwixt the Gully de l'Aigle and Frederick Mouton's land, with the depth of forty arpents, by purchase from Frederick Mouton, who purchased it from Indians. The deed of sale from the said Mouton to the claimant, dated 5th October, 1804, is the only document accompanying the notice, and no proof to establish occupancy has been adduced. This being part of the same tract of which Pierre Arsenau claims a part, and whose claim is reported under No. 1 of the Opelousas report, the commissioners refer to that claim for reasons why this is reported as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 16. LOUIS CARRIERE claims fifty-four acres of land at the pass of the Grand Prairie, being part of tract said to be granted to Anselin. The claimant having purchased this of Louis Rion, who purchased of Alexis Janis, who purchased from the widow Quibedo, who had it from the grantee. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated 1806, and the several deeds of sale. This claim appears to be embraced by the confirmation of the claims of Henry Bureau and Antoine Anselin, by commissioners' certificate marked B, Nos. 2,005 and 2,006. The claim under consideration is, therefore, reported as one which cannot be confirmed.

No. 17. JOHN COLEMAN claims six hundred and forty acres at the bayou Cane, by virtue of settlement by permission. The notice is accompanied by no document or evidence in support of the claim; it is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 18. JOHN COLEMAN claims the land contained between James Dunman and Benjamin Winfrie, being about a league on the bayou Queue de Tortue, by virtue of a purchase from the Indians. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, except the deed of sale from Celestine Bernard, and other Indians, acting for their nation, for the price of sixty dollars, passed before Louis C. de Blanc the 19th of August, 1802, and to be submitted to the Governor for his approbation. No proof having been adduced to establish that the Indians were in the occupancy of the land at the date of the sale, or that it has been occupied by the claimant, the claim falls within the fourth class of purchases from Indians as enumerated in report No. 1 of the claims of Opelousas; and which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 19. PIERRE CHRETIEN claims the land contained in the cove of Madame Latiolais, between the said Madame Latiolais, and the Queue de Tortue, at the Grand Point, by virtue of a purchase from the Indian chief Le Tortue. The deed of sale from the said Indian to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting for Martin Duralde, commandant, the 10th November, 1803, for the price of one hundred dollars, payable in cattle, is the only evidence of title adduced in support of the claim. This claim is also within the fourth class of purchases from Indians, is unsupported by any evidence of occupancy, and, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 20. JOHN CORNEAU claims the land "comprehended between Foreman and the island, by the ordinary depth, at the Queue de Tortue," by virtue of a purchase from Indians. The notice is accompanied by the deed of sale from Achenoya, chief of the Attakapas, to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting for Martin Duralde, commandant, the 21st July, 1802, for the price of one hundred and thirty-six dollars, to be paid in cattle. This claim being similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding, is, in like manner, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 21. JOHN BAPTISTE CASTILE claims eighty-four arpents front, with the depth of forty arpents, in the prairie Nespique, on the bayou Robert, by purchase from Celestine, Attakapas chief. The notice is accompanied by the deed of sale from said Indian to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant for the United States, the 17th March, 1804, for the price of three cows and three calves, and one three year old beef. This comes within the fourth class of purchases from Indians as enumerated in No. 1 of Opelousas claims; and, for the reasons there given, is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 22. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims six hundred and forty acres on the west branch of the bayou Plaquemine Brulé, by purchase from Robert Brazil, who is said to have purchased from Edward Foreman, who claimed under his brother. An informal deed of sale from said Brazil to the claimant, for ten arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, including a lime kiln, made by Bazzeel Lynchomb, dated 3d May, 1805, is the only document of title filed with the notice of the claim, except a plat of survey embracing six hundred and forty acres, dated in 1806. François Daniel, the 24th April, 1810, hath deposed "that, about twenty years ago, the land claimed was settled by Edward Foreman; that he lived on the land three or five years, but which he does not recollect, who sold it to the present claimant. The deponent does not recollect whether it was inhabited or cultivated on the 20th December, 1803; the original claimant was upwards of twenty-one years of age, and an inhabitant of Louisiana. No transfer from the original claimant (who is the only person by whom the land is proven to have been occupied) having been adduced, and no evidence to show that the occupancy had been maintained by the latter claimants, or that the original claimant had a valid title in the land, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim ought not to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 23. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims two hundred and twenty arpents of land in the cove of Prairie Bellevue, by virtue of two purchases from Philip and Oliver Richard, who held it as a part of their father's estate. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title, and it is believed to be for land, the title of which has been already confirmed. This is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 24. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims eleven thousand nine hundred and forty-three acres of land on the bayou Cuckettree, (supposed to be Crocodile), by virtue of a purchase from the widow Prue, who claimed the same by purchase from the Indians. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. Joaquin Ortega, before the Board, the 7th March, 1811, hath deposed "that, in the year 1793, Madame Manuel Prue bought of an Indian, named Chape Cancier, a Choctaw chief, at least the son of a chief, a tract of land on the bayou Crocodile, county of Opelousas, but what number of acres he does not know; he knows well that Madame Prue, the purchaser, removed on the land bought, and continued on the same for several years, but what number he does not recollect. She then left the land, he thinks, about the latter part of the year 1797. Neither does he know she had a sale passed before the commandant, never having seen it or heard of one; he also says he never knew of any village being there, but its being the residence of the Indian who sold it. He further states that he never heard any person claiming the said land; when she first removed on the land claimed, said widow went into the house formerly occupied by the said Indian chief. After the death of her husband she removed to another part of the land, distant about fifty acres. He states further that the payment was made in mares, but what number he does not know, at fifteen dollars each." François Hebert, 23d November, 1811, hath deposed "that, about eighteen years ago, he was on the land claimed, at which time a chief of the Choctaw tribe of Indians, named Hipo Cancier, was residing thereon with his family, and several young men of his tribe, who continued to reside on the same land until about fourteen years ago, when, both the old chief and his wife dying, their children and the other Indians of the village having, as the deponent was informed by young Hipo Cancier, (son of the old chief,) sold all their right and pretensions to the widow by the name of Prue, removed therefrom; whereupon, the said widow took possession of the premises, and continued to reside thereon, and cultivate the same, for four or five years without intermission, after the removal of the Indians, when the said widow Prue also removed from the said land; and the deponent does not know whether it has been occupied since." In this claim, no deed transferring the right of the Indians to the widow Prue, (who is said to have purchased from them,) or any from the said widow to the present claimant, has been produced.

It appears, from the testimony of Mr. Ortega, an ancient and respectable inhabitant of the country, that the said widow made a purchase from an Indian, who was understood to be the descendant of a deceased Choctaw chief, of some land, but that no written sale was passed to his knowledge; and it appears that the right of this lady was so far respected by the Spanish Government, that she was permitted to take possession, and did actually occupy and cultivate the land four or five years, to wit, from the year 1793, to the latter part of the year 1797; the evidence of Hebert corresponds with that of Ortega as to the number of years in which the land was occupied by the widow, but differs as to dates. The commissioners are of opinion that this claim derives no validity from any title the Indians may have had to the land, but from being permitted by the Spanish Government to occupy it as above stated, and not having, to the knowledge of the commissioners, abandoned the right thus acquired. They are of opinion that the legal representatives of the widow of Emanuel Prue ought to be confirmed in their claim to six hundred and forty acres of land, to be laid out in such form as will embrace the ancient improvements of said widow.

No. 25. THEOPHILUS COLLINS, LUKE COLLINS, and JOHN COLLINS, claim a tract of land in the Prairie Basse, by virtue of two deeds of conveyance from Julien Lesassier, one to Theophilus and John Collins, and the other to Luke Collins, being part of a grant made by the French Government to Louis Pellerin.

The following documents of title are filed with the notice of the claim:

1st. A copy of the grant to Pellerin, certified by the clerk, Leonardo Mazange, to have been furnished at the request of Madame de Lamorandier, by order of Governor Miro, of which grant the following is a translation:

To Monsieur DABBADIE, Commissary General of Marines, and Commandant for the King of the province of Louisiana.

JULY 1, 1764.

Louis Pellerin has the honor to pray you, saying that, on the permission you have given to settle the lands of Opelousas and Attakapas, he decided to make an establishment in the quarter of Opelousas for a vacherie and culture, for which reason he begs of you to be so good to grant him the concession of a prairie of a league and a half in depth southwest and northeast, the front of which is three-quarters of a league southeast and northwest, and likewise the cane and wood which surround the said prairie for half a league on every side, according to the plat annexed. He has to represent to you, further, that he has four children; that he intends to carry these, as well as Madame Pellerin, his wife, to prove to you the solidity and promptitude with which he intends to work at the said concession, which he has the honor to solicit, and which he expects you will be pleased to grant him. He begs of you also to give to the said concession the name of Martha.

PELLERIN.

JULY 2, 1764.

John Jacques Blaze Dabbadie, director general, and commandant for the King at Louisiana, on the demand that has been made to us by Mr. Pellerin, reformed officer of the troops of this colony, to concede to him a prairie, situate at the quarter of Opelousas, having sixty-three arpents front southeast and northwest, as well as some other lands where there is cane and wood, the whole mentioned in the requête preceding, conformably to the plat which has been made, and is here annexed, and seen and signed by us, and on which he has made an establishment that he named St. Martha: We, in virtue of the power given to us by His Majesty, and seeing the contents of said requête, have granted, and do grant by these presents, the said prairie, and other land such as they are mentioned above, well understood that they shall be within the limits that may have been fixed between the French and Spanish possessions of those parts, in which case Mr. Pellerin, as well as his heirs or assigns, may hereafter enjoy and dispose in all property as a thing belonging to him, under the said name of St. Martha, under the condition that he shall continue the said establishment; that, in one year from this day, he shall put them in full value, and report; on default of which, the said term being elapsed, they shall be re-united to the domain of His Majesty, who may dispose of it as if this present concession had not been granted; and, on condition to pay such impositions on said land as may hereafter be established in this colony, reserving, besides, for His Majesty all timber necessary for the construction of forts, magazines, or other works that may hereafter be ordered, and also for the repairing of his vessels at any time when necessary; also the lands necessary for highways and fortifications. As to the courses which are to limit the said prairie and other lands, they shall be regulated by boundaries which shall be planted for that purpose, of which process-verbal shall be made and annexed to these presents, after being recorded in the records of concessions. Given at New Orleans, under the seal of our arms, and countersigned by our Secretary.

J. DABBADIE, by my Lord,
DUVERGER.

Recorded in the Records of Grants, in the Government at New Orleans same date. 2d. Plat of survey, representing the prairie and adjacent woods, swamps, &c., shaded with different colors, and represented to be a plan of the concession demanded by Mr. Pellerin, at Opelousas, 1764. On the back of which plat is the following certificate: "Seen by us, Director General and Commandant for the King," J. DABBADIE.

3d Deed of sale from Valentine Moreau to Etienne Lamorandier, dated 28th June 1764, passed before private witnesses, and the commandant Chevalier de Clouet, for a tract of land such as it is, adjoining Marcantel, acquired by donation under private writing from Pierre Mallet, and in conformity with the title and acts of sale passed by Pellerin, first owner of said land. The transcript of this sale is given on the same sheets on which the concession is copied, and is supposed not to embrace any part of the land claimed by Messrs. Collins. It would seem, also, that the copyist had committed an error in the date, (28th July, 1764,) which is antecedent to the date of the grant, and, as further evidence of error, Mr. De Clouet, the commandant before whom it appears to have been passed, is known to have arrived in Louisiana from Europe subsequently to the above date. 4th. Extract from the sale of the estate of Jacques Courtableau, dated 14th October, 1774: "A tract of land in the Prairie Basse, of eighty arpents, with a negro cabin adjudged to Marcantel, for five livres; the prairie said to be covered with water six months in the year, and the swamp to be in common for the use of all the inhabitants." 5th. Deed of sale from François Marcantel to Noel Chatlereau and Joseph Mayou, dated 23d November, 1777, for a portion of land in the Prairie Basse, to be taken from the road of Little Bridge of Lasson, ascending on the hill to the boundary of the deceased Madame Marcantel for front, containing what it may, such as it is, with the right of community of swamp. 6th. Certificate of the commandant Chevalier de Clouet, dated 23d April, 1778, setting forth that the land of the Prairie Basse, heretofore of the estate of Courtableau, appertains to Marcantel, to whom it has been adjudged at public sale of the property of said estate, on conditions that the swamp alone shall remain in community for the inhabitants of the post, no person being allowed to make commerce of it. 7th. Deed of sale from François Marcantel to the widow Bordelou, dated 29th April, 1778, for six arpents front, with its ordinary depth, adjoining on one side to Joseph Mayeux, and on the other to the seller; the whole in conformity to the sale of the estate of Courtableau. 8th. Deed of sale from Noel Roy and Joseph Mayeux, to Jacob Schnell, dated 6th March, 1780, for fifteen arpents front in Prairie Basse, by the depth designated in the title of Marcantel, from whom it proceeds, bounded on one side by the widow Bordelou, and on the other to Joseph Roy. 9th. Deed of sale from the widow Bordelou to Florentine Poiret, dated 2d January, 1783, for six arpents front on the ordinary depth, adjoining on one side to Joseph Mayeux, and on the other to Joseph Picknard. 10th. Deed of sale from François Marcantel to Augustin Soileau, dated 28th November, 1785, for all his pretensions of land, building, and fences, at the Prairie Basse, with the exception of three arpents front by the ordinary depth, bounded on one side by land of François Marcantel, Jun., by donation, and on the other side by a man named La Rouille. 11th. Deed of sale from Augustin Soileau to Julien Lesassier, dated 3d December, 1789, for all his pretensions of land, buildings and fencing, at Prairie Basse, the boundary of which is to be taken from the land of Touriaë, with the exception of eight arpents front on the depth of half the Prairie Basse, a part which the seller reserves to himself. The sale made in conformity with the title of Mr. Pellerin, the gully behind the house being the boundary between the inhabitants of the Prairie Basse and those of the Hill, (Coteau,) it being agreed that the eight arpents reserved by the seller shall take from the boundary of the land of Cam, a free mulatto, and run towards the land now sold. 12th. Deed of sale from Julien Lesassier to Theophilus and John Collins, dated 12th March, 1790, for a portion of the land which he has purchased from Augustin Soileau, in Prairie Basse, to be taken from the actual boundary of said Augustin Soileau, in the east-northeast, which portion of land shall go until it reaches the half the Prairie Basse, the quantity to be determined by a line to be drawn in the middle of said Prairie Basse, running on the Little Woods, as well as the woods that shall be annexed to it. The said portion of land sold in conformity to the sale made by the said Soileau, who has proven the property by the title remitted to said Lesassier. 13th. Deed of sale from Julien Lesassier to Luke Collins, Jun., dated 12th March, 1790, for a portion of the land which he has purchased from Augustin Soileau, of five arpents front adjoining the land of Cam, free mulatto, which crosses the Prairie Basse, and goes to the gully, the depth of which shall go to the half of the Prairie Basse. Moreover, the half of the land which is between the establishment of the seller, running on the woods which front on the bayou Teche; also, another portion of land, which is opposite, or in front of the bayou Teche, which shall be bounded on the land which the said Luke Collins holds on the gully, and, on the other side, by the boundary of Theophilus and John Collins, the whole as purchased from Augustin Soileau, and in conformity with the title remitted to him. 14th. Deed of sale from Julien Lesassier to Luke Collins, Jun., dated 22d September, 1791, for the portion of land which he had reserved out of the land he purchased at the Prairie Basse from Soileau, except two arpents which he, Lesassier, has promised to cede to Antoine Godo, on the side towards the Hill, (Coteau,) and two arpents more on the same side, in case that Messrs. Collins should not cede to him two arpents on the other side, in the prolongation of the said land, according to the title of Prairie Basse, and then the four arpents should have depth only from the gully to the half of the prairie, with the houses, woods, fences, &c. 15th. Deed of sale from Florentine Poiret to Jacob Schnell, dated 3d November, 1790, for three arpents front, by the ordinary depth, at the Prairie Basse, bounded on one side by other land, which the seller purchased from Joseph Millouch, and on the other side by Touriaë. 16th. Deed of sale from Jacob Schnell to Luke Collins, Jun., dated 5th November, 1790, for eighteen arpents front, by the ordinary depth, proceeding from the purchases made from Noel Roy and Maillouch, and from Florentine Poiret, bounded on one side by Joseph Roy, and on the other side by the place called the Pointe Brulé. 17th. A plat of survey by Christopher Bolling, an authorized surveyor, dated 10th February, 1806, embracing an area of $609\frac{32}{100}$ acres. Charles Barre, before the Board, 10th September, 1808, hath deposed "that this deponent was present when an act of sale took place, and was executed by Louis Pellerin, the original grantee in the present claim, to Mr. Mallet, to begin at a picket placed near a barn in the prairie, to a run twenty acres westwardly to a burnt bridge, and from the same picket southwardly over the hill, and in the opposite direction from the same picket half a league; that the said Mallet gave the said Pellerin, in exchange for the said land, a tract of land of twenty acres front, lying on the bayou Courtableau, running from Louis Langlois's up the bayou, and which he believes to be the tract of land that Mr. John Collins at present owns; that, at the same time when this deponent was also present, the said Louis Pellerin executed another act of sale to Jacques Courtableau for the remainder of the Prairie Basse tract, excepting six acres by ten, which he had previously sold to Antoine Paillet, and which, he believes, at present belongs to Michel Prudhomme; that this deponent well recollects the price which the said Courtableau gave for the said land, to wit: five cows and calves and a three year old bull; that the said Pellerin, at the time that the said acts of sale took place and were executed, acted as commandant of this post, to wit, of Opelousas; that the exchange of land mentioned above to have been between Pellerin and Mallet, was actually made between Pellerin and Courtableau for and on behalf of Antoine and Pierre Mallet, Courtableau acting at that time as guardian to Antoine and Pierre Mallet, who were minors; when the said Antoine and Pierre Mallet came of age, Antoine Mallet sold his part of the same to a Mr. Moreau, who sold the same to Estevan Rodebar de Lamorandier, who sold it to one of the claimants, Theophilus Collins; that Pierre Mallet sold his part of the said land to Mr. Marcantel, who sold the same to Wible, who sold it to Luke Collins, Sen. who sold it to one of the claimants, Theophilus Collins. Said witness, Charles Barre, before the Board, 12th October, 1808, being cross-examined by the heirs of Louis Pellerin, deceased, hath deposed as follows: "Deponent knows that Mr. Pellerin (père) passed a sale to Mr. Courtableau of the Prairie Basse tract, and that the same was written by Mr. Pellerin himself, at his own house, on the border of said prairie; that there was no person present at the time, except the witness and the two contracting parties: this deponent says that he did not sign the sale as a witness, inasmuch as Mr. Pellerin was at that time commandant; the deponent did not read the sale, but it was read in his presence by Mr. Pellerin; that, in reality, there were two acts of sale passed at that time, one in the name of Pierre and Antoine Mallet, but the contract was made by Mr. Courtableau for and in their behalf, who were at that time minors; the other was in the name of Courtableau; that the consideration in the sale to Courtableau was five cows and calves, and a three years old bull. Deponent says that he first came to this country in the year 1763, and that it was, as he believes, four or five years after when the sales aforesaid were passed. Deponent says he is sixty-four years of age. This deponent further says, he has seen the aforesaid sale or exchange of land to the Mallets, together with the same plat now in commissioners' office, in the possession of Don Carlos Laveau Trudeau, at the time he was running the line between Mr. Lamorandier and Mr. Collins, the father of the present claimants, but that he does not know where the same is at this time, and that he does not know whether the same was an original or a copy, or whether it was signed by Mr. Pellerin, the father; that Mr. Courtableau and the Mallets, and the persons claiming under them respectively, have been in possession of the said land from the time of their taking possession in consequence of the said sales which was some short time after the execution of the sales aforesaid." Madame V. Hollier, before the Board the 28th September, 1808, hath deposed "that she had heard that Mr. Pellerin had sold the land mentioned to Mr. Courtableau, but that she had never seen the deed for the same." The widow and heirs of Louis Pellerin, deceased, by their attorney Nathan Morse, have filed a protest against the foregoing claim, of which the following is a copy: "To the honorable the Board of Commissioners for the adjustment of land titles in and for the Territory of Orleans—The memorial of Martha Pellerin, widow of Louis Pellerin, deceased, François Darby, widow of St. Marc Darby, Louis Pellerin, Barthelemy Pellerin, Chatellin Pellerin, Don Martin Pellerin, Charlotte de la Houssaye, wife of Louis de la Houssaye, Jocitant de la Houssaye, wife of Alexander Chevalier de la Houssaye, Hubert Pellerin, Josephine Pellerin, Celeste Fontenelle, wife of Jacques Fontenelle, children and heirs at law of the said Louis Pellerin, deceased, respectfully represent, that your memorialists are the legal and rightful owners of a certain tract of land situate in the county of Opelousas, known by the name of Prairie Basse, together with the woodland and swamp adjoining, to the depth of half a league on all sides, by virtue of a concession or grant by John Jacques Blaze Dabbadie, Director General of Louisiana, bearing date on the 2d day of July, 1764, to the husband and father of your memorialists, &c. Your memorialists do hereby protest against the establishment or confirmation of any other right or title of what nature or kind soever to the said premises, or any part thereof, by any person or persons whatever. And your memorialists do further protest, particularly against any claim or title of Theophilus Collins, Luke Collins, or John Collins, or either of them, or either of their heirs or assigns.

"OPELOUSAS, 11th August, 1808.

"NATHAN MORSE,

"In behalf of, and Attorney for the widow and heirs of Louis Pellerin, deceased."

Before entering upon the investigation of the title of the claimants in this case, the undersigned commissioners propose to examine the grant under which Pellerin held from the French Government. The concession to Mr. Pellerin, a copy of which the claimants have produced as the basis of their title, is evidently a conditional one; but the conditions on which the completion of the title depended ("putting the land in value and report") are supposed to have been performed. Mr. Barre, a person of undoubted veracity, has stated, on oath, that Pellerin was residing on the borders of the Prairie Basse about the year 1768, when he sold the land to Courtableau and the Mallets. He has spoken also of a barn in the prairie at the time, near to which a boundary was established for the purpose of dividing the land between the purchasers from Pellerin; from which, it is presumed, such improvements had been made by the grantee as were required of him by the Government. The commissioners are, therefore, of opinion that, by this concession, and the subsequent performance of its conditions, the title of the crown has been alienated, and an indefeasible one vested in the grantee and his assigns to the prairie, called the "Prairie Basse," and the woodland by which the said prairie is circumscribed, to the extent of half a league from the margin of said prairie on every side, provided the woodland shall extend so far; but, if it shall be found, from a survey of the premises in question, that in some parts the woodland does not extend half a league in depth from the said Prairie Basse, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim must be limited by the woodland, however narrow that may be, as it was manifestly intended that this grant should not embrace any part of any other prairie. The evidence in some of the claims for lands in this prairie may be such as would entitle them to confirmation by the Board of Commissioners, from the length of occupancy; but, the whole grant, taken together, greatly exceeding the quantity the commissioners are authorized to confirm a title for, they have decided to report the whole of the claims within it, with their opinion, for the information of Congress, taking the plat, which has been filed in the claim, as a mere eye-draught of the Prairie Basse, not made by actual survey.

The extent given of the prairie is supposed to be merely conjectural; sixty-three arpents front by the depth of one league and a half would, in a regular parallelogram, produce an area seven thousand eight hundred and seventy-four and twenty-six hundredths arpents, equal to six thousand six hundred and sixty-four acres. Of the quantity of woodland properly appertaining to this grant, no estimation can be made; it can only be determined by actual survey. It will be noticed that, in the public sale made by the commandant on the 14th October, 1774, a provision is inserted that "the swamp shall be in common for the use of all the inhabitants." By the word swamp, it is supposed was meant the timber growing on that part of the land which might be so denominated, because, giving the common use to all the inhabitants of the irreclaimable swamp land would be absurd. The authority of the commandant to make any such disposition either of the land or the timber of a tract formally granted by the competent authority, is, in the opinion of the commissioners, very questionable. The reservation in the grant itself only extends to such timber as the King might require for constructing and repairing his fortifications, magazines, vessels, and other public works. The claimants, in this case, have not produced any deed of conveyance from the grantee. This deed is the only one wanted to complete the chain of conveyances. Mr. Barre has stated that deeds were executed by Mr. Pellerin, at his own house, to Courtableau and Pierre and Antoine Mallet; at which time he, Barre, was, as he has said, the only person present, except the contracting parties; that he was not called upon to subscribe as a witness to the deeds, "Mr. Pellerin being at that time commandant;" from which it may be inferred Mr. Barre was under an impression that to deeds passed by commandants for transferring their own estates, witnesses were not absolutely necessary. Mr. Barre has also stated the consideration given by the Mallets for their part of the Prairie Basse tract, to have been a tract of land on the bayou Courtableau, which he has described in his evidence, and supposed them to be the property of Mr. John Collins. From an examination of the documents of title in the claim of John Collins, it is found that the said tract of land was sold by Louis Boisdore to François Lemelle, on the 18th May, 1772, and that it is in the deed described to be the same land which the seller had obtained from Louis Pellerin. This circumstance corroborates Barre's evidence of the sales, which he has said was executed by Mr. Pellerin to the Mallets and Courtableau, although no deed transferring the right of Pellerin to Courtableau has been produced by the claimants. If the evidence of Barre has left any doubt of such transfer having been made, the circumstance of the land having been sold by the commandant, Mr. De Clouet, after the death of Courtableau, as being part of his estate, must tend greatly to remove such doubt, and create a strong presumption in favor of Courtableau's title. In the protest of the heirs of Pellerin against the confirmation of the claim of the Messrs. Collins, no reasons are given, except that the memorialists are the rightful owners of the land. It is presumed that their objections are founded on the failure of the claimants to produce a deed from the grantee. This objection can have little weight, when it is considered that Courtableau's title was recognized by the commandant who sold his estate, and that Courtableau, and those holding under him, have enjoyed the uninterrupted use and possession of the premises for more than forty years, as established by the evidence of Barre, and the various acts of sale by which the title has been transferred. The commissioners, therefore, decide that this claim is a valid one, and ought to be confirmed, conformably to the deeds of sale from Marcantel to Soileau, from Soileau to Lesassier, and from Lesassier to the claimants.

No. 26. THEOPHILUS COLLINS claims three hundred and forty superficial arpents of land at a place called Coteau Petit, (Little Hill,) in the county of Opelousas. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Etienne R. de Lamorandier to Theophilus Collins, dated 27th October, 1801, and passed before Martin Duralde, then commandant of the post of Opelousas and Attakapas, for a tract of land of ten arpents front by the depth of thirty-four arpents, at the place called Coteau Petit, bounded on one side by land of Luke Collins, and on the other by Baptiste Fontenot and John Sappington, and a plat of survey by Thomas Berwick, dated 18th June, 1784, who certifies the land to be part of a tract conceded to Pellerin. On the back of the notice is endorsed, in the hand-writing of the late register, "This claim is derived from Pellerin's grant for the Prairie Basse, and was sold by Pellerin to Mallet." Joseph Andrus, aged fifty-five years, sworn in this claim, deposeth and saith, "that he is well acquainted with the tract of land, which is less than half a mile distant from the habitation of the deponent; that, when the deponent arrived in the county of Opelousas, in the year 1780, Mr. Etienne R. Lamorandier was residing on the land in question, and continued constantly to inhabit and cultivate the same to the time of his selling the same to Mr. Collins, about twelve or thirteen years ago; and that the said land has been constantly cultivated by the negroes of the said Collins since it was transferred to him. Sworn before the Board, January 8, 1815. The remarks on the claim reported under the next preceding No. are applicable to the one under consideration, which is understood to be embraced by the same concession from the French Government. This claim is, therefore, reported as a part of the Prairie Basse tract, which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 27. LUKE COLLINS claims four hundred superficial arpents on bayou Maria Crocant, by virtue of a requête certified by the commandant, 15th January, 1802. The notice of the claim is accompanied by said requête, in the name of the claimant, for said tract of about four hundred superficial arpents in the fork of said bayou, "making an angle bounded on one side by land of Luke Hollier, and on the other by the river Teche." To which requête is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, Martin Duralde, setting forth that, according to the testimony of the syndic and witnesses, the land petitioned for is vacant. It is believed that this tract was solicited on account of the wood and timber, and not to settle on, the petitioner being settled on another tract in the vicinity of the one claimed. No evidence to establish occupancy has been adduced, but the commissioners, viewing it as a claim which, in their opinion, would have been valid under the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation.

No. 28. JOHN COLLINS claims twenty-eight arpents and twelve toises of land in front by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of bayou Courtableau, in the county of Opelousas, by virtue of a purchase from Charles Vige, who purchased from John Gradnigo, who purchased from Louis Boisdore, who had it from Louis Pellerin. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a plat of survey by Carlos Trudeau, then Surveyor General under the Spanish Government, dated in May, 1782, giving twenty-eight arpents twelve toises front on said bayou. Three deeds of sale have also been filed with the notice. The first from Louis Boisdore to François Lemel, dated 18th May, 1772, for twenty-nine arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by Duplichin, and on the other by Langlois. In this deed the land is described as being the same tract which the seller had obtained from Louis Pellerin. Subjoined to the deed is a certificate by the then commandant, Chevalier de Clouet, dated 13th June, 1777, setting forth that said Lemel had conveyed the land to John Gradnigo, and that said certificate should serve the said Gradnigo as a title in form. 2d. A deed of sale from John Gradnigo to Charles Vige, dated 27th September, 1791, for twenty-three arpents and twelve toises front, to be taken from the road; and twenty-seven arpents and twelve toises front, to be taken from the land of Joseph Rosat, and go to that of Madame Vidrine, with the depth conformable to the plat by Mr. Trudeau. 3d. A deed of sale from said Vige to the claimant, John Collins, dated 16th December, 1803, for the lands as described in the deed last mentioned, but representing the land formerly owned by Rosat to be then the property of Pierre Jerome. By certificate marked B, 1,999, this claim has been confirmed to John Collins for so much of the land claimed as appeared to be embraced by his deed from Vige, leaving one arpent front by the depth from the bayou to the road, (which is about twenty arpents,) in the lower part of the original tract; the title of which has not been confirmed for want of a knowledge, by the commissioners, of the proper owner. The confirmation of the title for this part of the tract, about twenty superficial arpents, to the legal representatives of the deceased John Collins, or such other person as may produce the necessary evidence of title, is recommended on the ground of its being part of an original tract to which the title of the Government has been alienated.

No. 29. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims two hundred and sixty arpents of land by occupancy and cultivation, for twenty-one consecutive years preceding the year 1806. The notice is accompanied by the requête of the claimant, which was sanctioned by the competent Spanish authority on the 27th August, 1794, of which the following is a translation in substance: "To the Baron de Carondelet, Governor, &c. of the province of Louisiana: Daniel Callaghan, an inhabitant of this district, finding himself on his plantation with but little wood, supplicates you to grant him a portion of about six arpents of land in front, with the ordinary depth, situate in the cove of the bayou, in the quarter of the Bellevue, bounded on one side by the land of the petitioner, and circumscribed (enveloppé) on the other side by the said bayou." A note, without date, but in the hand-writing of the late register, (Mr. Thompson,) and signed by the claimant, is affixed to this notice, by which he begs leave so to amend it as to claim six hundred and forty acres of land by right of settlement, if so much should be found vacant, as he had not claimed any specific quantity under the Spanish Government. From the evidence of occupancy, the commissioners have issued their certificate, marked B, No. 1,142, in confirmation of the claim for six arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, making the bayou the boundary on the north and east. From a plat of survey made of the premises, by order of the principal deputy surveyor, and approved by him, it is found that one hundred and ninety-two and eighty-four hundredths acres of land have been included, and that no more, applicable to this claim, and uncumbered by titles of superior dignity, can be had on the south and west side of the bayou. James Stille, who purchased at sheriff's sale all the right of the said Callaghan to the tract of land in question, contends that the lines ought to cross the bayou Bellevue, and take in on the northeast side so much as will supply the deficiency on the opposite side, which is found to be about ten and one-fourth acres. His reasons for believing himself entitled to the completion of the quantity originally solicited by Callaghan will be found in the letter addressed to the commissioners, in the following words: "To the commissioners of land claims of the western district of Louisiana: Gentlemen—It is known to you, from papers which have been before you, that the late Daniel Callaghan, deceased, during the time of the Spanish Government in this country, presented to the proper Spanish officer a requête for a tract of six arpents by forty of land, in the quarter of Bellevue, in the parish of St. Landry, the title to this land, at present, and for a considerable time back, being in me; and having learned that you are about making and forwarding to the General Government your report of claims of this district, I deem it a fit time to address a few observations to you on the subject of this my claim. To confirm this claim, in part, you have not hesitated, but entertain doubts as to the propriety of confirming it in its full extent. Your doubts are grounded on the terms of the requête, which, though it calls for six arpents front by forty deep, names the bayou which runs on the north, at the beginning, commonly known by the name of Church Bayou, as the north boundary. To this I answer, that it may have been the only data the petitioner had for a north boundary, being ignorant whether the lands on that side, on which it would butt, were vacant or otherwise, or, if owned by individuals, who they were, and confidently believing at the same time, as every person must, that it was not vitally essential to the validity of his title that all and every part of that, or of any or either of the other boundaries, should be precisely set forth, but it is most likely it was named from an impression that the quantity of land asked for would be found without its being necessary to cross the bayou. Be this as it may, the basis—the most material part of the petition, viz: that it should contain six by forty arpents, was accorded. It surely would not be pretended, if A buy a piece of land of B, of six by forty arpents, which is stated in the conveyance to be bounded on the north by C and D, and on a further investigation it should be found that the same land is bounded not only by C and D, but also by E, F, and G, that A should not be entitled to the last mentioned part, but should stop at land of C and D, even though it fell far short of his quantity. The two cases I maintain are strictly parallel; it is the more reasonable that this claim should be confirmed in its full extent, as the lands embraced in it were, at the time of the date of the requête, and still are, vacant. I cannot help flattering myself, gentlemen, that, on a due consideration of all the circumstances of this claim, you will no longer entertain any doubts as to the reason and justness of it, and that you will act on it accordingly, so that I may be spared the trouble and expense of having the question tried by a court at law. I am, gentlemen, respectfully, your obedient servant, JAMES STILLE. BELLEVUE, February 16, 1814." In these reasons, conclusions appear to be drawn from premises not applicable to the case under consideration. In the requête of Callaghan, he has solicited about six arpents of front of land, by the ordinary depth, in the cove of the bayou, in the quarter of Bellevue, bounded on one side by the land of the petitioner, (understood to be the tract granted to Thomas Prisme,) and circumscribed on the other side by the said bayou. The commissioners in this case, as they have uniformly done in all similar cases, have decided that the claimant could only be entitled to the land in the situation in which it was solicited, and could not be permitted to make up the deficiencies arising from a part of the land being occupied by more ancient titles, by taking land in different situations from that in which it had been solicited. It does not appear, from the requête, that the original claimant contemplated a concession of any land on the northeast side of the bayou. The commissioners, therefore, decide that the claim now set up by the successor of Callaghan ought not to be confirmed, and report it accordingly. The pretensions of Callaghan to six hundred and forty acres of land, as suggested in the proposal to amend the notice of his claim, must be rejected, on the ground that, in limiting the donation, by right of settlement, to a quantity "not exceeding six hundred and forty acres," the intentions of Congress to confine such claims to the quantities found within their acknowledged and ascertained boundaries, are strongly implied.

No. 30. MARTIN DONATTO claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, in the Prairie Basse, and more, if Marcantel, from whom he purchased, has a right to more. The notice is accompanied by a deed of sale, from François Marcantel to Cam, a free mulatto, dated 28th November, 1785, for all his pretensions in land, and buildings, and fencing, at the Prairie Basse, except three arpents front, by the ordinary depth, belonging to François Marcantel, Jun., by donation, adjoining the land of Laurille, a man of color. Another deed, from François Marcantel, Sen., to Cam, dated 16th January, 1790, for three arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by Augustine Soileau's land, and, on the other, by that of Larouille. Also a deed of sale, from Augustin Soileau to Cam, dated 7th August, 1804, for three arpents front, by such depth as may be found proceeding from a purchase made from François Marcantel, bounded on one side by the seller, and, on the other, by the purchaser. Also a deed of sale, from Antoine Cam, alias Fusilier, a free mulatto, to Martin Donatto, 22d January, 1806, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, "purchased by halves," from François Marcantel and Augustin Soileau.

The claimant, relying on the validity of his claim being established by the documents filed, has not, it is believed, thought it necessary to adduce testimony to establish occupancy. The deeds of conveyance, all of which appear to have been executed before the proper officers, establish that the title to the land in question had been alienated by the Spanish Government, and held as private property more than eighteen years before the change of Government; and, although the conveyance from the original grantee has not been produced, it is understood to be derived from a complete patent to Louis Pellerin, referred to in the claim of Theophilus Collins, and others, reported under No. 25. The commissioners are, therefore, of opinion that this claim is a valid one, and ought to be confirmed.

No. 31. MARTIN DONATTO claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents in the Prairie Basse, and so much more as Marcantel, who formerly held it, had a right to. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the following deeds of conveyance, arranged according to their dates:

1st. Deed of sale of François Marcantel to the Widow Bordelou, dated 29th April, 1778, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents in Prairie Basse, bounded on one side by Joseph Mayeux, and on the other to the seller, subject to the conditions of the first sale of the succession of Courtableau.

2d. Sale, Widow Bordelou to Florentine Poirer, dated 2d January, 1783, for six arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, in Prairie Basse, adjoining on one side to Joseph Mayeux, and on the other to J. Ricard.

3d. Sale from Augustin Soileau to Edward Marshall, dated 28th July, 1784, for three arpents in front, by forty in depth, bounded on one side by Joseph Pickard, and on the other by Florentine Poirer, from whom these three arpents proceed, by purchase from the Widow Bordelou.

4th. Sale from Edward Marshall to William Lett, dated 26th July, 1787, for three arpents front, by forty in depth, bounded on one side by Joseph Pickard, and on the other by Florentine Poirer.

5th. Sale from William Lett to John Pierre Touriac, dated 1st August, 1787, for three arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents; the same boundaries mentioned as in the last noted deed.

6th. Sale from Julis Marcantel, wife of Michel Voible, to John Pierre Touriac, dated 8th September, 1787, for three arpents in front, by forty in depth, being part of four arpents front, which she received from her father Marcantel, bounded on one side by land purchased from Marshall by Touriac, and on the other by the residue of the four arpents which the seller retains.

7th. Sale from John Pierre Touriac and wife to Theophilus Collins, dated 29th December, 1792, for six arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by Messrs. Collins, and on the other by Cam, a free mulatto.

8th. Sale from Theophilus Collins to Joseph Frozard, dated 29th December, 1799, for six arpents front, the same that he bought from John Pierre Touriac and wife, by deed bearing date 29th December, 1792.

9th. Sale by the commandant Honoré de la Chaise, dated 12th March, 1804, of a tract of land, the property of Joseph Frozard, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at the Prairie Basse, bounded on one side by Luke Collins, Sen., and on the other by Cam, a free man of color, adjudged to Martin Donatto, the claimant.

This claim is within the grant of the Prairie Basse tract, and reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed. The remarks in the claim of Theophilus Collins and others, reported under No. 25, to which the Board refers, are applicable to this.

No. 32. ETIENNE D'AIGLE claims 406.20 acres on Plaquemine Brulé, by virtue of settlement. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice. Joseph d'Aigle, before the Board the 3d January, 1812, hath deposed, "that eight years from August last, the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated by the claimant, and to the present time." On the 6th April, 1813, the claimant presented a written permission to establish himself on the land of His Majesty, on the west side of the bayou Plaquemine Brulé. This permission bears date 4th July, 1801, and is signed "Honoré de la Chaise, intérim." The late date at which this document is produced, and its differing in point of form from the proceedings under the Spanish Government, at the time of its date, induce the commissioners to regard it not as a legal permission. The claim must, therefore, rest on the settlement without permission, which could only be valid from occupancy three consecutive years previous to the change of Government. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 33. WILLIAM DARBY claims two arpents front, by the ordinary depth, say eighty superficial arpents, by purchase from Albert Bousergent, and said to be part of a tract granted to Mr. Lemorandier. The notice is unaccompanied by any document, except an informal deed of sale from said Bousergent to the claimant, dated 20th April, 1806. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 34. HATCH DENT claims eighty-four arpents square of land, say seven thousand and fifty-six superficial arpents, on lake Ruelqueshoe, by virtue of a purchase from Charles M. Audibert, who purchased from Catharine Le Bleue, who purchased from Lacacina, an Indian chief, of the Attakapas tribe. An informal bill of sale from the said Lacacina to the said Catharine Le Bleue, dated 1st June, 1799, passed before private witnesses, and not sanctioned by any public officer, is filed in this claim, on the back of which bill of sale, and under date the 1st January, 1805, is an assignment of the title, by said Catharine, with the consent of her husband, Charles Sallier, to Charles Marie Audibert. A deed of sale from Charles M. Audibert to the claimant, dated in New Orleans, 4th May, 1805, passed before Henry Brown, notary public, is likewise filed in the claim, and no other document of title. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced. This falls within the fourth class of claims held under Indians, as described in No. 1, of Opelousas reports; and, in the opinion of the Board of Commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 35. JOSEPH DOUCET claims two hundred acres on Plaquemine Brulé, under the settlement of his brother Anselm Doucet. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 36. MARTIN DURALDE claims a tract of land at the back of Mr. Lejune's land, adjoining the land of Antoine Lambert, Madame Carron, and other land of the claimant, quantity not ascertained. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said tract, without date, and an order of survey by Governor Miro, dated 23d June, 1783. No proof of occupancy has been adduced. The commissioners, however, viewing it as a claim which, in their opinion, would have been valid under the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation.

No. 37. BAPTISTE DEBROCA, free negro, claims 203.07 acres on bayou Mallet, by virtue of a purchase from Madame Donatto Bello, to whom the land is said to have been granted by the Spanish Government. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from said Madame Bello to the claimant, dated 26th July, 1804, and a plat of survey, dated in 1806. No proof to establish occupancy having been adduced, and the documents of title not being sufficient to establish the fact that the land had been conceded to the said widow Bello by the Spanish Government, the commissioners report it as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 38. THE HEIRS OF WILLIAM ELLIS claim six hundred and twenty-five acres on the bayou Maria Oroquant, by virtue of an order of survey in favor of the said William Ellis, which order of survey bears date 20th June, 1781, and filed with the notice of the claim. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1816, is also filed. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced, and it is understood that the same tract is held and claimed under an order of survey to Charles Barré, of subsequent date, which has been confirmed to Joseph Andrus by the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 1,203. Keeping out of view the question of right between the contending claimants, which the commissioners are not authorized to decide, the confirmation of the claim, under consideration, is recommended on the ground of its being such a one as would, in the opinion of the Board, have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 39. MARGARET FISHER claims six hundred and forty acres on Beaver bayou, by virtue of settlement. A plat of survey, dated 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice. John Corkran and Denis McDaniel, on the 12th March, 1807, have deposed, "that the deponents, at the instance of the claimant, assisted in raising a cabin on the said land, in the month of October or November, 1803, and that the land was not settled until the spring following." The deponents further say, that the claimant was, at that time, over the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family. No permission to establish this land has been produced, and the settlement having been made since the change of Government, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 40. JOHN TRENCHBOIS claims two arpents front on the west, and one arpent front on the east side of the bayou Courtableau, with the depth of forty arpents, on each side of said bayou, say one hundred and twenty superficial arpents, by virtue of a purchase from Louis Rideau and the widow of Michel Brignac, his wife, and said to be part of a tract granted to Michel Brignac. The deed of conveyance from said Rideau and wife to the claimant, dated 26th March, 1788, is the only document filed with the notice. Although the original title, under which this claim is held, has not been produced, and no evidence offered to establish occupancy, the early date of the sale, passed before competent authority, leaves no doubt in the minds of the commissioners of the validity of the claim, which is, therefore, recommended for confirmation.

No. 41. BRADLEY GARDINER claims six hundred and forty acres on the bayou Lacasena, by virtue of settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 42. BRADLEY GARDINER claims six hundred and forty acres on the bayou Lacasena, by virtue of settlement. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and the claim, therefore, is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 43. JOHN W. GURLEY, of New Orleans, claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Ouakche, bounded on one side by the land of Madame Lemel, by virtue of a purchase from John Joy, who is said to have purchased from Pelega Daupeine. The deed of conveyance from John Joy to the claimant, dated 19th August, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of the claim. No proof to establish occupancy has been offered, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 44. JOSHUA GARRET claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Nezpique, by virtue of his petition, sanctioned by the commandant under the Spanish Government. The notice of the claim is accompanied by said petition, bearing date the 26th October, 1789, to which is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, Forestall, dated 27th October, of the same year, setting forth that the land solicited was vacant. The land being solicited for the purpose of establishing a vacherie, and it being usual, under the Spanish Government, to concede tracts of that extent for these purposes, in such parts of the country as were esteemed of little value, on account of marshes, or sterility of soil, the commissioners are induced to recommend the confirmation of the claim.

No. 45. THE WIDOW AND HEIRS OF MR. LE BRAY DE GONOR claim twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, in Cole's cove, at a place called the Point of Pines, by virtue of an order of survey, dated 11th June, 1787, in favor of the said Le Bray de Gonor. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the said Gonor, for said land, to establish a vacherie. Bounded on one side by the land of Antoine Blanc, and on the other by the domain of the King, dated 3d January, 1787, and certified by the commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, the 5th of the same month and year, to which is subjoined the order of survey, in the usual form, by Governor Miro, dated in New Orleans, the 11th June, 1787, as above mentioned. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1810, is likewise filed.

Joseph Andrus, Esq., aged fifty-four years, before the Board the 28th December, 1813, hath deposed, "that he is well acquainted with the claimants, and was also acquainted with the late Mr. Gonor in his life-time; that he is also perfectly acquainted with the situation of the land, which the deponent has reason to believe has never been occupied nor cultivated by the said Mr. Gonor in his life-time, nor any person, for the use of his heirs, since his death. The deponent further saith, that, to his knowledge, the said Mr. Gonor died in the year 1788, leaving a widow and four minor children, the eldest of which, he supposes, was not exceeding seven or eight years of age at the death of their father, who, the deponent has been informed, and has reason to believe, was drowned during his minority; that, in about two years after the death of her husband, the widow, finding it not convenient to reside in Opelousas, removed, with her family of children, to New Orleans. The deponent has no knowledge of the said Mr. Gonor having had any other concession for land from the Spanish Government, and believes he never had."

This is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, would have been valid under the former Government of Louisiana, and ought to be confirmed by the present.

No. 46. JOHN GRADNIGO claims thirty arpents, by the depth of forty, say one thousand and two hundred arpents, at the back of his land, fronting on the bayou Courtableau, by virtue of an order of survey in his favor, dated 7th July, 1791. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said land, setting forth that his other land was without cypress to supply the use he had for cypress timber on his farm, on which account he solicits this tract. Subjoined to this petition is the certificate of the commandant, Forestall, setting forth the vacancy of the land, which certificate is followed by the order of survey by Governor Miro, dated, as above mentioned, on the 7th July, 1791. The commissioners are of opinion that this claim would have been valid under the Spanish Government, and, therefore, recommend its confirmation.

No. 47. JOHN GRADNIGO claims twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at the gully of Hickory Point, (des Noyers,) by purchase from Charles Vige, who held it under an order of survey in favor of Charles Vige, for twenty arpents front of land at said place, running towards the Indian village, and fronting to the island called "Langlois," dated 20th March, 1790. The deed of sale from Vige to the claimant, dated ———, and a plat of survey by Portion, dated in 1806, are likewise filed in the claim.

Bello Donatto, before the Board the 6th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1793, he passed through the land claimed, when the son and hands of John Gradnigo were cutting rails and timber on the said land, for the use of the said plantation at the island, and that they have ever since cut wood and timber on the said land, for the use of the said plantation."

This claim is reported on account of its not having been inhabited and cultivated as required by the acts of Congress; nevertheless, the commissioners, believing it to be a valid claim under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation.

No. 48. DAVID GUIDERY and JOHN MOUTON claim seventy arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of the river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from Celestine Le Tortue, chief of the Attakapas Indians. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the deed of sale from said Indian chief to the claimants for said land, bounded on one side by the bayou Hanhecha, and on the other to the land reserved by the Indians between the land of François Stely, and that of the purchasers. Deed passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant for the French Government, 29 December, 1803. In this claim no evidence has been adduced to show that the Indians were occupying the land at the time of their sale, nor could the sale have received the sanction of any Governor of Louisiana, representing the Spanish Government, because it was made subsequently to the transfer of the sovereignty to the United States. The claim, therefore, falls within the fourth class of Indian sales, as designated in the report, No. 1, unattended with any circumstance known to the commissioners which should entitle it to confirmation, and is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 49. DAVID GUIDERY and JOHN MOUTON claim fifty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from Celestine, an Indian chief, acting for one of his men, named Potate. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the deed of sale from Celestine Le Tortue, chief of the Attakapas Indians, acting for one of his men, named Potate, to the claimants, for fifty arpents on the west side of the river Nementou, with the depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by John Bte. Mouton, and on the other to the bayou Schoupique, the old village being in the centre of the fifty arpents. Sale passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant under the French Government, the 29th December, 1803. John Bte. Chiason, aged about fifty years, before the Board, the 15th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that, when he was about fourteen or fifteen years of age, he was on the land claimed, when the Indians resided there in a village which he believes they had inhabited for many years previous to that time; that, about twenty-five years ago, he went to the said village with Samuel Levi Wells, who made the Indians proposals for the purchase of their land, when they refused to sell, and that the said Indians continued to inhabit the said village, and cultivate a part of the land within the limits of their claim, to the time of their having sold to the claimants." The purchase in this case appears to have been for lands which the Indians were occupying at the date of their sale. It comes within the third class, reported No. 1. The claimants, therefore, in consequence of having extinguished the kind of title which the Indians enjoyed, are, in the opinion of the commissioners, entitled to a confirmation of their claim to so much of the land as would fully indemnify them for the consideration given for it, which, according to the deed, is one hundred dollars.

No. 50. LOUIS GUILLORY claims thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the woods of the bayou Chicot, by virtue of a requête sanctioned by the commandant. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said tract of land to establish a vacherie, dated 25th September, 1791, and certified by the commandant, Forstall, on the 27th of the same month. This claim is similarly situated with that of Joshua Garret's, reported under No. 44, and the confirmation recommended for the reasons therein given.

No. 51. JOSEPH GUILLORY, free man of color, claims five arpents front, by the depth of eighty arpents, at a place called Nid d'Aigle, by virtue of a purchase from the widow Donatto Bello, who is said to have held it as a part of a larger tract to which she had a title. The deed of sale from the said widow to the claimant, dated 26th July, 1804, is the only evidence of title adduced in support of the claim. The commissioners are, therefore, under the necessity of reporting it as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 52. SETH HANCHETT claims six hundred and forty acres of land by virtue of settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. John Bte. David, before the Board, in November, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land in question lies adjoining a tract of land now occupied by Mr. De Bayou; that the claimant, whilst residing adjoining the land in question, cultivated a part thereof, and took his fire-wood and timber therefrom, sixteen or seventeen years ago, and in that manner continued to occupy the said land, without intermission, to the year 1803, and since." The claimant, holding other land under the Spanish Government, and never having resided on the claim under consideration, could not, in the opinion of the Board, acquire a title in the land by the use made of it as set forth by the witness. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 53. THOMAS and FRANCOIS HUFFPOWER claim twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Tortue, by virtue of an order of survey, dated 7th July, 1786. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the order of survey, dated as above, in favor of Huffpower's sons (understood to be the above claimants) for said tract of land, bounded on one side by the land of Huffpower, and on the other by vacant land. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is likewise filed; no proof to establish occupancy has been adduced. Nevertheless, the commissioners, being of opinion that it would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation according to the tenor of the said order of survey.

No. 54. THOMAS HUFFPOWER claims six hundred and forty acres on bayou Tortue, by virtue of settlement. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1805, is the only document of title filed with the notice. Peter Stouts, before the Board, the 7th of February, 1813, hath deposed, "that the claimant, Thomas Huffpower, commenced improving the land upwards of thirteen years ago, counting from the 15th day of the ensuing month of March; the said claimant, Thomas Huffpower, removed his family on the land, where he has continued to reside and cultivate the same ever since, except the last four years, during which last four years it has been occupied for his benefit, the said claimant having removed on the same again about five weeks ago." The claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed. The claimant does not show any title from the former Government, and the order of survey under which he claims, conjointly with his brother in another tract of land, bars, by express provisions of an act of Congress, his claim to this.

No. 55. HENRY HARGROIDER claims nine arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the waters of the bayou Petit Pass, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government to Andrew Boudreau, of which this is a part. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is believed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate, B, No. 1,566. This is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 56. HENRY HEBERT claims four hundred arpents on bayou Plaquemine Brulé, by virtue of a purchase from William Norris, who is said to have purchased it from the Indians. The deed of sale from said Norris to the claimant, dated 21st May, 1804, with a plat of survey, dated in 1806, are the only documents filed with the notice. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced; the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 57. FRANCOIS HERAULT claims twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on Plaquemine Brulé, by purchase from Antoine Langlois, the grantee. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 58. MICHAEL IMMEL claims twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the waters of the bayou Plaquemine Brulé, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government to the claimant, by Governor Miro, dated 4th March, 1780. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim is, on that account, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 59. INHABITANTS OF BELLEVUE claim a tract of woodland on the waters of Vermilion river, by virtue of a title from the Spanish Government, of which the following is a translation, the original of which is filed in the claim:

MARCH 10, 1797.

"Louis Levergne, Charles Comeau, Joseph Bourque, Silvire Sonnier, and Cyril Thibadeau, inhabitants of Bellevue, in the post of Opelousas, representing all the inhabitants in said quarter, with due respect present themselves before your lordship, and say, that they are so situated by the loss of their suit with Mr. Duplessis, that they are likely to be under the necessity of abandoning their farms, for want of cypress, and other wood necessary for their culture; but as there is another swamp adjoining to that, which cannot be of any detriment to others, and belonging to His Majesty, of about forty or fifty arpents, they humbly beg of your lordship to order that the commandant, Mr. Duralde, should put them in possession of the same."

NEW ORLEANS, March 13, 1797.

The commandant, or the deputy surveyor of the post of Opelousas, shall lay out and mark the forty or fifty arpents of swamp solicited for the use in common of all and every one of the inhabitants of the quarter of district of Bellevue, being ordered under the express conditions that said swamp shall never be granted to any one, to avoid the disputes and process that originated for the first forty arpents, which gave birth to the suit between Duplessis and those inhabitants; and the survey made, it shall be remitted to me, that I may give the title in form.

BARON DE CARONDELET, Regdo. gratis.

Although the concession to the inhabitants of Bellevue is much less explicit than that of a subsequent date to all the inhabitants of the county of Opelousas, which embraces the quarter called Bellevue, the commissioners are of opinion that the concession in question can only be construed to confer on the said inhabitants a right in common to cut and use the cypress, and other timber on the swamp land, within the extent of the forty or fifty arpents front described in the requête to which the concession is subjoined. The petitioners represent that they are induced, from want of wood and timber for the use of their plantations, to solicit the concession, and although the decree of the Governor contains an engagement to give the title in form, on the return of the survey, it is believed, from the proviso contained in the same decree, "that the said swamp shall never be granted to any one," it was intended to reserve to the crown of Spain the fee simple in the soil. The commissioners believing, as above premised, that the claimants, to wit, the inhabitants of the quarter called Bellevue, would have enjoyed in common, under the Spanish Government, the privilege of cutting and taking for the use of their plantations the wood and timber on the tract of land in question, are of opinion that the said inhabitants ought, by the Government of the United States, to be confirmed in that privilege so far as it can be done without a relinquishment of the right of soil. No survey of the land was made whilst Louisiana continued to be a province of Spain: the omission, however, may not be imputable to remissness of duty on the part of the claimants. From a plat returned by William Darby, a deputy surveyor under the Government of the United States, dated November 12, 1806, it appears that about one thousand three hundred and seventeen acres have been embraced by the survey of the land claimed under the above concession. This is less by about thirty-seven acres than the area that would be produced by forty arpents square. The survey does not appear to have been made strictly in conformity with the concession. The lines appear to have been run in such a manner as to avoid interferences with adjoining private claims; but beside taking in the swamp land, a portion of high arable land is understood to have been included, though not represented in the plat. The commissioners wish to be distinctly understood, that how much soever the swamp land may be deficient of the quantity petitioned for, the privilege to which they think the claimants entitled must be confirmed to the use of the timber growing on the land, which may properly be denominated swamp, and cannot, by any fair construction of the title, be extended to timber growing on adjacent arable land.

No. 60. JOHN JOY claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Nahche, by purchase from the heirs of Madame Percine Demosellier, to whom it is said to have been conceded by the French Government, being part of eighty arpents front, by said depth, bounded on one side by land of one Lemell, and on the other by vacant land. The deed of sale from Pelage Dapeine to the claimant for eighty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by Madame Lemell, and on the other by vacant land, passed before Narcissus Broutin, notary public of New Orleans, August 13, 1807, is the only document of title accompanying the notice of the claim. Joseph Chretien, before the Board, September 29, 1807, hath deposed, "that a man by the name of Sansaucy, who had been a soldier in the army, resided on the bayou Ouaxey about forty years ago; that about that time the deponent heard the said Sansaucy mention that he had recommended it to the officer, under whom he had formerly served, Monsieur Demissillier, to procure a grant of land at or near that place; and this deponent understood that the said Monsieur Demissillier did obtain a grant lying from the mouth of the bayou Ouaxey, down the bayou Courtableau, on the northeast side of the said bayou, and that the said land was generally said to be the property of the said Monsieur Demissillier. This deponent never saw any grant or any title paper for the said land, neither does he know that it was ever surveyed or settled." The claimant having failed to produce any document of title from the French or Spanish Governments, and the evidence not having established the occupancy of the land as required by the acts of Congress, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim ought not to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 61. GEORGE KING claims two hundred and fifty-three and ninety one-hundredths acres, in the Prairie Basse, fronting on the bayou del Puente, being part of the land claimed under Pellerin. A deed of conveyance from Luke Collins to claimant, dated March 15, 1806, with a plat of survey, dated in 1806, are filed with the notice of the claim. It will be seen, by reference to the concession in the claim of Theophilus Collins and others, reported No. 25, that this must be embraced by said concession, and, therefore, ought to be confirmed.

No. 62. GEORGE KING claims two hundred and nine arpents in the Prairie Basse, by purchase from Luke Collins, being part of a grant to Pellerin, reported under No. 25 of this report. The deed of sale from said Collins to the claimant, dated February 12, 1808, is the only document accompanying the notice. This claim is also within Pellerin's grant, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 63. JOSEPH LABAUM, JACQUES PATIN, LUKE HOLLIER, and JACQUES ROMAN claim twenty-four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the bayou Teche, opposite the Petit Bois, by virtue of a title of which a copy certified by John W. Gurley, register of the eastern district, is filed with the notice, and which is, in substance, as follows:

The petition of the above named persons, dated November 1, 1779, soliciting twenty-four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents of swamp on the north side of bayou Teche, fronting the plantation of the petitioners, and setting forth that their place of residence being at the prairie of the Petit Bois, they were totally without timber or wood necessary for the use of their farms. Order of survey by Governor Galvez, dated March 23, 1779, subjoined to the petition, by which the commandant is ordered to put the parties in possession of the land solicited: following the order of survey, and under date June 6, 1779, is the certificate of the commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, setting forth that he had, according to the decree of the Governor, given full possession to the petitioners, as well as to all the other inhabitants of the prairie of the Petit Bois, of the twenty-four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents of the woods and swamp mentioned in the petition, where he had fixed the boundaries. The undersigned commissioners are of opinion, that the concession to the four above named claimants would have been valid, under the Spanish Government, and, therefore, recommend the confirmation to the legal representatives of the said claimants as a common property, conformably to the boundaries established by the Spanish commandant in putting the parties in possession.

No. 64. PHILIP AUGUSTE DE LA CHAISE claims twenty-five arpents front of land on the river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from Celestine, an Indian chief of the Attakapas tribe. The deed of sale from said Indian to the claimant, dated December 29, 1804, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, father of the claimant, acting as civil commandant of Opelousas, is filed with the notice of the claim. The land to be on the right bank of the said river, above the village which was inhabited by the Indians, and commencing at a large gully which is near the village, and bounded on the other side by the claim of John Mouton; price thirty dollars, fifteen in cash paid down, and the other fifteen to be paid in April ensuing. No proof to establish the occupancy has been adduced, and the sale not ratified. It comes within the fourth class of Indian purchases, reported No. 1, and, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 65. MICHEL LEGER claims nine or ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from Celestine, an Indian chief of the Attakapas tribe. The deed of sale for said tract, bounded on one side by the land of Martine Laudrigue, and on the other to Auguste Nezet, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant under the Government of the United States, April 16, 1804, is the only document filed with the notice of the claim; price, paid by the purchaser, forty dollars. This claim also comes within the fourth class of Indian purchases, as reported under No. 1, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 66. DAVID LESLEY claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Cocodre, or Crocodile, by virtue of a requête certified by the commandant. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the requête of the commandant for said land, the road crossing the said bayou to be in the centre of the front of the tract; which requête is certified by the commandant, Martin Duralde, September 10, 1803, setting forth that the land solicited was of the domain of the King. Certificates by John Hay and Simon Burney, who are understood to be residents of the neighborhood, and one by Godfroy Kreigen, syndic, setting forth the vacancy of the land, are also filed in the claim, with one from Luke Collins, surveyor of the post, dated in October, 1803, representing that the land might be conceded without prejudice. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1805, is likewise filed. The commissioners being of opinion that this would have been a valid claim, under the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 67. JOSEPH LANDRY claims thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, in the Prairie Faquetaike, by virtue of a requête sanctioned by the commandant, and by settlement on said land, made about the year 1800. The notice is accompanied by the requête of the claimant, dated 9th of September, 1801, setting forth the number of his family, (ten children,) and wanting pasture for his stock, &c., prays that the land may be conceded to him at the woods of the bayou Mallet, to be bounded on one side by land of Michel Prudhomme, and on the other by vacant land. Subjoined to said petition is the certificate of the commandant, Martin Duralde, in the usual form, and accompanied by the certificate of Michel Prudhomme, describing the situation of the land, and its being of the domain of the King; also, one from Michel Carrier, syndic, to the same purport, dated in December, 1800; and, likewise, one from Luke Collins, surveyor of the post, dated the 1st of January, 1801. Andre Martin, the 4th of October, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was cultivated and inhabited on, and previous to, the 20th day of December, 1803." Under the act of Congress allowing six hundred and forty acres to settlers, the claimant would be entitled to that quantity of the land claimed, if he had not held other land from the former Government of Louisiana; but holding another tract conceded to him by the Spanish Government, renders the reporting of this claim necessary. The commissioners, however, being of opinion that this would have been a valid claim, according to the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which ought to be confirmed.

No. 68. SARAH LACOMB claims six hundred and forty acres on the waters of bayou Mallet, by virtue of settlement. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is, on that account, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 69. MICHEL LEGER claims six hundred and seventy-seven acres of land on bayou Queue de Tortue, by virtue of settlement by permission. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a plat of survey dated in 1806, and by no other document. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 70. SARAH LACOMB claims five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at Plaquemine Brulé, by virtue of permission from Captain John Bowyer, then commandant of Opelousas, which permission, in writing, is said to be lost. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 71. JACQUES and DENNIS LEMEL claim one hundred and sixty-nine and thirty-six one-hundredths acres on the bayous Courtableau and Carron, by virtue of a purchase at the sale of their father's estate. A plat of survey, dated in 1808, is the only document filed with the notice of the claim. It is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 72. THE REPRESENTATIVES OF ELEANOR LEONARD, deceased, claim two hundred arpents of land, by virtue of a purchase from Joseph Roy, being part of the grant to Pellerin, in the Prairie Basse. The notice is accompanied by the deed of sale from Joseph Roy to the claimant, dated 16th September, 1793, and an informal transfer from Noel Roy to Joseph Roy, dated 29th November, 1780, also, a plat of survey dated in 1806. This claim is derived from Pellerin's grant for the Prairie Basse tract; and for the reasons set forth in the claim of Theophilus Collins and others, reported under No. 25, ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed.

No. 73. JOHN MOUTON (nephew) claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the right bank of the river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from Jacob, an Indian, of Attakapas. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from said Indian, who sells, by the consent of his chief, forty arpents front, by the depth of forty, situate thirty arpents from the village, beginning at an oak marked 50, and bounded below by Ticho, where there is another tree marked 50. Deed of sale passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant of the French Government, the 29th December, 1803; price one hundred dollars. No evidence being adduced to establish occupancy of the land in this claim, and the sale not having been ratified, the claim comes within the fourth class of Indian purchases, as reported under No. 1, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 74. CATHARINE RETER, widow of George Miller, claims six arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, on bayou Maria Croquent, by virtue of a purchase made by her deceased husband, at the sale of the estate of Catharine Pipe, deceased. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the deed of sale passed as above mentioned, at the sale of the estate of Pipe, dated 7th July, 1780. The sale having been passed in a regular manner by the commandant at so early a date, no doubt is entertained of the validity of the title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 75. WALTER McMORRIS claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of bayou Chicot, by virtue of the requête of Jesse Kirkland, sanctioned by the commandant. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the said requête, certified by the commandant, 2d April, 1789, bounded at the time petitioned, on one side by the land of John Wells, and on the other by vacant land. A deed of sale from Denis Le Barge to the claimant, dated 27th March, 1804, and a plat of survey, dated in 1806, by an authorized surveyor, is also filed. Presuming the title to be vested in the present claimant, though that fact is not established by the documents filed in the claim, and being of opinion that the claim would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, it is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought to be confirmed.

No. 76. WILLIAM MCKOY claims five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Mallet, by virtue of the following transfers, which are filed with the notice of the claim: 1st. Deed of sale from Michel Carrier to the claimant, dated 1st of April, 1806, for two arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on the southeast side by land of the seller, and by that of Michel Levergne on that of the other side. 2d. Deed of sale from Joachim Tissier to Gabriel Ledean, dated 6th June, 1794, for three arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by Michel Carrier, and on the other by Baptiste Tisseneau; at the foot of which transfer, and on the same paper, is a transfer of the title of the same tract of land from Gabriel to Michel Levergne, dated 12th October, 1797; and on the back of the same paper, is a transfer from the said Ledean to the claimant, for said three arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, 18th February, 1806. A plat of survey embracing the whole claim of five arpents front by the depth of forty, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is also filed with the notice. The claimant having failed to adduce any evidence to establish occupancy, or that the land had been conceded by the former Government, and all of the deeds of sale having been passed before private witnesses, and not appearing to have been certified or recorded by any public officer, the commissioners are under the necessity of reporting the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 77. JOHN MASH claims two hundred and thirty-five and seventy-eight one-hundredths acres in the Prairie Grand Couteau, by virtue of settlement. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice of the claim. Robert Burleigh, before the Board, the 6th February, 1808, hath deposed, "that the tract of land claimed was settled about twenty-seven years ago by the deponent, and that it has been inhabited and cultivated by some person claiming under him, for fifteen years past; that, when the said deponent first settled upon the land, he supposed his improvements to have been made on a tract of land, for which he has since obtained an order of survey; but that tract having been lately surveyed, it is found that no part of the improvements are on it, and that he has reason to believe that all those who have since resided upon the land were impressed with the opinion that they were living on the tract claimed by the order of survey. For the purpose of including the improvements, and the land which was supposed to have been embraced, by the order of survey, the commissioners recommend the confirmation of the claim, in part, in the form represented by the plat of survey filed with the notice, leaving out only that part of the tract claimed, which lies at the southeast end of John Taylor's land, which part shall be taken off by a line to be run from the southeast corner of the said Taylor's survey, on a course of south, 51° 30' east, until it intersects the back line of the claim under consideration, which back line, according to the plat filed, runs south, 74° 15' west.

No. 78. DENNIS McDANIEL claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the waters of bayou Chicot, and near the waters of bayou Cane, by virtue of settlement. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a certificate by Samuel Reed, of which the date is supposed to have been worn off, setting forth that the said Reed had taken to himself the vacant land on the left of the point of Mr. Forstall, and on the right of a large gully. Following the certificate on the same paper, is a certificate by Godfroy Krieger, syndic, dated 12th ———, 1803, (the name of the month not legible,) setting forth that he knew of no claim for the land between the vacheries of Mr. Forstall and Mr. Auguste Fontenott, in the Prairie Mamou. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1805, is also filed. Simon Burney, 27th October, 1806, before the Board, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1802, the claimant, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, built a cabin, and established a vacherie on the said land; that, in the month of October, in the following year, he removed thereon with his family, and planted a nursery, and has continued to reside there, and cultivate the same ever since." William Thomas, on the same day, hath deposed, "that, in the month of October, 1803, the claimant, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, was residing upon the land claimed; but this deponent does not recollect to have seen any part of it in cultivation; that the claimant has resided on and cultivated the same ever since; that the house of the claimant, when this deponent was there, in the year 1803, appeared to have been built for several years." John McDaniel, 21st February, 1809, hath deposed, "that the claimant commenced an improvement late in the year 1800; that, in the year 1801, he built a cabin, and, in the year 1802, Joseph Gomez removed into the cabin; that, during the same year, he, Gomez, removed from the land, and the next year the claimant removed on the land; that Gomez was settled on the same tract of land by this deponent, for the purpose of keeping his and the claimant's stock of cattle." Bridget Rone, before the Board, the 28th October, 1811, hath deposed, "that, about the month of October, 1803, the claimant removed to the land claimed, and had a variety of vegetables in cultivation, and was actually inhabiting the same on the 20th December, 1803. The deponent further saith, that the land had been inhabited and cultivated the year before by a man of the name of Joseph Gomez." It appearing from the evidence, that the claimant, with his family, has been residing on, and cultivating the land in question for several years previous to the change of Government, and the commissioners not knowing of any concession to him from the former Government of Louisiana, the confirmation of this claim is recommended, though not provided for, by any act of Congress.

No. 79. PETER McDANIEL claims five hundred and seven and fifty-four one-hundredths acres in Prairie Mamou, by virtue of settlement by permission. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the requête of the claimant, dated 9th November, 1802, for fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents in Prairie Mamou, on the west side of the east branch of bayou Cane, bounded on one side by the land of Dennis McDaniel, and on the other side by vacant land. Subjoined to said requête, is the certificate of the commandant, Martin Duralde, dated 16th November, 1802, setting forth that the land solicited was vacant, as represented by Luke Collins, surveyor of the post, and by the syndic and neighbors. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is also filed with the notice. Anthony Corkran, aged seventy-four years, before the Board, the 5th August, 1812, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1803, the deponent thinks in the spring of the year, Peter McDaniel, the claimant, cut and hauled logs for a house which he contemplated building on the land claimed, and split some fence-rails, neither of which were ever put up, to the knowledge of the deponent. The deponent has no knowledge of the said tract of land ever having been inhabited or cultivated, and believes it never has been; but he knows the land in question has always been spoken of, and respected in the neighborhood as the property of the claimant, who never has owned or held any other tract of land under the Spanish Government, in his own right, to the knowledge of the deponent." This claim is reported, on account of its not having been inhabited and cultivated on the 20th day of December, 1803, as required by the acts of Congress, allowing donations to settlers. The commissioners, however, being of opinion that it would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 80. JOHN McDANIEL claims six hundred and eighty-five and eighty-five one-hundredths acres of land on the waters of bayou Cane, by virtue of settlement by permission. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the requête of the claimant, dated the 9th of November, 1802, for the land lying between Peter McDaniel and Denis Le Barge, being about ten arpents more or less. The certificate of the commandant, Martin Duralde, dated 16th November, 1802, in the usual form, is subjoined to said requête. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1805, is also filed with the notice. Anthony Corkran hath deposed, "that the claimant kept his stock upon the land claimed, in the years 1802 and 1803; the stock were managed by the sons of the claimant, who lived in the neighborhood; and, in the year 1804, to the best of his recollection, the widow Sloan and her children went to live upon the land for the purpose of keeping the claimant's stock." This claim being similarly circumstanced with that of Peter McDaniel, reported under the number next preceding, its confirmation (to the extent of four hundred superficial arpents) is recommended for the same reasons as there given, the quantity of four hundred arpents being that which would be embraced by ten arpents front by the depth of forty arpents.

No. 81. ANDRE MARTIN claims one thousand five hundred and twenty-three acres on the river Nementou, by virtue of a purchase from the Indians of one of their villages, which the claimant sets forth, in his notice, was purchased in the year 1799, but the sale not passed in writing until 1803. With the notice of the claim is filed a plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, and the deed of sale from Celestine Le Tortue, chief of the Attakapas Indians, to the claimant, for forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the right bank of said river, adjoining the lower side of the village then occupied by the Indians, and on the other side by the cypress gully which empties into the said river, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant for the French republic, 29th December, 1803; price one hundred dollars. Louis de la Houssaye, aged fifty-two years, being sworn in the claim, deposeth, "that, from the earliest recollection of the deponent, Nementou, the chief of the village on the river of that name, with the other Indians of the tribe, were residing on the land now claimed by Andre Martin, where they have ever since continued to reside, and have never had any other village, to the knowledge of the deponent; that, to the knowledge of the deponent, the said Martin has had his vacherie, on the land claimed, for more than twenty consecutive years preceding the present date; that the said Martin, as the deponent has been informed, made a purchase of the Indian title about the time he established his vacherie, but omitted to take the written sale for many years thereafter. Being requested to state how many villages of the Attakapas or Opelousas Indians, in the district composed of the counties of Opelousas and Attakapas, he had known, where were the situations of those villages, and the names of the chiefs of said villages, and the date of the settlement and abandonment of those villages, and the number of the inhabitants, answereth, that he has already said that a village of the Attakapas Indians was established on the west side of the river Nementou, at his recollection, of which Nementou was the chief. The inhabitants of this village were very numerous when the deponent first knew it. He recollects that about thirty years past, when there was a Spanish expedition against Baton Rouge, then in the hands of the British, there were about four hundred Indian warriors who joined the Spanish army, of which about one hundred and twenty were from the Nementou village, sixty from the village on the Vermilion, of which Skenemo was then the chief; that Skenemo's village was on the west side of the river Vermilion, at the first recollection of the deponent, at the place now occupied by Anselm Thibadeau; that a gully still known by the name of the Skenemo Gully, was the lower boundary of the village; that he has been informed that there was another small village of Attakapas Indians low down on the Vermilion, but not having ever been at it, he does not know what the chief was called; that he has heard of several other villages of Attakapas and Opelousas Indians on the bayou Plaquemine Brulé, and the other parts north and west of that bayou, but never was at them. 28th February, 1814." The evidence of La Houssaye, establishing the occupancy of the land in question, both by the Indians and claimant, for more than ten consecutive years before the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, induces the commissioners to report this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 82. ROGER MCPIKE claims two hundred and three acres of land on the bayou Chicot, by virtue of a purchase from John McGlaughlin, who had it by purchase from Jesse Kirkland. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from said McGlaughlin to the claimant, dated 11th August, 1792, for fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the other side of the bayou Chicot, on the road to Natchitoches, about twenty arpents from the house of Gabriel Martin, with another tract of six arpents front, with a like depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by vacant land, and on the other by land of John Wells, conformable to the titles of concession which the seller delivers to the purchaser. Also, a deed of sale from Jesse Kirkland to John McGlaughlin, dated 20th July, 1791, for the same tracts of land, conformable to the titles of concession delivered by the seller to the purchaser. A plat of survey for six arpents front, with forty arpents in depth, on the right bank of the bayou Chicot, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is likewise filed with the notice. The claimant not having produced any document of concession from the Government, and no proof to establish the occupancy of the land, the claim is reported for the consideration of Congress, recommending the confirmation, however, on the grounds of its having been held as private property, as appears by the deeds of sale which have been regularly passed before the commandant more than ten consecutive years prior to the cession of Louisiana to the United States.

No. 83. WILLIAM NORRIS claims six hundred and forty acres on the waters of Plaquemine Brulé, by settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is, therefore, reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 84. PETER O'CONNER claims six hundred and seventy-seven acres on the right bank of bayou Cane, by virtue of settlement by permission. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice. Robert Taylor, before the Board, the 2d of February, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about seven years ago, he, this deponent, carried a requête of the claimant to Orleans for the purpose of getting a title for the land prayed for; that he delivered it to Mr. Leonard for that purpose, but never could get it again; that he does not know where the land lies that the requête was for." Patrick McCauley, the 18th September, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about five years last July, he passed by the place claimed, and discovered a cabin, which appeared to have been built some time before; the deponent does not recollect that there were any persons living there at that time, neither did he observe any crop of any kind growing, but he is certain the place was known to be Peter O'Conner's, the present claimant." John Corkran, September 19, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about the last of May or June, in the year 1803, the claimant did build a small cabin on the land claimed, but did not live on it neither that year nor since, and that he, the deponent, does not know of any culture being made upon said land to this day." No original document of title being produced, this claim must rest on the right of occupancy; the proof does not establish the settlement and cultivation of the land, as required by the several acts of Congress allowing donations to actual settlers. The claimant has, moreover, held other lands under the Spanish Government, which further invalidates his title to the claim under consideration. It is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 85. EVAN O'CONNER claims six hundred and forty acres in the prairie Mamou, by virtue of settlement. Clark Barton, on the 21st November, 1808, hath deposed, "that, some time in the year 1803, this deponent assisted the father of the claimant in making a settlement on the land claimed, but that no crop was cultivated on the land that year, neither was it inhabited or cultivated on the 20th day of December, 1803. At the time above mentioned, the claimant was under the age of twenty-one years, and was not the head of a family." This claim being unsupported by any document of title, and the claimant being a minor, is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 86. WILLIAM O'DONNegan claims 1015.54 acres of land on bayou Chicot, by virtue of settlement by permission. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and the petition of the claimant, dated February 1, 1792, for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at the end of the depth of William Borgeau's land, and twenty arpents front, by the usual depth, to be taken at the boundary of the land of the said Borgeau, and running to the east; the petitioner setting forth, that he is an inhabitant of the post of Opelousas, and wishing to form an establishment and a vacherie. Subjoined to the petition, and under date the 3d February, 1792, is the certificate of the commandant, setting forth the vacancy of the land, and the verity of the petition. Anthony Corkran, before the Board, the 5th of March, 1812, hath deposed, "that, about twenty years ago, this deponent went, in company with the claimant, to the land claimed, where the said O'Donnegan had commenced an improvement by deadening the timber, and had erected a camp, covered in part with bark and part with boards, to the best of the recollection of this deponent, under which the claimant and the deponent lodged during the night of the day on which they visited the place as before mentioned. That the said William O'Donnegan resided at the time in the family of John McDaniel; that he knows that this land has been constantly respected as the property of the said O'Donnegan from the time he took possession of it to the time of his death, two or three years ago; and that he knows that the said O'Donnegan did pay taxes under the Spanish Government for the said tract of land." John McDaniel, March 25, 1808, hath deposed, "that, about fifteen years ago, he, this deponent, moved the claimant and his family up to bayou Chicot, where he continued to reside two or three years, but, whether on the land claimed or not, he does not know." It will be seen by the testimony of Corkran, that the claimant, whose requête appears to have received the sanction of the commandant, had been in possession of this tract of land for about ten years previous to the change of Government; that his right was respected and recognized by the neighbors, and that he had paid taxes for it. The commissioners are of opinion, therefore, that this would have been a valid claim agreeably to the usages of the former Government, and ought to be confirmed by the present one.

No. 87. INHABITANTS OF OPELOUSAS claim, by virtue of a concession from the Baron Carondelet, all the cypress swamp in the county of Opelousas, not granted prior to the 12th April, 1797. For a translation of the documents of title, on which this claim is founded, the commissioners refer to pages 77 and 78 of the appendix to the book entitled Land Laws, &c. The terms of the concession are so clear and unequivocal, as to leave no doubt of the intention of the Government to grant to the inhabitants of Opelousas the common use of all the cypress timber standing on any unappropriated land within the limits of that district, at the date of the concession, to wit, the 12th April, 1797. The intention of the Government to retain the fee simple in the soil is also clearly expressed. The commissioners, with due deference, cannot forbear differing in opinion with the author of the remarks in the introductory part of the same book, pages 25 and 26, that the "grant, from its nature, would seem to be revocable at will, and, if continued unrestrained, would prove equally injurious to the public domain, and ultimately to the settlement itself." The commissioners, so far from believing any such consequence would result from the confirmation of this claim, are confident that the ratification of the claim would prevent, and the revocation of the grant, undoubtedly produce, the very consequences which the author of those remarks seems to apprehend. When we reflect that there are hundreds of thousands of acres of arable land within the limits of Opelousas, without one stick of timber growing on them, and that at least nineteen-twentieths of all the settled plantations within the whole extent of the country, have but a very narrow border of timbered land in front, the residue being prairie, we must be forcibly struck with the infinite injury that would be done to the present inhabitants, and the utter impossibility of selling to emigrants the vacant prairie land, if the use of the cypress timber was prohibited to the one or the other. From a due consideration of the claim, the commissioners are of opinion that the faith of the Government is pledged for the confirmation of the privilege conceded by the Baron Carondelet to all the inhabitants of Opelousas, which, from the nature of the concession, they are of opinion was intended to apply as well to future inhabitants as to those who resided in the country at the date of the said concession, and that this confirmation is dictated equally by justice and sound policy.

No. 88. MARTINEAU and LANDREAU, as administrators of the estate of Joseph Chevalier Poirer, deceased, claims thirty arpents front of land, with the depth of forty arpents, in Bellevue, by exchange with Florentine Poirer. The deed of exchange, dated in 1794, is the only document filed with the notice of the claim, and it is believed to be for the same land claimed by, and of which the title has been confirmed to, Henry Lastrappe, by commissioners' certificate A, No. 1,091, under a grant to Etienne R. Lamorandier. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 89. MARTINEAU and LANDREAU, as administrators of the estate of Chevalier Poirer, deceased, claim twelve arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, by purchase from John Tesson. The deed of conveyance from said Tesson to said Poirer, dated 25th June, 1778, is the only document filed with the notice, and it is believed to be for the same land claimed by Martin Donatto, to whom the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate marked A, No. 871, under grant to Jacques Ganard. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 90. BENJAMIN P. PORTER and WILLIAM DARBY claim twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, by purchase from Albert Beausergent. The deed of conveyance from Beausergent to the claimants, dated March 21, 1806, and a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, are the only documents filed with the notice. The land claimed in this case is said to be part of a grant to Helene Soileau, (widow Fuseliere,) but no evidence to establish this fact having been adduced, and no proof of occupancy, the commissioners are under the necessity of reporting this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 91. BENJAMIN P. PORTER and WILLIAM DARBY claim four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, by virtue of a purchase from François Clement, who is stated to have claimed under settlement. The deed of conveyance from Clement to the claimants, dated March 21, 1806, and a plat of survey, dated also in 1806, are the only documents filed with the notice of the claim. No proof of occupancy having been adduced, and no document to show that the land was ceded by the French or Spanish Governments, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 92. MICHEL PERRAULT claims twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Cane, by virtue of a requête in the name of the father of the claimant, and approved by the then commandant of the port of Opelousas, Forstall, the 13th June, 1791. Said tract to be bounded on one side by land of Antoine Doza, and running for complement towards that of François Fruge. The requête, with a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1808, are filed with the claim. Joseph Moreau, before the Board the 21st August, 1812, hath deposed, "that Joseph Landry, about four or five years ago, did settle on the land; and that it was not inhabited nor cultivated by any body before that time, as far as he can recollect; and that said Landry did not settle the said land for the claimant, but believes it was for himself." The claimant, in this instance, is personally known to the Board; and that he was a minor until several years subsequent to the cession of Louisiana to the United States, is not doubted; and that his father, of whom he was the only son, was murdered in the county of Opelousas by his own negroes several years before the said cession, is a matter of public notoriety. It is understood that there never was an abandonment of the claim; and if, under the usages of the former Government, it was necessary that the land should have been settled within a limited time, it is believed it would neither comport with the usages of the Spanish Government, nor with the principles of equity, to extend such act of limitation to the case of a minor; on which ground, therefore, the confirmation of the claim is recommended.

No. 93. BENJAMIN P. PORTER and WILLIAM D'ARBY claim three arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, by purchase from François Clement. The deed of sale from said Clement to the claimants, dated March 21, 1806, and a plat of survey, dated in 1806, are the only documents filed with the notice of the claim. It is stated in the notice that the land was granted to Vidrine, but no document having been adduced to establish this fact, and no proof of occupancy furnished in support of this claim, it is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 94. MICHEL PAPILON claims by settlement six hundred and forty acres of land on bayou Serpent, in prairie Nezpique. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document, except a plat of survey, dated in 1806; no proof has been adduced to establish occupancy. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 95. SAMUEL REED claims $338\frac{51}{100}$ acres on bayou Cane, by virtue of settlement by permission. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the requête of the claimant for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at the fork of bayou Cane, at the old road between the land of Morris and the vacherie of Jacques Duprie, which requête was sanctioned by the then commandant, Martin Duralde, the 15th October, 1803; a plat of survey, dated in 1805, is also filed. Joseph Buller, on the 12th March, 1807, hath deposed, "that, in the month of September, 1803, the claimant, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, commenced his improvement on the land claimed; that, in the month of October, he raised his cabin, and that within three days before or three days after Christmas; this deponent does not recollect which, the claimant removed his family thereon, and has continued to reside there, and cultivate the same ever since." This claim is reported on account of the evidence not having established the occupancy of the land, as required by law, on the 20th December, 1803; but its confirmation is recommended on the grounds of its being such a claim as, in the opinion of the commissioners, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 96. LOUIS and PIERRE RICHARD claim eighty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, on the bayou Ouache, in prairie Quelqueshoe, by virtue of a purchase from John, an Indian chief of the Attakapas tribe. The deed of sale from the said Indian to the claimants, dated January 5, 1801, passed before private witnesses, and deposited with Honoré de la Chaise, then acting a commandant pro tem. for the county of Opelousas, the 29th June, 1801, is the only document filed with the claim. Silvester Mouton, before the Board, the 23d January, 1813, hath deposed, "that he was present at the passing of the sale from the Indian chief, John, to the claimants; at which time the said John informed the deponent that he had sold the land to the claimants, and received his pay for it a long time before; and that he, the deponent, knows that there was a considerable Indian village on the said land; and he does not know that said John ever sold any other tract." At the request of the claimants the same witness, Silvester Mouton, aged thirty-four years, was again sworn and examined before the Board of Commissioners on the 27th August, 1814, when he gave the following testimony: "That the land claimed is situate above the vacherie of Mr. Wykoff, on a bayou, the name of which the deponent does not recollect. This deponent does not remember the date when the claimant purchased of the Indians, (it is so long ago,) although he was a witness to the sale, and knows the Indians were in possession of the land when the purchase was made; that the Indian village was on the land at the time of the purchase, and that the Indians made crops thereon. This deponent knows, of his own knowledge, that the Indians were established on the land in question since he can remember, and has reason to believe it was established long before he was born." The sale in this case is informal, not having been passed before the commandant, nor does it appear to have received the sanction of the Governor of the province. To say the most which the commissioners conceived can be said for the claim, it comes within the third class of purchases from Indians, as designated in the report No. 1, of Opelousas claims, to which the Board refers. The claimants, therefore, can only be entitled to so much of the land claimed as might be deemed a remuneration for extinguishing the kind of title which the Indians possessed.

No. 97. JOHN BAPTISTE RICHARD claims $507\frac{77}{100}$ acres on bayou Plaquemine Brulé, by settlement. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice of the claim. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 98. ANDREW A. RYON claims six hundred and forty acres on bayou Chicot, by settlement. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. John McDaniel, before the Board, the 4th August, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land in question was settled and cultivated about thirty years ago by Mr. Routh, who had his family then with him; that said Routh resided there about two years, and then moved off; that the deponent has understood that said Routh conveyed his right in said land to a Mr. Clayton, of the parish of Avoyelles, and Clayton conveyed to Ryon, the present claimant. He personally knows nothing of these conveyances, but believes that the present claimant, Ryon, settled on the land in the year 1802; that the said Ryon continued there that year and the year following, to wit, 1803; but the deponent does not know this of his own knowledge; that Ryon is an infirm man, and procured subsistence by hiring himself in the neighborhood of said land, and, consequently, has resided on the land only occasionally since the year 1803." Anthony Corkins, before the Board on the same day, hath deposed, "that he was frequently in the neighborhood of said land about the year 1798; that he always understood, from common report in that neighborhood, that the said land was first claimed by a Mr. Routh, with whom he was formerly acquainted; that, from common report, he also learned that the land in question was occupied by said Routh, and that it was conveyed from him to some other person; and that the land has been regularly claimed from the time Routh possessed it to the present time; that the claim to said land has passed through several persons; that, in the year 1802 or 1803, he, the deponent, was passing through the land, and saw preparations for a field on part of the tract; that a Mr. Johnson was then at work there for the present claimant, and informed this deponent that the original improvements were in the bend of the bayou at a small distance from where he was then at work; but the deponent was never at the place where said original improvements were made." Ryon claims by right of settlement; but the evidence is not such as would entitle him to the land under the acts of Congress providing for such claims. If the land was conveyed to the claimant by Clayton, it would have been in the power, and was incumbent on the claimant to have produced the evidence of that fact from record. This he has not done, nor has he shown that there was ever any concession for the land to Routh, said to have been the original proprietor; with evidence so little satisfactory, and without the production of any documents of title, the commissioners cannot avoid reporting this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 99. — REMY claims ten arpents, by the depth of forty arpents, in the Grand Prairie, by purchase from Pierre Maurice, who purchased from Pierre Barre, a free mulatto. The deed of conveyance from Barre to Maurice, dated 8th November, 1790, is the only document accompanying the notice. It is stipulated in the conveyance that the purchaser should take immediate possession of the fencing and cabin, from which it would appear that the land was occupied at the date of the sale. No evidence has been offered to show that the land has continued to be occupied since that time; but, presuming that the seller had a valid title in the land, the commissioners recommend the confirmation of the claim.

No. 100. HELENE ROBLEAU claims six hundred and forty acres of land near the bayou Chicot, on the waters of bayou Nezpique, on which her house is situate, which tract of land is bounded on one side by land of Lucote Don Manuel. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 101. JAMES RUMSEY'S HEIR claims eight hundred acres, supposed to be arpents, by purchase from François Lemell, by deed, bearing date the 3d of December, 1777. The said deed of conveyance is the only document accompanying the notice of the claim, and no proof to establish occupancy has been offered. The deed of conveyance, however, having been passed in a regular manner before the then commandant of the post, no doubt is entertained of the validity of the claim, and it is, therefore, recommended for confirmation.

No. 102. HELENE SOILEAU claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, in the Grand Prairie, by purchase, but from whom is not set forth in the notice. A deed of conveyance from Albert Beausergent to Joseph Gunard, dated 20th June, 1791, is the only document of title filed, and no proof of occupancy has been offered. The commissioners, entertaining no doubt of the validity of the title, under the above deed of conveyance, and presuming that it has been conveyed to the claimant, recommend the confirmation of the claim.

No. 103. RAPHAEL SMITH claims one league square of land on the bayou Coamen, in the Prairie Nezpique, by purchase from an Indian, calling himself Celestine Le Tortue, chief of the Attakapas tribe of Indians. The deed of sale from said Indian chief to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as civil commandant of Opelousas, dated 28th September, 1804, is the only document filed with the notice of the claim. It is set forth in the deed that the land is "situate at the place where the village of the Indians is, and which has been constantly inhabited by the Indians for fifty years at least." The consideration paid by the purchaser, one hundred dollars. [See the evidence of John Teller, in the claim of Benjamin A. Smith, which applies also to this claim.] It appears that the village, and land depending thereon, which the said Indians have sold to the two Mr. Smiths, had been abandoned by them for four or five years before the sales were passed. This claim, therefore, comes within the fourth class of titles held under Indians, as reported in No. 1, and, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 104. BENJAMIN A. SMITH claims one league square of land on the bayou Coamen, in the Prairie Nezpique, by purchase from an Indian, calling himself Celestine, chief of the Attakapas Indians. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the deed of sale from said Indian to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, as civil commandant of Opelousas, the 28th September, 1804, setting forth, in the said deed, that the land is situate at the place where the village of said Indians has always been inhabited by them for at least fifty years, bounded on one side by land purchased by Raphael Smith, and on the other by the end of the woods, forming a point on the east side of said bayou Coamen; price paid by the purchaser one hundred dollars. John Teller, aged about forty-eight years, before the Board, the 16th May, 1814, hath deposed, "that he is well acquainted with the land claimed, and has been particularly acquainted in that quarter for about twenty-seven years; that, at the time when this deponent first became acquainted in that part of the country, the Attakapas Indians had their village at the Island of Woods, now known by the Island of Lacasine, of which an Indian, called Lacasine, was understood to be the chief; that their village extended the whole length of said island, which the deponent supposes may be about two leagues; that the principal settlements were at the upper end of the island, which is embraced by the claim in question; that the chief, Lacasine, has been dead about fifteen years; that, about the time of his death, the village was abandoned by the surviving inhabitants, the principal part of whom removed to the now only remaining Attakapas village, on the river Nementou; that the Indians, so far as the deponent knows, did not abandon their claim to the land at the said Island of Lacasine, but, on the contrary, he knows they continued to claim it as their property until they sold it to the two Mr. Smiths; that an Indian chief, named Celestine, now residing on Nementou, is understood to have succeeded Lacasine in his authority and power to dispose of the property of the said village, and the deponent has heard the said Indians of the Attakapas village frequently say that the said Celestine had made the sales to the above-named gentlemen expressly with their consent, and that the payments had been applied to their use. The deponent further saith, that, from hunting for many years with the Attakapas Indians, and especially with the Indians of Lacasine village, he became well acquainted with most of them, and understood their language perfectly. The deponent further saith, that he was present when Messrs. Benjamin and Raphael Smith contracted with the Indians for the purchase of said village, and land depending thereon, about two or three months before the contract was finally closed, by passing the sale before the commandant, Mr. La Chaise, at which ceremony the deponent was also present, when, to the best of the recollection of the deponent, he served as translator between the commandant and the Indians. The deponent further saith, that he was in company with Mr. Jackson, the surveyor, when he surveyed the land for the Mr. Smiths, and knows that the surveys embraced the ancient Indian village before mentioned." The circumstances of this claim are, in every respect, the same as those attending the claim of Raphael Smith, and, like that, coming within the fourth class of purchases from Indians, as reported under No. 1, is decided to be such a claim as, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 105. AUGUSTIN SOILEAU'S HEIRS claim one hundred and thirty-eight acres in Prairie Basse. Conformable to the plat of survey, filed with the notice of this claim, the nature of the title is not set forth in the notice, which is unaccompanied by any other document of title or evidence, except the said plat, which bears date the 19th April, 1806. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 106. HEIRS OF PETER STYX claim twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Queue de Tortue, by purchase from an Indian. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Louis, an "Indian of the Attakapas tribe," to Pierre Styx, a free negro, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, as civil commandant of Opelousas, the 16th April, 1804, the tract to be bounded on one side by the claim of Huffpower and Peter Stouts, and on the other to the purchaser; price thirty dollars. No other document of title, nor proof of occupancy, has been adduced. The claim is, therefore, placed under class No. 4 of Indian claims, as reported under No. 1, and, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 107. MARIA SIMIEN claims six arpents in front, by the depth of twenty arpents, in the Big Woods, by purchase at the sale of the estate of Joseph Thery. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a deed of conveyance, passed before Martin Duralde, then commandant of the post of Opelousas, for the said tract of land, dated 20th July, 1800, which tract is bounded on one side by land of the deceased Rideau, and on the other by land sold by the deceased Thery to Pierre Jubert. A plat of survey by Luke Collins, dated the 17th March, 1802, and certified to have been made in pursuance of the said deed of conveyance, is also filed with the notice. Laurent Dupré, aged thirty-five years, before the Board, the 25th January, 1812, hath deposed, "that Joseph Thery, from whom the said Maria derives her title, and those under whom he claimed, have been in the constant practice of cutting and taking wood off of the tract of land in question from the earliest recollection of the deponent, and that their rights have always been respected as valid; that the land was petitioned for not to be cultivated or settled upon, (not being esteemed arable land,) but for wood for fuel and timber." The commissioners entertain no doubt of the validity of this claim, and, therefore, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 108. MARIA SIMIEN (free negress) claims two hundred arpents in the prairie of Bellevue, by a concession from the Spanish Government. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of Maria Simien, setting forth that she had, on the 26th April, 1799, solicited a grant of same tract, which petition being lost or mislaid, she desires to renew her request, subjoined to which, and under date of 25th July, 1801, is the certificate of Martin Duralde, then commandant, setting forth that what was deposed by the petitioner was true, and that the surveyor had certified the vacancy of the land, the said tract being situate at the back of land granted to Farron and Charles Normand, and Campiramo; a plat of survey by François V. Potier, dated in 1806, is also filed with the notice. James Clark, before the Board, the 5th August, 1809, hath deposed, "that the tract of land claimed has been in cultivation every year from the year 1799, until last winter two years; and that, during that time, no person has actually resided upon the said land; that the claimant resided upon a tract of land adjoining the tract above mentioned; that, on the 20th day of December, 1803, the said claimant was above the age of twenty-one years, and an inhabitant of Louisiana." The commissioners, believing this to be a valid claim, under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation.

No. 109. NICHOLAS SIMON (free mulatto) claims thirty-five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the Lake Karkasiou, by purchase from Indians. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from "Mahy Poly, of the Attakapas nation," to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, as commandant of the post of Opelousas, the 17th April, 1804; the said tract to be bounded on one side by the gully of the village, and on the other by a large gully called Accouche; price paid by the purchaser, for the land, eighty dollars. A plat of survey, dated in 1807, is likewise filed. No proof to establish occupancy has been offered, nor can the sale have been sanctioned. The claim is, therefore, within the fourth class of purchases from Indians, as reported in No. 1, and, consequently, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 110. HEIRS OF PETER STYX claim six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of the bayou Vermilion, by purchase from an Indian. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Bernard, an Indian of the Attakapas tribe, acting for and in behalf of his daughter Constance, passed before Martin Duralde, then commandant of Opelousas and Attakapas, the 5th November, 1803, the said tract to be taken at the gully Dessalles, in ascending towards land of Anselm Thibodeau, and represented in the deed of sale to be part of the land appertaining to the village of Escanimou, grand chief of the Attakapas Indians, being within the limits of said village, as marked out by Mr. De. Clouet, as appeared by a certificate exhibited by Mr. Bernard, in whose hands it was. The want of evidence of occupancy by the Indians, at the date of their sale, constrains the commissioners to consider this claim as falling within the fourth class reported No. 1, and, consequently, one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 111. CHARLES SIMON (son of Nicholas Simon) claims fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the Lake Carcouchion, by purchase from an Indian. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from "Maypole, of the Attakapas nation," to the claimant, passed before Honoré de la Chaise, acting as commandant of the post of Opelousas, April 17, 1804. The said tract to be bounded on one side by land of the father of the claimant, and on the other to that of Martin Comasac, where there are two pines for a boundary on the bank of said lake; price paid by the purchaser thirty dollars. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is likewise filed, and no other evidence in support of the claim. This also is within the fourth class of purchases from Indians, as reported under No. 1, and, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 112. HEIRS OF FRANÇOIS STELY claim thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Queue de Tortue, by virtue of the documents of title of which the following is a translation in substance: Petition of François Stely, setting forth the number of his stock, and soliciting the above tract for a vacherie, February 18, 1800, to which is subjoined the certificate of the then commandant, Mr. Duralde, stating that the land solicited was vacant, as he had been informed by the petitioner and others, 18 February, 1800. (Signed) Martin Duralde. "Let it go to the fiscal for his opinion. (Signed, two paraps.)" I certify that the above two paraps or flourishes are those of Don Ramon de Lopez E. Angulo, Intendant General, &c., who made his flourish by the advice of the Assessor General of the Intendancy, and the other the flourish of the said Assessor General. (Signed) Carlos Himines. On the same day, notice is given to François Stely, of the preceding decree. (Signed) Himines. "On the same day, I lay the antecedent decree before the royal fiscal." (Signed) Himines. The fiscal of the royal treasury, Hacinda, on the communication made to him of the petition of François Stely, inhabitant of Opelousas, soliciting thirty arpents front, by the ordinary depth, of land vacant and uncultivated on the bayou known by the name of Queue de Tortue, to form a vacherie, is of opinion that you may, if it meets your approbation, grant him the title of property, after the survey shall have been made, and a plat returned by the Surveyor General; but the tribunal may act as they think most conducive to justice, which is what the fiscal decrees. "New Orleans, 18 May, 1802." (Signed) Gilbert Leonard. Decreed. (Signed) Morales. "Ordered by Don Juan Ventura Morales, contador principal of the army, acting intendancy of the royal hacienda of the province of Louisiana and West Florida, who signs with the advice of the Assessor General of the Intendancy. New Orleans, 19 May, 1802." (Signed) Carlos Himines. New Orleans, 2 June, 1802. "Let the petitioner prove what quantity of land, and the number of animals he has, that a decree may be made on sight of it." (Signed) Morales, and countersigned Sicde. Serreno. Before me, (Signed) Charles Himines. John Taylor, before the Board, 20th January, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was settled about twelve years ago, by John Lyon, and it has continued to be inhabited and cultivated by some of the members of the said John Lyon's family ever since. It is deemed proper to remark that John Lyon has made known to the Board that it was never his intention to have settled on the land of Mr. Stely, and that he claims the land himself on which he has resided on the bayou Queue de Tortue. The commissioners are of opinion that this claim would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, and report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 113. HEIRS OF MARIA ST. DENIS claim two tracts of land each, of forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, near the spring of the bayou Chicot, by virtue of an order of survey from the Spanish Government. The notice of this claim is accompanied by two separate petitions of Maria St. Denis, for said tracts of land to adjoin each other, in consideration of services rendered by her deceased husband, in commanding the King's troops, by whom the conquest of Attakapas and Opelousas is said to have been effected. The order of survey by Governor Miro, dated 5 January, 1785, directing the Surveyor General to put the party in possession of the two tracts, without condition of settlement, &c. is likewise filed with the notice. Proof of occupancy, as required by law, having been adduced for one of the tracts, the claim to that has been confirmed by certificate B, No. 1216; and the confirmation of the claim to the other tract, which is the one under consideration, is recommended; first, because the party may have conceived the settlement on one of the tracts as being sufficient; and, secondly, the land having been solicited on account of services rendered the Government, the usual conditions of settlement seem to have been dispensed with.

No. 114. DAVID F. SACKETT claims one thousand arpents on the bayou Nezpique, by virtue of a purchase from Henry Hergroeder, who held it under a requête approved by the commandant. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a petition of said Hergroeder for twenty-five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the bayou Cane, in the Prairie Mamou, at the first grand point west of said prairie, for a vacherie, which petition is approved by the commandant, Forstall, under date 9th September, 1789. Anthony Corkran, before the Board, the 1st October, 1811, hath deposed, "that, in consequence of the ravages committed by the Indians on the stock and plantation of John McDaniel, who had resided on the land several years, he, John McDaniel, was obliged to remove from the same; and that himself, and several other persons who had settled in the neighborhood, were obliged to remove for the same reason." John Hays, before the Board, the 13th July, 1810, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1789, the land was inhabited and cultivated, and continued to be for five or six years, and is now in cultivation; that he has always heard that there was a requête for said tract of land." This claim would have been valid, in the opinion of the Board, under the former Government, and ought to be confirmed by this.

No. 115. CHARLES SMITH claims three hundred acres on the east side of the bayou Borbeau, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government. The notice of this claim is accompanied by extracts of documents of title, certified by J. W. Gurley, register of the eastern district, to be truly taken from the originals in his office, which, translated, are, in substance, as follows:

1st. Certificate by Luke Collins, deputy surveyor, dated 14th October, 1799, setting forth that the land solicited by Charles Smith (describing its situation) is vacant, and may be conceded to him, without being prejudicial.

2d. Certificate by the syndic, Michael Leger, that the land solicited by Mr. Smith had not been demanded by any other person.

3d. Certificate by John Tyson and Michael Leger, that they know of no opposition for the land demanded by Mr. Smith, Grand Couteau, 6th September, 1799.

4th. Petition of the claimant to Juan Ventura Morales, intendant, for said tract of land, bearing date 31st October, 1799.

5th. Certificate by Martin Duralde, commandant, that the land petitioned for by Charles Smith was vacant, as appeared from the certificate of Mr. Luke Collins, surveyor of the post, and the syndic, and neighbors, November 3, 1799.

6th. Order by Lopez, that the translator, Don Pedro Derbigny, should translate the antecedent documents after the usual manner, and then they should be communicated to the fiscal, and with his answer, to be laid before the assessor, New Orleans, 25th January, 1800.

7th. Opinion of fiscal, Gilbert Leonard, that the tribunal may accede to the solicitation of the petitioner, if no objections be known to exist, New Orleans, April 23, 1800.

John Teller, before the Board, the 9th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that, eighteen or nineteen years ago, he knows of the claimant taking wood off the land for the use of his farm, at which time it was understood by the deponent, and, he believes, by the neighbors generally, that the land was claimed by the said Charles Smith, who had continued to occupy, use, and possess the same ever since to the present date." By a survey made of the land claimed, by order of the principal deputy surveyor, it is found to contain one hundred and ninety-three and twenty one-hundredths acres, equal to about two hundred and thirty arpents. From the long use which the claimant has enjoyed of this land, and a persuasion that the title would have been perfected under the Spanish Government, the commissioners report this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 116. JULIANA THOMAS claims two hundred and eighty acres of land at a place called the old village, on the waters of the bayou Teche. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice; and no proof has been adduced to establish occupancy. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 117. HEIRS OF PIERRE THIBEDAU claim four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say one hundred and sixty superficial arpents, in the settlement of the Acadiens. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of Philip Dagneau, for four arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, in the place where the Acadiens are to be settled by order of the Executive; the petitioner setting forth that he can be useful to the Acadeins on account of his possessing the talent of bleeding. Subjoined to the petition, and under date New Orleans, 27th December, 1767, is the decree of the commandant, which, translated, is as follows: "Under the good will of Mr. De Ulloa, Governor of this colony, under His Catholic Majesty, we do grant the four arpents of land petitioned for to Philip Dagneau, for him and his heirs to enjoy peaceably." On the back of the paper, and under date the 13th March, 1768, is a transfer of the right and title of Dagneau and wife to Pierre Thibedau, for the sum of six livres. The permission on which the claim is founded is, in the opinion of the Board, a mere nullity. Although it was granted by the French Government nearly forty years before the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, it is not pretended that, either by the original holder of this paper or his assignee, any land has been occupied under it; nor that the right has ever been recognized by the Spanish Government. The claim, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, cannot be confirmed.

No. 118. CHRISTOPHER TEAL'S REPRESENTATIVES claim 426³³/₁₀₀ acres on bayou Chicot, by settlement. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and by no other document or evidence of title. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 119. ROBERT TAYLOR claims one arpent front by the depth of forty arpents, at the Hill of Opelousas, by virtue of an order of survey in favor of Julian Lasassier. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of Luke Collins (son) for said tract, bounded on one side by land of Godeau, and on the other by that of Thomas Huffpower, which petition bears date the 7th January, 1790. The said Collins having transferred his right of said land to Julian Lasassier, he, the said Lasassier, obtained an order of survey for the same, date 23d April, 1796, which order of survey is filed with the notice of the claim. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced, but the commissioners having a knowledge of the situation of the land, entertain but little doubt of its having been cultivated, perhaps since the date of the title, and, believing it to be a valid claim, under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation.

No. 120. ROBERT TAYLOR claims five arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, under an order of survey to Luke Collins, Jun., bearing date 19th April, 1797, which order of survey, with the petition of said Collins for said land, dated 13th January, 1790, are filed with the notice of the claim. William Collins, before the Board, hath deposed in substance, "that the wood and timber necessary for the adjoining establishment of the claimant, and those from whom he derives his title, has been taken from the land claimed ever since the date of the above-mentioned petition in the year 1790, the land having been petitioned for on account of the wood, and not to settle on. The commissioners entertain no doubt of the validity of the title, and report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 121. ROBERT TAYLOR claims twenty-one superficial arpents of land, part of a larger tract granted to Luke Collins, Sen., father of the wife of the claimant, and being a donation of the said Collins to his daughter. By the certificate of the commissioners, marked A, No. 1,174, in confirmation of the claim to the legal representatives of Theophilus Collins, deceased, this claim is understood to be embraced, and consequently there can be no necessity for any further confirmation to the claimant.

No. 122. NOEL VASSEUR claims six and a half arpents front, by the depth from the bayou to the gully, forming the boundary between his land and that of Charles Veger, being part of a tract surveyed by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, in the year 1794, then owned by Chevalier Villier. The notice is accompanied by a deed of sale from John Jubert to the claimant, dated 21st February, 1806, and by no other document or evidence of title; and, although the Board have no reason to doubt what is set forth in the notice, yet, without other evidence in support of the claim, they are under the necessity of reporting it as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 123. C. VOORHIES, as guardian of the heirs of Logotrie, claims one thousand six hundred arpents on bayou Courtableau, lying between the land of William Collins and that of Baptiste Rivier. No document of title or evidence has been adduced in support of this claim; it is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 124. ROGER WEST claims six hundred and forty acres on bayou Chicot, by purchase from Frazier, the original claimant. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice of the claim. Patrick McCauly, before the Board, 20th March, 1812, hath deposed, "that he is well acquainted with Roger West, the present claimant, and was also well acquainted with the original proprietor, Isaac Frazier, now deceased, and the land claimed; that he knows that the said Isaac Frazier settled upon the land claimed, twenty-three years ago, and at that time had a part of the land under cultivation. How long he continued on the land the deponent does not know; that, some years afterwards, but he cannot recollect in what year, he was again on the land, when he found it inhabited and cultivated by John McLaughlin, who married the daughter of said West, and whom the deponent supposes to have been the agent or tenant of his said father-in-law; that the said McLaughlin made one crop on the land, and might have made more, but not to the knowledge of the deponent; that, in the latter end of the year to which the deponent alludes, the said McLaughlin, finding the Indians very troublesome, and his wife becoming alarmed, removed off the land, gathering his crop before it was fully ripe; that, removing out of the neighborhood about that time, the deponent does not know whether the land has been occupied since McLaughlin left it or not." John McDaniel, before the Board, the 20th March, 1812, hath deposed, "that, to his knowledge, the original claimant, Isaac Frazier, settled on the land in question, twenty-nine years ago, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same until he sold it to Roger West, about twenty years ago, who took possession thereof two or three years thereafter, and remained on it perhaps about one year, and then left it, to pursue his trade as carpenter on the Mississippi river, having previously established his son-in-law, John McLaughlin, on the land, who was obliged to abandon it about eighteen years ago, in consequence of the Indians being troublesome to him, and alarming his wife, and that the said land has not since been occupied, except by Indians; that this tract of land has been respected as the property of West since his purchase from Frazier." A claim of six hundred and forty acres, founded on the right of settlement of Isaac Frazier, has been confirmed to his heirs by the certificate of the commissioners, B, No. 829. The claimant, in the case under consideration, has not shown any title from the former Government of Louisiana, nor any deeds of conveyance from former proprietors, by which the nature, validity, and extent of this claim might be judged of. These circumstances considered, the commissioners are induced to report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 125. NATHANIEL WEST claims four hundred arpents in the Prairie Mamou, by virtue of a requête approved by the commandant. The notice is accompanied by the requête of the claimant for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, adjoining on one side to the land of James Campbell, dated 3d August, 1799, and certified by the commandant, Mr. Duralde, and the surveyor of the post, Luke Collins. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is likewise filed. Samuel Reed, before the Board, the 7th October, 1807, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1803, Godfroy Kreiger built a log house on the land claimed, but never resided thereon; neither was the land inhabited or cultivated until the year 1805, when the present claimant, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, settled thereon, and has continued to reside there ever since." The Commissioners viewing this as a claim which, in their opinion, would have been valid, under the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 126. ANDREW WEAVER claims six hundred and forty acres by settlement, on the waters of bayou Cane. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, and a certificate by Godfroy Kreiger, syndic, dated the 23d November, 1801, and one by Joseph Buller of the same date, setting forth that the land on which William Hay had built a cabin in Prairie Mamou, on one of the branches of bayou Cane, was vacant. John Corkran, before the Board, the 12th March, 1807, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1798 or '99, a house was built on the land claimed by William Hay, but he did not go to reside thereon; that, in the year 1801, Robert McKim and Madame Moris removed on the same land, and resided thereon, and cultivated the same, until the latter end of the year 1802, or the beginning of the year 1803, when they left it, and it continued vacant until about Christmas, in the year 1804, when the present claimant removed thereon, and has continued to reside there, and cultivate the same ever since. The above-mentioned Robert McKim and Madame Moris were both over the age of twenty-one years, and had families. The present claimant claims the same by purchase from John Laughley, who purchased from Madame Moris, who claimed the same under William Hay." Samuel Reed and Joseph Buller, before the Board, the 7th October, 1807, have deposed, "that, in the year 1799, William Hay built a cabin on the land claimed, with an intention to reside thereon, but never did move to the said land; that, about the month of August, 1801, Mrs. Moris and her son, a man of one or two and twenty years of age, without a family, removed on the same, and continued to reside there until the fall of the year 1802, when she left the same; that, during that year, she cultivated about an acre or an acre and a half of corn, and planted several plum and peach trees; that immediately after the removal of Mrs. Moris the place was occupied by James O'Brien, who resided thereon three or four months, when he left it. The place then remained uninhabited until the fall of the year 1804, when the present claimant removed thereon, and has resided there, and cultivated ever since. The improvements at present consist of a good log dwelling-house, and several other necessary out-houses, and of about seven or eight acres of cleared land, enclosed with a good fence." The claimant having adduced no deed of conveyance from the original occupant, nor any title from the former Government, whereby the nature and extent of the claim might be understood, and it appearing from the evidence that the land was occupied from the early part of the year 1803, to the latter end of the year 1804, the commissioners are induced to report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 127. BENJAMIN WINFREE claims six hundred and forty acres on the Lake Tortue, by virtue of settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 128. PHILIP WINFREE claims six hundred and forty acres on Plaquemine Brulé, by virtue of settlement. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and by no other document of title. Bosman Hays, before the Board, the 24th December, 1807, hath deposed, "that, about six years last August, the claimant, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, went with his family to reside upon the land claimed, for the purpose of keeping a stock for David and Jacob Harman; that he kept their stock there, and cultivated the land for three years, when the said David and Jacob Harman removed their stock; that the said claimant continued to reside on the land, and cultivate the same two years longer, when he removed therefrom, in consequence of part of his improvements being included in the survey of David Harman; that the said claimant was actually residing upon the said tract of land on the 20th day of December, 1803; that, previous to the claimant's going to reside on said land to keep the abovementioned stocks of cattle, David Harman obtained the usual certificate from this deponent, and one or two other persons residing in the neighborhood, and, as he informed this deponent, made a petition to the commandant for a requête for the said land, but which he did not obtain; and that, after the removal of the said stock, the said claimant and the said Harman both claimed the land. It appearing from the testimony, that the claimant in this case was the tenant or stock-keeper of David Harman, whose claim to the land has been confirmed by the certificate of the commissioners B, No. 597; this is, on that account, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 129. WILLIAM WIKOFF, Sen. claims two thousand seven hundred and thirty-three acres on the river Nezpique, by virtue of a purchase from Indians. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Le Tortue, an Indian, calling himself chief of the village Nezpique, and his son Celestine, to the claimant, for one league in front by the ordinary depth, bounded above by a marked tree about half a league from the village, and below by a small gully where there is another tree marked, passed before Forstall, then commandant of the post of Opelousas, the 16th April, 1791; consideration, ten cows and calves. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, is likewise filed with the notice. Mark Lee, before the Board the 22d September, 1808, hath deposed, "that the tract of land claimed was settled by this deponent for and in behalf of the claimant, William Wikoff, eighteen years ago; that he himself remained upon the land from the 1st of September until the 1st of November, when he went to Kentucky for his family; that, in the May following, he arrived on the land with his family, and continued to live on and cultivate the same for three years, when the Indians being very troublesome, he removed therefrom; that the land continued unoccupied until within a few years past; that this deponent, as well as the said William Wikoff, were, on the 20th day of December, 1803, above the age of twenty-one years, and heads of families, and lived in Louisiana; that, during the time this deponent resided upon the land, he kept a stock of horses and cattle for the said claimant, William Wikoff." John Clark, before the Board the 5th September, 1814, hath deposed, "that he is well acquainted with the land in question; that, to the knowledge of the deponent, the said William Wikoff had a vacherie on the said land more than twenty-three years past, when Mark Lee resided on the land as stock-keeper for the said William Wikoff; that, at the time when the deponent was on the said land, about twenty-three years ago, the Indians had their village either on the land now claimed by Mr. Wikoff, or some short distance not exceeding one mile and a half above the vacherie. The deponent further saith that, from common report, he has reason to believe, and does believe, that the said Wikoff has occupied the above tract of land as a vacherie constantly for, the last twenty-three or twenty-four years, and that, during the said term, the stock-keepers or negroes of the said Wikoff have cultivated corn on the same." Thomas Burwick, before the Board on the same day of the above witness, hath deposed, "that he was also on the tract of land now claimed by William Wikoff, on the bayou Nezpique, about twenty-three years ago, when he recollects perfectly the Indian village was in sight of the vacherie, and he thinks not more than one mile above it. The deponent further saith that, having heard the evidence of Mr. John Clark in this claim, he has good reason for believing that what the said Clark has stated is just and true." By reference to the report No. 1, of Opelousas claims, it will be seen that the commissioners attach no other consequence to the sales of Indians, which had not been ratified by some Governor of the province of Louisiana, than to consider them as extinguishing the kind of title which the Indians possessed. In the case under consideration, however, from the long occupancy of the land, the claimant comes under the provisions of the second section of the act of Congress passed the third of March, 1803, and is, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, entitled to a confirmation of his claim to the extent of two thousand acres.

No. 130. WILLIAM WIKOFF, Sen. claims one thousand three hundred and fifty-four acres of land on the bayou or river Nezpique, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government in the year 1789. In support of this claim has been filed the petition of the claimant for forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west part of bayou Nezpique, about a league below the highest crossing place of the Indians, bounded on both sides by vacant land petitioned for a vacherie, and certified by the commandant, Forstall, the 30th September, 1789. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated 1806, has likewise been filed. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced; nevertheless, the Board of Commissioners, considering this such a claim as would have been valid under the former Government, recommend the confirmation.

No. 131. WILLIAM WIKOFF, JUN. claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say one thousand six hundred superficial arpents, on the bayou or river Nezpique, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government, in the year 1789. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said tract, bounded on one side by the land of Mr. Wikoff, his uncle, and on the other by vacant land petitioned for a vacherie; to which petition is subjoined the certificate of the then commandant, Forstall, dated 30th September, 1789, setting forth that the land solicited is of the domain of the King. A plat of survey by an authorized surveyor is likewise filed with the notice, dated 17th February, 1806. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced in support of the claim. This claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed for the reasons given in the case immediately preceding.

No. 132. FRANCESCA WIKOFF claims five hundred arpents on the bayous Courtableau and Ouache, by virtue of an order of survey, dated 20th December, 1798. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said tract of land, fronting on the bayou Courtableau, and bounded on one side by land of William Wikoff, the younger, and on the other by vacant land, dated 9th December, 1789; also, the order of survey by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, then Governor of Louisiana, dated as above mentioned, on the 20th day of December, 1798, and plat of survey by the late Surveyor General of Louisiana, Carlos Trudeau, dated the 3d September, 1798. Certified to be conformable to the survey returned by Luke Collins, deputy surveyor. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced in support of the claim. The commissioners, however, believing it to be such a claim as would have been deemed valid, under the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

Remarks on the foregoing list of land claims with references to the reported numbers.

No. 1. BENJAMIN ANDRUS, six hundred and forty acres, claimed by settlement. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and by no other document of title. François Borrel, before the Board, 16th of October, 1810, hath deposed, "that, about thirteen years ago, he recollects that the claimant cut timber on the land, and cut roads on the same; that it was considered by the neighbors as his land; he knows of no permission that the claimant had, neither does he know of its being inhabited or cultivated prior to the year 1803." No other evidence has been adduced in the claim. The claimant holding other lands, under the Spanish Government, the titles of which have been confirmed either to himself or persons to whom he had sold, and not having settled or cultivated the one under consideration, as required by law, it is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 2. DAVID ANDRUS claims two hundred and three and four one-hundredths acres under an order of survey in his favor, dated 4th May, 1795, for six arpents in front by forty in depth. The order of survey, with a plat, dated in 1806, accompanies the notice of the claim. This being a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, would have been valid under the Spanish Government, its confirmation is recommended, although no proof of occupancy has been adduced.

No. 3. JOHN ABSHIRE claims three hundred and thirty-eight and fifty one-hundredths acres by settlement. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat, dated in 1806, and by no other document of title. George Cummings hath deposed, "that, in the year 1798, the claimant was settled on the land claimed, and inhabited and cultivated the same until the year 1801, when he removed therefrom; that he was again residing on it in the year 1805, but whether any person lived on it, or whether it was cultivated between those periods of time, this deponent could not say; that said claimant was, on the 20th day of December, 1803, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family." Francis Daniel, before the Board, the 23d June, 1808, hath deposed, "that, about twelve or fourteen years ago, the claimant resided on the west side of bayou Vermilion, at the place where George Cummings afterwards resided; that, after living there some years, he left the said land and resided elsewhere; that, about four years ago, or better, he settled on the same side of the Vermilion, about ten acres higher up the bayou, and has continued to reside there ever since." Before Richard Cocke, 15th June, 1809, in Attakapas, Peter Lee hath deposed, "that his brother, Mark Lee, went in the fall of 1802 to reside upon the land claimed, as the tenant of the present claimant; that he continued to reside thereon until the autumn of the ensuing year; the particular month is not recollected by the deponent, but he thinks it was some time about Christmas of that year that he moved from the said land. The deponent further says, that the said Mark Lee planted thereon, in the spring of the year 1803, about five acres in corn, which was destroyed by the cattle when the corn was about waist high." It not being established by the evidence that the land claimed was inhabited and cultivated by the claimant, or for his use, on the 20th day of December, 1803, as required by law, the Board of Commissioners report this claim as one which they are not authorized to confirm, but of which, from the length of possession, and a persuasion that the claimant has never abandoned it, they recommend the confirmation.

No. 4. JOHN BERARD claims the land embraced by a survey of Carlos Trudeau, late Surveyor General of Louisiana, dated in 1800. In support of this claim has been filed the plat of survey, dated as above, with the petition of the claimant for the land, and an order of survey in his favor, dated 23d January, 1788, for ten arpents in front by the depth of forty, at the back of his land, fronting on the bayou Teche. From the certificate of the commandant, Chevalier de Clouet, annexed to the said petition, it appears that it was the object of the petitioner to obtain a piece of woodland for supplying cypress timber for fencing the front tract on which he resided. The Surveyor

General, finding that the depth of forty arpents, as conceded by the order of survey, did not reach the woods, has thought proper to extend the depth so far as to cross the claim of Agricole Fusilier, and include about one hundred and thirty-six acres of woods on the east side of said Fusilier's claim. Of the quantity conceded by order of survey, the claim to two hundred and fourteen and forty-two one-hundredths acres has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 2,211, leaving one hundred and twenty-four acres, the residue of the order of survey, unconfirmed. To pursue the concession or order of survey by the Government, these one hundred and twenty-four acres would have conflicted with the land of Agricole Fusilier, which being discovered by the Surveyor General, he has, to use his own expressions, "leaped over the said Fusilier's, and taken the deficiency on the opposite side;" and, also, about twelve acres more than the order of survey was granted for. The commissioners, doubting the authority of the Surveyor General, in locating land, to depart from the tenor of the concession in the manner he has evidently done in the case under consideration, and unwilling to establish a precedent which might govern others similarly circumstanced, by the confirmation of this, have deemed it most proper to report the claim of one hundred and thirty-six acres, which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed on the ground of the land being solicited for the use of wood, and the length of time it has been occupied by the claimant, or for his use. The following testimony, in substance, is adduced in support of the claim: John Pierre Decuir, before the Board, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has been in the constant use and possession of the claimant for more than twenty-two years; that it was petitioned for to supply his contiguous farms with fire-wood and timber, and has been resorted to for that purpose, without interruption, during the above period." Andre Martin hath deposed, "that a Mr. Fagot, son-in-law to the claimant, inhabited and cultivated the part on the Big Woods, (Grand Bois,) as tenant of the claimant, from the year 1796 to 1808."

No. 5. FRANÇOIS BROUSSARD claims seven hundred and thirty acres, by purchase from Bernard, chief of Attakapas Indians, and son of Ashnoya, (whom he represents,) by deed of sale passed before Honoré de la Chaise, the 10th September, 1800; with the notice of the claim, is filed the said deed of sale, and a plat of survey, dated in 1806. Andre Martin, before the Board, the 5th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has been occupied by the claimant as a vacherie twenty-five years, and has been actually inhabited and cultivated by a son of the claimant the last fifteen or sixteen years." It will be seen that one claim under occupancy has been confirmed to the claimant, by certificate B, No. 1,253. This, therefore, is reported, recommending the confirmation from the length of time which the land has been occupied by the son of the claimant, giving it the form represented by the plat of survey filed with the notice. No importance is attached to the Indian sales not sanctioned by the Governor, and for land not occupied by the Indians at the date of their sales. See remarks on Indian sales in report on claims in the county of Opelousas, No. 1, page 93.

No. 6. THE WIDOW AND HEIRS OF RICHARD BELL claim four hundred arpents at a place called Grand Cote. With the notice of this claim is filed the petition of Richard Bell for the land, and an order of survey in his favor, dated at New Orleans, the 18th April, 1792, with a plat of survey by the late Surveyor General of Louisiana, Carlos Trudeau, dated in 1799. No proof to establish the occupancy of the land has been adduced, and it has been made known to the commissioners that Louis C. de Blanc, of Attakapas, claims the same land under a title of subsequent date, as will be seen by having reference to report No. 34, and the caveat therein transcribed. The commissioners can have no right to decide between the conflicting claims of individuals. Whether the abandonment mentioned in the caveat of the adverse claimant, and the subsequent concession of the same land, are to be considered as legal, are questions which belong to the courts of justice to decide. Keeping out of view the contestation above suggested, this claim appears fair and just, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 7. HILAIRE BOUTLE claims twenty-five arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, being the second depth of his land which fronts on the bayou Teche. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the party for the land, and an order of survey in his favor for the same, dated the 18th August, 1791, with a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated 4th June, 1793. The land having been solicited for pasture, and on account of the scarcity of wood on the front tract, it is to be presumed that it was not intended for culture, or to be inhabited, although the order of survey requires, expressly, that the conditions of making the road, cutting down the wood, &c., should be complied with, and that, if the land shall not have been settled in three years, the concession should be null, and, also, that the land should be surveyed. No proof of occupancy has been adduced, but the commissioners, viewing the conditions expressed in the order of survey as a matter of form only, and inapplicable to the purposes of the concession, recommend the confirmation of the claim in the form represented by the plat of survey filed with the notice.

No. 8. CLAUDE BROUSSARD claims two hundred and eighty acres on bayou Vermilion, by settlement, and an order of survey, which is supposed to be lost. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated 9th May, 1796, certifying that the survey was made in virtue of a decree of the Government. John Bte. Broussard hath deposed, "that, in the year 1796, the claimant built a cabin on the land claimed, and that he cultivated the said land until the year 1801." Francis Broussard, before the Board, 6th October, 1812, hath deposed, in substance, "that the claimant inhabited and cultivated the land from the year 1796 to the year 1806 or 1807; that, about the year 1801, there was a removal of some of the land-marks, in consequence of a lawsuit between the claimant and one Trahan, and he supposed that it was to this circumstance that the before mentioned witness (John Bte. Broussard) had reference in his testimony, as it must have been known to said witness that the claimant resided on the land at least five years after 1801." This claim cannot be confirmed under settlement by the Board, on account of other lands having been granted to the claimant, and confirmed, as appears by the certificates of the commissioners, Nos. 1,801, 1,802, 1,803, and 2,186. Giving due credit, however, to the certificate of the surveyor, which states that the land was surveyed in consequence of a decree of the Government, and, considering the length of time which the claimant has occupied the land, the Board have no hesitation in recommending a confirmation of the claim conformably to the plat of survey filed with the notice.

No. 9. JAMES BUE claims six hundred and forty acres on bayou Sallé. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document of title, except a plat of survey, dated in 1806. William Addison, before the Board, 14th December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1796, James Bue obtained a requête from the commandant of Attakapas, for ten acres of land front, lying on the bayou Salle; that, not being contented with the quantity of land contained in the requête, it was amended so as to include ten acres on the other side of the bayou, with the ordinary depth; that, in the year 1798, he settled upon the said land, and resided on and cultivated the same for two years; since which time the land has remained uninhabited. From the period last mentioned, the said tract of land has always been considered, by the people of the neighborhood, as the property of the said James Bue. At the time the said Bue inhabited the said land, he was a man above twenty-one years of age." The evidence in this claim is not such as would authorize the commissioners to confirm the claim; nevertheless, as it is satisfactorily established that the land had been early occupied, and a respectable witness declares that there had been a concession for it, the confirmation is recommended according to the plat filed in the claim, which appears to embrace only five hundred and forty acres, all the land found vacant between the lands of Samuel Jones and the heirs of Wm. Johnson.

No. 10. JOSEPH BIROT claims forty acres of land in front by one hundred and twenty in depth, in the quarter of the Queue de Tortue, at the lower part of the gully of the Tigre, by order of survey, dated at New Orleans, the 18th February, 1783. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, dated 15th January, 1783, and a certificate signed Louis Cher. de Clouet, dated 21st January, 1783, declaring the land to be vacant, and the order of survey, as above mentioned, signed Estevan Miro. No proof of occupancy has been offered. The order of survey bears no evidence of its having been recorded in New Orleans, and the commissioners have doubts of its authenticity. The signatures of the commandant and Governor are believed to be counterfeits. The paper itself has also been stained in such a manner as to induce suspicion. Under these circumstances, the commissioners are under the necessity of reporting this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 11. JOHN and HENRY BOSLER claim one thousand arpents, equal to eight hundred and forty-six and twenty-eight one-hundredths acres of land, immediately above the junction of a branch of the Chafalaya with the bayou Teche. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimants for twenty-five arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, dated 7th December, 1801, and sanctioned by the then commandant, Louis C. de Blanc. The claimants having adduced testimony to establish occupancy, by which, under the provisions of the acts of Congress, they are entitled to six hundred and forty acres of the land, their claim has been confirmed, to that extent, by the certificate of the commissioners, B, No. 1,415. Although the commissioners do not think themselves authorized to confirm the whole claim, they are of opinion it would have been valid under the Spanish Government, and, therefore, recommend the confirmation of the title for the remaining two hundred and six acres.

No. 12. HENRY BOSLER, for himself, and as administrator to the estate of John Bosler, deceased, claims two tracts of land, each of six hundred and forty acres, making, together, one thousand two hundred and eighty acres, by settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence or document of title, except two plats of survey, dated in 1806, each for six hundred and forty acres, embracing the same land claimed by John and Henry Bosler in their notice, No. 11, next preceding this. This, therefore, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 13. JOSEPH BORREL claims six hundred and forty acres on the east side of bayou Teche. No document of title accompanies the notice of the claim. John Baptiste Borgoise, before Woodson Wren, justice of the peace of the parish of St. Martin's, 6th August, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was cultivated and inhabited in the year 1799, and continued to be inhabited and cultivated five or six years in regular succession." The witness has not stated that the claimant was the head of a family, not [nor] that the land was occupied or cultivated by him, or for his use. It is understood he is still a single man, perhaps from thirty to thirty-five years of age, and resides in the family of his mother. A claim has been confirmed under occupancy by certificate B, No. 1,205, to the heirs of Joseph Borrel, of whom the claimant is one. This claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 14. HYACINTH BERNARD claims about forty-three arpents in front of land on each side of bayou Teche, by three deeds of conveyance, which accompany this notice; the first, dated the 1st of March, 1804, passed before Henry Hopkins, civil commandant of Attakapas and Opelousas, by which "Baptiste, chief of the Indians called Chitimachas," sells to the claimant one tract of eight arpents front, on each side of the bayou Teche, descending from the boundary of Frederick Pellerin, for the sum of three hundred and twenty dollars. The other tract, having twelve arpents front on both sides of said bayou, ascending from the boundary of Baptiste Carmouche, for the sum of three hundred dollars, making, together, the sum of six hundred and twenty dollars, which the seller acknowledges to have received; the said tracts of land to have all the depth which the Indians are entitled to from the Spanish Government. The second deed, passed before said commandant, bears date the 29th April, 1804, by which Philip Verret acknowledges to have sold to the claimant eleven and one-third arpents front, on both sides of the bayou Teche, with the common depth, lying between the land of Baptiste Lorrain and Vallery Martin, for the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars. The third deed passed before Edward C. Nichols, judge, the 19th November, 1805, by which Solieau Ronge and Arconane, son of Baptiste, chief of sword, acting in behalf of their village, sell to the claimant thirteen arpents front, on each side of the bayou Teche, adjoining to the eight arpents which the said Indians had already sold to said claimant, and two other arpents adjoining the above, to be taken above their village, for which they acknowledge to have received payment. The notice is unaccompanied by any other document, and no evidence has been offered to establish the title of the Indians from whom the claim is derived. The commissioners refer to No. 1, page 93, of their report on claims in the county of Opelousas, by which it will be seen that this claim is of a description which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 15. PIERRE BERNARD and CYPRIEN ARSENEAU claim eighteen arpents front, by the depth of forty, being a prolongation of the depth of the land on which they reside, on bayou Vermilion. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a certified copy of the original document by William Gurley, Register of the Land Office in New Orleans, which, translated, is, in substance, as follows:

MARCH 6, 1801, Cyprien Arseneau makes known that, having purchased a tract of land on the bayou Vermilion, adjoining Will. Carothers, on which the woods extend to a considerable depth from the bayou, and in the prairie part there being much low, marshy land unfit for culture, he prays a grant of forty arpents in depth as a prolongation of the one he had purchased, of eighteen arpents front; 23d April, 1802, ordered, by the acting intendante, that the petition be laid before the fiscal; 20th May, 1802, the fiscal, Gilbert Leonard, certifies, that, on viewing the papers, the land may be granted if it will not prejudice the neighbors; 2d of June, 1802, decreed, as the petitioner is already settled on the land, let him be notified that he may have the land petitioned for for its value, and that it shall be taxed, and when the estimation shall be known, he shall be provided with his complete title.

MORALIS SERRANO.

The occupancy of the land seems to have been admitted by the Intendant. There is no evidence of the claimant having obtained any other concession from the Spanish Government. This claim, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 16. WILLIAM BIGGS claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the bayou Teche, by settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title, except a plat of survey, dated in 1806. Louis C. De Blanc, formerly commandant of Attakapas, under date 4th December, 1809, certifies "that, in June, 1801, William Biggs having presented a passport from Governor Grandpre, dated 11th June of the same year, I have permitted him to take possession, and to settle on a portion of land on the east part of the bayou Teche, a mile, or about a mile from its junction with the Chafaylia, until he could procure the title of the Government; it being understood that this portion of land should belong to the domain, and be of no prejudice to any one." Benjamin Russ, witness, 13th December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1802, he, the deponent, assisted the claimant in clearing about one acre of ground on the tract of land claimed, on which the claimant planted canes." John Stewart, on the 13th of December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1803, this deponent was several times on the tract of land claimed, and saw the claimant, with his people, at work thereon. This deponent cannot positively say whether the claimant was residing on the land on the 20th of December, in 1803, but he recollects that it was late in the season when he cut his canes and carried them to the mill. The improvement consisted of about one acre of cleared land, which was cultivated in canes that year, but no house." William Addison, on the 14th December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1802, the claimant cleared about two or three acres on the land claimed, and planted half an acre in sugar canes; that the year following he cultivated the said canes, and in the fall of the year he cut the same, and carried them to the works of the said deponent to be manufactured; that neither the claimant nor any person for him resided upon the land during the time mentioned above; that the claimant, at that time, was a man above the age of twenty-one years, and resided in Louisiana." Edward Marshal, on the 12th of April, 1810, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1802, the claimant sent a man by the name of Charles McMullin to reside on the land and improve it, for which he was to have the use of it for some years; that when he left the neighborhood, in the fall of the year 1804, the said Charles McMullin was living on the land claimed by the permission of the claimant; that the claimant was over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family. He further states, that he always heard that the claimant had permission from the proper Spanish officer to settle on the aforesaid tract of land." Benjamin Russ, on the 12th April, 1810, hath deposed, "that, in the spring of the year 1802, he cleared about an acre of land for the claimant, which was planted in cane that spring; that also he, the deponent, recollects perfectly that the following year he had a man living on it in behalf of the claimant; that he thinks further, that he was residing on the land about Christmas; of this he is not positive. Louis C. De Blanc, before Judge Johnson, of Attakapas, the 15th September, 1812, hath deposed, "that, on or about the 1st of January, 1801, whilst acting as commandant of Attakapas, he gave the said claimant a written permission to settle the land claimed, but does not know what has become of it." William Addison and Jonathan Smith, before Jehu Wilkins, parish judge of St. Mary's, Attakapas, by commission from the Board, 16th July, 1814, hath deposed, in substance, "that the land claimed was inhabited and cultivated on, and prior to, the 20th day of December, 1803, by one Charles McMullin, for the use and benefit of William Biggs, and that the land has been inhabited and cultivated for the use and benefit of said Biggs, without intermission, from that time to the present, 16th July, 1814." The evidence in this claim is too contradictory to authorize the Board to confirm it; nevertheless, as the claimant seems to have cultivated the land by express permission of the competent Spanish authority, and as there is no evidence of his having obtained any other concession from the Spanish Government, the confirmation of this claim is recommended, confining the location to so much front as will, with forty arpents in depth, include the quantity claimed, six hundred and forty acres.

No. 17. JOHN CHOAT claims six hundred and forty acres on [at] Chafalaya island, called the island of St. Clair. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and appears to be for the same land, the title of which has been confirmed by the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 1,973. This, therefore, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 18. JOHN CORMIER claims four and a half arpents front on the bayou Caron Crow, with the depth of forty arpents on each side, by donation of three arpents on each side from Simon Le Blanc, and one and a half arpents on each side by purchase from St. Julien. The title, of which this is a part, having been confirmed to the grantee, Simon Le Blanc, by commissioners' certificate, marked A, No. 1,225, this is reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 19. DENNIS CARLINE claims twenty acres front on the east side of bayou Petitance. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of conveyance, dated 30th December, 1786, from François Gravemberg to François Pomet, for twenty arpents front, on the west side only of bayou Petitance, at the place called Tallow Island, adjoining to François Gravemberg on one side, and on the other, in descending, to François Lelue; also, a deed of conveyance, dated 26th July, 1794, from Madame John Bte. Bourgeois and husband, to Dennis Carline, for twenty arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, on the bayou Petitance; bounded below by François Lelue, and above by the Widow Pellerin: the seller delivering the title to the purchaser in the presence of the commandant. No other document has been adduced in support of the claim, nor proof to establish occupancy, but, from the length of time the claimant has been possessed of the land, as appears by the date of the deeds, the commissioners have no hesitation in recommending the confirmation of the claim to the extent of fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents. The other five arpents front being within a claim already confirmed to François Gravemberg, the grantee, in whose claim is filed a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor under the Spanish Government, embracing the claim now under consideration.

No. 20. DENNIS CARLINE claims twenty arpents front of land on both sides of the bayou Teche, with the depth of forty, said to be part of a tract granted to Madame Guesnard. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 21. JOHN BAPTISTE COMMENT claims $485\frac{60}{100}$ acres of land in the prairie of Cotegelle, by settlement. Joseph Soulier, on the 12th June, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about seven years ago, the claimant commenced cultivating and improving the land claimed, and has continued to cultivate the same ever since, and that he, nor any other person for him, resided thereon on the 20th day of December, 1803; at that day the claimant was twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family; that, about three years ago, the claimant settled on the land claimed, and continued to reside thereon ever since." Pierre Grange, 23d November, 1812, hath deposed, "that it is about fourteen years ago, when he removed to the county of Attakapas to reside, and that, about two years after, the claimant went to reside on the land claimed, and he continued to reside on and cultivate the same ever since." Joseph Landry, 28th October, 1812, hath deposed, "that, about eleven or twelve years ago, he does not recollect which, the claimant settled on the land claimed, and that it has continued to be inhabited and cultivated ever since." The deponent further observes, "he knows of no permission the claimant had from any Spanish authority." The evidence is contradictory, and the claim reported on that account. From the evidence of Joseph Soulier, it would appear that the land was not occupied on the 20th day of December, 1803. The other two witnesses, Grange and Landry, concur in their testimony, that the land was occupied at least three consecutive years previous to the change of Government. It does not appear that there has been any land conceded to the claimant by the Spanish Government. The confirmation of the claim is recommended.

No. 22. JOHN CHOAT claims ten arpents, by eighty, on both sides of the bayou Teche, by concession from the Baron Carondelet, dated 7th day of August, 1792. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and it is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 23. JOHN CARLISLE claims eight arpents, by forty, on the waters of the bayou Teche, by a title to some person deceased, not named. The notice is unaccompanied by any document. William Knight, 31st August, 1812, hath deposed, "that, about the year 1800, the claimant was improving the land claimed, by planting trees and building a house, and cultivating a part of the land, but that he did not reside on the land, and, in the year 1802, he sold the said tract of land to John and Henry Bosler, neither of whom resided on the land, but continued working on the same until they sold to Philo Norton, about the year 1808. The deponent knows of no permission from the Spanish Government to the claimant for the above tract of land." No other evidence has been adduced in support of the claim. From the evidence of the land not having been inhabited, either by the original claimant or any person claiming under him, the commissioners are induced to report this as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 24. JAMES CLARK claims six hundred and forty acres on bayou Salle, claimed under settlement. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice. Pierre Virdine, the 15th day of December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, about seven years ago, James Clark put his cattle on the bayou Salle, and cut some timber on the land claimed; that, previous to the 20th day of December, 1803, it was neither inhabited nor cultivated; that, at the time he drove his cattle to the bayou Salle, he claimed the said tract of land; that, about four years ago, he cleared about four acres of land on the said land, and intended to settle thereon, but was prevented by the orders of Colonel Hopkins, then commandant of Attakapas. No other evidence in support of the claim has been offered; and one claim, under settlement, having been confirmed to the claimant, as appears by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,619, this is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 25. BAPTISTE CALAIS claims six arpents front, by forty in depth, at the back of his land, fronting on bayou Teche, and setting forth that he has no other land conceded to him by the Spanish Government. The notice of the claim is accompanied by his petition for the land, dated 17th August, 1801, setting forth that the land solicited is necessary for his culture, and pasturage for his cattle, and that he has never obtained a grant of land from the Government; to which is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, of the same date, stating that the land is vacant, and that the petitioner has a family, and is the son of an ancient inhabitant, and that not the least objection, in his opinion, exists to a compliance with the request of the petitioner. This being such a claim as the commissioners believe would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, they recommend its confirmation by Congress.

No. 26. JOSEPH CASTILE claims seven arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at the back of the lands which front on the bayou Teche. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, by the late Surveyor General of Louisiana, Carlos Trudeau, who certifies that the land was laid off to the claimant in consequence of his petition, and the letter of office of the commandant, dated the 10th December, 1802. The procès verbal (certificate) of the Surveyor General bears date the 18th January, 1803. As it does not appear that the claimant has had any other land conceded to him in Louisiana, and being the father of a large family, as set forth in his notice, the commissioners are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, in conformity with the usages of the Spanish Government, and recommend its confirmation accordingly.

No. 27. WIDOW OF JOSEPH CASTILE AND HER SON, JOSEPH CASTILE, claim four arpents front on one side, and seven arpents front on the other side of the bayou Teche, with the depth of forty arpents on each side of the said bayou, by two deeds of conveyance, which are filed with the notice. The first from Joseph Babin, Joseph Doucet, John Baptiste Seimar, Michael Doucet, and Bonaventure Martin, to Joseph Castile, for four arpents front, on each side of said bayou, dated 18th July, 1782; the commandant setting forth in this deed, that the purchaser, Joseph Castile, has two other arpents front, adjoining the above, by concession from His Majesty. The second sale, dated 20th April, 1793, to said Joseph Castile, is from Michael Doucet, by his agent, for one arpent front, by the ordinary depth, on the east side of said bayou, adjoining to John Charles Dugas on one side, and on the other to Madame Widow Castile. A plat of survey for seven arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the east side of the said bayou, by François Gonssoulin, an authorized surveyor, dated 16th April, 1799, is also filed with the notice. No evidence has been offered to establish the occupancy of the land, but, from the documents filed in the claim, the commissioners have no hesitation in reporting it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 28. MICHAEL CORMIER and JOSEPH MIRE claim twenty arpents front of land, by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by the bayou Vermilion, and following the branch that empties into the Teche, in a cove on the northwest of the prairie of Mr. Fusilier. The notice of the claim is accompanied by an order of survey for said land, of twenty arpents in front, by forty in depth, in favor of Jacques Roman, by Governor Galvez, without date, but subjoined to the petition of said Roman, which is certified by the commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, under date 3d March, 1778. A deed of sale from Jacques Roman to the claimant, for said land, bearing date the 17th August, 1798, is also filed. The order of survey is without conditions of settlement, &c., and no proof has been offered to establish occupancy. The commissioners recommend the confirmation of the claim, as being one which, in their opinion, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 29. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims six hundred and forty acres of land, under the settlement of Robert Brazil, on bayou Salle. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and a bill of sale from Robert Brazil to the claimant, for four hundred arpents on said bayou, being ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, dated 29th April, 1805, setting forth that it is the land on which the seller had lived for eight years past; consideration paid, $300.

Thomas Chote, on the 24th March, 1809, hath deposed, "that Robert Brazil, under whom the present claimant claims, settled upon the land about nine or ten years ago, and continued to reside on and cultivate the same, for two or three years; that he then removed off the land, because there were no inhabitants near him, and he was a poor man, and could not live out of the settlement, but that he did not abandon his claim to the land, but always talked of returning to the land again."

Creed West, aged forty-seven years, before the Board the 21st November, 1812, hath deposed, "that he is well acquainted with the land claimed, and was acquainted with the claimant, the said Daniel Callaghan, in his lifetime; that the land in question is situated on both sides of bayou Salle, about six miles above its mouth; that there has been no occupant on the land for the last fifteen or sixteen years, to the knowledge of the deponent; that it was occupied and cultivated for two or three years by Robert Brazil, the original proprietor, the deponent thinks, from about the year 1793 to 1796, or 1797, and not since."

The commissioners have made it a rule to confirm no claim founded on settlement, when the evidence is contradictory, as is the case with the claim under consideration. Both witnesses have failed to establish that the land was inhabited on the 20th day December, 1803; and the last has declared it has not been occupied since the year 1797. The claimant has produced no document, but an informal sale from the original proprietor, acknowledged before private witnesses, and not recorded in any office of record. The claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, would not have been respected under the Spanish Government, and ought not to be confirmed.

No. 30. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims four hundred arpents of land on the waters of the bayou Vermilion, by exchange of land with Francis Daniel, to whom this tract was conceded by the Spanish Government. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim to the said land has been confirmed to Francis Daniel, the original claimant, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 731. This, therefore, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 31. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on each side of bayou Salle by purchase from John Mix, the original claimant. The notice of this claim is accompanied by no document or evidence of title, other than a bill of sale from Mary Mercey, formerly the wife of said Mix, dated 29th of November, 1810, disposing of her right in said land for the consideration of one hundred dollars in hand paid. This sale is executed before a private witness, and not recorded. The claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 32. DANIEL CALLAGHAN claims six hundred and forty acres on the Chafalaya bay, by purchase from John Reed, who claimed by settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. March 7, 1811, Thomas Berwick hath deposed, in substance, that the land was first improved by a man named Page Belew some time before Louisiana was possessed by the United States; that he has heard from the claimant, that Belew had no permission for settling the land, and knows not whether any person lived on the land on the 20th of December, 1803. William Knight hath deposed, in substance, that Page Belew settled on the land in 1802, and cultivated about three or four acres, when he sold it to George Thompson, who sold to John Reed, who never resided on the land, nor any one for him; and no one has inhabited and cultivated it since. No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim, and it is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 33. DAUTRIEVE DUBUCLET, BENOIST DE ST. CLAIR, and FRANÇOIS GONSSOULIN claim an island called Belle Isle. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimants, dated 20th March, 1783, setting forth that there is an island of woods on the bayou Chafalaya, about four leagues west of the mouth of Chafalaya, and about thirty-two leagues from Attakapas, (supposed the church,) which island is surrounded by trembling prairie or marsh, only fit for raising hogs, which the petitioners propose to engage in for the purpose of supplying the city of New Orleans with the article of pork, representing the island to contain about one league in front by the ordinary depth. Subjoined to the petition, and of the same date, is the certificate of the commandant, Ch. De Clouet, stating that what is exposed by the petitioner is true, and that the island petitioned for is only fit for the purpose for which it is solicited. The order of survey by Governor Miro, dated at New Orleans, 2d May, 1783, directing the Surveyor General to put the parties in possession of the island solicited, confining them to the front and depth mentioned in the petition, and without expressing any conditions of settlement, &c., is subjoined to the commandant's certificate. No proof of occupancy, or other evidence of title, except the above, has been offered in support of the claim. This claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, and therefore ought to be confirmed.

No. 34. LOUIS C. DE BLANC claims a tract of land on the island called the Grand Cote, containing two thousand and eighty superficial arpents. The following is the translation of the documents filed in the claim. Don Louis Charles De Blanc, commandant, &c., having presented himself in this tribunal, soliciting the title in form, (grant,) of a tract of land in the post of Attakapas, at a place vulgarly called De Judice, exposing that the above said lands were granted to several Englishmen, one of whom, Weeks, being the only one who constructed cabins and made fields, but abandoned his settlement in that place some years ago, and retired on the other side of the Mississippi, without having left any one to represent him, and not having paid the public charges of the district, for which reason I have ordered the Surveyor General to give his information, who informs that the said land had been granted by the Government General to Joshua Garret, Gideon Hopkins, William Weeks, and Rachel Bell; that the first of those was the only one who obtained the title in form, in the year 1797; the three others were included in the return of the twenty-four surveys remitted to me the 4th September, 1799, and that, from that epoch, the interested have not presented themselves to solicit the title. On sight of this information, I caused it to be passed to the fiscal, who said that the abandonment of the possession given to those individuals, being three in number, as informed by the Surveyor General, he sees no reason why the land asked for a vacherie, should not be granted to Louis Charles De Blanc; consequently by my decree of the 16th September last, I ordered that notice should be given to said De Blanc, that if he agreed to pay the value at which the land was taxed —. But the said De Blanc, representing that he has a large family, and no fortune, and that he has married some of his children without having any means of purchasing land, and that he has had, as yet, no concession of land; in consequence, I ordered that the said proceeding be delivered to the Surveyor General, that he might make the plat and measurement of the above-mentioned land, which he did, and by which plat it is shown that the said land forms an island, vulgarly called Grand Coast, and that the whole island contains two thousand and eighty superficial arpents, measure of Paris, (eighteen feet to the perch,) which is the land measure of this province, situate in the post of Attakapas, in the quarter of the small cove in front of the lower part of Grand river, bounded on all sides by marshes. I ordered, this day, that the title in form should be given for so much. Making use of the faculty vested in this Intendancy, in the name of the King our lord, (whom God preserve,) I grant to the above Louis Charles De Blanc the said land, conformably to the plat of survey, giving him gratis, and without contribution, as I do give entire to him, that he may enjoy the same at his will, &c., without prejudice to a third person, who may have a better right. Recorded the same day, in page 85 of the record book, dated 6th November, 1802. Signed Juan Ventura Morales. The plat of survey by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated 5th November, 1802, is also filed, the said surveyor setting forth in his certificate, that the island has been heretofore surveyed and divided between Joshua Garret, Gideon Hopkins, William Weeks, and Rachel Bell, as represented by the dotted lines of the present plan, the first of whom, Joshua Garret, only, had obtained the title of concession, the others having never presented themselves to claim their right, which appears by the documents remitted to the Intendancy General, in date, 4th September, 1799, and in execution of the decree of the 26th of October last past. He gives these presents with the figurative plan. No proof has been adduced to establish occupancy. The claim of Joshua Garret, for four hundred and eighty arpents of the land embraced by the plat of survey above mentioned, being founded on a complete title, has been confirmed by the certificate of commissioners, marked A, No. 1,574. The other three claims, to wit: Rachel Bell, Gideon Hopkins, and William Weeks, will be found in the report, under reported No. 6. In this claim, the claimant has filed a caveat, of which the following is a copy: The undersigned represents to the Board of Commissioners for ascertaining and adjusting titles and claims to land in the western district of the territory of Orleans, that the title for a tract of two thousand and eighty arpents of land, on the Grand Coast, in the county of Attakapas, for which the undersigned has filed a notice with the Register of the Land Office for the said district, is in dispute between the undersigned and the persons named in the document of title, which the undersigned has exhibited, to wit, Joshua Garret, William Weeks, Gideon Hopkins, and Rachel Bell; and that between the undersigned and one of the persons above named, to wit, William Weeks, a suit is now actually pending in consequence of their conflicting pretensions; that it was in consequence of such abandonment of the title of the persons above named, as (at that epoch was contemplated by the laws and usages of the Spanish Government) that the land in question was re-united to the domain of the King, and subsequently conceded to the undersigned, which he has no doubt it will be in his power to establish to the entire satisfaction of the Board of Commissioners. The undersigned being apprised by the Board that it cannot, consistently with the acts of Congress, and the instructions under which it acts, give a certificate in confirmation of his title, because of its bearing date subsequent to the year 1800, but that his claim must be reported for the consideration of Congress, asks that this may be regarded as his caveat and protest against the issuing of certificates in confirmation of any of the conflicting claims before enumerated, which he believes the commissioners will deem it proper also to report for the consideration of Congress, in consequence of their abandonment as aforesaid. Opelousas, 7th August, 1812. Louis C. De Blanc. This document has already been referred to in the claim reported under No. 6, of which the confirmation has been recommended. The commissioners cannot decide between adverse claimants. They are of opinion that in either of the claims, the right of the crown of Spain to the land has been alienated, and in order that the parties may go into a court of justice on an equal footing, the confirmation of this claim, so far as it can be confirmed by Congress under the existing circumstances, is recommended.

No. 35. JOHN BAPTISTE DE GROUISE claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on each side of the bayou Teche. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of John Baptiste De Grouise, dated 25th November, 1776, for himself and brothers, for forty arpents front of land, with the depth of forty arpents on the east side of the river Teche, and such depth as may be found on the west side to a morass, by which it must be limited, bounded on one side by the settlement of the Dutch, and running towards Fausse Point. Subjoined to the above is the order of survey, by Governor Galvez, dated at New Orleans, the 19th June, 1777, directing the Surveyor General to put the party in possession of the land as solicited, no conditions being expressed. On the margin of the same paper is a certificate, appearing to be in the hand-writing of Carlos Trudeau, dated 11th June, 1798, stating that there is more than two hundred and sixty-one arpents of land unencumbered by the anterior titles of the neighborhood. Two letters of office from Governor Gayoso to the commandant of Attakapas, dated in 1797 and 1798, and the reply of the said commandant to the Governor, dated also in 1798, respecting a contention which has arisen between the claimant and Andre and Alexander Hebert, concerning the boundaries of this claim, have been filed with the notice; also a letter from the Marquis Casso Calvo to said commandant, dated 6th August, 1800, on the same subject, and a connected plan of survey by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, without date, but given for the purpose of elucidating the nature of the dispute, and to enable the commandant, with the assistance of the surveyor of the post, to ascertain and settle the boundaries of the land claimed by De Grouise. The Surveyor General having made his report, as appears by his letter, the auditor, Nicholas Ma. Vidal, under date 29th August, 1799, decrees that Andre and Alexander Hebert have voluntarily settled themselves on the land of De Grouise, contrary to the admonition of the commandant of Attakapas, Louis C. De Blanc, as appears by his letter of office, dated 21st July, 1798, and that the said commandant should remove them from the land, after the crop was made, and allowing them to take off their buildings and fencing. On the 2d January, 1800, the said commandant notifies Andre and Alexander Hebert, (the former acting for his brother,) of the said decree, and allows fifteen days for the removal of their houses, fencing, &c. No evidence of occupancy has been adduced. That the claimant was legally in possession of the land, is manifest from the Surveyor General's report. The commissioners, therefore, report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed to the extent of about two hundred and sixty-one superficial arpents, the part which the Surveyor General has represented as not clashing with the more ancient titles of the neighborhood, on the left bank of the river Teche, and the whole extent claimed on the opposite bank of the said river, to wit, forty arpents front, by the depth of forty.

No. 36. LOUIS DE CLOUET claims thirty arpents of land in front, by the depth of forty arpents, under an order of survey dated ——. A plat of survey by François Gonssoulin, dated in May, 1793, for the survey on the east side, and, in April, 1796, for the survey on the west side of the bayou Teche, is filed with the notice of this claim. The survey embraces this and another tract held under another order of survey. In his certificate the surveyor has reference to the order of survey under which the claim under consideration is held; but the order of survey not being adduced, and no other evidence of the title furnished, the commissioners are under the necessity of reporting the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 37. LOUIS GEORGE DEMARETS claims thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents of land, at the Cote Blanche. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for the land, and the order of survey by Governor Miro, dated New Orleans, 17th November, 1790, with the usual conditions of settlement; also, two letters of office from the Governor Miro, to Don Juan de Villebeavre, the first dated at New Orleans, 10th March, 1791, which letters, translated, are as follows: "You shall not permit any person to settle on the thirty arpents of land which I have granted, on the 17th November of last year, to Louis George Demarets." Second letter, dated 24th May, 1791, in answer to yours, No. 71, on the petition presented by John Bell to obtain land to form a saline, I say to you that this land, being granted to Demarets, it cannot now be granted to Bell. Joseph Sorrel, before the Board, 19th January, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about fifteen years ago, the family of the Bells were settled on the land claimed, and the claimant obtained an order of the Government for their removal therefrom; that, in consequence of the said order, an accommodation took place between the said claimant and the said Bell; the said Bells were to have a part of the land, but what part, this deponent doth not recollect. This deponent further knows that, from the period first mentioned to the present time, the claimant has always claimed the said land. Eighteen months or two years passed from the time of the settlement of said Bells to the accommodation above mentioned, and they continued to reside thereon three years afterwards, when they removed from the said land, and settled on the bayou Teche, where they resided about two years; after which, they removed entirely out of the country." Although there has been no positive evidence adduced of the land having been occupied by, or for the use of the claimant, there can be no question that the concession from the Spanish Government is valid; that the claim, under the usages of that Government, would have been respected as an equitable one, and the title perfected upon proper application. It is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed, leaving the question of right between the conflicting claimants to be decided in the courts having cognizance of such cases.

No. 38. THE HEIRS OF JOHN DUNMAN claim six hundred and forty acres, fronting on the river Vermilion, by settlement. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1807, embracing about the quantity claimed. Thomas Parr, sworn as a witness in this claim, and examined before Richard Coke and William Garrard, Esquires, in Attakapas, the 27th June, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about eighteen or nineteen years ago, the father of the claimants settled upon the land claimed, and continued to reside thereon, and cultivate the same, for three or four years; after which he removed therefrom, nor has the said land ever been occupied or cultivated since. No document has been adduced to establish a title from the former Governments of Louisiana, and the occupancy has not been such as could give a valid title under any law of the United States. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 39. WILLIAM DESK claims four hundred arpents, to wit, five arpents front, by the depth of forty, on both sides of the bayou Teche, purchased from Pierre Etier, who is said to have purchased from Madame Loisel. A plat of survey by Potier, dated in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice, and which is believed to be for the same land, of which the title has been confirmed to the claimant by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,440, or B, No. 1,543. This, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 40. WILLIAM DESK claims, by settlement, six hundred and forty acres of land on the bayou Teche. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. John Nisper, before the Board, the 3d March, 1812, hath deposed, "that, about twenty, or perhaps as much as twenty-five years ago, Pierre Etier who owned and occupied the land on the right bank of the river, opposite the land in question, cut timber on the tract on the left bank, for a small house, which was occupied by a Spaniard, who kept a vacherie for the said Etier. The deponent further saith, that, since the time of taking the timber off of the said tract of land, as before mentioned, the said Etier, and others claiming under him, have constantly had the same in possession, occasionally cultivating the same; but that no person has resided thereon, to the knowledge of the deponent." No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim. This claim, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

Nos. 41 and 42. WILLIAM DESK claims five arpents front, by the depth of forty on the north, and forty-two arpents in depth on the south side of the river Teche. The part on the south side, proceeding from a concession to John Baptiste Duhon, sold by him to Madame Loisel, (widow Borrel,) and by her to Pierre Etier, who sold to the claimant; the part on the north side conceded to the said widow Borrel, otherwise Catharine Toupart. The order of survey to John Baptiste Duhon, by Governor Galvez, for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the west side of the river Teche, bounded by Charles Duhon on one side, and by Claude Duhon on the other, is filed with the notice. The title (order of survey) to Catharine Toupart, wife of Loisel, by Governor Miro, dated 27th July, 1784, for fifty arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the east side of the river Teche, is filed in the claim of François Provost. The necessary deeds of conveyance are also filed, and sufficient proof of occupancy. The claim appearing, however, to be for the same land claimed in reported No. 39, and, also, by another notice, under which it has been confirmed to the claimant by commissioners' certificate, marked B, No. 1,440 or 1,543; these are reported as claims which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 43. JOHN DENILLY claims twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, "at the end of the depth of the inhabitants, and running in the large woods." The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, except the petition of the claimant for the land, addressed to Louis C. De Blanc, as commandant of Attakapas, under date 20th March, 1802, setting forth that the petitioner is an American by birth, and a carpenter by trade, and has resided in the district several years. The petition is for twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty, to be on "each side, beginning on Petit Vanson, and ascending to the depth by the Bayou Teche." The claim being unsupported by proof of occupancy, is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 44. PIERRE DUBOIS claims twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of the river Teche, having kept his cattle there, and cut timber on the same from 1796. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title, and no proof has been offered in its support. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which cannot, in the opinion of the Board, be recommended for confirmation.

No. 45. THE HEIRS OF DUNHAM claim six hundred and forty acres, by settlement, on the east side of Bayou Vermilion. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim, and it is believed to be for the same land claimed under reported No. 38. The claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 46. JACQUES DORE claims one and a quarter arpents front of land, with the depth of forty arpents, by purchase of a part of a tract conceded to John Berard. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, except the acknowledgment of John Berard before Richard Coke, commissioner, the 24th June, 1809, that the said Berard had sold to the deceased Dore, Sen., all his right to a concession in favor of his son, of fifteen arpents front, by forty in depth, at a place called Cypress island, for which the said Berard had received payment. The original document of title alluded to by Mr. Berard, Sen., has not been produced, nor any evidence of its ever having existed, or of the occupancy of the land. The claim is, therefore, necessarily reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 47. MADAME ST. MARC DARBY claims thirty-five arpents front, by the depth of twenty arpents, adjoining land which she purchased from Alexander Devince Bienvenue. The notice is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, dated 10th July, 1797, for the continuation of five-and-twenty arpents front of the land she had purchased from Alexander Devince Bienvenue, by the depth of twenty arpents, at the Isle Pevert, to enlarge her vacherie, representing that it was the only purpose for which she was induced to make the purchase, and which continuation is rendered necessary to her from the increase of her cattle. Subjoined to the petition is the certificate of the commandant, as follows:

TRANSLATION.

"It being in proof to me, that the land expressed in the petition is belonging to the domain, and it can only be useful to her, since it is low and will not admit of settlement, but fit only for pasturage, and the utility of the wood, I ordered and directed (saving the pleasure of the Governor) that the private surveyor of the district shall put the party in possession of the land solicited. Attakapas, July 10, 1797."

LOUIS C. DE BLANC.

A plat of survey by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, also accompanies the notice of this claim, setting forth that there had been surveyed for the widow François Pellerin St. Marc Darby, a tract of two thousand two hundred superficial arpents of land, at a place called Pare Perdue, proceeding from three grants of concession: the first, in the name of Alexander Devince, bearing date the 5th November, 1787, for ten arpents in front, by forty in depth, and ten other arpents of depth, with the same front, (five hundred arpents;) the second concession, of twenty-five arpents front, by forty in depth, to Don Francisco Pascalis de la Barre, dated 17th May, 1797; and the third, a decree of concession, dated 10th of July, 1797, in favor of the interested, for thirty-five arpents front, with twenty in depth, opposite, and on the same limit, and on the same courses of the land which she has purchased from Alexander Devince Bienvenue, before Louis C. De Blanc, dated 22d June, 1797. Olivier Devizen, before the Board, 26th January, 1809, hath deposed, in substance, that, for sixteen or seventeen years past, Mr. De-vince, Mr. La Barre, and Madame Darby, have cut wood and timber on the land claimed; the two first, until they sold the adjoining tracts to Madame Darby, and since by the claimant. Louis C. De Blanc, the commandant before mentioned, before the Board, 9th May, 1812, hath deposed, that the land has been granted for the benefit of the timber, and that the claimant, and the persons from whom she purchased, (Devince and Forstall,) have constantly possessed the said tract, and paid the taxes for the last twenty years. The titles, held under the concessions to Mr. Bienvenue and Don Francisco Pascalis de la Barre, have been confirmed by the certificates of the commissioners, marked B, Nos. 2,245 and 2,246. Evidence has been adduced to establish the occupancy of the land, three adjoining tracts; but, as it relates to the one claimed as a continuation, is not such as can authorize the commissioners to confirm that part of the claim. They are, nevertheless, of opinion, that the approval of the requête by the commandant, and the subsequent possession given by the surveyor, as established by the plat of survey, are sufficient to constitute a valid claim, and that it ought to be confirmed.

No. 48. WIDOW ST. MARC DARBY claims, by occupancy, about seven hundred and forty acres on the back of her claim, on the east or left side of the river Teche. The title by which the claimant holds the land in front on the said river at this place, being for the depth of ten arpents only on that side of the river, she has, in extending her claim to the depth of thirty arpents, in addition to the ten arpents conceded on the bayou, with a front of thirty-nine arpents, the lines so converging in going out from the bayou, as to include no more than the quantity above expressed. The following evidence has been taken in the claim. Deposition of Louis Judice, taken before the Board, the 20th August, 1811: "That the claimant, and those she claims under, have, for more than thirty consecutive years previous to this day, enjoyed and cultivated the said forty acres, for which she and they have constantly paid every public imposition." Louis Chachere, before the Board, 28th September, 1811, hath deposed, "that the claimant, and those she claims under, have, for more than twenty years, possessed, enjoyed, and cultivated the said land; that they have constantly, from the above epoch, paid the taxes requested, and been known as the owners of the same." It does not appear, from the notice of this claim, that the claimant intended to claim to the extent now contended for. On the contrary, she has claimed conformably to the concessions, which are for the ten arpents in depth, of which the titles have been confirmed by the commissioners, by their certificates, marked A, Nos. 874 and 875. It is thought probable that, in soliciting only ten arpents in depth, the grantees wished for nothing more than to obtain the woodland on that side of the river, which is fully embraced in that extent, as appears by the surveyor's return. It does not appear that the claimant, or the person under whom she held, had ever been legally put in possession of the additional thirty arpents for which her heirs now contend, to complete the usual depth of forty arpents; and if (as is inferred from the testimony) the cultivated fields have sometimes been extended beyond the first ten arpents of depth, so as to be within the thirty arpents now contended for, the commissioners are of opinion that such usurpation of use could not confer a valid right under the former Government of Louisiana, is not sanctioned by any law of the United States, and, therefore, report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 49. LOUIS and ALEXANDER DE LA HOUSSAYE claim nine hundred and forty arpents, second depth to their land, which fronts on the bayou Teche. In support of this claim is filed the petition of the claimants, dated 20th May, 1800, for thirty arpents front, by the depth of thirty arpents, for pasturage for their cattle, to which is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, which, translated, is as follows: "It appears to me that there is no obstacle to the prayer of the petitioners, they having use for the land to pasture their stock, and that no injury will arise to any one by granting the land." A plat of survey of the land by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated in 1800, embracing the quantity of land above mentioned, in a triangular form, is also filed with the notice. Louis C. De Blanc, before Judge Lewis, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, in substance, that the land fronting on the bayou Teche, of which this is a continuation or second depth, has been inhabited and cultivated for more than thirty consecutive years, and that, under the Spanish Government, the second depth was considered as forming, with the first grant, but one tract of land or plantation. No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim. The commissioners, believing this to be such a claim as would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 50. LOUIS DE LA HOUSSAYE claims a tract of forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche. The notice of this claim is accompanied by documents of title, of which the following is a translation in substance: September 18, 1771, Don Paul A. P. Chevalier de la Houssaye petitions for forty arpents of land front, with the depth regulated in any place where he may desire to take it, either in Opelousas or Attakapas. September 19, 1771, Mr. De Unzaga, then Governor of Louisiana, orders the commandant to put the party in possession of the land solicited, October 8, 1771. The commandant of Attakapas, Mr. Fusilier de la Clair, certifies that he has put the party in possession of the land solicited, adjoining on one side to the land of Mr. De Vaugine, and on the other to the domain of the King. In the petition, the word Teche is interlined in a different hand-writing, to supply a word which is erased, and which appears to have been Vermilion, thereby showing that possession was given of the land on bayou Teche. In the margin of the petition is a note, appearing to be made by Mr. Trudeau, then Surveyor General, to this effect: "Of front, on both sides, one side of the river being without wood and serving for common." This note is supposed to have been made at the time of making the survey, which is certified by the said surveyor to have been done in the year 1796 on the east side, and 1799 on the west side. The plat of survey and certificate by said Surveyor General is filed with the notice; of which plat and certificate the following is a translation: "Don Carlos Trudeau, Surveyor General, &c.: In consequence of the decree of concession of the deceased Governor General, Louis de Unzaga, bearing date September 19, 1771, I certify that there has been measured, &c., in favor of Don Louis de la Houssaye, as heir of Don Paul Augustin Pelletier Chevalier de la Houssaye, his father, a tract of land of forty arpents front, on the river Teche, with the ordinary depth of forty, the limits opening by thirty-five degrees conformably to the winding of the river on the opposite side, which forms a total superficies of two thousand and fifty-seven arpents (measure of Paris) of land, situate in the post of Attakapas, quarter of Fausse Point, about twelve miles south of the church, bounded on one side by land of Joseph Broussard, and on the other by the widow Hebert; the upper line being at the place fixed on by Mr. Fusilier de la Clair as the common limit between this and the land of Mr. Vaugine, and acknowledged as such by both parties, (Mr. La Houssaye and Mr. Broussard.) This survey made June 20, 1796, on the east margin of the river; but, in virtue of a declaration given before the commandant, Don Louis De Blanc, bearing date April 15, 1779, the tenor of which is as follows, to wit: This day, April 15, 1799, before me, Don Louis C. De Blanc, commandant of Attakapas and dependencies, has appeared, at the requisition of Mr. La Houssaye, Mr. John Baptiste Broussard, militia officer and trustee of the church in this parish, who has declared and confessed that, in the year 1772, Mr. de la Houssaye (here) arrived in the post for the purpose of settling in it with his family; he, the deponent, Sylvaine Broussard, the deceased Simon Broussard, and John Frahan, their brother-in-law, have ceded, by their free will, all their pretensions to the said La Houssaye, not only on their lands situate at Fausse Point, which they occupied seven years previous to that date, but he, the deponent, on his building where he immediately settled, cultivated, and resided for five years; and the land ceded by the four first named contained forty arpents on each side of the river Teche. In witness, &c. Signed by said

Broussard, Frahan, and witness. In consequence of the preceding declaration, we have figured on this same plat the land situate on the west side of the river under the same courses and limits of the east side; but, as to the forty arpents of depth, which Louis de la Houssaye claims, it shall be completed, if it does not injure the inhabitants on the other side of the river, whose lands have not been surveyed, November 5, 1799. (Signed) Carlos Trudeau. Documents from which the following extracts are taken, have been adduced in support of the claim. June 9, 1798, Louis de la Houssaye, in New Orleans, solicits the Governor for an order to compel John Baptiste Guidery Donato, Peter and Firman Bro, to pay the price of the forty arpents of land which they purchased from the petitioner, part of a grant made to the father of the petitioner in the year 1772, or to return the land of which they have been put in possession.—June 11, 1798. The Governor, Gayoso, requests information of Don Francisco Y. Luengo, commandant of Attakapas, who furnishes the Governor with a letter he had formerly written to the Baron de Carondelet, setting forth that he, the commandant, had, from documents presented to him, given his opinion that La Houssaye was entitled to the forty arpents of land, as being part of the grant to the father of said La Houssaye for a larger quantity, and included in the inventory of the estate of the deceased, as the commandant had been informed, June 26, 1798. The Governor decrees that the commandant shall repossess Mr. La Houssaye of the said forty arpents of land on his indemnifying the said Guidery and others for the improvements which they may have made on it, unless said Guidery and others shall pay for the land, agreeably to their contract, July 18, 1798. The commandant notifies the above named persons of the Governor's decree, who asks an appeal, May 17, 1799. La Houssaye makes known to the Governor that the above named persons had refused to comply with the decree of his lordship, and requests that it may be enforced, May 29, 1799. The Governor decrees that La Houssaye, having proven that the forty arpents of land was his rightful property, the decree of the 26th June, 1798, should be enforced, July 17, 1799. The commandant notifies said Guidery and others of the preceding decree, August 12, 1799. The parties concerned enter into an agreement to restore the land to La Houssaye, and appoint arbitrators to value the improvements made on the land. Louis C. De Blanc, before Judge Lewis, May 27, 1812, by commission from the Board, hath deposed in substance: "That, in virtue of an order of Governor Gayoso, (contained in the document above referred to,) the deponent put the claimant in possession of forty arpents front, on each side of the bayou, which he did in his quality of commandant; and that the said land has been inhabited and cultivated on each side of the bayou by the claimant, and those to whom he sold portions of it, for the last thirty years. Andrew Martin, aged forty-four years, before the Board, April 14, 1814, hath deposed "that he has perfect knowledge of the land claimed; that the father of the present claimant was inhabiting and cultivating the land in question at the earliest recollection of the deponent; that Mr. La Houssaye resided on the left side of the river Teche, where his principal fields of cultivation were; that the field negroes of the said La Houssaye, about thirty in number, resided on the right or west bank of the river, where they cultivated small enclosures in potatoes, &c.; that the said La Houssaye, the elder, continued to inhabit and cultivate said land for a number of years, and that his negroes continued to inhabit and cultivate the same after his removal to the neighborhood of the church; that the part on the west or right side of the Teche was sold by Louis de la Houssaye after the death of his father, from whom he inherited, to Firman Bro, who has divided the same into four portions between his children; that either by the said Firman Bro, or his children, or persons to whom they have sold, the said tract of land, on the west side of the Teche, has been constantly inhabited and cultivated from the time the said Bro purchased, about twenty-four years ago, to the present time. The deponent does not know whether the said La Houssaye ever executed any formal or regular sale to Bro, but presumes he did not, from his having claimed it in his own name, the deponent supposes with a view to obtain a confirmation of his title, and enable him to perfect the title in said Bro or his assignees. No other evidence has been adduced. From the certificate of the commandant, Fusilier de la Clair, it appears that the father of the claimant was put in possession of the forty arpents front of land at the place made choice of on the bayou Teche, the 8th October, 1771. From the certificate of the Surveyor General it appears that the forty arpents front, on the east side of the river, was laid out in the year 1796, the upper and lower limits extending from the bayou to the depth of forty arpents, opening by an angle of thirty-five degrees, and including about three hundred and ninety acres over and above the area that would have been produced by extending the upper and lower limits parallel to each other. In consequence of the declaration of John Baptiste Broussard, before the commandant, the 5th April, 1799, the Surveyor General extended the lines on the plat of survey, so as to represent the form of the land claimed by La Houssaye, on the west side of the river, remarking that the title to the depth of forty arpents on that side might be completed if it did not injure the claims of the inhabitants on the other side of the river, whose surveys had not been made. From the declaration of the said John Baptiste Broussard, referred to above, it appears that himself, Sylvaine Broussard, Simon Broussard, and John Frahan, were occupying the land claimed in the year 1772, when La Houssaye came to reside in the country, and had been residing on it for seven years before; that their claim extended to both sides of the river Teche, and that they had ceded all their pretensions to La Houssaye. From the decree of the Governor, under date of May 20, 1799, it may be inferred that the persons to whom La Houssaye had sold part of the land, either had doubted the validity of his title, or had set up a claim to the land themselves under some other, and, consequently, refused to pay La Houssaye for it. In the same decree, however, the right of La Houssaye to the land is admitted by the Governor; and, by an agreement entered into between the parties, under date of August 12, 1799, the purchasers relinquished their claim to the land. The commissioners, therefore, have issued their certificate, B, No. 947, in confirmation of the title, to the extent of forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the river, which they conceived to be embraced by the order of survey, giving an area of about one thousand three hundred and fifty-four acres; but, being of opinion that the title of the claimant to the residue of his claim, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, it is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought to be confirmed. This opinion and recommendation is to be understood to embrace, in addition to the quantity of one thousand three hundred and fifty-four acres on the east side of the river, the triangular piece before mentioned of about three hundred and ninety acres, produced by the opening of the lines of the depth on that side; and, also, the part claimed on the west side, which, from following the direction of the lines of the opposite side, would be so narrowed as to give an area of not more than eight hundred and eighty acres, provided the full depth of forty arpents could be had, but will probably be much less, as, agreeably to the report of the Surveyor General, the depth must terminate when it reaches the boundaries of the lands conceded on the other part of the river.

No. 51. CHARLES DUGAS, JOHN CHARLES DUGAS, JOSEPH GRANGE, OSITE DUGAS, MARGARET D'AIGLE, OLIVER THIBEDAU, THEODORE THIBEDAU, MARIN MARTIN, ANDRE MARTIN, ARMANT DUGAS, JOHN DUGAS, and PIERRE DUGAS, claim one thousand eight hundred and seventy acres of land on the west side of bayou Vermilion, under an order of survey in their favor, dated 30th May, 1796.

The following is a translation of the title: The above named persons, "inhabitants of Attakapas, with respect, present themselves before your lordship, and say, that, being settled on their lands, situate at a place called Grand Prairie, for the fourteen years past, with the belief that they had, in community, the woodland lying between the depth granted to Philip Wise, and the bayou Vermilion, without which they cannot subsist, the petitioners solicit it, with the front to run from the boundary of Charles Dugas to Armant Dugas's boundary, in which interval their plantations are included."—12th May, 1796.

The land petitioned for is of His Majesty's domain, and cannot, from its situation, be of any utility, except to the petitioners in common, whose plantations cannot do without it.—Attakapas, 13th May, 1796. (Signed) Francisco Caso Y. Luengo.

"New Orleans, 13th May, 1796.—Let the swamp be granted, as asked, in common, for the use of the petitioners." (Signed) The Baron de Carondelet.

A plat of survey, dated in 1806, representing the boundaries of the claim, and setting forth the quantity included to be 960²²⁷/₆₀₅ acres, is filed with the notice; but, by a re-survey ordered by the Board, the quantity has been found to be 1,870 acres. No evidence has been offered to establish occupancy; the land was solicited on account of the wood, and conceded without conditions of settlement. The Board are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 52. PIERRE ETIER claims five arpents front, on both sides of the river Teche, with the depth of forty-two arpents on the south side, and forty in depth on the north side. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is believed to be for the same land to which the claim has been confirmed, under another entry, by commissioners' certificates Nos. 1,439 and 1,531. This, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 53. RICHARD ELLIS claims thirty arpents of land front, on both sides of the bayou Teche, with the depth of forty. The notice is accompanied by an order of survey in favor of the claimant for the said land, dated 20th June, 1781, and by no other document or evidence of title. From the requête preceding the order of survey, the land appears to be bounded on one side by the land of Madame Cuny, and on the other by that of John Ellis. Although no evidence of occupancy has been adduced, the commissioners are of opinion that this claim would have been valid by the usages of the former Government, and, therefore, report it as one which ought to be confirmed.

No. 54. JOHN ELLIS claims thirty arpents front, with the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche. The order of survey in favor of the claimant, for said tract of land, is filed with the notice, bearing date 20th June, 1781. No proof of occupancy has been adduced. This claim being similarly circumstanced with that of Richard Ellis, is also reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought to be confirmed.

No. 55. WILLIAM C. ELLIS claims thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche, under an order of survey in his favor for said tract, dated 20th June, 1781. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, except the order of survey. This claim is also reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought to be confirmed. It adjoins the one of John Ellis, and is under like circumstances.

No. 56. MICHEL ELNOR claims six hundred and forty acres on the east side of the bayou Vermilion, by settlement. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated in 1806, and by no other document.

George Borrel and William Smith, before the Board the 27th June, 1809, have deposed, "that the claimant settled upon the land claimed some time in the spring of the year 1802; and that year, and every year since, except the present, he has resided upon and cultivated the same; he was actually residing upon and cultivating the said land, on the 20th December, 1803, and was, at that time, over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family."

It is believed this claim is within the bounds of complete titles, which have been confirmed by the Board, and it is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 57. CLAUDE FRIO claims twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at L'Isle Piquant, by an order of survey, which is supposed to be lost. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is represented as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 58. EDWARD FOREMAN claims a tract of land, quantity not mentioned, on the bayou Queue de Tortue, by purchase of an Indian named Ashnoya, 11th January, 1802. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence or document of title, except the deed of sale from said Indian, passed before Louis C. De Blanc, acting as commandant of Attakapas, stipulating that the land shall extend from one small bayou to another, where the said Indian should set pickets; it being part of the land which the seller inherited from his father, for which he was to receive from the claimant eight cows with their calves, and a beef, to be paid as soon as the boundaries should be fixed. For reasons given in reported No. 1, of Opelousas claims, this is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 59. JACQUES FONTENETT claims five arpents front, by forty in depth, on lake Tasse. The notice is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said tract, dated 10th June, 1797, setting forth that the land had been abandoned by the settlers of New Iberia. Subjoined to said petition is the certificate of the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, dated 12th June, 1797, representing that the land had been abandoned by the settlers of New Iberia, who had left no one to pay the public contributions as the laws required, and that no objections existed to re-granting the land; consequently, the commandant had ordered the surveyor of the post to survey the same, and put the party in possession. A plat of survey, by the Surveyor General, dated 8th of April, 1781, made for Quintard, is filed with the notice. Louis Chevalier de Villier, before the Board, 24th June, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was established more than twenty years ago, by Spaniards, and that it has been constantly inhabited and cultivated ever since, until the last two or three years."

The claimant having had other lands conceded to him by the Spanish Government, of which the title has been confirmed by the Board, this is reported. The confirmation is recommended as being a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 60. JACQUES FONTENETT claims twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, being the third depth of his land on bayou Teche, lying on the east side of the same. The documents filed with the notice show that the claimant petitioned for a prolongation of his land in 1795, so as to include a piece of woodland, which he represents to be subject to annual inundation, and only useful for the timber. On this petition the Governor issued an order of survey in favor of the claimant, dated 20th February, 1795, for twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents. On the 10th April, 1797, the claimant makes known that the concession for the second depth did not reach the woods, and solicits an extension of his title to a third depth. On the 22d of April, 1797, the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, certifies that there is no objection to granting the request of the petitioner, it being agreeable to justice, and necessary to his settlement. A plat of survey, by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated 28th November, 1799, embracing this with the first and second depths, as claimed, is also filed.

Louis de la Houssaye, before the Board, hath deposed to the following effect: "That the tract of land claimed, being the prolongation of the second depth on the left bank of the bayou Teche, has been in the constant and uninterrupted possession and occupancy of the claimant for twenty or twenty-one years, during which time the claimant has taken his wood for the use of the farms in the first and second depths, previously conceded to him, off of this prolongation. The deponent having had the collection of the taxes, under the Spanish Government, sixteen or seventeen years ago, knows that the said Fontenett did, at that time, pay taxes on the prolongation in question. It is also known to the deponent that the second depth was petitioned for to obtain wood, which was necessary for the front tract; and, although he was constantly in the practice of taking wood from the back of his tract, did not ascertain, by actual measurement, that the second depth would not include the woodland, until the year 1791, when he petitioned for the prolongation."

Extract from the testimony of Charles Olivier Devezin, in the claim of the said Fontenett, taken before Seth Lewis, Esq., judge of the parish of St. Martin, authorized by commission from the Board of Commissioners: "The said Olivier further deposeth, that he has knowledge that the said Fontenett has regularly cut his firewood on the land lying on the west side of said bayou since the demand made for the same. The Board is not authorized to confirm this claim on account of the claimant holding, and having had confirmed to him, titles for other land conceded by the Spanish Government; but, from the claimant having been put in possession of the land under the former Government, and retaining possession, as appears from the surveyor's plat, and the evidence adduced, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim ought to be confirmed."

No. 61. JACQUES FONTENETT and ALEXANDER BIENVENUE claim all the vacant land on the island of Petite-Ance. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimants for said land, dated 8th October, 1796. In the margin of the petition, under date 18th October, 1796, the Governor requests information from the commandant as to the quantity of land, and any other information the commandant may think proper to give on the subject. On the 24th August, 1797, the commandant, Mr. De Blanc, orders the surveyor of the post to lay out the lands of the proprietors of the said island, and ascertain what may remain vacant for the petitioners, which should be done in the presence of the interested parties, to be called together by the surveyor. No other document of title is filed. By a survey made in 1810, at the request of the Board, by Thomas Orme, deputy surveyor, it appears there remains four hundred and sixty-seven and fifty one-hundredths acres on said island, not embraced by any other claims. Louis Pellerin, aged fifty years, before the Board, 19th August, 1813, hath deposed, "that, about twenty years ago, Mr. Fontenett, one of the claimants, and Mr. Olivier, his carpenter, united in establishing a vacherie on the land claimed, which was continued until within seven or eight years. The negroes of the proprietors residing on, and cultivating the land, claimed the greater part, if not the whole of the term; that, in the year 1800, a man named Caruthers inhabited and cultivated the said land, with the consent and for the use of the claimants." No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim. For reasons before suggested, the commissioners are not authorized to confirm this claim. The witness has stated that the land claimed had been occupied for twenty years before the year 1813, when his testimony was taken, which would be about three years previous to the date of the requête of the claimants. This seeming inconsistency is reconciled from an examination of the requête, in which the petitioners represent that they had already made an establishment on the land claimed, and apply for a title in form. The commissioners are of opinion that the claimants have acquired an equitable title from the long occupancy of the land, and report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 62. EDWARD FORSTALL, executor of the estate of the widow Darby, claims sixty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the river Teche. In support of this claim is filed an order of survey in favor of the widow Darby, for thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche, dated 22d October, 1776, with a plat of survey bearing date 28th April, 1782, under the signature of Carlos Trudeau, giving sixty arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the left side of the bayou Teche; the said surveyor, in his certificate, setting forth that the land solicited on one side of the bayou was claimed and occupied by Mr. Barthelemy and Dauterieve; in consequence of which, at the request of the claimant, he had laid out the whole tract on one side of the bayou, as represented by the plat. The commissioners, however, attach no importance to the plat of survey in this instance, which is understood to have been recently obtained, and supposed to be in the hand-writing of a daughter of said surveyor, to which he has affixed his signature. Louis de la Houssaye, before Judge Lewis, of Attakapas, the 27th May, 1812, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, in substance, as follows: That the concession was for thirty arpents front on each side of the bayou Teche; but, by an agreement between Messrs. Barthelemy, Gravemberg, and Dubuclet, Mrs. Darby consented that the land should be all surveyed on the east side to accommodate the above named gentlemen; that, in consequence, they have taken theirs on the other side; that the said Madame Darby inhabited the land to the time of her death, and her son for several years after; that she paid taxes for the land under the Spanish Government. The commissioners are of opinion that the voluntary relinquishment of her right to the thirty arpents front of land on the west side of the river, could not entitle the claimant to an equal quantity on the east side, which is not embraced by the order of survey. They, therefore, report this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed for only thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the east side of the river.

No. 63. JOHN GRAVIER and EDWARD FORSTALL claim thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on bayou Tortue, said to be part of a grant to Dauterieve for a league and a half front. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a certificate of the commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, of which the following is a translation: "1775, December 8th. In execution of the order of his lordship, Mr. De Unzaga, Governor General of this province, I, the undersigned, captain commandant of Opelousas and Attakapas, certify to have given possession to Mr. Dauterieve, an ancient captain of infantry, of a tract of land of one and a half leagues front, and half a league in depth, on the west of bayou Tortue, at Vermilion, bounded on one side by a cluster of oaks, and on the other by a point of small live oaks, in presence of Mr. Louis and François Gravemberg, the undersigned, whom we have appointed to be witnesses to the survey." Signed by the witnesses and commandant. "I certify that the foregoing is a copy conformable to the original remaining in our hands." (Signed) Chevalier De Clouet, 13th December, 1775. The following deeds of conveyance are filed with the notice: François Gonssoulin to Laurent Segu, sale dated 13th November, 1787, for sixty arpents front, or more, with the depth of forty arpents, bounded by Madame Faverot on one side, and Simon Broussard on the other, representing that the title to the land proceeded from Mr. Degronise, acting for his wife, the widow Dauterieve, who would pass a deed of sale to the purchaser when demanded. No deed to the seller, Gonssoulin, has been adduced. 22d October, 1789, Laurent Segu sells the same tract for $5,000 to John de Lavillebeauve, who conveys to John Gravier thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty, bounded on one side by Ozane, and on the other by Charles, a free mulatto; this last sale, dated 24th May, 1805. Such documents as have been adduced leave no doubt as to the validity of the title. It is reported for the want of the original concession, and because no proof of occupancy has been offered. The claim is such a one as, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 64. JOHN GRAVIER and EDWARD FORSTALL claim thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at the back of the claim last above mentioned, under an order of survey, which the claimants engage to adduce. No evidence in support of this claim has been offered, and it is, therefore, reported as one which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 65. FRANÇOIS GONSSOULIN claims eight hundred and forty arpents of land on bayou Teche, being fourteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the left, and the same front, by twenty arpents in depth, on the right bank of the said bayou. The following is the substance of the title filed in support of the claim: 10th October, 1801. Petition of the claimant for the land, representing that he had a family of twelve children; had resided in Louisiana twenty-two years, without having any grant of land, and that the tract which he solicits had been asked for by Mr. La Houssaye, in 1795, who had had a quantity of land granted to him. 9th March, 1802, the Intendant, Morales, asks information on the subject from the commandant. 27th May, 1802, the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, reports that he had been informed by Mr. Gonssoulin, surveyor, in 1798, that there were sixteen arpents front between the land of said Gonssoulin and Mr. Vaugine, remaining vacant at that time; and, having executed the order of Government of the 28th August, 1798, he sent back, directed to Governor Gayoso de Lemos, the petition of the widow Pellerin, 14th July, 1802. The Intendant, Morales, directs the foregoing to be laid before the fiscal. 5th July, 1802, the fiscal reports that the sixteen arpents front, which the commandant had informed was vacant, and that in consideration of the petitioner not having obtained any grant of land, and having a large family, it is his opinion the grant may be given of the sixteen arpents after it shall have been surveyed. The Surveyor General is then ordered to certify whether the land had been granted or not. Notice is given to the Surveyor General, 30th October, 1802. The Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, reports that no concession of land in the post of Attakapas had been made since the date of the letter of Mr. De Blanc to the Governor, Don Manuel, &c. And if any had obtained a first decree it must be made null, as expressed in the decree, in these terms: "And this concession should be null, if, at the end of three years, the land is not settled;" and, moreover, if any one had any pretensions, they had lost their right by not having complied with the articles, twenty-one and twenty-two, of the regulations made by the Intendancy, the 17th July, 1799; that, if the land solicited by Mr. Gonssoulin had not been surveyed and settled, it should be considered as vacant, and at the disposal of the Intendant. 8th November, 1802, the Intendant, Morales, orders that the Surveyor General should make the plat which should precede the grant. The plat of survey, by the Surveyor General, dated 1803, is also filed with the notice. Athanase Hebert, before the Board, the 24th September, 1812, hath deposed, in substance, that the part of the tract on the east side of the bayou had been cultivated by the claimant and others the last eighteen years; that Edward and Alexander Broussard, who purchased part of the land on that side of the bayou, then resided on it; that Mr. Gonssoulin, at the date of his testimony, resided on the west side of the bayou, but whether on the same tract the witness could not say. It is not established, by the evidence adduced, that the land claimed has been actually inhabited previously to the change of Government; but it is shown that it has been under cultivation by the claimant, and others holding under him, for several years before and since that change. This circumstance, together with that of the claimant being put in possession by the proper authority, induce the commissioners to report this claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed, although the concession bears date subsequent to 1800.

No. 66. JOSHUA and WILLIAM GARRET claim eleven arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, on the east side of the bayou Teche. With the notice of this claim is filed a deed of conveyance from John Louis Drouet to John Baptiste Senate, dated in 1799, for eleven arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents (on each side of the bayou Teche, bounded on one side by Eugene and Honora Senate, and on the other by land of James Moulon, purchased by Drouet, five arpents front from J. Moulon, and six arpents front from Joseph Drouet, John Baptiste Honora and Eugene Senate, with the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the bayou, in both cases. On the back of this deed is an assignment from Joshua Garret to John and William Garret, dated 5th September, 1805; a deed of conveyance from John Baptiste Senate to Joshua Garret, dated 29th October, 1801, for eleven arpents front, by the depth of eighty arpents on the west, and forty on the east side of the said bayou, deriving his purchase from John Louis Drouet, and by a grant of the second depth on the west side of the bayou; two deeds of conveyance from Joshua Garret, dated 20th September, 1805, one of which to John Garret and the other to William Garret—the first for five arpents front, and the other for six arpents front, with the depth of forty arpents on the east, and eighty arpents in depth on the west side of said bayou Teche. The land claimed on the west side of the bayou was conceded by the Spanish Government, the first depth of forty arpents to Nicholas Forstall, and the second depth to J. Baptiste Senate. The claim has been confirmed for those two tracts by the certificates of the commissioners, A, No. 1,584, and B, No. 1,577. A third tract is that which is embraced by the claim, now under consideration, for eleven arpents front, with the depth of forty arpents on the east side of the bayou. The claimants have not shown that any concession was obtained from the Spanish Government for this tract; but, from the length of time it has been in possession of the father of the claimants, as appears by the deed of conveyance above cited, and from the evidence of Pierre Verdine and John Baptiste Verdine, who have declared that the land was settled and cultivated from the year 1802 to the change of Government, 20th December, 1803, by the claimants, or others for their use, the commissioners are of opinion that the claimants have an equitable title, and, therefore, report the claim as one which ought to be confirmed.

No. 67. WILLIAM GARRET claims, by settlement, six hundred and forty acres of land on bayou Sallé. Alexander Verdine, before John Thompson, Esq., hath deposed, in substance, "that, about the year 1801, the claimant kept his cattle on the land, but did not reside on it nor cultivate it until about 1804; that he had heard the claimant say that Colonel Hopkins, then commandant, ordered him off of the land, on which account he left it. Sworn to the 13th December, 1808." Jacob Hamilton, before the same person, and on the same day, hath deposed, "that, three years ago this last fall, this deponent assisted the claimant in bending his corn, and that he supposes the said claimant, on the 20th day of December, 1803, to have been above the age of one-and-twenty years, and he was at that time the head of a family." Nicholas Robenau, before Jehu Wilkinson, justice of the peace, the 15th June, 1812, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, "that a tract of land situate on the bayou Sallé, adjoining or nearly adjoining the land sold by the deponent to John Reeves, was claimed, settled and cultivated, about the year 1798, by William Garret, who continued to cultivate, and was settled on said tract of land until about the year 1804 or 1805, when Mr. Hopkins, the then commandant, ordered all the inhabitants on bayou Sallé off their land, and threatened to cut down their corn. Garret was alarmed, and rather abandoned the land, but made a crop that same year, that is, 1804 or 1805. This deponent further saith, that he well recollects that the said tract of land was inhabited all the month of December, 1803, and cultivated by him that year in corn and pumpkins." Pierre Verdine, before the parish judge of St. Mary's parish, the 2d of November, 1813, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, "that, about the beginning of the year 1802, and about the 1st of February of that year, William Garret made settlement on the said land, and raised about two hundred barrels of corn, and a great quantity of pumpkins; that said William Garret has always, since the first of the year 1802, until about the year 1810, claimed and occupied the said land, kept his stock on it, and worked it more or less during that time: and he further states, that the said Garret was in peaceable possession of said land on the 20th of December, 1803, and residing on it, unless called off on necessary business; and this deponent further states that the commandant, Hopkins, after he arrived here, ordered the inhabitants off from bayou Sallé, which alarmed said Garret, and consequently prevented him from working and improving said land as much as he would have done; but he kept possession, and did not abandon the same." It will be seen that the evidence in this claim is extremely contradictory. According to the first two witnesses, the land was neither inhabited nor cultivated earlier than the year 1804. The last two have averred that it was both inhabited and cultivated from the year 1801 or 1802, and that the claimant was in the uninterrupted occupancy of the land during the whole month of December, 1803. Admitting the correctness of the latter testimony, the claimant would not be entitled, under any act of Congress, unless he had shown that the land was occupied by permission from competent authority, under the Spanish Government, which they have not done. Under all the circumstances, the commissioners are of opinion that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 68. SIMON GEROUARD claims four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, by settlement, on bayou Tortue, at the Cootegeillé. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and, therefore, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 69. JOHN GILBEAU claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, said to be part of a complete title filed in the claim of Dominique Babineau. No document of title accompanies the notice, and no evidence has been offered in the claim. It is necessarily reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 70. PAUL GLASCO's heirs claim ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of bayou Sallé, entered by Daniel Callaghan, as administrator to the estate. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. Louis C. De Blanc, before the Board, the 7th March, 1811, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1798, when commandant of the county of Attakapas, he granted permission to Paul Glasco for ten arpents in front, by forty in depth, on each side of the bayou Sallé, in the Attakapas, claimed by Daniel Callaghan, adjoining land granted some time before that to John O'Reilly." Creed West, aged about forty years, before the Board, 21st November, 1811, hath deposed, "that, about three years or upwards before the change of Government, the claimant commenced cultivating the land, and resided on the west side of the bayou, but cultivated the land on the opposite side; that the deponent is confident he raised three crops on the land, but cannot be positive that the claimant was residing there on the 20th day of December, 1803. The deponent further states that, from information, he always understood that the claimant, Paul Glasco, had a requête for the land claimed." William Addison, before Judge Goforth, of St. Mary's parish, the 8th June, 1813, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, in substance, that the land was cultivated, in the year 1798, by Paul Glasco; that he had been told by Paul Glasco, that he, Glasco had a requête for the land from Mr. Le Blanc, he thinks in the year 1798; that the deponent lived near that place at that time, after which he, the deponent, moved away, and could give no further information about it. The commissioners cannot, from the evidence before them, grant a certificate in confirmation of this claim; but, as it appears from the evidence of the late commandant, that permission was given by him to Paul Glasco, to occupy the land which is claimed by the heirs, as it was established that the land was cultivated, though not inhabited, by Glasco, for at least three years before the change of Government, and, as it does not appear that there has been any abandonment of the claim, it is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought to be confirmed.

No. 71. PIERRE GUIDERY claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Teche, by exchange of land with Bronier De Clouet. A plat of survey by François Gonssoulin, made for a Mr. Caillavet, 26th May, 1793, is the only document of title filed with the notice of the claim. No proof has been adduced to establish occupancy. Presuming that the said Guidery is the rightful owner, and the plat of survey being evidence of possession by Caillavet, as early as the 26th May, 1793, the confirmation of the claim is recommended by the Board.

No. 72. JOSEPH HEBERT claims four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, by settlement, and by purchase from Anselm Thibedeaux, who purchased it from the Attakapas Indians on bayou Vermilion. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and, therefore, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 73. HENRY HERGERODER claims ten arpents front, by the depth of eighty, on the waters of the bayou Sallé, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government, dated 23d April, 1796. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and is believed to be for the same land, of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,744, under another entry. This is, therefore, reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 74. HENRY HERGERODER claims, as heir to his son, six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Teche. In support of this claim is filed the petition of the claimant, in favor of his son, Charles Hergeroder, for said tract, dated 26th September, 1795, to which is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, François Case Y. Luengo, of the same date, "that the land solicited is of the domain of the King." A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is also filed. John Nofper, before the Board, 2d March, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land was inhabited and cultivated for the use of the original claimant, on and previous to the 20th December, 1803, by John Carlisle. The claimant, Henry Hergeroder, however, has made known to the Board that the witness, Nofper, was mistaken in his evidence, the settlement of Carlisle being on an adjoining tract, and not on the claim under consideration. The claimant has also made known to the Board that his son Charles was about twelve or thirteen years of age at the date of the requête. It having been usual, under the Spanish Government, to concede land to minors, and the claim under consideration having progressed thus far, in a regular manner, towards the completion of a title, the commissioners are of opinion that it ought to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 75. WILLIAM HARGROVE claims, by settlement, six hundred and forty acres on Hargrove's gully, near the Vermilion river. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. Rufus Nicholson, before John Thompson, Register, in Attakapas, 18th December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, in the latter part of the winter, or beginning of the spring, seven years ago, this deponent was at the house of the claimant, who was residing upon the land claimed, and the only improvement which he saw upon the land was a pretty good framed house. How long he continued to reside there the deponent does not know; that, in the year 1804, the deponent was again at the same place, and saw the house still remaining there, but uninhabited. The tract of land to which this deponent refers lies upon Hargrove's Couli, opposite to the tract on which the father of the claimant resided at that time. Benjamin Hargrove, before the Board, the 30th June, 1809, hath deposed, "that the claimant settled on the land claimed about the year 1800, the latter part of the summer of that year, and that, the following year, he had, in corn and cotton, about eight acres; that he continued upon the same about three years, but cannot say whether it was before or after the 20th December, 1803, he left it; that the land has continued unoccupied ever since; that the claimant was above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family. From information had from the surveys in the neighborhood of this claim, it is supposed to be embraced in the boundaries of one or more complete titles which have been confirmed by the Board, and, therefore, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 76. HENRY HERGERODER, as natural guardian of Michel Hergeroder, claims nine arpents front, by forty in depth, on bayou Teche. No document of title has been adduced in support of this claim. Charles McDonnel, before John Thompson, Register, in Attakapas, 18th of December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, for nine years last past, Henry Hergeroder cultivated about fifteen acres on the land claimed, but himself, nor any person for him, ever resided thereon." The claim being unsupported by any evidence of title under the Spanish Government, and it being understood that Michel Hergeroder is a minor, whose father has obtained several tracts of land from the said Government of Spain, of which the titles have been confirmed by the Board, this is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 77. JOHN HENRY claims four hundred arpents on bayou Teche, under an order of survey dated in 1786. This claim, it is believed, has been confirmed, under another entry, to William Moore, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,201, and is, therefore, reported as one which ought not to be confirmed. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title.

No. 78. FRANÇOIS HACKET claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Teche. An order of survey, in favor of Michel Infil, for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, bearing date 6th September, 1797, is filed with the notice. In the petition of Infil, preceding the order of survey, the land is described as being situate on the west side of the river Teche, at Prairie Jacob, adjoining Knight above. On the back of the title paper is an assignment of the right and title from Infil to Hacket, dated 4th September, 1806. William Knight, before the Board, 6th October, 1812, hath deposed, "that, about fifteen or sixteen years ago, the original claimant commenced a settlement on the land claimed, and continued occasionally to cultivate and inhabit the same, until he sold it to the present claimant, since the change of Government. The deponent does not know whether either the original claimant, or any person for him, was residing on or cultivating the said tract of land on the 1st day of October, 1800." Thomas Berwick, before the Board, the 27th January, 1814, hath deposed, "that he was well acquainted with the said Michel Infil in his life-time, and also is perfectly acquainted with the tract of land which he claimed, situate on the right bank of the river Teche or Chafalaya, below the junction of the two rivers, about five or six miles; that, in the year 1803, to the best of the knowledge of the deponent, Michel Infil began to improve the land, and built a small cabin, and planted some fruit trees, but neither inhabited nor cultivated any part of the land, to the knowledge of the deponent, either at that time or any subsequent period. The deponent being asked if he knew of the said Infil having sold the land in question to François Hacket, and whether the said François, or any person for him, had ever occupied or cultivated the said land after the purchase, answers that he had been informed by the said Hacket that he had purchased from Infil, but does not know of said Hacket, or any other person for him, having, at any time, or in any manner, occupied the said land. The deponent further saith, that, in surveying a tract of land belonging to the estate of Thomas Berwick, deceased, father of this deponent, Mr. Gonssoulin, the then authorized surveyor under the Spanish Government, would, if the survey had been completed, have included within the lines of Berwick's land the whole, or greater part of the land claimed by Infil, at which time this deponent, as one of the heirs, forbid the said Infil taking possession, or making any improvement on the land: nevertheless, he did afterwards erect his house with the logs he had previously hauled in place for that purpose; that, at the time Mr. Gonssoulin was making the survey above mentioned, several persons, whose lands adjoined, objected to his proceeding, and particularly the heirs of Knight, on which account the said surveyor discontinued his operations; that, some years afterwards, and since the deponent has disposed of his claim in the land belonging to the estate of his deceased father, the same has, as he has been informed, been surveyed in such a manner as not to conflict with the land which is claimed by Hacket, under Infil. The deponent supposed that the said Infil was about forty years of age in the year 1803, and then, and for several years before, resided in the family of his sister." From the surveys lately made on the lower part of the bayou Teche and Chafalaya, it appears that the Prairie Jacob does not extend below the junction of said waters more than about half a mile; that the claims of the Knights, which this is said to adjoin, are in the upper part of said prairie, on the bayou Teche; that the settlement of Berwick is in the lower part of said prairie, near its termination, and that there may be about two hundred and eighty acres lying in a triangular form, between the land of Berwick, and that of the heirs of Knight, which may be embraced in the claim under consideration, without interfering with other claims. It would appear, too, from the surveys, that the last witness may have been mistaken in supposing the lines of Berwick's claim would have taken in the improvement of Infil, which he supposes to have been five or six miles below the junction of the Teche and Chafalaya. The settlement of Berwick appears to be about half a mile below the junction of these waters; and the whole depth of the claim of Berwick is about two miles and three-fourths; therefore, it would seem probable that the witness might have had allusion to some other claim of Infil. Without taking into view any interference which may happen in locating this title according to its calls, and not being authorized to decide between individuals in such cases, the commissioners recommend the confirmation according to the tenor of the title, and report it accordingly. Their reasons for reporting the claim are, that the evidence has not established the occupancy of the land as required by law, on the 1st day of October, 1800.

No. 79. JACOB HAMSHER claims $338 \frac{49}{100}$ acres on the west side of bayou Vermilion, by settlement, and by transfer from Joseph Duhon, as heir to Theoliste Hebert; the grant for the said land has been burnt. The notice is accompanied by a deed of conveyance, dated 15th of November, 1803, from Joseph Duhon to the claimant, for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the right bank of bayou Vermilion, adjoining below to the Pierre Meaux, and setting forth that the said Duhon became possessed of it by his intermarriage with Scholastic Hebert, daughter of Theoliste Hebert, deceased, it being his dividend of the estate of said Hebert, and that the titles of the land were destroyed by the conflagration of the house, and other articles it contained. A plat of survey of the land, dated 1806, by an authorized surveyor, is also filed, and no other document of title. The claim being unaccompanied by any concession from the Government, and no proof having been adduced to establish occupancy, or that the said Hebert, deceased, had a valid title for the land, the commissioners are under the necessity of reporting it as one which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 80. FRANÇOIS HACKET claims six hundred and seventy-seven acres, to wit, ten arpents front, by a depth of forty arpents, on both sides of bayou Sallé, by purchase of the title of John Johnson, who held it under settlement by permission, the claimant having filed the requête of John Johnson, sanctioned by the commandant, and having produced proof of occupancy, by which, under the laws of Congress, he became entitled to six hundred and forty acres, the commissioners have confirmed the claim to that extent by their certificate, marked B, No. 1,245, and recommend the confirmation by Congress of the residue of the title, being about thirty-seven acres.

No. 81. HEIRS OF CHARLES HERGERODER claim five hundred acres of land on the bayou Teche, by settlement. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim is reported as one which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 82. THOMAS HUFFPOWER claims eight arpents front with the depth of forty arpents, by virtue of an order of survey in his favor, dated 31st of August, 1795, for said land, at a place called Grand Island, in Attakapas, bounded on one side by a lake, and on the other by the King's domain at the date of the title. The said order of survey, with the petition of the claimant for the land, is filed with the notice. No proof of occupancy has been adduced. The commissioners report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 83. GIDEON HOPKINS claims four hundred arpents on the island called Grand Cote, near the river Vermilion, by an order of survey. The notice is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, dated 12th of March, 1792, representing that he had been an inhabitant of Natchez, and, having obtained permission from Governor Miro to settle in the Attakapas, solicits of Baron de Carondelet ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at Grand Cote, bounded on one side by Richard Bell, and on the other by the domain of the King. The order of survey, by the Baron de Carondelet, and subjoined to the petition, bears date 18th of April, 1792, conceding the land as asked with the usual conditions. A plat of survey by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated in 1799, is also filed. No proof has been adduced to establish occupancy. The land is claimed by Louis C. De Blanc, by a title of subsequent date, as may be seen by reference to reported No. 34, of this report, where the caveat of said De Blanc against the confirmation of this, and some other claims, has been inserted at his request. Keeping out of view the contestation between adverse claimants, which the commissioners are not authorized to decide, they report the claim under consideration as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 84. JACOB JARRARD claims six hundred and forty acres, by settlement, on the east side of the bayou Teche. This entry is believed to be for the same land claim under another notice, and confirmed by the certificates of the commissioners, marked B, Nos. 1,179 and 1,180, the first to Jacob Jarrard, the other to James L. Johnson. The commissioners report this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 85. WILLIAM JOHNSON, a minor, by his guardian, Patrick Johnson, claims six hundred and forty acres, by settlement, on the bayou Teche. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, giving an extensive front on the left bank of the bayou Teche, the back of the tract being a mile in extent, and the bayou running obliquely from the upper to the lower side of the tract, is filed with the notice, and no other document. From the plat of survey, it appears that the tract is bounded on the lower side by the claim of John and Henry Bosler, and covering the same, or part of the same land, which is claimed by William Biggs, whose claim is reported and recommended for confirmation. See reported No. 16. No evidence has been adduced in this claim, and it is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 86. PATRICK JOHNSON claims eight arpents front, by a depth of forty arpents, on the right bank of bayou Teche, bounded above by Barthelemy Gravemberg, and below by land claimed by John and Henry Bosler. A plat of survey, dated 1806, and including 270.77 acres, is the only document of title filed with the notice. Charles McDonnel, before John Thompson, Register in Attakapas, 18th of December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, about eight or nine years ago, the claimant and his father cultivated about four acres of corn on the land claimed, and this deponent doth not know that it has been cultivated since." Henry Hergeroder, before the Board, 7th of October, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was inhabited and cultivated in the years 1800 and 1801; that, in the year 1801, the father of the said Patrick (John Johnson, the original claimant,) having been accidentally killed in falling a tree, his family, consisting of a wife and two orphan children, were compelled to abandon the land, from their helpless situation, not being able to support themselves, and the land has not been inhabited since." William Addison, before William Biggs, justice of the peace, the 14th of August, 1813, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, "that he understood and believes that John Johnson, deceased, bought the above-mentioned tract of land from one Milhorn, and moved on it with his family about the year 1789; and that the land had some improvements on it before Johnson bought it, as he, this deponent, saw corn growing on the place the year before Johnson went there. This deponent further states, that Johnson lived on the land two years or more; and this deponent states that, after Johnson had resided two years or more, he was cutting out a road on the bayou Sallé, and was killed by a limb falling from a tree on him, as this deponent believes, from all appearances, where he was found wounded, which caused his death. And this deponent further states, that the family resided for some time on the land after the death of Johnson, and then left it, as he believes they were not able to subsist, being only a woman and a few small children. And this deponent says, that the heirs of said Johnson have always claimed the said land, as they have some years ago had it surveyed." The right of the said Patrick Johnson to the land has been sold for the taxes of the year 1807 and 1808, when Hayes, White, and John Wilkinson, became the purchasers for the sum of $12 23, the amount of taxes and costs, and have filed their deed of conveyance from the then parish judge, dated 24th of November, 1809, with the claim. Whether the sale by the tax collector should alienate the title of minors, is a question not for the consideration of this Board. The occupancy of the land in question appears to have been maintained as long as the circumstance of the case would permit. The claimants are considered at least as having an equitable title in the land, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 87. SAMUEL JONES claims 677 acres, to wit, ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Sallé, by virtue of his requête for said land, approved by the commandant, Mr. De Blanc, the 3d January, 1797, and by settlement, as required by law. The claimant having filed his said requête with the notice of the claim, and adduced proof of occupancy, by which, under the acts of Congress, he became entitled to 640 acres, the commissioners have confirmed the claim to that extent by their certificate, marked B, No. 2,180; but being of opinion, according to the usages of the Spanish Government, the whole of the claim ought to be confirmed, they recommend the confirmation by Congress of the residue thereof, being thirty-seven acres.

No. 88. CHARLES KULLS claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Teche. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, dated 16th September, 1795, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty, on both sides of said bayou, at a place called the Big Woods. Subjoined to the petition, is the certificate of the commandant, Francis Caso Y. Luengo, of the same date, setting forth that the land solicited is of the King's domain, and, if the Governor should think proper to grant it, let it adjoin John Vomser. This claim is reported for want of evidence of the occupancy of the land. It is believed that Kulls, the claimant, has never enjoyed any other grant of land under the Spanish Government. There is no evidence of his having abandoned his title to this. The Commissioners are of opinion that the title would have been valid under the former Government, and, therefore, recommend the confirmation.

No. 89. DON FRANCISCO CASO Y. LUENGO claims seven and a half acres, and three and a half chains front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the bayou Teche, at a place called Grosse Isle, bounded on one side by the concession of Mr. Feillon, and on the other by that of F. Decuir, now belonging to Mr. Fontenell. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim is, on that account, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 90. WIDOW FREDERICK LE BLANC claims four arpents of land in front, by the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Caron Crow, three arpents of which front being a donation from Simon Le Blanc to the deceased husband of the claimant, the remaining one arpent front by purchase from Agricole Le Blanc, the whole coming out of a complete patent to Simon Le Blanc. The confirmation to Simon Le Blanc, by commissioner's certificate A, No. 1,225, embraces this claim; it is, therefore, reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed to the widow.

No. 91. HEBERT LANDRY claims a tract of land of six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on each side of the river Teche, in the neighborhood of Fausse Point, by a concession to John Degan and Baptiste La Beauve, sold by them to Philip Duelolange, and by him to Isidore Louviere, and by said Louviere to the present claimant. The deed of sale from Duelolange to Louviere for twelve arpents front by the depth of forty on each side of the river, is the only document of title filed in the claim. For want of evidence of the existence of the original grant from the Spanish Government, or of the occupancy of the land, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 92. LOUIS LEGNION claims twelve arpents front, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents, on each side of the river Teche, under an order of survey granted to the claimant by Governor De Carondelet. The order of survey which accompanies the notice is dated 27th May, 1794, and granted by Baron De Carondelet for twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche, at the place mentioned in the memorial of the claimant, which is between the land of Borlees and Prevost. Subjoined to the order of survey, and under date 7th November, 1798, is the certificate of Louis C. De Blanc, then commandant of the post of Attakapas, of which the following is, in substance, the translation: "To quiet all differences, and to prejudice no person, the above concession is to be taken adjoining above to Frederick Pellerin, and below to Nicholas Gagniard." On the back of the order of survey is an assignment of title by Louis Legnion to Philo Norton, executed and acknowledged on the 21st December, 1808, before John Thompson, then Register of the Land Office of this district. Henry Hergeroder, before the Board of Commissioners on the 19th November, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land claimed is situated on the river Teche, and is bounded on the upper side by the tract of land at present inhabited by the said Louis Legnion; that fifteen years ago, the said Louis Legnion, then about forty-five years of age, and the head of a family, was residing on the land in question, on the west bank of the Teche, and cultivated on both sides; that he continued to reside thereon for about three years, and then removed a short distance higher up the river, and established himself on an adjoining tract of land, where he has resided ever since, but has cultivated on both tracts; that on the lower tract, being the one under consideration, a man by the name of Warford, who married the daughter of the said Legnion, settled by the consent of his father-in-law, about five years ago, and continued on it two or three years; that the said tract of land has been constantly cultivated either by the said Legnion, or persons claiming or holding under his title, for at least fifteen years in regular succession, immediately preceding this date, but has not been actually inhabited every year within that time." In this claim, the commandant having located the land at a place different from the one for which it was conceded by the Spanish Government, and the evidence not establishing the occupancy as required by the statutes of the United States, the commissioners consider themselves not authorized to confirm the claim; nevertheless, as it has been established that, at the place where the land is now claimed, and where it has been located by the commandant, a settlement was made in the year 1797, and although it was not actually inhabited in the year 1800, as it appears to have been constantly cultivated to the present time, by the original proprietor and those holding under him, the claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed agreeably to the plat of survey returned by the principal deputy surveyor, which shows that there may be about five hundred and forty-three acres of land on the right bank of the Teche, and about seventy-eight acres on the left bank, free from interferences with other surveys.

No. 93. FRANÇOIS LOUVIER claims $1,035\frac{94}{100}$ acres, at the back of his land, fronting on the east side of the Bayou Teche. The notice of the claim is accompanied by documents, of which the following is a translation: François Louvier exposes that he has lost the concession of a second depth of the land which he occupies on the east side of the Teche, in the quarter of Fausse Point, which had been granted to him by the Baron De Carondelet, and not being able to support his large family without it, humbly begs a grant for the said second depth, following the course of the limits of the front tract: this petition is dated 18th October, 1802. Written on the margin of the petition, is the certificate and decree of Louis De Blanc, then commandant of the post of Attakapas, dated 20th October, 1802, as follows: It being in proof by the certificate here annexed, that the land petitioned for by Mr. François Louvier is vacant, and as it is certain it has been conceded already to him, and that for the support of his numerous family this additional concession is absolutely necessary to him, the surveyor of this post, Mr. François Gonssoulin, shall put him in possession and furnish the plat of survey, that he may recur to the tribunal of the Intendancy General for the completion of his title. A plat of survey by François Gonssoulin, dated 20th October, 1802, certified to have been executed in consequence of the order of the commandant, is also filed with the notice. Baltazar Neville De Clouet, before the Board hath deposed, in substance, that the son of the claimant settled on the land in 1801, and inhabited and cultivated it one year and a half, after which Benjamin Louvier, brother of the claimant, inhabited and cultivated it until it was taken possession of by the claimant. Joseph Broussard, before the Board, 24th October, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land has been inhabited and cultivated, without intermission, for the last thirteen years, either by the claimant or for his use." The claimant having had other lands conceded to him by the Spanish Government, bars his claim to a settlement right; but the commissioners are of opinion, from the documents filed in the claim, that it is such a one as would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, and, therefore, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 94. JESSE E. LACY claims six hundred arpents of land on bayou Teche, by virtue of an order of survey in favor of Benjamin Andrus, dated 18th June, 1802, and conveyed to the claimant. The notice is accompanied by the petition of Benjamin Andrus for said land. Subjoined to the petition is the commandant's certificate, stating that the petitioner is an ancient inhabitant, has a large family, that the land is vacant, and that he sees no objection to its being granted. The order of survey by the Intendant, Morales, bears date 18th June, 1802. A plat of survey by the Surveyor General, Charles Trudeau, dated 17th September, 1802, also accompanies the notice, which, as well as the certificate of the surveyor, shows the land to have been laid out on the right bank of the river Teche, whereas the petition and order of survey is for land on the left side of said river. A bill of sale from Benjamin Andrus to the claimant for the land, dated 23d February, 1806, is likewise filed. No proof of occupancy has been adduced in support of the claim. The proprietors of the adjoining land, above and below the tract claimed, being the same, both in the plat and survey and the requête of the claimant, it is presumable that it was intended to solicit the land on the right bank of the river, and that the mistake is attributable to the draughter of the requête using the word "oriental" instead of "occidental." Being put in possession of the land on the west side, the commissioners entertain no doubt but that, under the Spanish Government, the title would have been perfected on that side, and, therefore, recommend the confirmation of the claim conformably to the plat returned by the Surveyor General.

No. 95. JOHN LYON claims a tract of land of about fifty arpents front by the ordinary depth, on the west side of bayou Queue de Tortue, by purchase from Indians. The notice is accompanied by a deed of sale from Celestine, of the village of Attakapas, with Bernard, chief, and Little John, captain, to the claimant, passed before Louis C. de Blanc, then commandant, the 19th August, 1802, "reserving the approbation of the Governor General of the province, being so authorized by the 31st article of the new regulations of the Intendancy General;" price eighty-seven dollars. For testimony and remarks of the commissioners respecting this claim, see the next following number.

No. 96. JOHN LYON claims a tract of fifty or fifty-six arpents front on the east side of bayou Queue de Tortue, by purchase from an Indian named Tichot. The deed of sale from said Tichot, married to the widow Potate, and acting for her and the Attakapas Indians, passed before Martin Duralde, commandant, 25th February, 1801, to the claimant; is filed with the notice; the land to be bounded on one side by François Stelly, and on the other by vacant land opposite to, and fronting, the place then occupied by the claimant, for four cows and four four year old beeves. A letter from Mr. Duralde to the claimant, of which the following is a copy, is also filed with the notice: "Mr. Lyon, an Indian Attakapas, has applied to me to complain that, in spite of him, you have taken his land, and made on it your cow-pen; if it is so, you cannot keep it, except you buy it from him in form, and in such manner that neither he nor any body else may trouble you in your possession. I am your servant, (signed,) M. Duralde, 17th November, 1800." Paul Bantin, before the Board, the 28th November, 1812, hath deposed, "that, some time in the year 1800, this deponent was present when a sale was passed by an Indian chief of the Attakapas tribe, named Tichot, to John Lyon, before Mr. Duralde, then commandant of the post of Opelousas, for a tract of land on the south side of bayou Queue de Tortue, when the deponent recollects to have heard the said John Lyon inform the commandant that the land which he had then, by his directions, bought from the Indians, was the same tract, or embraced the same tract, for which the said Lyon had been informed the commandant had sanctioned and signed a requête to Mr. François Stelly; to which the said commandant, in reply, acknowledged "that he had sanctioned such a requête; that he had done it without a knowledge of the land being occupied by the said Lyon; and further observed, that the requête could not affect the Indian title, for that five hundred requêtes could not take the land from them without their voluntary consent." The deponent saith further, "that Michel Lyon, one of the sons of John Lyon, settled on the land purchased by the said John Lyon from the Indians, about the year 1800; that the said M. Lyon was more than twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family; that John Lyon, Jun., another son of the said John Lyon, has been married about seven or eight years, and settled on a part of the same land immediately thereafter; that Gabriel Lyon, another son, has been married five or six years, and settled on the said land; that Samuel, another son of the said John, has been married about one year, and is settled on the land in question; that Elizabeth Lyon, a daughter of the said John, has been married seven or eight years, and, with her husband, settled on the land in question, where she resided about one year with her husband, and then removed off. That the said John Lyon has two other sons unmarried, and living with him, the youngest about fourteen years old. That, by these several marriages, the said John Lyon has ten or eleven grandchildren living, and that the whole of his family, the daughter and her offspring excepted, are now residing on the lands which he purchased from the Indians; and, so far as has come to the knowledge of this deponent, neither hold nor claim any other land in this State, either by grant from the Spanish Government or by purchase from any other person." John Coleman, before the Board, 28th November, 1812, having reference to this and the next preceding claim, hath deposed, "that he is well acquainted with the tracts of land on both sides of the bayou, and knows that the said Lyon now resides on the tract on the north side of the said bayou which was purchased from the Indian named Celestine; that this deponent was present in the year 1800, to the best of his knowledge, though it may have been in the early part of the year 1801, and was then called upon to witness the setting of certain bound-posts at the upper and lower extremities of the tract on the south side of the said bayou, by the Indians who had sold those lands to Mr. Lyon; that there were present at this ceremony as many as three or more Indians, among whom was the chief, called Tichot. That the post set at the upper extremity of the tract stands on a point of high land, near the lower margin of a marais, called the Grand Marais, and about one mile above the present habitation of Michel Lyon, who settled at the old village of the said Indians; and that the lower boundary was established about two miles below the habitation of the said Michel Lyon, but the precise distance is not known to this deponent, as no measure was used at the time of establishing those boundaries. That, in setting the lower boundary, the Indians would have gone lower down the bayou—and pointed to a point of woods at least one mile further down, which they proposed to make the boundary—but the said Lyon being content to go no further, they stopped and established the boundary as above mentioned. The deponent further saith, that he was present and witnessed the establishing of boundaries on the tract on the north side of the said bayou, in the summer of the year 1802, when there were present fifteen or twenty Indians, perhaps more, among whom was Celestine, the chief, who had sold the tract on that side. That a wild cherry tree, standing about one mile and a half above the present habitation of the said John Lyon, was marked for the upper boundary, and that a post was set at the lower extremity of what was then considered the purchase, about two miles in a right line below the cherry tree, to which the Indians were all consenting. That the establishment of these boundaries were, by express directions of the commandants, before whom the sales were passed. The deponent further saith, that the points above mentioned embraced a tract of land which he had purchased from the Indians, as well as Mr. Lyon's part, and that, in establishing the boundary, it was understood that the deponent's part was to extend from the cherry tree down to a certain point of woods, about three hundred yards above the house of the said Lyon, which has ever since been respected by the deponent and the said Lyon as the division between their said lands. That the limits above mentioned, on the north side of the bayou, are known by the deponent to embrace an old village which had been inhabited by the Indians, and that some of the posts of their huts were standing at the time the boundaries were established." A survey has been made of the land by Joseph Aborn, deputy surveyor, to whom the following certificate was furnished by the claimant, and filed with the notice: "We, John Lyon, Sen. and Michel Lyon, do hereby certify that Joseph Aborn commenced running the said John Lyon's Indian claim on the east side of bayou Tortue, where the Indians established the claimant's post, and did not extend the front of the claim as far up the bayou, by a considerable distance, as the point where the Indians established the upper post of the claim, the claimant not wishing to take in any more land; and we do hereby hold ourselves responsible to prove, to the satisfaction of the Board of Commissioners, that the above statement is correct. (Signed,) Michel Lyon, his X mark, John Lyon, teste, Samuel Laverty. November 10, 1810." Any title which the claimant, John Lyon, could have derived to the tract of land in question from settlement founded on acts of Congress, is barred by his sale of a tract of land held under settlement right, which has been confirmed to George King, by the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 980. His right, therefore, to the land in question, must depend on his purchase from the Indians. In the report of claims for the county of Opelousas, No. 1, page 93, the Board have already shown that the ratification by the Governor of the province, whilst Louisiana was a Spanish province, was necessary to give validity to Indian sales. Neither the sale in this case, nor in that referred to in No. 95, have received the sanction of the Governor; but the letter of Mr. Duralde, then commandant of the post, not only urging the necessity of a purchase from the Indians, as a means of extinguishing their title, but giving strong intimations that it would secure him against the claims of all other persons, must have had great influence with the claimant in inducing him to make the purchase. This, together with the circumstance of the many families which have been established on the land, children of the claimant, some before the change of Government, none of whom appear to have held any other land under the Spanish Government, and, therefore, under the provisions of the acts of Congress, might, if they had so claimed, have been entitled to a part of the land in question, are at least strong equitable circumstances in favor of these claims. Although, as will appear by the testimony, several of the children of the claimant have established themselves on the land in question subsequently to the change of Government, yet, as it is probable they have done so in full confidence that their father's purchase, under the circumstances of the case, was a valid one; if Congress should not deem it proper to confirm the claim to its full extent, about the area of a French league square, five thousand eight hundred and seventy-six and ninety-five one-hundredths acres, the Board would recommend the confirmation of the title for at least six hundred and forty acres to each family settled on the land, giving an area of three thousand eight hundred and forty acres.

No. 97. PATRICK MORGAN and DANIEL CLARK claim 8,540 arpents of land. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the documents of which the following is the substance of the translation: November, 1760, deed of sale from Kanimo, chief of Attakapas nation of Indians, (called, in French, La Murier,) to Fuselier de la Clair, passed before Mr. Kerlerie, then Governor of Louisiana, and Mr. Trudeau, aid-major, and Oskealak, of the same village, (of La Murier,) for about two leagues of land at the Attakapas, running from north to south from the actual settlement of the said Kanimo until it reaches about two leagues; the whole limited on the west by the river Vermilion, and on the east by a small river called Teche, on the condition that the said Fuselier shall pay certain articles of merchandise stipulated. On the 18th February, 1770, Fuselier de la Clair makes known to Governor O'Reilly that he had, by sale passed before Mr. Kerlerie, Governor of Louisiana, purchased from the chiefs of the nation Attakapas, his village, and the land depending thereon, consisting of about two leagues, running north and south, limited on the north and west by two branches of the river Vermilion, on the east by the river Teche, and on the south by a line running east and west, and the said sale not being a sufficient title to assure the purchaser the property of said land, he asks a grant of a league in front on a league in depth. March 2, 1770, Governor O'Reilly decrees that there shall be granted to Mr. Fuselier de la Clair a league of land in front, by one league in depth, the limits of which shall be given by the surveyor, who has been appointed for that purpose, observing, in this particular, to follow what is prescribed by our regulations of the 18th February last, and a concession, in form, shall be delivered to him on the process-verbal, which shall be made, ordering that Garee, notary public, &c., shall record this provisional concession. 13th August, 1783, Mr. Fuselier de la Clair gives to Augustin Soileau eight arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the river Teche. 7th September, 1784, Mr. Fuselier de la Clair sells to Hilaire Boutle and brothers the whole tract of land granted to him by Governor O'Reilly the 2d March, 1770, for the sum of \$17,000, except the part given to Augustin Soileau. 17th February, 1785, Augustin Soileau conveys his part to Hilaire Boutle and brothers: Hilaire Boutle conveys the land to Arthur Strother. 28th July, 1796, plat of survey for Arthur Strother, by Charles Trudeau, purporting to be a copy of plat made by François Gonsoulin in 1793, and sanctioned in the month of April of the present year, (1796,) said to have been made in consequence of the decree of the 2d March, 1770, according to the local situation, which gives the benefit of survey of 1,444 superficial arpents, without prejudice to any person. 2d September, 1803, Patrick Morgan, attorney for the syndic of the creditors of Arthur Strother, in London, sells to Gasparde de Buis the land before described, conformably to the plat given by Mr. Trudeau, for the sum of \$4,500. The following evidence has been adduced in this claim: Before the Board the 4th March, 1812, Louis Chacheré, sworn, deposes that he has been well acquainted with the tract of land in question for more than thirty years; that, when he first became acquainted with it, it was inhabited by the original claimant, who had a considerable portion of it under cultivation; and that the buildings and other improvements on it were, at that time, more elegant, and the land in a higher state of cultivation, than any other tract of land in the country. The deponent further saith, that the cultivation of the said land has been continued, to his knowledge, during the last twenty years, and, he has reason to believe, during the whole time that has elapsed since his first knowledge of the place." Also, before the Board of Commissioners on the 5th March, 1812, Nemessie Bossier, aged about fifty years, being sworn, deposes and saith, "that he has resided in this country from the year 1775 to the present time, except two years, in which he resided at Point Coupee; that, when he first came to this country, the house inhabited by Mr. Fuselier de la Clair on the tract of land in question, was by far the most elegant and costly, in appearance, in the two posts of Opelousas and Attakapas, and a portion of the said land then in as high a state of cultivation as any other in the quarter, from which time until some years subsequent to the cession of Louisiana to the United States, the said land has been inhabited and cultivated without intermission: six years of which time the deponent resided on the land in person. The Board of Commissioners would have deemed the documents of title, and evidence in support of this claim, sufficient to authorize the confirmation to the full extent embraced by the plat of survey; but, as that exceeds the area of one league square, (the extent of their jurisdiction,) they are under the necessity of reporting it for the consideration of Congress. It is not thought necessary to go into a consideration of the deed by which Mr. Fuselier de la Clair purchased from the Indians a much larger quantity of land than is now claimed, because, in applying to Governor O'Reilly to perfect his title to one league square only, he is considered as having virtually abandoned the Indian transfer. The only question the commissioners conceive that can arise, relates to the quantity of land to which the claimant may be entitled: the concession is for one league square, which, in the measure in Paris, then in use in the Spanish claims, would give an area of $5,876\frac{95}{100}$ American acres; whereas the Surveyor General has, in his plat, returned 8,540 arpents, which are equal to $7,227\frac{24}{100}$ American acres, explaining the surplusage to arise from the benefit of the survey. It is evident, however, from comparing the plat of the Spanish surveyor with one returned by a careful person who made a re-survey by order of the principal deputy surveyor of this district, that the water courses, forming natural boundaries on two sides of the tract, were either not surveyed at all, or very negligently surveyed, under the Spanish Government. From the re-survey, which the commissioners believe may be relied on for its accuracy, the surveyor has found, within the boundaries established under the Spanish Government, no more than $6,598\frac{54}{100}$ acres, less by near 629 acres than the quantity given by the surveyor under the Spanish Government, though exceeding the area of a league square by about $721\frac{1}{2}$ acres. This excess arises partly from curves in the river Teche and bayou Fuselier, which are natural boundaries on two sides of the tract, giving what has been called the benefit of survey, and partly from the surveyor under the Spanish Government taking 84 arpents instead of 2,500 toises, or $83\frac{1}{2}$ arpents, for the measure of a league. In both respects the survey comports with the usages of the Spanish Governors; giving the benefit of survey when the local situation would authorize it, (as was the case with the claim in question,) seems to have been a universal custom with the surveying, and has been as universally sanctioned by the executive department of the Spanish Government in the province of Louisiana; and, although the exact measure of a league has been sometimes employed in land surveying, 84 arpents has been more generally adopted as the measure of a league. The commissioners, therefore, decide that this claim ought to be confirmed agreeably to the limits established under the former Government.

No. 98. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY claims a tract of land of twenty-eight arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche, by purchase from Louis Judice. The notice of this claim is accompanied by an order of survey in favor of Louis Judice, Jun., for twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of the river Teche, and six other arpents front on the opposite side of the said river. The order of survey is signed by Governor Unzaga, and is without date, but subjoined to the certificate of the commandant, setting forth the vacancy of the land, which bears date 8th April, 1775, and precedes the process of the same commandant, Mr. De Clouet, putting the party in possession of the land, which is written on the same paper, and dated 6th October, 1775. A plat of survey by Ferdinand Potier, dated in 1805, also accompanies the notice. For the decision of the Board on this claim, see No. 104.

No. 99. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY claims eighty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche, say six thousand four hundred superficial arpents. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a ratification of a sale, of which the following is a translation: May 12, 1804, Mary Modesto Barbin, widow of Vincent Lesassier, before Pierre Pedesclaux, notary public of New Orleans, acknowledges, under oath, that her deceased husband did, in his life-time, to wit, some time about the year 1780, pass a public sale to John Baptiste McCarty for a tract of land of eighty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche, making a superficial quantity of six thousand four hundred arpents, bounded at the time of the said sale, above, by the public domain, or land belonging to Mr. Borel, and below by the land of Victor and Charles Duhon; that, to her knowledge, the said McCarty did, at the time of the sale aforesaid, pay to her deceased husband the full value of the said land; that the said sale was made under the promise of her ratification, which has not been done on account of the title papers having been destroyed by conflagration in New Orleans, in the year 1794; the title being for land conceded by the Government to her said husband, together with some other tracts received from Acadiens, in exchange for land on the river Vermilion; that this ratification is made, and given, as a duty which she owes to herself, having, jointly with her husband, promised to do so, and knowing Mr. McCarty to have enjoyed peaceable possession of said land for about twenty-two years past. Lepelletier de la Houssaye, before Judge Eastin, of the Attakapas, the 5th April, 1813, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, "that he knows of Colonel McCarty's having purchased of Vincent Lesassier eighty arpents front of land, with the depth of forty arpents, on each side of the bayou Teche, and that the said Lesassier purchased the same of four other persons, and was bounded above, and below, on said bayou, by lands of Madame Loisel; that he knows the land in question was inhabited and cultivated about thirty years ago, by Vincent Lesassier, as an indigo plantation, and afterwards sold to Colonel McCarty, who, for some years inhabited the same by keeping a stock of horses and cattle thereon, and that, afterwards, Colonel McCarty sold said land to Nicholas Provost, who has since continued the cultivation thereof. The deponent further states, that the said land has, for many years before the change of Government, and ever since the sale from Vincent Lesassier, been known to him, and generally, as the property of Colonel McCarty; and that frequent applications were made to the Spanish Government for the same land, and the applicants refused, in consequence of Colonel McCarty's claim, and that the taxes were always paid by Colonel McCarty up to the time the said land was sold to Nicholas Provost." For the decision of the Board on this claim, see No. 104.

No. 100. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY claims, by purchase, forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Vermilion, say three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, at a place called Prairie Sorrel. The notice is accompanied by a ratification of a sale by Antoine Boudonsque to the claimant, of which the following is a translation in substance: Antoine Boudonsque, under oath, before Pierre Pedesclaux, notary public of New Orleans, the 16th June, 1804, saith, that he ratifies a sale which he had made to John Baptiste McCarty, about the year 1784, for a tract of land above described, of which the title was burned in the conflagration of New Orleans, in 1788; he cannot recollect the date of the title, nor the neighbors, by whom the land was bounded, that quarter being thinly populated at that time. The grant, however, was by Bernardo de Galvez, then Governor of Louisiana, and the consideration paid by said McCarty for the land was four hundred dollars cash, the said McCarty being the only and true proprietor of the land for the last twenty years. A plat of survey, by F. N. Potier, dated in 1805, is also filed with the notice. No other evidence of title has been adduced, and no proof to establish occupancy. For the decision of the Board on this claim, see No. 104.

No. 101. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY claims, under Madame widow Etier, married since the deed to William Desk, a quantity of land of which no measure is expressed. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a document, of which the following is a translation: "I, the undersigned, Philip de Claslonge, at the request of Edmund McCarty, and by the authority of Henry Hopkins, commandant of Attakapas, have been at the house of Catharine Bondin, widow Etier, now wife of William Desk, for the purpose of taking the examination of said lady relative to a tract of land sold by her many years ago to Mr. John Baptiste McCarty; and, under the solemnity of an oath, the said widow Etier declares, that, after the death of her said husband, Pierre Etier, she did sell to Mr. John Baptiste McCarty a tract of land situate in Attakapas, at the Prairie Sorrel, with all the buildings, &c., then being on it, for the sum of four hundred dollars, then paid to her; she does not recollect the quantity of land by her sold, or whether the sale was passed before a public notary, or under private signature, but that she did sell to said McCarty all the land which she did possess at that place conformably to a grant made to her deceased husband at that place, of the Prairie Sorrel, claiming nothing on said land which was then her property; giving this to serve as a complete sale, vesting the said McCarty with a full enjoyment of the said land which lies on both sides of the bayou Vermilion, and of equal extent on each." A plat of survey, by Ferdinand Victor Potier, dated 26th April, 1805, is also filed with the notice, but does not comport with the above title deed, the survey being for two thousand three hundred arpents in the Prairie Sorrel, and not on both sides of the bayou Vermilion, as set forth in the deed. For the decision of the Board on this claim, see No. 104.

No. 102. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY, for his son Bartheleme, claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, adjoining Joseph Pinte de Pin and Joseph Therry. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a certified order of survey by J. W. Gurley, then Register of the Land Office New Orleans, taken from the records in his possession, 27th December, 1806. The order of survey bears date 5th July, 1786, in favor of Bartheleme McCarty, for forty arpents front, by the ordinary depth, bounded by Jose Pinte de Pin and Joseph Therry in Attakapas. A plat of survey, by Ferdinand V. Potier, giving forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of Vermilion, is filed with the claim, dated 19th April, 1805. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced. For the decision of the Board on this claim, see No. 104.

No. 103. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY, for his son Edmund, claims forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, from the end of the land of his brother Bartheleme McCarty, and running towards Therry. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a certified copy of an order of survey by J. W. Gurley, then Register of the Land Office, New Orleans, taken from the Spanish records in his office. The said order of survey being in favor of Edmund McCarty, for forty arpents front, with the ordinary depth, situate as above described, bears date 5th July, 1786. A plat of survey, by Ferdinand V. Potier, dated 20th April, 1805, giving forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of bayou Vermilion, is also filed with the notice. No proof has been adduced to establish occupancy. For the decision of the Board in this claim, see the next No. 104.

No. 104. JOHN BAPTISTE McCARTY, for himself, claims forty arpents in front, by forty arpents in depth, being at a place called Point de Pin, bounded by Joseph Therry and Antoine Blanc. The notice is accompanied by a copy from the record of an order of survey for the said tract, in favor of the claimant, dated 5th July, 1786, by J. W. Gurley, Register of the Land Office, New Orleans. The following are the interrogatories put to Mr. Charles Trudeau, late Surveyor General of Louisiana, before the judge of the city of New Orleans, the honorable Moreine Lislet, annexed to the commission from the Board, dated 24th February, 1813. Interrogatory the first. Have you any knowledge of title papers having been obtained from former Governments for any, or all, of the above described lands; if so, which tracts, what was their nature, whether requêtes, orders of survey, or complete grants? 2d. If you have any knowledge of title papers having existed for those lands, by what means did you derive it? 3d. Do you know what has become of those papers, if ever any existed? 4th. Relate all you know with respect to said papers and lands. To which he hath answered, 28th April, 1813, to the first interrogatory, that he has no knowledge of the several tracts of land mentioned in the commission as having been purchased from Louis Judice, Vincent Lesassier, Pierre Etier, S. Boudonsque, but that he has a knowledge of a tract in the name of the late John Baptiste McCarty, on the Vermilion, having eighty-four arpents front, by the same depth towards the sea; that the deceased had not a complete grant for the same, but only a decree or order rendered on requête, by Governor Miro, as it was usually done on every application for grants, and which was called the first decree of grants; (premier décret de concession;) that he has this knowledge, because he saw the original paper which was delivered to him by the late John Baptiste McCarty himself, when he, this appearer, some time in the year 1782 or 1783, went to Opelousas; that he, this appearer, has a knowledge of four grants made to the late John Baptiste McCarty, and to his three children, on both sides of the Vermilion, having each forty arpents front, by the depth of forty, which made, for the four tracts, one hundred and sixty arpents front, by the depth of forty, on both sides of the Vermilion; that the deceased, and his children, had only obtained the original decree or order on requête for these grants from Governor Miro; and that he, this appearer, saw these original orders, which were delivered to him in the time, in order to make the necessary surveys; that he, this appearer, has no knowledge of the lands which are said to have been possessed by the late John Baptiste McCarty, or his children at Opelousas. To the second interrogatory, that he got a knowledge of the title papers, which he has before mentioned, because the original decrees were delivered to him in order to go and make the survey of the lands so granted to the late John Baptiste McCarty and his children, and to several other persons at Attakapas and Opelousas. To the third interrogatory, that he, this appearer, having received these papers from the interested parties for the aforesaid purpose, went at first to Opelousas, and that when there he was called to Natchez by Governor Miro to superintend the fortifications, and was so prevented to go to Attakapas to execute his commission, because, being at Natchez, he fell sick, and, to recover, was compelled to return to New Orleans, where he remained in possession of the papers which had been delivered to him, as well as of those belonging to his office as Surveyor General, as far as the year 1788, when the whole was burnt in the conflagration which took place in this city about the month of March of the said year. To the fourth question, that he recollects that, among the papers which were delivered to him by John Baptiste McCarty as aforesaid, there were several, besides the decrees and orders by him mentioned; but that, having not particularly examined them, he cannot say if they were relative to the other lands purchased by him, or granted to him or his children at Opelousas.

The manner of introducing the evidence in the claim of Mr. McCarty, reported in the Nos. 98 to 104, inclusive, makes it necessary to investigate them collectively. It will be noticed that, in the evidence of Mr. Trudeau, he has declared that he had no knowledge of the tracts of land claimed under Judice, Lesassier, Etier, and Boudonsque, which were the claims on which the commission to take his examination issued from this Board; the commission has, therefore, been used to obtain Mr. Trudeau's testimony in other claims of John Baptiste McCarty for lands said to have been conceded to said McCarty and his sons, which are understood to be those reported under Nos. 102, 103, and 104. Extracts given by the former Register of the eastern district, from the concessions in favor of McCarty and sons, prove that Mr. Trudeau's impressions have been erroneous. The concessions are dated in 1786, three or four years subsequently to the time he has said he was in Opelousas and Attakapas for the purpose of making surveys. He has said they were for forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the Vermilion river: they are for forty arpents front, with forty arpents in depth only, which would give only half the area he has assigned to them. The word Vermilion is no where to be found in these documents; on the contrary, the lands are located in the concessions adjoining to persons who are not known to have possessed lands on the Vermilion river. Three receipts to John Baptiste McCarty for taxes paid on his lands in the Attakapas, in the years 1794, 1797, and 1800, have been produced before the Board. They must certainly be regarded as evidence of his being the proprietor of land in that district at those dates; but they are not specific as to the tracts charged, nor do they, as to quantity, comport with the claims of the said McCarty before this Board. The receipts, in every case, are for two hundred and forty-six arpents of land, supposed to be arpents of front; whereas, by summing up the fronts which have been claimed on each bank of the rivers Teche and Vermilion, they are found to amount to four hundred and sixteen arpents, exclusively of the tract claimed under the widow Etier, which they do not know the contents of. The quantities stated in the reports Nos. 102, 103, and 104, correspond with the copies of the orders of survey obtained from the Register's Office, New Orleans, since the notices were filed. The notices in those cases are for forty arpents in depth on both sides of the river Vermilion, double the quantity conceded. This, to say the least, betrays the claimant's ignorance of the quantity of land to which he was entitled, and suggests the propriety of circumspection on part of the Board, in relation to the claims for which the titles are said to have been destroyed by the fire in New Orleans. These are the claims: No. 99, held under Vincent Lesassier; the claim under Boudonsque, reported No. 100, and the claim under the widow Etier, No. 101. The confirmation of claims, under orders of survey, is recommended agreeably to the concessions. These are, No. 98, claimed under Louis Judice, Jun. The notice of this claim is for twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the river Teche. The order of survey recently produced, is for twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the west side, and six arpents front on the east side of the river

Teche. The Nos. 102, 103, and 104, each for forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on orders of survey in favor of John Baptiste McCarty and his two sons. It should be noticed, however, that these last mentioned orders of survey are for three tracts of land, adjoining to each other in the county of Attakapas, without expressing any water course: one of them calling to join Antoine Blanc, and the commissioners knowing of no land conceded to that person in the county of Attakapas, except a tract on the river Nementou, the claim to which has been confirmed by certificate B, No. 1,119, are of the opinion that the intention has been to concede the land for the last three mentioned numbers in that quarter. The Board cannot recommend the confirmation of the three other claims; that held under Vincent Lesassier, that under Boudonsque, nor that under the widow Etier, to the extent claimed. It appears from the declarations, on oath, of Madame widow Lesassier and Mr. La Houssaye, that Vincent Lesassier purchased the land, the claim for which is reported under No. 99 of this report, in separate portions, from four persons whose names are not mentioned. The deeds of sale from these persons, if produced, would doubtless afford useful information as to the quantity and situation of the land to which the claimant may be entitled. It can hardly be doubted but that some, or all of those deeds might be found on the record either of the county of Attakapas, or in the city of New Orleans. In the other two claims, Nos. 100 and 101, the only evidence adduced, and that by no means satisfactory, is that of the vendor in the one case, and the widow of the vendor in the other. The depth of the claimant, John Baptiste McCarty, having been suggested, the Board would deem it reasonable that Congress should indulge his representatives with time to search for, and produce some further written evidence of title in the three last mentioned claims, to wit, the one held under Lesassier, the one under Boudonsque, and the one under Etier; and in the event of the failure, in the production of such documents, the Board is of the opinion the claims in question ought not to be confirmed.

No. 105. CHARLES MORGAN claims twenty-five arpents front, by the depth of one hundred arpents on one side, and forty arpents on the other side of the bayou Portage, say three thousand five hundred superficial arpents. In support of the claim, the following documents of title have been filed:

Translation, in substance, 8th January, 1803. A certificate by A. Bontie, syndic, François Gonssoulin, surveyor of the district, and two of the neighbors, stating that the land, fifteen arpents above, and fifteen arpents below, the portage in Attakapas, is vacant. This given to Labarthé de Lisle, 12th January, 1803. Petition by Don Raymond Frix Labarthé de Lisle to Don Louis C. De Blanc, commandant, &c., for a tract of land of twenty-five arpents front, on each side of bayou Portage, the usual ferrying place at Fausse Point, to be the centre, with the depth on the right side, until it reaches the depth of the lands fronting on the river Teche at Fausse Point, the depth on the opposite side not mentioned, but supposed to be the customary depth of forty arpents: the petitioner urging, in support of his pretensions, that no lands had been granted to him by the Government; that the tract on which he resided was a purchase, and circumscribed by the second depth, having been granted to another person; that he intended to be useful to the public in the establishment of a ferry; that he wished to establish a vacherie, his stock of cattle having increased so much as to make it necessary to enlarge his pasturage; and that the land he solicited was subject to inundation, and fit only for pasturage, renouncing all pretensions to an exclusive right to the cypress on said land. 25th January, 1803. Certificate. Mr. De Blanc, commandant, certifies that, knowing the land petitioned for to be vacant, as set forth by the syndic, &c., and knowing it to be subject to inundation, and only fit for pasturage, it is ordered, consequently, that the surveyor of the post, Mr. François Gonssoulin, shall survey the land petitioned for, and put the interested party in possession, that he may resort to the Intendant General, and obtain his title in form; it being understood that the petitioner is to have no claim to the cypress, to the exclusion of the other inhabitants of the post, to whom it belongs in community." 21st December, 1806. Deed of conveyance from La Barthe De Lisle to the claimant, for the land as asked for in the above-mentioned petition, consideration of $2,555. 23d April, 1808, before Judge Dorminon, of Point Coupee, and under oath, the said La Barthe De Lisle certifies that, previous to the 20th day of December, 1803, he planted and cultivated corn, peas, and pumpkins, and built a cabin, on a certain tract of land known by the name of Fausse Point, or bayou Portage, the same being granted to him by the Spanish Government, as would appear by said grant, bearing date the 25th day of January, 1803; and immediately after said land was granted to him, he took said land in his possession, and held the same as his real property until he sold the same to Charles Morgan, as would appear by the grant and deed which was in the possession of said Morgan; and that he had no kind of interest whatever in the said property. The evidence of the former proprietor, given at the time of selling the land to the present claimant, is the only evidence of occupancy, and this is objectionable, on the ground, first, of the witness being interested; and, secondly, the informal manner of taking it without authority from the Board. The depth of forty arpents on one side of the bayou, and on the other until it should reach other land conceded on the Teche, is solicited. From the plat returned, the depth of one hundred arpents is taken on one side, and forty on the other. The commissioners are of opinion that not more than the depth of forty arpents on each side of the river would have been conceded by the former Government, and they believe the title would have been considered valid to that extent: they, therefore, recommend the confirmation of the claim to twenty-five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on each side, with the exception of the cypress timber, which seems to have been understood to belong to all the inhabitants of the country in common.

No. 106. ANDREW MARTIN claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the Vermilion river, by purchase from Don Louis C. De Clouet, being part of a larger tract. A deed of sale and a plat of survey are the only documents of title filed with the notice of claim. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced, and it is believed to be for part of a tract of which the title has been confirmed by the Board in the name of the original claimant, Mr. De Clouet, on which account this is reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 107. JOHN MERRIMAN claims fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the east side of the bayou Vermilion. The notice is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, dated 7th December, 1796, for said land bounded below by the trembling prairie or marsh, which petition is sanctioned by Mr. De Blanc, commandant, 9th December, 1796, who certifies that the land being vacant as certified by the syndic, he knows of no impediment to its being granted. Jesse White and William White, before the Board, 28th June, 1809, have deposed that, about ten or eleven years ago, they saw two men who said they had been employed by the claimant to make an improvement on the land claimed, and that they were then going to make the improvement. They also saw them four or five weeks after, and were informed by them that they had made an improvement upon the said land. The deponents further state, that they were upon the land claimed about six weeks after the return of those two men above mentioned, at which time the improvements consisted of a cabin built thereon and covered with palmettoes, and about one acre of cane cut down; that they have been frequently upon the land since, but have never seen any appearance of cultivation, or further improvements thereon; that, on the 20th day of December, 1803, the claimant was over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family, and at that time resided in the province of Louisiana. From such evidence, the commissioners do not think themselves authorized to confirm the claim; but, believing it to be such a title as would have been perfected under the former Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 108. LOUIS MOORE claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the river Chafalaya, adjoining lands of William Moore. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title, and no proof has been taken in the claim. It is, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 109. JOHN McLAUGHLIN claims six arpents front, by the depth of eighty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Teche, by virtue of a concession from the Spanish Government. The claim is unsupported by any evidence of title or proof of occupancy, and is, therefore, reported as one which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 110. FREDERICK MOUTON claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the Marais prairie, by virtue of a concession for twenty-two arpents front to Joseph Carrier, sold to John Savoie, Augustin Boudreau, and the father of the claimant, the title said to have been carried to New Orleans on account of a suit. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed. By commissioners' certificate, B, No. 1,467, a claim has been confirmed under the occupancy of Joseph Carrier, at Marais prairie, accompanied by a plat of survey by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated in 1797, and bounded above by John Mouton, and below by Babineau, but it is not known to the Board whether or not this is part of the same original claim.

No. 111. FRANÇOIS MILHOLM claims, by settlement, the land between the claim of John Ope, by a line running S. 60° W. and N. 60° E. and the river Chafalaya, not exceeding in quantity six hundred and forty acres. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. Henry Hergeroder, before the Board, the 20th November, 1812, hath deposed, that, in the years 1802 and 1803, he, the deponent, frequently passed by the place above mentioned, where he saw some small cabins on the land, in which the claimant deposited his corn and pumpkins that were in those two years raised on the land in question, and that there were one or two camps or shelters made of palmetto, which he supposed the claimant stayed in occasionally whilst cultivating the land; that there were about five or six acres cleared and cultivated by the claimant and the brother of the claimant, Joseph Milholm, both of whom resided on the opposite side of the said river, on a tract which François Milholm had purchased from a Mr. Carline. The deponent further saith, that he doth not know whether the land in question was used or occupied after the fall of the year 1803; that the claimant, François Milholm, was more than twenty-one years of age on the 20th day of December, 1803, and resided at that time with his brother, Joseph Milholm, as above stated. John Chote, on the 20th November, 1812, hath represented to the Board that he has purchased the land from Joseph Milholm, in the year 1812; and that Patrick Marin, who entered the claim, was directed by him to enter it in the name of Joseph Milholm, instead of François Milholm. By commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,569, it will be seen that one claim, under an order of survey and settlement by François Milholm, has been confirmed. The evidence in this could not be deemed sufficient on which to recommend the confirmation of the claim either to François or Joseph Milholm, both of whom, the witness hath stated, resided on the opposite side of the river, on another tract, in the years 1802 and 1803; and only on the tract claimed occasionally, for the purpose of attending their crop. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 112. JAMES MCKEEVER claims a tract of land formerly the property of Samuel Jones, on the bayou Sallé, and sold to satisfy a judgment obtained against the said Jones, when the said McKeever became the purchaser. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title, except the deed of sale by John Tiffery, constable, to said McKeever, dated 20th August, 1807, in which the quantity of land is not mentioned, nor its situation described. The two following certificates are filed with the notice: "Parish of Attakapas, August 20, 1807. We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that Samuel Jones did institute a settlement, and improve the same, on a tract of land on the bayou Sallé, now purchased by James McKeever, and, in conformity with the Spanish laws, entitled himself to a fee simple in the said land. Given under our respective hands. Signed, William Addison, Henry Hergeroder." "The within undersigned do also certify, that the said Samuel Jones built on said improvement a log house, planted a considerable number of peach trees, cultivated about eighteen acres, and made four crops of Indian corn and potatoes," &c. Signed as above. No testimony has been taken in the claim, and it is supposed to be for the said land, the title to which has been confirmed to Samuel Jones by commissioners' certificate B, No. 2,181. This is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 113. This claim is entered in the name of PIERRE MEAUX, for six hundred and forty acres, on the waters of a creek called Folks Cooly, a branch of bayou Vermilion. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey dated in 1807, by Patrick Marin. On the face of the plat is written, "Peter Mott sold to Patrick Marin and Rufus Nickelson." Before John Thompson, Register, in Attakapas, 18th December, 1808, Rufus Nickelson hath deposed that the claimant, Peter Meaux, went to reside upon the land claimed in the latter end of 1801, and that he resided thereon and cultivated the same until the latter part of 1804; that the said Peter Meaux was the head of a family, and, as the deponent supposes, above the age of twenty-one years. "The settlement to which this deponent alludes lies on the cane island Coulee, about a mile and a half or two miles from J. Bte. Simon." On the 28th April, 1812, Peter Meaux, before the Board, hath declared, "that he does not claim any land at the place mentioned in this notice, nor ever did." The claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 114. This claim is entered in the name of PETER MEAUX, for 338 $\frac{50}{100}$ acres, on bayou Vermilion, by R. Nickelson. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title. John Baptiste Broussard, in the presence of the Board, hath stated, "that he understood from Peter Meaux that he had sold his claim and pretensions to Rufus Nickelson for a mare; the said Meaux, at the same time, declared he had no right." The claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 115. MARIN MOUTON claims four thousand two hundred and fifty-one acres of land on the west side of bayou Vermilion, by purchase from Bernard Medal, chief of the Attakapas nation of Indians, in company with Petit, John, and Celestine. The notice is accompanied by a deed of sale from the above-named Indians to the claimant, syndic of that quarter, passed before Don Louis C. De Blanc, commandant, the 19th August, 1802, reserving the approbation of the Governor General, and said to be authorized by the thirty-first article of the new regulations of the Intendant General; the land to be about one league in front on the west of the Vermilion, bounded above by John Dunman, and below by the little bayou of Point Cypress. Consideration, fifty dollars cash, paid down. A certificate by Bernardo, chief, &c., that he had delivered the land he had sold to the claimant, and had fixed the boundaries, with the assistance of his colleagues, and in the presence of the purchaser, who was satisfied, is also filed, with a plat of survey by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806. Theodore Broussard, before the Board, October 16, 1811, hath deposed, "that the said Mouton purchased the land claimed two or three years previous to the date of the deed above alluded to; and that the claimant hired Simon Gaspard, with the son and son-in-law of the said Gaspard, to settle on the land and improve it by cultivation, and preparing buildings and fencing for the claimant; that said Gaspard, his son, and son-in-law, moved on the land, and commenced improving it at least two years prior to the deed of sale; and that he, the deponent, has the best reason to believe that the settlement has been regularly kept up, from its commencement to the present time, though he doth not know it from his own knowledge, not having resided immediately in the neighborhood." Of the same date of the above testimony, Louis Gaspard, one of the persons above mentioned, and who was employed by the claimant to improve the land claimed, hath deposed, "that he has continued to reside on the said land from the time of the commencement of the settlement until the present time, (October, 1811;) that, in a few months after going to work on the place, there were comfortable and necessary buildings erected, and a field enclosed with cypress pens; and that the place has been cultivated from that time to the present." Michel Prevots, aged thirty-five years, before the Board, February 19, 1813, hath deposed, that, twelve or thirteen years ago, the claimant settled on the land claimed, and has established the following persons on different parts of the same tract, to wit, François Hebert, having a wife and three children, Charles Boudoin, having a wife and one child, Marin Mouton, son of the claimant, having a wife and one child, the wives of Hebert and Boudoin, being the daughters of the claimant. That several other persons are also established on the tract of land in question, on separate portions sold and allotted to them by the said Marin, to wit, Pierre Boudoin, having at present a wife and four children, Alphonso Boudoin, having, at the present date, a wife and two children, Ambrose Stoots, having now a wife and two children, the widow of Andrew Lemaire, having five children; that François Hebert was established on the land at the same time of the original claimant; that the other persons have been subsequently established thereon, some of them about seven years. The deponent further saith, that all the families above mentioned are at present residing on said land; and he has reason to believe that none of them hold, or have held, any land under the Spanish Government conceded in their own names. The deponent further saith, that he has always understood, and has reason to believe, that the said Marin Mouton made the purchase of this large tract of land at the request of some of the present proprietors, and with the view to form a compact settlement or neighborhood of persons, most of whom were connected in their families with each other." François Primo, aged twenty-six years, sworn in the same claim, and having heard the testimony of Michel Prevots read and explained, saith, "that he has a perfect knowledge of the facts stated therein, and fully concurs with the said Prevots in his narrative thereof." The circumstances attending this claim are very much the same of those in the claim of John Lyon, reported under No. 96, with this difference, that in this case the tract of land is less than that claimed by John Lyon, and more families have been established on it. The sanction of the Governor to the sale made by the Indians, (an indispensable requisite to its validity, in the opinion of the Board, for reasons which have been stated in No. 1 of reported claims for the county of Opelousas,) does not appear to have been obtained. From the testimony of two witnesses it has been shown that eight families have been established upon this tract of land, seven besides the family of the claimant; part of them the children of the claimant, others holding under him by purchase. Dividing the tract equally between them, would give about five hundred and thirty acres to each family. There is little doubt but that all have made their establishments in full confidence of the title being a valid one. The commissioners, in consideration of the foregoing equitable circumstances, recommend the confirmation of this claim.

No. 116. JOHN BAPTISTE MOUTON claims eight arpents front, by the depth of forty, in the prairie west of the Vermilion, together with the low land between the margin of said prairie, and the west bank of the bayou Vermilion, being about a mile in depth; also, eight arpents front, by the depth of twelve arpents, on the east side of said bayou, opposite the above mentioned tracts. This claim has been confirmed by the Board by certificates B, Nos. 2,230 and 2,231, except for the low lands lying between the margin of the prairie, and the west branch of the Vermilion river, supposed to contain between one hundred and eighty and one hundred and ninety acres, which is the part of the claim under consideration. No document of title for this part has been adduced to show that it was formerly claimed by the proprietors of the adjacent tracts, of which the title has been confirmed by the Board, except the plat of survey made by an authorized surveyor in 1796, on which plat lines are dotted, and the river Vermilion represented, so as to show the situation and form of the claim under consideration. Joseph Sonnier, before the Board, August 12, 1813, first having reference to that part of the claim lying in the prairie, hath deposed, "that he, the deponent, did reside on the said tract of land more than twenty years ago, by permission of René Broussard, and continued many years to occupy and cultivate the said land; that the said Broussard was then understood to be the proprietor of the said land to the extent of forty arpents in depth from the hills or high prairie, and also the land lying between the hills and the west bank of the river; that the land from the river to the hills was wet and unfit for cultivation, but was used and enjoyed by this deponent for the advantage of the fire-wood, as well as by others who have since held under Broussard. That the occupancy of the whole of the said tract of land, and the cultivation of part of the high prairie has been regularly kept up for more than fifteen years in regular succession preceding the 20th day of December, 1803, and is at present occupied by the present claimant." Andrew Martin, before the Board, the 4th February, 1814, hath deposed, "that the first settlement on the said land was made very near to the right bank of the Vermilion, (where there is a narrow ridge of land somewhat higher than that more remote from the river,) more than twenty-five years ago by Theodore Thibedeau, who continued on that part of the land for about three years, and was then under the necessity of removing out of the hills or high prairie on account of a high freshet which inundated the lands about his first establishment. That the whole tract, as well as that between the high land and the river, as the extent of forty arpents in depth from the high land westwardly, has been constantly occupied either by cultivation or cutting and using wood on it for the last twenty-five years preceding this date." The commissioners have been induced to report this claim on account of the part between the high land and the river not seeming to be embraced by the documents of title under which the claimant holds. They are, however, of opinion, from the long occupancy of the land, and the general understanding in the neighborhood that this part of the tract was properly an appendage of the tract conceded, that the claim ought to be confirmed.

No. 117. ANTOINE NEZAT claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty-two arpents, on the bayou Carrion Crow, by an order of survey in his favor, dated June 20, 1781, by Governor Galvez. The notice is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said land, together with the order of survey and certificate of the commandant that he had fixed the limits, January 20, 1782. No proof has been taken in the claim; and it is believed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed under a patent to the claimant, presented to the Board subsequently to the filing of the order of survey. [See commissioners' certificate A, No. 1,787.] This is reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 118. RUFUS NICKELSON claims, by settlement, six hundred and forty acres of land, west of the bayou Vermilion, as represented by the plat of survey filed with the notice of his claim. The notice of the claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, dated 28th February, 1806, and by no other document of title. By their caveat, dated 8th March, 1808, the children of Michel Meaux have represented to the Board, that this claim conflicts with theirs; that they employed their step-father (the father of the claimant) to enter the claim in their name, and get the title secured to them according to law, and they would, as a recompense for his trouble, give to his two sons a part of it; but in place of this he had surveyed the land, and entered the claim in the name of his two sons, (Thomas and Rufus Nickelson,) who were unwilling to let the said Meauxs have any part of it. By surveys, made subsequently to the date of the plat filed with the notice of the claim under consideration, it has been ascertained that the settlement of Nickelson, and also the greater part of his claim, is not within the limits of that of the Meauxs, whose claim has been confirmed by the Board, by certificate B, No. 2,046. The following testimony of Michel Broussard and Valéré Broussard has been taken in the claim, in the hand-writing of Mr. Cocke, commissioner in Attakapas, 20th June, 1809. "Michel Broussard and Valéré Broussard, being first sworn in the claim contested between the heirs of Michel Mot and Rufus Nickelson, depose and say, that the claimants settled upon the land claimed twenty-five or twenty-six years ago, and have continued to reside thereon and cultivate the same ever since; that, on the 20th of December, 1803, all the claimants were twenty-one years of age, except one; that Rufus Nickelson, about four or five years ago, settled, either upon the land claimed, or upon the land granted to Michel Mot, the father of the claimants, they are not certain which, but believe upon the land granted to the father, where he continued to reside between three and four years." Simon Dagle, before the Board 9th November, 1812, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1801, the claimant was then living on the land claimed, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same on and after the 20th of December, 1803. The deponent has every reason to believe, from the appearance of the improvements, that he had been residing on the land previous to the time he has first above stated, and such was the report of the neighborhood." John Coleman, before the Board the 28th October, 1812, hath deposed, "that the habitation of the claimant is situated on a small gully near the margin of the prairie west of the bayou Vermilion, and near the termination of the depth of the land granted to Michel Meaux; that the claimant, Rufus Nickelson, was, to his knowledge, residing on and cultivating the land in question, in the year 1799, where he continued to reside and cultivate the same, the witness believes, four years, without intermission, when he left the place about two years, and then returned to the place again, where he continued to reside, and cultivate the same until the year 1809; that the claimant is considered to be the son of Thomas Nickelson, who was formerly married to the widow Meaux; that the claimant was over twenty-one years of age on the 20th day of December, 1803, and the head of a family." It will be seen that the testimony of the two first named witnesses is at variance with that of the two latter; the first two stating that the claimant settled either on the land claimed, or upon land granted to Michel Meaux about the year 1804 or 1805, where he continued to reside three or four years; the third witness, Mr. Dagle, stating that the claimant was residing on the land in 1801, where he continued to reside and cultivate, until after the 20th of December, 1803; and Mr. Coleman, the last named witness, that the claimant settled on the land in 1799, and, he believes, continued to reside on it the next four years, say to 1803. The testimony of the two last witnesses, taken together, if it had not been rendered somewhat questionable by that of the first, would have been deemed sufficient to entitle the claimant to a confirmation of so much of his claim as did not conflict with the claim of the Meauxs. Unwilling to decide between the credibility of witnesses, the commissioners have, in such cases, made it a rule to report the claims for the consideration of Congress. As this case is involved in doubt, and they are liable to error, whether they decide for or against the claim, they think it best, if they do err, to do so on the lenient side, and, therefore, recommend the confirmation of the claim, as nearly as practicable, in conformity with the plat of survey filed with the notice, and excluding those parts which conflict with the claims of the Meauxs, already confirmed.

No. 119. THOMAS NICKELSON claims $406\frac{21}{100}$ acres of land, by purchase from Mark Lee, who claimed under a requête sanctioned by the commandant, 21st October, 1796. The notice is accompanied by said requête, in the name of Mark Lee, for twelve arpents front, on the west side of bayou Vermilion, with the depth of forty arpents, at Grand Prairie, bounded on one side by the land of John Broussard, and on the other by that of John Grichine, dated 20th October, 1796. Subjoined to the petition is the certificate of the commandant, Mr. Sorrel, "that it appears from certificates here annexed, that the land is re-united to the domain, and that no objection can exist to accord it to the petitioner."—21st October, 1796. An informal deed of conveyance from Mark Lee to Thomas Nickelson, dated 4th February, 1806, is likewise filed. Benjamin Hargrove, witness, the 30th June, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about twenty years ago, the land was first settled by one John Forks, who was then keeping one Petit Jos's vacherie, and remained thereon two years, after which time he doth not recollect who was on said land." Jacob Ryon, on the same day, 30th June, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about twelve years ago, Mark Lee resided on the land claimed, and cultivated about fifteen acres in corn and other vegetables, and continued thereon four succeeding years; that the said Mark Lee was then a man above the age of twenty-one, and the head of a family." The Board recommend the confirmation of the claim as one which, in their opinion, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 120. THOMAS NICKELSON claims, by purchase from an Indian, a tract of land of one league in front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of bayou Vermilion. The following is a translation of the deed of sale filed with the notice of the claim: "This day, the 6th October, in the year 1802, before me, Don Louis Charles De Blanc, captain of infantry, commandant, civil and military, of the post and its dependencies, in default of a notary public in the said place then performing the functions, appeared Ashnoya, considered of the Attakapas nation, authorized by Bernard, a medal chief, who declares and confesses by these presents, and in the best form possible of law, to have sold, ceded, and transferred all the right, now and forever, will warrant against all troubles, debts, mortgages, and other hindrances, generally, whatever, to Thomas Nickelson, inhabitant of this district here present, and accepting for himself, his heirs and assigns, a tract of land of wood and low prairie, on the west side of bayou Vermilion, of use only for the wintering of cattle, containing about one league in front, by the ordinary depth; this sale, cession, and transfer being made, saving or with (moyennant) the approbation of the General Government of this province, and in virtue of the 31st article of the regulations of the Intendant General, for the price and sum of $100, one-half in cash, one-half in cattle, paid in hand. The present serving as a general acquittance to the purchaser, who, by this means, may enjoy and dispose of the said land, as a thing belonging properly to him; the seller renouncing to every thing contrary. Bounded above by the land that Marin Mouton acquired of the chief Bernard, and below by the Trembling prairie of the sea. Done and passed at said place of Attakapas, the said day, month, and year, as aforesaid, in presence of Mr. Thomas W. Collins, John Kershaw, assisting witnesses, who have signed with the contracting parties. Ashnoya has made his ordinary mark, and we, the said commandant, of which I give faith." Signed, mark ordinary of Ashnoya, John N. Kershaw, Thomas Nickelson, Thomas W. Collins, Louis C. De Blanc. For the information of Congress, relative to the 31st article of the regulations of the Intendant General, referred to in the foregoing deed of sale, the Board have thought proper to insert the translation of said article, which follows: By Morales. "No one shall inquiet or disturb, in any manner, the Indians who possess lands in the extent of this Government. They shall be, to the contrary, protected and supported, and the commandants, syndics, and surveyors, ought to pay the greatest attention to give information in consequence." Mark Lee, aged about sixty years, before the Board 21st August, 1812, hath deposed, "that, about ten years ago, the claimant purchased the above tract of land of the Attakapas Indians, for the express purpose of keeping his stock on, and he recollects to have seen the claimant driving his stock on the same, and continuing them thereon, but he knows of no part of the land being in cultivation. Louis C. De Blanc, before William Brent, Esq., justice of the peace in the county of Attakapas, on oath, hath made the following answers to the following interrogatories:

Interrogatory 1st. Had the Indian who sold Thomas Nickelson the land mentioned in a deed, a right to sell it, and did the land so sold belong to the said Indian? Answer to the first interrogatory. The land which Ashnoya sold to Thomas Nickelson belonged to him, as much so as the land of any Spanish subject did to said subject, and as his property he had a right to sell it, and the right of the Indians to sell their lands was always recognised and admitted by the Spanish Government; the contrary is unheard and unknown; for we always considered the titles from Indians to their villages as the best of titles, because the original property of the soil was in them, and when this country was conquered the laws of the conquerors were enforced, but the property of the aborigines was held sacred: hence the difference between the titles of Indians and other subjects. The other subjects who wanted land must demand and have a written title. It was not necessary for the Indians, because they already had a title to the land they claimed; their title originated in first occupancy, cultivation, and settlement; the Indians never claimed other lands than their villages, and where they did it was given them by the Government. The land claimed by Nickelson was an old village, which had, long beyond the memory of man, been inhabited and cultivated by the Indians, who sold it to him, and, of course, I consider his title to the said land as one of the best: it is so from the laws of nations, the laws of Spain, her usages and customs. Interrogatory 2d. Were you the commandant who passed the said deed for the said tract of land mentioned in the within dedimus? Answer to the 2d interrogatory. I was; I have filled several stations of honor and profit under the Spanish Government, and have been always in office, from my earliest days until my hairs have grown grey. My opportunities to be acquainted with the laws, usages, and customs, of the French and Spanish Governments, have been great. Interrogatory 3d. Did the Spanish Government, according to its laws, usages, and customs, authorize Indians, such as the one who sold Nickelson the said land, to hold lands in full and complete title, and to sell, give, and dispose of said lands in any manner the said Indians thought proper? Answer to the 3d interrogatory. They did, and I never thought it could be doubted. The Indians under the Spanish Government were as free as any of her subjects, and had as full power over their lands. Their villages were their own, and were held sacred as their property. We were strangers amongst the Indians; this was their home, and the laws of Spain, her usages, and customs, authorized the Indians to sell, and do as they pleased with their lands, and so did the laws of conquest and of nations. I need only to refer to the writers upon that subject, and also to the ordinances of Spain, which are written and on file. They place it beyond a doubt, and every man who lived in those days can verify the usages and customs to be as I have stated. There never was an instance of the Government of Spain taking land from Indians, especially their villages, such a one as Nickelson's was; and even where the Indians had abandoned some old villages, because their hunting was exhausted, and had established new ones by the grant of the Spanish Government, their villages deserted were always considered as their property, subject to their disposal to sell or do with at pleasure, and the inhabitants were never suffered to settle there, but were always driven off, because the villages belonged to the Indians before Spain or France knew this country, and their occupancy, cultivation, and settlement, gave them a prior title to even Spain or France, which was always guaranteed to them by their treaties, by law, by usage, and by custom; the Spanish Government always gave to Indians lands, but never took any from them, without they did it by purchase or by treaty. The purchasers of lands from the Indians had always, under the Spanish Government, the best of titles, and such titles were considered equal, if not better, than any Spanish grant, because the Indians were the first owners of the soil, which always continued in them, and does to this day, if they have not sold it, or if any be living. I speak of the old villages, and of land granted to them after the Government of Spain was in possession of this country. Interrogatory 4th. Was there any time, according to usage, custom, or law, in which a deed, after it had passed before the commandant, must be presented to the General Government of the province for their approbation? And if a deed should be presented, say, two, four, ten, or fifteen years after it had been made, before the commandant, would it be in sufficient time to be approved? Answer to the 4th interrogatory. There was no time fixed in which a deed must be presented for approbation. It could be presented in one year or a hundred years, and it would always receive the sanction of Government. The laws made it necessary when Indians sold their lands, to have the deed presented to the Governor for approbation. This was only a form, as the Governor, in all cases, approved, and never refused. It was not necessary for Nickelson to have presented his deed immediately, and if the Spanish Government existed at this time, and Nickelson should present his deed upon this day, or any other, his deed would be approved, and his title confirmed; for the principle is well established, that a deed for lands from Indians or their chief, who, in all cases sells in his name for them, is as valid and good, and the title as complete, provided the land sold was a village or part of a village, as if the title was given by the Government of Spain itself, and I should suppose better. The villages of the Indians never consisted of less land than a league, and oftener two leagues and more in front; and it was the custom of the Spanish Government, whenever they granted land to Indians, to give them a league or more square. Interrogatory 5th. Do you know that Nickelson ever had a grant or requête given him for the same land he claims, and which he purchased afterwards from the Indians, and whether he settled on it, and if he did, why he left said settlement? Answer to the 5th interrogatory. I do well recollect that Nickelson had settled upon the same land, and worked upon it, in consequence of a title which he had for the same, but do not recollect whether it was a complete title or not; but I do remember well, that, in consequence of Nickelson's working upon the said land, the Indians made their complaint to me, as the proper person to decide, and that I issued an order for Nickelson to appear before me, which he did, and upon a hearing and examination of the case, I adjudged the title of the Indians to be a good one, and I ordered Nickelson off, and officially put a stop to his work. I considered his title good from the Government for the same, had not the land belonged to the same Indians who sold it afterwards to him. The nature or name of the title I do not recollect at this remote day, but upon the trial I saw it; and it is certain he had a title to said land, and did comply with all the conditions, until he was stopped by the order of the commandant, who adjudged the lands to the Indians. The consequence of this order, and Nickelson's being put off the land, led to the purchase; and Ashnoya, a chief of the Attakapas nation, to whom the said land belonged, came before me, authorized with full powers by his nation, and Bernard their chief; and I being satisfied with his said powers and his right, conveyed in proper form, according to the laws, usages, and customs of Spain, the said land to Thomas Nickelson for a valuable consideration, which said deed is good so soon as it is approved by the proper authorities, which cannot be refused according to the laws, usages, and customs of Spain, if it has not already been done. Interrogatory the 6th, and last. When the Spanish Government gave the Indians lands, without a written grant, was such gift complete, and could the claimers, under such grant, sell or otherwise dispose of said lands? What were the usages and customs in such cases? Answer to the 6th interrogatory. The Spanish Government considered the Indian lands or villages as the best and oldest titles, and never disturbed them; and, as I have said before, always granted lands to Indians when requested; and the usages and customs were such, that after land was granted, although it was not in writing, if the Indians settled and cultivated, their title was as complete as if it had been made in writing, and became as good and valid as their old villages, and they were authorized to sell, and the title of those who held under them was as good as any title in the Spanish Government. Mr. De Blanc, in giving his testimony, has assigned reasons, and drawn conclusions, some of which the commissioners have been constrained to reject. The light in which his evidence has been viewed respecting Indian titles, will be seen by reference to the No. 1, of claims reported for the county of Opelousas, in which it has been noticed. By reference to the claim of Marin Mouton, reported under No. 115, it will be seen that Bernard, Attakapas chief, whose name is mentioned in the claim, under consideration, as having authorized Ashnoya to sell, had previously sold more than one league front to said Mouton. Mr. De Blanc has spoken of a title which Nickelson had from the Spanish Government for the same or part of the same land purchased from the Indians, but does not recollect what description of title it was, but that his title was valid if it had not interfered with that of the Indians. It was incumbent on Nickelson, in the opinion of the commissioners, to produce this title, without which his claim must be considered as resting on the Indian sale, or on such claim as he might have derived under the laws of the United States from occupancy. Mr. De Blanc has said that he "recollects well that Nickelson had settled upon this same land, and worked upon it, in consequence of a title which he had for the same," but has not mentioned the time, or how long such occupancy was continued. Mr. Lee hath stated that the land was occupied as pasturage for the claimant's cattle, but "knows of no part of the land being in cultivation." The occupancy of the land not being established to the satisfaction of the Board, on which to recommend the confirmation of the claim, and the Indian sale not having been sanctioned by the Governor of the province, the claim is considered as coming within the third class enumerated in No 1, page 94, of the claims reported for the county of Opelousas; and the confirmation of so much of the claims as would be a full remuneration for the consideration paid, is accordingly recommended.

No. 121. WILLIAM O'DONEGAN claims eight arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say three hundred and twenty arpents, at the Grand Woods of the lower part of the river Teche, by virtue of a requête sanctioned by the commandant the 24th June, 1796. The notice of the claim is accompanied by said requête, in the name of the claimant, for said tract of land, bounded on one side by land of François Bronde, and on the other to John McLaughlin, dated June 23, 1796, certified by the commandant, Francisco Caso Y. Luengo, the 24th of June, 1796, setting forth that the land solicited is of the domain of His Majesty. No evidence has been adduced to establish occupancy. The death of the claimant has been suggested, and it is known to the Board that he has left a widow and several children in needy circumstances. Being of opinion that this would have been a valid title under the former Government, the commissioners recommend the confirmation.

No. 122. CHARLES OLIVIER DE VEZIN claims one thousand five hundred and twenty arpents of land west of the river Teche, behind the lands fronting on the said river. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the requête of the claimant for thirty-eight arpents front, to be taken from the line of his father's land, and for the depth of the same parallel adjoining the lines of the depth of the lands of Chicot Noir, dated 15th March, 1797. Subjoined to the petition is the certificate of the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, dated 10th April, 1797, setting forth that the land or Island of Woods petitioned for, bounded by the concession of his father, being vacant, and it being of no prejudice to the neighbors, he has ordered the surveyor of the district to put the petitioner in possession of the said land and island. A plat of survey by the Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated 14th November, 1797, embracing one thousand five hundred and twenty arpents, and certifying that the survey had been made, and the party put in possession of the land, agreeably to the order of the commandant, is also filed. The claimant having adduced proof of the occupancy of the land, (from the date of the requête, 1797, to the date of the testimony, 1811,) by which he became entitled, under the laws, to six hundred and forty acres, equal to $756\frac{27}{100}$ arpents, the commissioners have issued their certificate B, No. 1466, in confirmation of the claim to that extent, leaving the residue of the claim, $763\frac{73}{100}$ arpents, to be reported for the consideration of Congress; the confirmation to which is recommended on the grounds of its being a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 123. JOHN O'REILY claims twenty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Sallé, say one thousand six hundred arpents, equal to one thousand three hundred and fifty-four acres, by virtue of a concession from the proper Spanish officer in 1798, which is said to be lost. The notice of the claim is accompanied by documents, of which the following are translations: 1st. Mr. Addison shall permit Paul Glascoy to choose two tracts of land on each side of the bayou Sallé, one for Mr. O'Reily, the other for himself, which land they shall settle as soon as they receive the permission of the Government General. Attakapas, February, 1798. (Signed) De Blanc. 2d. "When you survey the lands on bayou Sallé, you will apply to Mr. Addison as syndic of the quarter, who will instruct you as to the grants given for lands on said bayou. Those who should have complied with the conditions of their grants, it would appear to me to be unjust to dispossess them; but you shall order them, from me, that they shall do what is necessary to entitle them to a completion of their title; in which case you shall make surveys of their lands without delay or difficulty. If any persons are absent, leaving any one to represent them, and pay the public demands for them, you may take information thereof from the commissary, and reduce it to writing, attested by two witnesses, that their lands may be reunited to the domain, and granted to other persons. John O'Reily, a long time since, has obtained from me a concession for twenty arpents of land front on each side of that bayou. I have myself sent the concession and money to town; but a short time afterwards, the Intendant being specially charged with the land department; from this change the papers have been mislaid; but, as this man did obtain permission from the deceased Mr. Gayoso to settle there, with orders to give him land, and as he has cleared and settled the tract in question, you will make his survey, and furnish him with the necessary document on which to obtain his title in form." 20th December, 1802. (Signed) L. C. De Blanc. François Gonssoulin, surveyor, certifies that the foregoing is a true copy of the original in his hands, given at the request of John O'Reily, 3d February, 1806. (Signed) F. Gonssoulin. 3d. By Louis C. De Blanc, commandant of Attakapas: I certify that, in February, 1798, being then commandant of Attakapas, I did grant for John O'Reily a requête for land on bayou Sallé, twenty arpents front on each side; that the said title has been approved by the General Government of this colony, and, being lost, I have given orders to Mr. François Gonssoulin, surveyor of the post, 20th December, 1802, to make the survey, and deliver the plat to said John O'Reily as his property; on which land an improvement has been made, as I have been informed by the interested. March 4, 1804. (Signed) L. C. De Blanc. Peter Earlocker, before Woodson Wren, justice of the peace in the county of Attakapas, by commission from the Board, 21st September, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was cultivated and inhabited in the year 1799, and continued so to be inhabited and cultivated for five or six years in regular succession." For want of the documents of title in this claim, which are said to have been lost, the commissioners have been under the necessity of considering the claim as being only within the provisions of the acts of Congress granting a right by settlement, &c.; they have, therefore, only confined the claim to the extent of six hundred and forty acres, giving so much front on the bayou as, with forty arpents on each side, will include that quantity; but from the evidence, particularly that of the late commandant, Mr. De Blanc, the commissioners are induced to believe that the claimant is equitably entitled to the residue of his claim, being about seven hundred and thirteen acres, and therefore report it as a claim which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 124. CHRISTOPHER O'BRIAN'S HEIRS claim one thousand five hundred acres of land on the bayou Teche, near its mouth, adjoining the lands of Dunleavy, by virtue of a grant or order of survey from the Spanish Government to the father of the claimant, which title papers accompany the notice of their claim. The following is a translation, in substance, of the documents of title filed with the notice: December 15, 1801, Christopher O'Brian petitions for land (quantity not mentioned) on the bayou Teche, adjoining above to Talmadge Dunleavy, and another tract on the bayou Fourche, about a league from the mouth of the canal, if from the number of his family he is entitled to more than one tract. December 19, 1801, said O'Brian represents to the Governor that he has been under the necessity of leaving New Madrid on account of the ill health of his family, and had a passport from the commandant at Baton Rouge to visit Opelousas and Attakapas, to look for land to settle on, and begs permission to settle in the place he may choose, and that he wishes to keep a tavern. December 23, 1801, Salcedo admits said O'Brian to be a subject of His Catholic Majesty. January 8, 1802, Morales, Intendant, and Licenciado Serrano, orders that the opinion of the fiscal be had on the case. January 27, 1802, the fiscal, Gilbert Leonard, gives his opinion that O'Brian may have a portion of land where he may choose it; that the quantity of land should be governed by the regulations of Morales, having regard to the number of his family, and that there is no objection to his keeping a tavern on certain conditions, &c. William Biggs, before the Board, 26th September, 1811, hath deposed, "that, in the year 1801, Christopher O'Brian, father of the claimants, went to reside on the land claimed, which is in the Big Woods, a few leagues above Berwick's bay, adjoining, as this deponent believes, the land of Dunleavy. The said Christopher having purchased the right of a man by the name of Samuel Stout, who had resided on the land several years previous to his having sold it to O'Brian. The deponent further saith, that the settlement and cultivation of the said tract of land has been regularly maintained from the time O'Brian took possession of it to the 20th December, 1803. It will be noticed that the quantity of land which the father of the claimants might have been entitled to, according to the opinion of the fiscal, Gilbert Leonard, should be governed by the regulations of Morales, and according to the number of his family. No information has been given to the Board respecting the number of the said family. It is stated by the witness, Mr. Briggs, that the father of the claimants purchased the right of a Mr. Stout to the land on which he settled; but as no deed of conveyance from said Stout has been adduced, and the witness believing that the land occupied by Stout lay joining to Dunleavy, the place named by said O'Brian in his petition, the Board have been induced to suppose that the said O'Brian might have only purchased the improvements and good-will of the said Stout, without intending to derive any title in the land on account of such purchase; they have, therefore, issued their certificate B, No. 1,945, in confirmation of the claim to the extent of six hundred and forty acres, and report the residue of said claim as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 125. JOSEPH PRIMO claims one acre and one quarter of an acre in front, with the depth of forty arpents in Cypress Island, by purchase from J. L. Champagne, heir of Mr. Doré, who purchased from Jm. Berrard, to whom it was granted; but said grant cannot be found. He also claims under settlement made in 1800. The following is a translation of the only document or evidence of title filed with the notice: "I, the undersigned, Louis Champagne, acknowledge to have sold to Joseph Primo a tract of land of one arpent and one quarter front, by forty deep, situate at Cypress Island, the property in which I acquired as one of the heirs of the deceased Margaret Doré, having received payment thereof. Attakapas, 26th December, 1806. (Signed) John Louis Champagne, Jun., his X mark. Witness, W. C. Maquillé." No proof of occupancy being adduced, and it not being known to the Board that the title of Berrard, of which this is said to be a part, is a valid one, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 126. JOSEPH PIERNASS claims eighty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on each side of the river Nementou, say six thousand four hundred arpents. The notice is accompanied by documents which are translated as follows: "Attakapas, 21st June, 1796, before me, Don Francisco Caso Y. Luengo, commandant, has appeared Donna Martha Hubert Pellerin, widow of Don Louis Pellerin, who says she has received, a long time past, of Joseph Piernass, lieutenant of infantry, retired from service, the sum of two hundred dollars, which is what was remaining due by said Joseph Piernass for the sale which she made to him on the 4th July, 1786, before John Darby, then commandant of New Iberie, of a tract of land of eighty arpents front, on the depth of forty, situate on each side of the river Nementou; of which sum she acknowledges herself satisfied. (Signed) Martha Hubert Pellerin, Simon Meisoner, Francisco Caso Y. Luengo, Louis C. De Blanc." 1807, December 23, Joseph Piernass, the claimant, before a justice of the peace for the parish of New Orleans, on oath, hath declared, "that, on the 4th July, 1787, he purchased, by deed executed before the commandant of New Iberie, J. Darby, from the widow of Louis Pellerin, acting as curatrix for her minor children, and of Louis Pellerin, first son of said lady, and of her daughters, Jane and Charlotte Pellerin, well and duly authorized by their husbands, Louis and Alexander de la Houssaye, a tract of land of eighty arpents front, and forty in depth, on both banks of the river Nementou, to be taken, commencing at the upper end of the Little Lake, and thence ascending the river, to complete the eighty arpents front, which land was granted some years preceding that date by the Governor General of this province to Louis Pellerin, Jun., (fils) for him, his brothers and sisters; that he received on the day of the sale, from the said widow, the titles of concession of said land, as follows: First, the petition of Louis Pellerin, (fils) asking said land in his name, and for his brothers and sisters, being of the Hiberniana family. Secondly, the decree following, giving order to the commandant of the post to make information as to the vacancy of the land, &c. Thirdly, the information of the said commandant proving the said land to be of the royal domain, &c. Fourthly, the decree of the General Government ordering the said commandant to give possession to the said Louis Pellerin, his brothers and sisters, of the land solicited, on both sides of the said river. Fifthly, the certificate of said commandant, Mr. De Clouet, that he had put the persons in possession of said land; that a few days afterwards the deponent, on his way to Nacogdoches, in crossing the river Sabine on a small raft, upset, by which he lost the valise containing the papers above mentioned, for which reason he is not now enabled to produce them. "Louis Chevalier De Villier, before the Board the 24th June, 1812, hath deposed, that, twenty-three years ago, he was on the land claimed, when the widow of Louis Pellerin had a vacherie thereon; and that the land in question has been inhabited and cultivated ever since, until the last six or seven years preceding this date." The acknowledgment of Madame Martha Hubert Pellerin, in 1796, before the then commandant of the district, is strong presumptive evidence of her having had a title in the land claimed. The evidence is not such as could authorize the commissioners to confirm the claim in its full extent; they, however, report it as a claim which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

Nos. 127 and 128. FREDERICK PELLERIN claims twenty-five arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the east side of the bayou Teche, and ten arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the west side of said bayou; both of which tracts he claims by virtue of a decree from Governor Miro, dated 11th May, 1787, which he has not been able to procure. The notices of these two claims are unaccompanied by any evidence of title, except a plat of survey, which is believed to be for the same tracts, of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 803, under another entry; these are, therefore, reported as claims which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 129. SIMON PICKARD claims six hundred and forty acres, by settlement, on Hargrove's Gully, branch of bayou Vermilion, adjoining land surveyed for and claimed by Michel Pevetto. John Bte. Broussard, before the Board 12th November, 1810, hath deposed that, about six years ago, he went on the land claimed, and began an improvement, and continued on the land about one year; that the improvement was a dwelling, store-house, and cow-pen; that he had no part of the land in cultivation; that, at the time of his leaving the land claimed he sold it to a man who still resides on the tract. He does not know of the claimant's having any permission." Michel Pevetto, on the same day, before the Board, concurs in the facts stated by the above named witness, John B. Broussard, and adds, that "he engaged the claimant to settle on the land as being vacant about six years ago." From the evidence, it appears that the land was not settled until about the year 1804. The claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 130. JOSEPH ROMARO claims eight arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say three hundred and twenty arpents, on Lake Tax, by virtue of a purchase from John Garée, who claimed by settlement. A deed of conveyance from John De Saras to the claimant, passed before Henry Hopkins, commandant, 7th March, 1804, for eight arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on Lake de Flemmand, bounded on one side by Julien Dargelan, and on the other by Mr. Romais' land, is the only document or evidence of title adduced. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which ought not, in the opinion of the Board, to be confirmed.

No. 131. ABRAHAM ROBERTS claims a tract of land of ten arpents front, in a place called Cote Blanche, by virtue of an order of survey in his favor, dated 10th April, 1782, say four hundred arpents. The notice is accompanied by the petition of Abraham Roberts, dated 12th March, 1792, for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at a place called Cote Blanche, bounded on one side by William Bell, and on the other by the royal domain. Subjoined to the said petition is the order of survey, in the usual form, by the Baron Carondelet, for said land, dated 18th April, 1792. A plat of the land, by François Gonssoulin, dated 18th April, 1802, certified to have been made in consequence of the decree of the Government of the 18th April, 1792, is likewise filed with the notice. No proof of occupancy has been adduced. The commissioners believing it to be such a claim, however, as would have been deemed valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 132. EUGENE SENATE claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty, say four hundred arpents, on the waters of the bayou Sallé, by concession, from the Baron Carondelet, dated 4th and 5th January, 1797. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and is believed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed under another entry by Rufus Nickelson, by certificate B, No. 2,077. This is, therefore, reported as a claim which ought not to be confirmed.

No. 133. JOHN BAPTISTE SENATE claims six hundred and forty acres, by settlement, for his son Joseph Senate, (as his natural guardian,) situate on the waters of the bayou Teche. The notice of the claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Charles McDaniel, 25th January, 1809, hath deposed, "that, fourteen years past, John Bte. Senate hath cultivated the land claimed, but this deponent doth not know that any person, except Indians, ever resided on the same." Jacob Jarrard, witness, 22d June, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about eight or nine years ago, the claimant settled on a tract of land opposite to the land claimed, where he has resided ever since, and cultivated every year as well the tract claimed as the one on which he resided; that, about six or seven years ago, the claimant had a cabin on the land claimed, in which his negroes then resided, but how long they resided there the deponent cannot say." The claim being for a minor, and unsupported by any evidence of title derived from the Spanish Government, it is necessarily reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 134. HYPOLITE SAVOY claims, by settlement, a tract of land (quantity not mentioned) at the end of the depth of the tracts fronting on the east side of bayou Teche. The notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title or proof of occupancy; and, on that account, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 135. JONATHAN SMITH, a minor, by William Addison, acting as his guardian, claims six hundred and forty acres on bayou Teche, by virtue of settlement. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice. Henry Harkrider, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register, 18th December, 1808, in Attakapas, hath deposed, "that William Addison hath cultivated the land claimed for eight years last past; that he had resided, during that time, on the opposite side of the bayou; that there hath been a camp upon the land for the purpose of sheltering those that labored on it from the weather; that Jonathan Smith is, at this time, of the age of sixteen years. This deponent further saith, that he always understood from Mr. Addison that the commandant had promised him a requête for the said land in the name of the above mentioned Jonathan Smith." Charles McDaniel hath deposed, "that William Addison hath cultivated the land in question fifteen consecutive years; that this deponent himself hath cultivated and resided on the land for the claimant from the year 1801 to the year 1804, inclusive." It will be seen that the evidence of the two witnesses is at variance; that, according to the evidence of the first, the land was cultivated by Mr. Addison from 1800 to 1808; and, according to the latter, that it had been cultivated fifteen years, and from 1801 to 1804 by the deponent himself. The claimant being a minor, however, and the claim unsupported by any document of title from the Spanish Government, is, on that account, reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 136. JOHN STINE claims eight arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say three hundred and twenty arpents, on the Grand Cote, by virtue of an order of survey from the Spanish Government. The notice is accompanied by the petition of the claimant for said land, bounded by vacant land, dated 6th April, 1795, to which is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, certifying the vacancy of the land, and the order of survey by the Baron Carondelet, dated 4th May, 1795. Joshua Garret, Sen., before Samuel Cook, justice of the peace in the county of Attakapas, 14th December 1811, hath deposed, "that, the deponent, was on Grand Cote island about seventeen years ago, in company with John Stine, and helped him to do some work on a tract of land which, he, Stine, had a requête for on the said Grand Cote island, and fourteen years ago he saw a crop of corn, potatoes, &c., growing on said land, and Mr. Stine had a house or cabin on the land at that time; and further, he has not been on the land since to see or know what Mr. Stine has done on the land in question since the time stated of fourteen years; and further deponent saith not." The claimant having failed to prove the occupancy of the land on the first of October, 1800, as required by law, the claim is, on that account, reported for the consideration of Congress. The commissioners, believing it to be a claim which would have been deemed valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation.

No. 137. STEPHEN SWEAYZE claims four hundred arpents of land in Attakapas, by virtue of an order of survey dated 9th December, 1795. The notice is accompanied by the petition of said Sweayze, inhabitant of Natchez, dated 20th November, 1795, for ten arpents of land on each side of the gully, called Cypremart, with the small depth that may be found, bounded on one side by land of Samuel and John Bell, and on the other by the royal domain. Subjoined to the petition is the order of survey by the Baron Carondelet, dated 9th December, 1795, for the ten arpents front solicited, with the depth that may be found, not exceeding forty arpents. A plat of survey by William Atchison, dated Attakapas, 16th December, 1796, embracing four hundred arpents in a square form, is also filed. No proof of occupancy has been offered, and the claim is reported on that account. The commissioners, believing it to be a claim which would have been deemed valid under the Spanish Government, recommend its confirmation in conformity with the tenor of the order of survey, giving ten arpents front on said gully, with the depth of twenty arpents on each side, embracing an area of four hundred arpents.

No. 138. LOUIS SEMAIRE claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty, at the back of the land of his mother; representing in his notice that the land is low and wet, fit only for pasturage, which use he had made of it, residing on the tract of which this is a continuation. The petition of the claimant for said land, dated 17th August, 1801, is filed with the notice, to which is subjoined the certificate of the commandant, Louis C. De Blanc, of the same date, setting forth that the petitioner is the son of a family of ancient inhabitants of Attakapas, of good conduct, has supported his mother and wishes to settle himself; never had any previous grant of land, and that the land, being vacant, may be conceded. The commissioners are of opinion that the claim would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government, and report it, therefore, as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 139. WILLIAM RUMPLE claims a tract of fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of the river Teche or Chafalaya, at their junction. The notice of this claim was entered by Jonathan Thompson, as agent for the claimant. The notice evidently embraces a claim of ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, of which there has been a confirmation to the claimant by the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 1,170. The claimant having produced no documents nor evidence to establish a title to the remaining five arpents front, the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 140. JOHN THIBODEAU claims two arpents and three-quarters of land front on the bayou Vermilion, by the depth of forty arpents, by purchase from Anselm Thibodeau, and also by settlement, the said Anselm deriving his right by purchase from Indians. The notice is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title, and, therefore, reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 141. JOHN VOMSER claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou Teche, by virtue of his requête, sanctioned by the commandant the 16th September, 1795. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, John Vomser, of the Dutch nation, dated 16th September, 1795, for said land at a place called the Grand Woods, adjoining the land solicited by Henry Hergeroder, with whom the petitioner had labored seven years. Subjoined to the petition is a certificate of the commandant Francisco Caso Y. Luengo, of the same date, certifying that the land solicited is vacant. A plat of survey by Patrick Marin, dated in 1807, giving twelve arpents front on the east side of the river Teche, by the depth of forty, is also filed. Patrick Marin was not an authorized surveyor at the time of making the survey, and his operations are entitled to no respect. The commissioners recommend the confirmation of the claim, not according to the plat, but agreeably to the documents of title which the claimant held from the Spanish commandant, giving six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on each side of the bayou, or so much as may be found not to conflict with any superior claim.

No. 142. ROMAIN and MARY VERDINE claim six hundred and forty acres of land on the east side of the bayou Teche, in the county of Attakapas, by virtue of settlement. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. John G. Garret, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register of the Land Office, 13th December, 1808, hath deposed, "that, about four years ago, Pierre and Baptiste Verdine, with their people, made a clearing upon the land claimed, and have continued to work thereon ever since; and he has heard the said Pierre and Baptiste Verdine say that they made the said improvement for Romain and Mary Verdine. Same date, Alexander Verdine, before said Register, hath deposed, "that, about four years ago, the land claimed was settled by Pierre and Baptiste Verdine, and that they have cultivated four crops thereon; that, when they made the said settlement, he understood that they made it for themselves, and that the said claimants are both at this time under the age of one-and-twenty. Charles McDonel, before Woodson Wren, Esq., justice of the peace in the county of Attakapas, 4th October, 1811, by commission from the Board, hath deposed, "that the said Verdines (Romain and Mary) settled the said tract of land three years previous to December 20, in the year 1803, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same for three years, and was then, at the said 20th of December, 1803, inhabitants of the said tract of land, and had the same under cultivation." It will be seen that the testimony of the last witness, McDonel, is at variance with the evidence of the other two, John G. Garret and Alexander Verdine, and that the claimants are minors. The Board are of opinion that the claimants, being minors, and their claim unsupported by any document of title derived from the Spanish Government, are not entitled to the land claimed, and therefore, report it as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

In the claim of Rufus Nickelson, reported No. 118, the testimony of Theodore Thibodeau and Augustin Comeau was omitted in the transcribing, and is inserted in this place as follows: "In the claim of Rufus Nickelson for a tract of land situate on the west side of the river Vermilion, in the parish of St. Martin, Theodore Thibodeau, aged 53 years, being sworn, deposeth that, fourteen or fifteen years past, Rufus Nickelson, the claimant, resided in the family of David Caruthers, from which place he removed about fourteen years past, and settled upon the tract of land claimed, in a small house twelve or fifteen arpents distant in a westerly direction from the present habitation of John Coleman, where he continued to reside for five or six years; being a blacksmith by trade, at which business he was principally occupied during his residence at the said place, the deponent is not certain that he cultivated any part of the land except in a garden. The deponent further saith, that the said Nickelson got married about the time he first established himself on the land in question, and is now about forty years of age." Sworn before —, the 4th of April, 1814. In the same claim, Augustin Comeau, aged thirty-five years, being sworn before the Board on the same day, deposeth, "that, having heard the evidence given by Theodore Thibodeau, he knows the facts therein stated to be correct and true."

By order of the Board.

DISCOUNT ON PROMPT PAYMENTS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JANUARY 29, 1816.

Mr. ROBERTSON, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Samuel Dick, William Bruce, and Asa Kitchel, reported:

That the petitioners, on the 7th April, 1801, purchased three sections of land of the United States, lying within the Cincinnati district, for which they paid respectively the amount in full, as calculated by the Receiver of Public Moneys, under the express direction of Mr. Dexter, then acting Secretary of the Treasury, and obtained their final certificates. Some short time after the purchase was completed, the successor of Mr. Dexter in the Treasury Department construed the law allowing discounts on prompt payment differently, and issued his instructions to the Receivers of Public Moneys accordingly. The petitioners applied for patents on their final certificates, but they were withheld, on the ground that full payment had not been made under the law, as construed by the then Secretary of the Treasury. The committee, without adverting to the law to ascertain which is the correct construction, are clearly of opinion that it was competent for the Secretary of the Treasury to issue his instructions under the law directing the mode of calculating discounts; and purchases made and completed under such construction cannot, in justice, be set aside by the United States. The purchases of the petitioners were made at a public sale, the rate of discounts being known, was not only an inducement to make prompt payment, but also to give a higher price for the land; afterwards to demand a further sum, under the pretence that the law had been incorrectly construed, would be materially varying the contract to the prejudice of the purchaser, which neither policy nor justice could sanction. It is sufficient that the terms were made known by the official agent of the Government, acting under the direction of the Treasury Department; the purchaser, in acceding to the terms, became bound to a compliance, nor is the obligation on the Government less binding. The difference of amount produced by the construction under which the petitioners purchased is small, but, on the ground of principle, they are equally entitled to relief as if the sum were much larger. The committee, therefore, report a bill.

Remarks on the foregoing claims to land, with references to the reported numbers and decisions of the Board.

No. 1. PIERRE BROUSSARD claims nine hundred and eighty-two acres of land, in the prairie Gross Chevré, by virtue of a purchase. A plat of survey, by François Gonssoulin, deputy surveyor under the Spanish Government, dated 27th May, 1793, made for Martin Sondrie, is the only document of title filed with the notice. Andre Martin, before the Board the 20th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed is a part of Louise and Carline De Clouet's order of survey, and hath been inhabited and cultivated on and previous to the 1st of October, 1800, and without intermission to this day." The claim ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed, on the claimant's producing the necessary deeds to establish his right, and its being ascertained, from a re-survey, to be within the concession to Louise and Carline De Clouet.

No. 2. PIERRE BROUSSARD claims thirty arpents front of land, with the depth from the bayou Teche to the Vermilion river, in the county of Attakapas, by virtue of a purchase at the public sale of the deceased Ledée. In this claim is filed, from the office of the judge of the county of Attakapas, an exemplification of the record of the public sale of the estate of the deceased M. Ledée, by which it appears that a tract of land of ninety arpents front, on the river Teche, with a depth of forty arpents on the east side, and the depth from the Teche to the Vermilion, on the west side, was sold on the 14th day of March, 1786, in nine separate portions or lots, in the presence of Don Carlos Laveau Trudeau and others, and conformably to the operations of said Trudeau, as Surveyor General of said province, giving to each lot ten arpents of front, with forty arpents of depth, on the east side of the Teche, and on the west to the bayou Vermilion; at which sale the several lots were struck off to the following persons as the highest bidders, viz: to Pierre Broussard, front to be taken from the land of Mr. De Clouet, commandant, ten arpents; to Mr. Solomon, adjoining Broussard, ten arpents; to Pierre Broussard, adjoining the preceding, ten arpents; to François Begnaud, adjoining the above, ten arpents; to Baptiste Melancon, adjoining the preceding, ten arpents; to Fremin Bro, ten arpents; to Pierre Broussard, ten arpents; to Claude Martin, ten arpents; to Joseph Martin, adjoining Claude Martin, and distant about one arpent from Madame Castayo, ten arpents. Andrew Martin, sworn and examined before the Board on the 20th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that the tract of land claimed is part of Ledée's grant, and has been inhabited and cultivated for more than twenty-five consecutive years, and without intermission to this day." Although no grant or other concession from the French or Spanish Governments to François Ledée, the original proprietor, has been produced, the claim is reported as one which ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed. The public sale of the tract divided into lots, by Mr. Trudeau, then Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, being regarded as sufficient evidence of a good title in Ledée; the evidence of Andre Martin establishing the occupancy of the land as required by law. The depth is unknown to the commissioners, not having been able to procure a survey of the land, and the operations of the Spanish Government being confined, as is supposed, to a measurement of the front, and giving the direction of the lines of depth, as was the usage of the country, but of which no plat having been filed, the quantity of land must be determined hereafter by survey.

No. 3. MARIE BABIN, widow of Claude Martin, claims ten arpents of land in front, on each side of the bayou Teche, with the depth of forty-two on the east side, and on the west with the depth from the said bayou Teche to the bayou Vermilion, by virtue of a grant in favor of François Ledée for a larger quantity, sold at vendue by parcels, and bought by Claude Martin at said vendue, as may be seen by papers filed in the claim of Pierre Brousard, in the Register's office. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Louis Judice, before the Board the 21st August, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed is a part of Ledée's grant for a larger quantity, and hath been inhabited and cultivated for more than forty consecutive years preceding this day." This claim ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed for so much land as may, from re-survey, be found to lie within the limits of the grant to Ledée.

No. 4. PLACIDE BOSSIER claims six hundred and forty acres at a place called St. Maurice, purchased from the heirs of the deceased Peter Derbanne, who settled and possessed it from the year 1772, to the time of his death, 1796. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Sylvester Bossier, aged forty-six years, before the Board the 23d February, 1813, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has been settled, inhabited, and cultivated from the year 1786, until about eight or nine years ago, by the said deceased Derbanne, and those claiming under him." Having stated in his notice that the land was purchased from the heirs of Pierre Derbanne, it was incumbent on the claimant to adduce the deed of sale, by which the quantity and situation of the land would probably have been explained. The commissioners are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed for the quantity of land which shall appear to have been conveyed, not exceeding six hundred and forty acres.

No. 5. THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES OF DANIEL CALLAGHAN, deceased, claim one hundred and seventy-seven superficial arpents of land, on the waters of the bayou Bellevue, by virtue of an order of survey in favor of the said Callaghan, bearing date the 3d April, 1788, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents; out of which order of survey there has been confirmed to Louailler's brothers twelve arpents, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,900; to William McCoy, by certificate No. 1,901, thirty-six arpents; and to the inhabitants of the county of Opelousas fifteen arpents, by certificate B, No. 2,278, leaving the above quantity one hundred and seventy-seven arpents, for which no regular entry has been filed, but of which the commissioners recommend the confirmation to the legal representatives of Daniel Callaghan, to whom the land was conceded by the above order of survey of unquestionable authority.

No. 6. THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES OF DANIEL CALLAGHAN, deceased, claim one hundred and seventy-seven arpents of land, on the waters of bayou Bellevue, by virtue of an order of survey in favor of said Callaghan, bearing date 24th September, 1789, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents. The two first confirmations mentioned in the next preceding number embrace equal quantities in each of the orders of survey, and the two claims being similarly circumstanced in other respects, this is likewise reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed to the legal representatives of said Callaghan for the above quantity of one hundred and seventy-seven arpents, remaining after deducting from the order of survey fifteen arpents, embraced by certificate B, No. 1,276, to the inhabitants of Opelousas.

No. 7. JOHN CALLENDER claims two lots of ground in the village of Natchitoches, of which the quantity is not set forth in the notice, and the title papers are said to be lost or mislaid. The notice of claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Gaspard Boudin, before the Board the 15th June, 1812, hath deposed, "that the lands claimed were inhabited about sixteen years ago, by one Baptiste Bercar, and that the same has been constantly inhabited ever since by the said Bercar and those claiming under him, until within the last two or three years of the present date." This claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed on the occupancy, but for what quantity they are unable to say, because the claimant has adduced no document by which the quantity can be ascertained.

No. 8. MICHEL CHAMARD claims a lot of ground in the town of Natchitoches, of which the quantity is not set forth in the notice, fronting on Red river, bounded below by land of François Roquier, Sen., and above by that of François Roquier, Jun., and on the west side by the street, held by purchase from François Roquier, Jun., attorney for Mr. Dubois, and by cultivation. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. François Davion, before the Board the 19th November, 1811, hath deposed, "that the said lot has been inhabited and cultivated for more than thirty years ago, by one Mr. Dartigeau, and every year since, by those claiming under him." The claimant having adduced no document of title, the commissioners can only report this as a claim which ought to be confirmed for the quantity which may be found hereafter.

No. 9. LOUIS C. DE BLANC. This claim is founded on a complete patent granted by Governor Galvez, on the 5th January, 1777, to Joseph Collet, for thirty arpents front of land, on the west bank of the river Teche, in the county of Attakapas, with the depth of eighty arpents. The double depth being conceded, as appears from the papers, in consequence of the grantee having constructed his indigo works at the distance of fifty arpents from the front. On the abstract of complete patents, furnished for the use of the Board of Commissioners, the one recorded in the name of Joseph Collet, and agreeing, as to date and other particulars, with the above, is entered as containing two thousand four hundred superficial arpents, which is the area that would be embraced by extending the lines of depth parallel to each other. The claimant has, however, presented with his patent a plat of survey, in which the lines of depth are represented as diverging from each other by an angle of seventy-five degrees and thirty minutes, including about four thousand two hundred arpents. The patent is unquestionably authentic, but the survey can add no dignity to the claim; it was made in 1805, by Ferdinand V. Potier, unknown and unacknowledged by the surveying department, but who certifies that he was authorized to survey by a commission from His Excellency Governor Claiborne. When lands have been conceded by the Spanish Government for an equal depth on both sides of a water course, which, from the local situation, required that the lines of depth should close on one side, they have generally opened on the opposite, by which an area would be included on the two sides equal to that which would be had by extending the lines of depth parallel to each other; and sometimes in grants lying wholly on one bank of a water course, where the calls are to adjoin other concessions above and below, the lines of depth have been made to diverge or converge, as the case may require, to correspond with the courses of the adjacent land. In the claim under consideration, however, it appears from the requête of the claimant that the land solicited, thirty arpents front, was bounded on one side by the land of Joseph Collet, and on the other side by the domain of the King. The order of survey requires that the commandant should put the party in possession of the land as solicited; and the commandant, Chevalier De Clouet, certifies that he had, on the 23d November, 1776, in virtue of the decree of the Governor General, established the party on the land petitioned for, thirty arpents front, on the west side of the bayou Teche, with the depth of eighty arpents, at a place called the end of the Fausse Point, opposite the Three Islands, bounded on one side by Mr. Collet, and on the other by the domain. The patent or title in form by Governor Galvez, dated 5th January, 1777, is made conformably to the act giving possession by the commandant. No courses are specified as governing this concession in any of the original documents of title; and the commissioners, seeing no reason why the lines of depths should be run otherwise than parallel to each other, are of opinion that this claim should be confirmed in such manner as to confine the land claimed to that form, and the quantity which would thereby be included.

No. 10. JOHN GRAVIER and EDWARD FORSTALL claim five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Tortue, being part of a larger tract granted to Mr. Dauterive. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Andre Martin, before the Board, 20th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed by Gravier and E. Forstall, of five arpents front, by the depth of forty, on the east side of the bayou Tortue, hath been inhabited and cultivated by the claimants, and those under whom they claim, for more than thirty years preceding this date, in regular succession. In this claim it is incumbent on the claimants to produce the deed by which the title was transferred to them from Dauterive or his successors; and the claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed on the production of the said deed or deeds, or an exemplification of them from record.

No. 11. JOHN GRAVIER and EDWARD FORSTALL claim a tract of land of four arpents front, on the bayou Tortue, and running in depth until it meets the forty arpents of depth from the bayou Teche. This claim is unaccompanied by any document of title, but is set forth in the notice to be a part of a grant of a league and a half front, on both sides of the bayou Teche, to Mr. Dauterive. Andre Martin, before the Board, 20th August, 1811, hath deposed, "that this tract, which is a part of the grant said to be given to Dauterive, hath been possessed by the claimants, and those under whom they claim, for more than forty years, and that said land hath always been taxed for the public works, and the owners acknowledged as the proprietors." It has not been attempted to prove that this claim has been settled or cultivated. It has been possessed, as stated by the witness, by the several proprietors more than forty years, and acknowledged as their property, &c. The claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed for the quantity of land which may be found within the concession of Dauterive, and for which the claimants may adduce satisfactory titles.

No. 12. JOHN GRAVIER and EDWARD FORSTALL claim a tract of land of three arpents front, on the bayou Tortue, with the depth until it meets the forty arpents of depth from the bayou Teche, being part of Mr. Dauterive's grant of a league and a half front, on both sides of the bayou Teche. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. André Martin, before the Board, August 20, 1811, hath deposed, "that the tract of land of three arpents front, on bayou Tortue, with the depth to meet the forty arpents from the bayou Teche, being part of the grant said to be given to Dauterive, claimed by J. Gravier and E. Forstall, have been by the claimants, and those they claim under, possessed for more than forty consecutive years, and that they have always paid the public contributions to the present day." This is claimed also as being within the concession to Dauterive. It is in all respects similarly circumstanced with the claim next preceding, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed for the quantity found from the survey to be within the grant, the claimants adducing satisfactory documents to establish their title.

No. 13. ALEXANDER FULTON claims two hundred arpents of land, situate in the county of Rapides, which is said to have been conceded by the Spanish Government to John McLaughlin, on the 8th of June, 1798. Several deeds are referred to in the notice of this claim, as well as the concession of Mr. McLaughlin, none of which are found with the other papers of Mr. Fulton; and, not appearing to have been enregistered in the book kept by the deputy Register of the district of Rapides, with whom the entry was made, and no evidence of occupancy having been adduced, the claim is presumed to have been withdrawn; and, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 14. ALEXANDER FULTON claims a tract of land on bayou Trudeau, in the county of Rapides, by virtue of a grant from the Spanish Government, which he alleges was obtained about the year 1799, and lost or mislaid in the office of the Surveyor General at New Orleans. The notice was filed with the deputy Register at Rapides, and has been so chafed and defaced in transmitting the papers to Opelousas, that the quantity of land claimed cannot be seen. The claim is unsupported by any evidence; and therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 15. JOSEPH GUIDRY claims the quantity of land granted to John Berrard by order of survey, dated the 10th March, 1785, (except ten arpents front,) by virtue of a purchase made by the claimant from said Berrard. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the following documents, to wit: The requête of John Berrard, dated the 13th of January, 1785, setting forth that where his vacherie then was, he was bounded by the Coule Desnoix, which crossed his land, and, on account of the augmentation of his cattle, and the cattle of his children, prayed a concession of a continuation on the west side of said Coule, for the quantity which should be ascertained by the surveyor. On the 15th of February, 1786, the Chevalier De Clouet, commandant of Attakapas, certifies the verity of what is exposed by the petitioner. On the 10th of March, 1785, Governor Miro orders the commandant to establish the demandant, J. Berrard, on the forty arpents of land in depth, to be taken behind the vacherie mentioned in the writing on the other side, (this order being written on the same paper on which the requête is made,) and following the same course of the vacherie, that he may be provided with his title in form. On the 10th of March, 1806, John Berrard, by deed in due form, sells to Joseph Guidry, the present claimant, the land conceded by the decree of the 10th of March, 1805, with the exception of ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents. Andre Martin, before the Board the 20th of August, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land in question, to wit, a tract of fifty arpents front, on the first forty arpents west of the Vermilion, by an order of survey in favor of John Berrard, has been inhabited and cultivated on and before the 1st of October, 1800, and without intermission since to the present date," the day on which his evidence was taken. The order of survey under which Mr. Guidry claims is for no specific quantity. Berrard petitions for a continuation of the land he held on the west side of the river Vermilion, and the concession is for the land solicited. The claimant has had surveyed to him forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the back of a tract conceded to Berrard, one other tract conceded to Labbe, Jun., and extending to a part of the back line of a tract conceded to Labbe, Sen. To entitle the claimant to a confirmation of the claim as surveyed, it is necessary that he should adduce the deeds of sale to establish that he was the proprietor of the lands granted to the two Labbes, at the date of his requête, the 13th of January, 1785. If it shall appear, from the production of the deeds from the two Labbes, that Berrard was the proprietor of the tracts conceded to them, at the date of his petition for this continuation, the Board is of opinion that the claim ought to be confirmed for the quantity claimed, forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, leaving ten arpents front to Berrard; but if, on the contrary, it shall appear from the deeds that the lands were acquired from the Labbes subsequently to Berrard's requête, the Board are of opinion that the confirmation should be confined to the quantity which may be immediately back of the tract conceded to Berrard.

No. 16. DAVID GUIDRY and JOHN MOUTON claim seventy-five arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, and such other depth as the original grant and conflicting claims will admit, lying on the river Teche, in the county of Attakapas, by virtue of a purchase from Alexander De Clouet, to whose children the said land was granted. A deed of conveyance from Alexander De Clouet to the claimants is the only document of title accompanying the notice of the claim. Andre Martin, before the Board, 16th of January, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land claimed was settled more than thirty years ago by the late Chevalier Alexander De Clouet, who continued to cultivate it for about twelve years, since which time it has been occupied and cultivated by Messrs. Martin Duralde, Pierre Nezat, Joseph Pierre Nezat, Auguste Nezat, Soleste Roy, Joseph Latiolet, Philip Dupletion, Pierre Broussard, Marcelle Pattin, Nich. Thibedeau, Ceril Thibedeau, John Thibedeau, Pierre Guidry, Louis Guidry, Olivier Guidry, and others, by whom the occupancy and cultivation of the land has been regularly and constantly maintained for the last thirty years or more, and to the present date." This claim is reported merely because the commissioners have not been able to obtain information of its extent; several attempts have been made by the surveyors to survey the land, but all have failed on account of an extensive swamp by which it is intersected. It is believed that this claim is wholly within the concession from the Spanish Government to Louise and Carline De Clouet, which has been occupied and cultivated, as appears from the evidence of Andre Martin, more than twenty consecutive years before the transfer of Louisiana to the United States. The commissioners are, therefore, of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed for three thousand superficial arpents, equal to 2,538.84 American acres, provided, that so much shall be found within the limits of the concession to Louise and Carline De Clouet, or for so much of the quantity short of the said 3,000 arpents as shall be found, by a correct survey, to be within the limits of said concession.

No. 17. THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES OF JOHN GRADENIGO claim two thousand seven hundred and seven and ninety-two one-hundredths acres of land at a place called "L'Isle à L'Anglois," by purchase from Charles Vege, who bought from François Lemell, who purchased from Louis Pellerin, the grantee. The notice is accompanied by a deed of sale from Louis Pellerin to François Lemell and Charles Vege, dated 21st April, 1780, for all the island called L'Anglois, with its appurtenances, as accorded to said Pellerin by the Spanish Government; a deed of sale from François Lemell to Antoine Boisdore, dated 15th of January, 1782, for the half of the island called L'Anglois, setting forth in the deed that the other half had been given up to Mr. Charles Vege, who, by an arrangement which appears to have been entered into before the commandant, dated 18th of February, 1782, stipulating for a divisional line, by which, after two years, he, said Vege, was to relinquish his claim to the upper or northern part of said island, to said Antoine Boisdore, in exchange for the lower part; the said Vege retaining three arpents front, in the said northern part, and reserving the privilege of removing, after the expiration of the said two years, his houses, fences, and fruit trees from the said northern part. A deed of sale, dated 27th of September, 1791, from Charles Vege to John Gradenigo for his right to said island, as he had it from Antoine Boisdore, with the exception of ten arpents front, by the ordinary depth, which had been conveyed to Nicholas Rousseau and Mary J. Lemell. A plat of survey, by an authorized surveyor, dated in 1806, including the quantity claimed in the notice. In support of this claim, the following evidence has been adduced: John Bte. Figurant, aged sixty-nine years, before the Board, 6th of August, 1811, hath deposed, "that, about twenty-three years ago, a man by the name of Vege made an establishment on the land claimed; that the said Vege, about eighteen or twenty years ago, passed this land to John Gradenigo, in exchange for some other land, from which time the said Gradenigo continued to inhabit and cultivate the said land to the time of his death, which happened about two years ago; that he has frequently heard Chevalier De Clouet, the former commandant of the post of Attakapas and Opelousas, say that there was a complete patent from the Spanish Government to Pellerin, former commandant of Opelousas, for said island, and half a league around it." Being asked whether he was of opinion that it was intended that the half league should include any part of the woods, or be taken wholly in the prairie, the deponent answers, "that it is his opinion, and he believes that it is the general understanding in the neighborhood, that the half league in depth should be taken wholly in the prairie, that is, that the back lines should in no part approach the woods of the island nearer than half a league." The deponent further saith, "that he never did see the title-papers on which this claim is founded, but that he has heard others, as well as Mr. De Clouet, say that there was a complete patent for it, and this appears to be the prevailing belief in the neighborhood."

Louis de la Houssaye, by commission from the Board, before Woodson Wren, justice of the peace in Attakapas, 26th November, 1811, hath deposed in answer to the following interrogatories: Interrogatory 1st. Do you know of a patent or any other description of title having issued by any Governor, or other public functionary under the French or Spanish Governments of Louisiana, to a Mr. Pellerin, for a tract of land embracing a body of woods called L'Isle L'Anglois, in the county of Opelousas? Interrogatory 2d. If you have any knowledge of the existence of such a concession or grant, in whose hands have you seen it? Relate circumstantially any knowledge you may have of the tenor, &c., of said concession. Answer to the 1st interrogatory. "That, about thirty years ago, as near as his recollection serves him, he was at Mr. Lemell's, where he found Mr. Louis Pellerin, the original proprietor of the land mentioned in the commission, and Mr. De Clouet, the commandant, when Mr. Pellerin proposed to Mr. Lemell to purchase the above mentioned tract of land, which was done while at dinner, and immediately after the conveyance was passed by the commandant. He, this deponent, saw Mr. Pellerin deliver the original grant to Mr. Lemell as soon as the conveyance or sale was signed and delivered, to which this deponent was a subscribing witness, but he did not examine the contents of said original grant, but was informed, and fully understood, that it comprehended the island, with the forty acres around it." The two following certificates given by Martin Duralde have been filed in the claim, but do not appear to have been given under the solemnity of an oath: Translation. "I, the undersigned, certify to have seen a concession of a place known by the name of L'Isle à L'Anglois, situated in this post, granted to the deceased Mr. Pellerin, saying either half a league or forty arpents of prairie all around said island, on part of which island John Gradenigo inhabits, and where he has all his improvements. Given to be of use before whom it may appertain. Opelousas, 7th December, 1805." "I, the undersigned, being questioned as to my knowledge of a concession for the Isle à L'Anglois, answer, that it was said at all times that all that island had been granted to Mr. Pellerin, deceased, with forty arpents of depth all around it; that I cannot affirm it as a certainty, but I believe those titles to have been seen by me in the hands of the deceased, Antoine Boisdore, or some others. What confirms me still more in the opinion that those titles did really exist is, that in the transfer of that property from the deceased François Lemell, to the deceased Antoine Boisdore, they are expressly mentioned, and said to have been annexed to the said sale. This given to be of use where it may appertain. Attakapas, August 9, 1810." Although the notice of the claim had been made for a specific quantity of land, conformable to the plat of survey, it has been contended by his representatives, since his death, that the notice was so made without his fully understanding it; and that the claimant, as well as his said representatives, and those from whom their title was derived, always contended that the island was conceded by the Spanish Government to Pellerin, with forty arpents of prairie in depth all around said island; and that, having bought conformably to the concession to Pellerin, they are entitled to a confirmation of their claim to that extent. The claimants, however, having failed to adduce the concession from the Spanish Government, or any record thereof, the commissioners have deemed it just to confine them to the quantity which they might hold under the act of Congress, allowing two thousand acres from occupancy ten consecutive years preceding the change of Government. Considering the length of occupancy, as established by the most respectable testimony, and the probability that the concession, which appears to have been lost or mislaid, may have been for a larger quantity of land, the Board has decided that, as two notices of claims had been regularly filed for the same island and its appendages, one under the claim of Vege, who held the southern moiety, with an addition of three arpents front out of the northern, and one under Boisdore, who held the residue, that it would be correct to appropriate four thousand acres to the two claims. They have accordingly, by their certificate, No. 2,234, confirmed to Antoine Lambert, who held under Boisdore, the quantity of 1,797 acres; to E. R. Lamorandier, by certificate, No. 2,235, 677 acres; to C. Voorhies, by certificate, No. 2,236, 338.51 acres, and to Louis Carrier, by certificate, No. 2,237, 1,178.49 acres, making 4,000 acres. The three last named persons holding under Gradenigo, who held under Vege, and the part which appears from the evidence to have been transferred to Nicholas Rousseau, leaving out of the claim of the heirs of Gradenigo about five hundred and five acres, the title to which the claimants have failed to establish to the satisfaction of the commissioners, who are, therefore, of opinion it ought not to be confirmed.

No. 18. JAMES GRIFFIN claims eight hundred and eighty superficial arpents of land on bayou Rapide, in the parish of Rapide, by purchase from Anselm Wells, brother and only heir of John Wells, deceased, who purchased four hundred and eighty arpents thereof from James McLaughlin; claiming the residue, four hundred arpents, by a requête in the name of the said John Wells, which is stated to have been lost or mislaid, and on occupancy of both tracts, which lie adjoining each other. The deed from McLaughlin to John Wells appears to have been executed before the proper Spanish officer, on the 26th May, 1801; and the evidence of occupancy being satisfactory as to that part of the land, the title to it has been confirmed by the Board of Commissioners, by their certificate B, No. 942. The residue of the claim, four hundred arpents, ought not, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed, the claimant having failed to establish the occupancy of that part of the land, or show a valid title from the Spanish Government to himself, or any former claimant.

No. 19. JOHN HEBERARD has claimed three thousand two hundred superficial arpents of land on Black river, forty arpents front, with the depth of forty arpents, on the right bank of the river, in the county of Rapide, and a like front and depth on the left bank, in the county of Concordia, near the junction of Washita with Black river. An order of survey, conceding the land as above described, dated 22d March, 1786, with the name of Estevan Miro, then Governor of Louisiana, subscribed to it, has been filed with the notice of this claim. From the appearance of this document, and comparing the signature with others of Governor Miro, the commissioners have been induced to believe it a forgery: nevertheless, the evidence introduced in the claim, establishing very satisfactorily that the land in question has been inhabited and cultivated constantly from the date of the concession, more than seventeen years before the delivery of Louisiana to the United States; and that, from the year 1791 or earlier, a public ferry has been kept at the place by the said Heberard, or those holding under him; and, as it appeared that the present claimants had paid fair prices for the land, and could not be considered as parties in the fraud, if any had been practised, the commissioners have confirmed the claim to the full extent, which might be claimed under occupancy for ten consecutive years, to wit, two thousand acres, by their certificates B, Nos. 1754 and 1755, to Charles Miles and John Henry, each for one thousand acres, leaving out of the original claim about eight hundred and thirty-seven arpents, equal to about seven hundred and seven and a half acres, the title for which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed, unless, by a recurrence to records, the claimants may be enabled to establish that the concession is a genuine one.

No. 20. SARAH JEUNE claims four hundred arpents of land on the bayou Rapide, in the county of Rapide. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the petition of the claimant, dated 6th January, 1802, and the certificate of the syndic of the post of Rapide, Joseph Chevalier Poirer, dated 11th January, 1802, stating that the land solicited was of the royal domain. The decision of the royal fiscal, to whom the requête was referred, dated at New Orleans, the 15th November, 1802, followed by the decree of the Intendant General of the province, Juan Ventura Morales, in favor of the claimant, to which is annexed the plat of survey and certificate of Carlos Trudeau, then Surveyor General of the province, dated in 1802, representing a tract of four hundred arpents of land fronting on the right bank of the bayou Rapide, bounded on one side by vacant land, and on the other side by the land of Joseph Quays, the survey of which had been made, and a plat returned, by his deputy, Hugh Coyle. The decree of Morales, late Intendant General, in this case, differs from the form which was usual in granting orders of survey anterior to his administration of the Government of Louisiana; yet, as the proceedings in the surveying department have given to it the effect of an order of survey, and as the survey of the land by an authorized surveyor is the best evidence of the claimant having been legally put in possession of the premises in question, although no evidence of actual occupancy has been adduced, the commissioners are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, in conformity with the usages of the Spanish Government.

No. 21. JAMES JEUNE claims four hundred arpents of land on the right bank of bayou Rapide, bounded on one side by land of Joseph Quays, and on the other side by the land of Michael Hooter. This claim being, in all respects, similar to the one reported under the next preceding number, is likewise reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 22. JOHN N. KERSHAW claims one arpent front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the south side of bayou Teche, in the vicinity of New Iberia, being part of a complete title said to have been made to Joseph Carline, of ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the said bayou; the claimant having purchased from François Prevost six arpents front, on each side of the bayou, sold to Alexander Hebert six arpents front on the north side, and three arpents front on the opposite side to Mongenot and Myer, from whom the above one arpent front was purchased by William Collins, who sold it to the claimant, by deed bearing date the 10th October, 1805, which last mentioned deed of sale accompanies the notice, describing the said one arpent front to be bounded on the lower side by land of Mongenot, and above by that of William Smith. No other document accompanies the notice, and no proof of occupancy. From the documents filed in the claim of Edward C. Nichols, which will be found reported under No. 30, to which the claimant refers in his notice, the commissioners are of opinion that this claim is part of a tract conceded by the Spanish Government to Joseph Carline at an early date, and, therefore, ought to be confirmed.

No. 23. JOHN LEGER claims one hundred and twenty-eight acres of land in or adjacent to the Prairie Grand Coteau, by virtue of settlement by Michel Leger, from whom he derives his claim. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title, except a plat of survey, dated in 1806. The claimant sets forth that the claim is situate adjoining to and at the back of a tract which was conceded to Paul Boutin, who sold it to Michel Leger, under whom the claimant holds; that, when Michel Leger settled, he supposed his establishment to be on the tract conceded to Boutin, and it was not until he had the land surveyed, about twelve months ago, (say in December, 1806,) he discovered his mistake. John Teller, before the Board, the 23d November, 1808, hath deposed, "that the tract of land claimed was settled upwards of twelve years ago by Michel Leger, who purchased it from Paul Boutin, the original grantee, and that it has been inhabited and cultivated ever since; that the present claimant was residing on it in the year 1803, and that he is a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family." The claim being for a small quantity of land to cover the improvements which the claimant and Michel Leger had erroneously made on the public domain, and it not appearing that the claimant ever had any grant of land from the Spanish Government in his own name, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim ought to be confirmed, and report it accordingly.

No. 24. ANTOINE LAMBERT claims 2,707.92 acres of land in the quarter De Pleasance, county of Opelousas, by purchase made by him at the vendue of the estate of the deceased Antoine Boisdore. In this claim Jacques Dupre, aged forty-one years, examined under oath before the Board, deposeth, "that he is well acquainted with the land in question, being in the neighborhood of his nativity; that he recollects perfectly when Mr. Charles Veger, a former proprietor, was residing on the said land at the northern extremity of the said island, more than twenty years past; that the said Veger continued to inhabit and cultivate at the said north end of the island, for several years, and until, by an exchange with Mr. Antoine Boisdore, the said Veger transferred his right to Mr. Boisdore; since which time the land in question has been constantly respected as the property of Mr. Boisdore, and the persons who have claimed under him, to the present date, 16th May, 1814." The commissioners refer to the claim of the representatives of John Gradenigo, reported under No. 17, by which it will be seen that this claim is for part of the tract said to have been conceded to Louis Pellerin; that much of the evidence in Gradenigo's claim applies equally to this; that the commissioners have issued their certificate to this claimant in confirmation of his title to 1,797 acres, in consequence of the long uninterrupted occupancy; and that the residue of the claim, being about nine hundred and eleven acres, is unsupported by any legal document or evidence which might entitle it to confirmation, and, therefore, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 25. JACQUES MOULON claims fifty-five arpents of land front on both sides of the bayou Teche, the land on the west side being claimed by virtue of a purchase of eighty arpents front from Nicholas Forstall; that on the east of left bank claimed under occupancy. The following testimony has been adduced in support of the claim: John Bte. Senate, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register, 13th December, 1808, hath deposed, that, about three or four and twenty years ago, the tract of land claimed was settled by John Louis Drouet for the present claimant; that he resided on the same for thirteen or fourteen years, and cultivated it; that when he left it he put a family of free negroes thereon; that the said claimant, not being satisfied with the free negroes residing on the land, sent up a mulatto man, slave to the claimant, to occupy the same, who resided thereon about six years, when he died; that, during the time he resided on said land, he cultivated it, and took care of the cattle which the claimant had on that side of the bayou; that the said land has always been known in the neighborhood for the property of the said claimant, and that the deponent would have applied for it himself if he had not believed it to be his property; that the said claimant, on the 20th December, 1803, was an old man, and the head of a family, and that he resided at New Orleans at that time; that he has always paid taxes for the same land, as the receipt which this deponent has in his possession will show." Andre Martin, before the Board, 4th October, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has, since the purchase made by said Moulon, and for more than twenty years, been known as the property of the claimant, who possessed it, and paid the taxes for the same from the above said time." Louis Drouet, on the 11th November, 1812, before Judge Lislet, of New Orleans, under a commission from the Board, after being sworn and examined in this claim, hath answered as follows: "Interrogatory 1st. Do you know the situation of the land in question, and where is it situate? Answer. That the land in question is situate in the lower part of the bayou Teche, having fifty-five arpents front on both sides of the said bayou, with the usual depth. Interrogatory 2d. Was the said land inhabited and cultivated on the left side of the bayou Teche on the 20th day of December, 1803; if so, by whom, and how long previous to that time? Answer. The said land has been permanently inhabited and cultivated on both sides of the said bayou by the negroes of James Moulon, of the city of New Orleans, under the direction of either him, this deponent, or his brother, the late Nicholas Drouet, or of his brother-in-law, the late John Baptiste Senate, or by some person employed by the said James Moulon, since twenty years and upwards, and until the year 1805, and even later. Interrogatory 3d. Relate all you know with respect to said land. Answer. He has stated all he knows with respect to said land, but thinks it necessary to declare that Joseph and Nicholas Drouet, his brothers, as well as John Baptiste Senate, his brother-in-law, are all dead." A receipt given to John Baptiste Senate by William Moore, as collector of taxes, for James White, parish Judge of Attakapas, dated 19th February, 1808, for nine dollars and sixty-two cents, for the taxes due by Jacques Moulon, for the year 1807, without describing the property on which said taxes were paid, is filed with the notice, and is believed to be the receipt to which the said Senate has referred in his evidence taken by the late Register. The claim for so much of the land as lies on the right bank of the Teche has been confirmed to the claimant, under a complete Spanish patent, made in favor of Nicholas Forstall, by the certificate of the commissioners, marked A, No. 1,575. From the general terms in which the testimony of John Bte. Senate is expressed, the commissioners are, in a great degree, left to conjecture his meaning; nor is the evidence of Drouet, taken before the parish judge for the city of New Orleans, as perspicuous as could be wished; they both speak generally of the land on both sides of the Teche. The Board is induced to believe that the habitation of the persons, who superintended for the claimant, must have been on that side of the Teche to which his title was unquestionable, to wit, on the right bank; and if the negroes of the claimant, who had charge of his cattle, did sometimes cultivate on the royal domain on the left bank, and should even sometimes have resided on that side, the Board are of opinion that this would not have constituted a title under the Spanish Government; that it is not such a claim as was contemplated by Congress in granting a right from ten consecutive years' possession, by the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807, and, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 26. CHARLES McDANIEL claims whatever the Board may grant, not exceeding six hundred and forty acres, by virtue of a right of settlement within a survey made by order of William Biggs on the eastwardly side of the river Teche, about a mile above its confluence with the river Chafalaya. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. John Henry, before the Board the 6th May, 1812, hath deposed, "that, sixteen years ago, this deponent was employed by the claimant to plough for him on the land claimed; that, from the appearance of the buildings, and other improvements on the land, he supposes the claimant may have inhabited it for several years preceding the date at which the deponent was employed as aforesaid, and that the land in question has been constantly inhabited and cultivated ever since, until within the last two years." The land claimed is acknowledged to be within the claim of William Biggs, reported No. 16, Attakapas claims, and conflicting with a claim for land occupied by permission of the proper Spanish authority, is reported for the consideration of Congress. The question of right between the adverse claimants ought to be left to the adjudication of the courts of justice. The commissioners cannot judge as to the credibility of the witnesses in the two claims, and report this as a claim which, in their opinion, ought also to be confirmed.

No. 27. PIERRE JOSEPH MAES claims a tract of land in the bourg of Natchitoches, containing such front as may be found between the land occupied by Charles Pavie in the said bourg, and the land sold by the claimant to a Mr. John Nancarrow, with such depth as may be found, suppose forty arpents, by virtue of his right as heir, and by intermarriage with Madame widow Mary David, the daughter of Pierre Dartegau; the said Dartegau having purchased the same of a certain Mr. Marmillion, who held it by purchase at the sale of the estate of Pierre Derbanne, who purchased it from Louis Menard, who purchased it from Mathew Monet and Barbet Rachel, who purchased from François Mezier, who purchased from Gaspard Derbanne. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the following deeds of sale: 1. Deed of sale from Mr. Marmillion to Pierre Dartegau, dated 22d August, 1776, for two lots of ground, (suppose in the village of Natchitoches,) the lot formerly purchased from Pierre Derbanne, and another lot adjacent to the above, which the seller purchased at the sale of the estate of Louis Menard; the two lots composed of fourteen toises and eleven feet front on the road, bounded south by Sorrel, a blacksmith, north by Andre Esclovan, east by the river, and west by the hills. 2. Deed of sale from Louis Menard to Pierre Derbanne, dated 2d October, 1758, for one acre seven toises and five feet on the ordinary depth, with the building, &c. on the land for the consideration of one thousand livres, and one cow and calf; sale executed in Natchitoches, and understood, from an endorsement on the back, to be for a lot in the town, since belonging to Marmillion. 3. Sale [dated 28th December, 1756, from Mathew Monet and wife to Louis Menard, for a lot with the building and improvements, supposed to be the same sold by Menard to Derbanne. 4. Sale from De Mezier, dated 26th January, 1756, to Monet for a house and lot and plantation on the other side of the river, such as he bought from Gaspard Derbanne. 5. Sale dated 23d March, 1753, from Gaspard Derbanne to Mr. De Mezier, for the land from Monet's fence to his ancient boundary. Antoine Prudhomme, before the Board the 20th November, 1811, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has been constantly, and without intermission, inhabited and cultivated for thirty years preceding the present date." The commissioners not having been able to ascertain the quantity of land in this claim, report it as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed for the quantity which may be found within the boundaries set forth in the deeds of sale filed in the claim.

No. 28. PIERRE JOSEPH MAES claims a tract of land in the post of Natchitoches, bounded on the north by land of Mr. Rambin, and on the south by land then occupied by Pierre Dartegau, by virtue of a purchase from Pierre Gagnor, the 7th April, 1786, who purchased the same at the sale of the estate of the deceased Andre Esclovan. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Pierre Gagnor to Pierre Joseph Maes, dated 17th April, 1786, for a house in the village of Natchitoches, with a lot fronting on the woods, bounded on one side by Mr. Rambin, and on the other by Mr. Dartegau, such as he bought it at the sale of the estate of the deceased Andre Esclovan. No other document of this title has been adduced. Antoine Prudhomme, before the Board the 30th November, 1811, hath deposed, "that the said lot has been inhabited and cultivated by one Andre Esclovan, and those claiming under him, for more than thirty consecutive years." The commissioners are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed for the quantity of land which, from survey, may be found within the boundaries of the lot, as described in the above deeds of sale filed in the claim.

No. 29. THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES OF ALEXANDER NORRIS claim two and a half arpents of land, lying in the town of New Iberia, on the bayou Teche, by purchase from John Punche, and sold by Louis Robeau, who sold to William Collins and Kershaw, the latter of whom sold his part to said Collins, from whom the claimant purchased. The deeds of sale above referred to, except that of Punche to Robeau, accompany the notice, all of them, except the last, having been executed before the Spanish authorities, whose duties, it is believed, required that they should be satisfied of the right of the seller, and ought to be regarded as sufficient evidence of title. The claim, therefore, although no evidence of occupancy has been adduced, ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed.

No. 30. EDWARD C. NICHOLS claims seven arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents on the west side of the bayou Teche, and seven arpents front on the east side of said bayou, opposite the above, of which four arpents extends to half of the depth of the woods, and the other three to the whole depth of the woods, by virtue of two purchases, one from François Cesar Boutle, acting for Philip Boutle, for four arpents front on both sides of the bayou, with the depth of forty arpents on the west side, and to half of the depth of the wood on the east side of said bayou; the other from J. N. Kershaw and wife, for three arpents front, by forty in depth on the west, and the like front on the east side, and extending to the depth of the woods. Philip Boutle purchased from Joseph Carlin, who is said to be the grantee. Kershaw and wife purchased from François Provost, who purchased from the said Carline.

The deeds of sale establishing the transfers above mentioned accompany the notice. An affidavit is found among the papers in this claim, without date, but known to be in the hand-writing of Mr. Cocke, late a member of the Board of Commissioners, subscribed by Edward C. Nichols, the claimant, in the following words: "Edward C. Nichols, being first sworn in the presence of the Board, says, that he has good reason to believe, and actually does believe, that the complete title mentioned in his notice made in favor of Joseph Carline, and upon which his title is founded, is lost, so that it will not be in his power to obtain the said original grant." No evidence of occupancy has been adduced. The commissioners are of opinion that the deeds, all of which were executed before the change of Government before the proper Spanish authorities, and duly recorded, except those from Boutle and Kershaw to Nichols, which were executed since the change of Government, before L. C. De Blanc, justice of the peace, ought to be taken as sufficient evidence of title, and that the claim ought to be confirmed to the legal representatives of the deceased claimant, Edward C. Nichols.

No. 31. EMANUEL PRUDHOMME claims a tract of land on the left side of Red river descending, containing about six arpents front, depth not mentioned, by virtue of a purchase from Madame widow St. Denis, in 1788. The notice is accompanied by the deed of sale from the widow St. Denis to Emanuel Prudhomme, dated 11th March, 1788, passed before Louis C. De Blanc, commandant of Natchitoches, "for the land which the said widow has occupied to this moment," situate on the other side of the river, bounded below by the bayou de la Mobile, and above by land of Pierre Badin, such as it is, in exchange for another tract of land described in the deed. Antoine Prudhomme, before the Board on the 20th November, 1811, hath deposed, "that the said land, situate on the left side of Red river, was inhabited in the year 1788, by said St. Denis, and has been, by those holding under her, without intermission to the present date. The commissioners consider the title to the land sufficiently established by the evidence of Antoine Prudhomme, and the deed of sale, but not having been able to ascertain the quantity to which the claimant is entitled, report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed for so much as may be found from survey to be within its proper limits.

No. 32. JOSEPH QUAYS claims four hundred arpents of land in the county of Rapide, on the bayou Rapide, by virtue of concession of the Spanish Government, bearing date 15th November, 1802; and plat of survey by the late Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, dated also in 1802; which tract is bounded on one side by the claim of Sarah Jeune, and on the other side by that of James Jeune. This claim being in all respects similar to those of Sarah Jeune and James Jeune, reported under Nos. 20 and 21, is likewise reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

No. 33. VICTOR ROMAINE claims ten arpents of land front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the bayou Teche, with a right in three acres on the west side of said bayou by purchase from Louis Judice, who purchased it from Mr. Dauterieve, to whom it was conceded. A plat of survey, dated in 1806, and an acknowledgment by Louis Judice, dated 24th December, 1806, to have sold twelve arpents front, on the bayou Teche by the depth of forty arpents, to Victor Romaine, bounded on one side by Forstall, and on the other by the seller, are the only documents filed in the claim. No proof of occupancy having been adduced, and the documents of title not being sufficient to establish the claim, or to show that it is part of a tract conceded by the Spanish Government, the commissioners are under the necessity of reporting it as a claim which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 34. HEIRS OF FRANÇOIS RAMBIN claim a lot of land in the post of Natchitoches, fronting on the river, and running for depth to the street; bounded above by land of Andre Ramin, and below by that of Mr. Maes, by virtue of settlement and cultivation. The notice is unaccompanied by any document of title. François Perault, before the Board, the 14th December, 1811, hath deposed, "that the said lot has been inhabited and cultivated for more than forty years immediately preceding this date." Barthelemy Rachel, on the 24th January, 1812, hath deposed, "that the said lot has been inhabited and cultivated for more than thirty consecutive years immediately preceding this date." The witnesses have not stated by whom the lot was occupied. The commissioners take it for granted it must have been the deceased François Ramin, or his representative, or some person for their use. The validity of the title being, therefore, established by the evidence, the commissioners are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed for the quantity which may be found within the known limits of the lot by survey.

No. 35. HEIRS OF FRANÇOIS ROUQUIER claim one hundred and nine acres of land on the right bank of Red river, in a triangular form, bounded on the upper side by land claimed by Antoine Vascur, and on the lower side by land of the claimants. This claim, being unsupported by any evidence of title, is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 36. GEORGE F. ROSS claims three thousand acres of land in the county of Washita, by virtue of a purchase from Nicholas Meriwether, attorney for Charles Lynch, who claimed under a concession of twelve leagues square of land from the King of Spain to the Baron de Bastrop. The notice of this claim is accompanied by an informal plat of survey, without date, showing the quantity of land claimed, and its situation on the left bank of the bayou Barthelemy. The deed of sale from said Meriwether, as the attorney of Charles Lynch, of the State of Kentucky, is written on the same paper containing the plat of survey, and bears date July 19, 1805. No other document of title, and no proof of occupancy, has been adduced in support of the claim; it is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 37. JAMES ROBERTSON claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the Mississippi river, in the county of Concordia, by virtue of settlement and cultivation, and by deed of conveyance from Philip Love, dated 29th January, 1806. The deed of sale above mentioned is the only document of title accompanying the notice of the claim. John Maylone, 1st March, 1806, hath deposed, "that, in the spring of the year 1804, he was on the land claimed for the first time; that he knows that, in the month of September, 1803, Philip Love, with several negroes, were making an improvement on said land; that, in the spring following, they had built a small cabin, and cleared about two acres of land, which was planted in corn and pumpkins, but not cultivated during that season, and the land has remained uninhabited ever since." Isaac Burley, before Richard Cocke, Esq., late land commissioner, 7th March, 1809, at Concordia, hath deposed, "that, on the 20th December, 1803, Philip Love, under whom the present claimant claims, was over twenty-one years of age, but his place of residence at that time is unknown to the deponent." George Ritchie, on the 5th October, 1810, hath deposed, "that, in the month of September, in the year 1803, he was on the tract of land situate on the right bank of the Mississippi river, about nine miles above the mouth of Cole's creek, then claimed by Philip Love, and since transferred, as this deponent has understood, to James Robertson; that, at that time, the said Love was residing on the premises in question, had two or more cabins on it, and a small piece of ground cleared and under cultivation in cabbage and other vegetables; and that he, the said Love, did continue to inhabit and cultivate said land to the end of the year 1803, and for some years afterwards; and that he does not know or believe that the said Love did hold or claim any other land in the Territory." Elijah Cushing hath deposed, "that, in the month of November or December, 1803, this deponent was on the land claimed, where he found Philip Love superintending several negroes, who were employed in cutting timber for market, for the benefit of Major Benjamin Kitchen, at that time an inhabitant of the Mississippi Territory; and that he does not believe that the said Love had at that time any intention of cultivating or claiming the land." The evidence of Elijah Cushing makes it appear that Philip Love, from whom James Robertson derives his claim, was on the land only as the agent of Benjamin Kitchen, and that Love had no intention of cultivating or claiming the land at the time he was on it, in November or December, 1803; and no evidence having been adduced to establish that Love had any permission from the proper authority to occupy the land, the commissioners are of opinion that the claim ought not to be confirmed, and report it accordingly. It is understood that the claim of Benjamin Kitchen, derived from William Turner, and confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,533, is for the same, or part of the same land.

No. 38. JOHN BTE. SENATE, as natural guardian for his son, Joseph Senate, claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the waters of bayou Teche, county of Attakapas, by virtue of a settlement made previous to the year 1803. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document of title. Charles McDaniel, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register, 25th January, 1809, hath deposed, "that, for ten years past, the claimant, John Bte. Senate, hath cultivated the land claimed, but this deponent doth not know that any person, except Indians, hath ever resided on the same." Jacob Jarrard, before Richard Cocke, Esq., late one of the members of the Board, on the 22d January, 1809, hath deposed, "that, about eight or nine years ago, the claimant settled upon a tract of land opposite to the land claimed, where he has resided ever since, and cultivated every year as well the tract claimed as the one on which he resided; that, about six or seven years ago, the claimant had a cabin on the land claimed, in which the negroes of the claimant then resided, but how long they had resided there the deponent cannot say." This claim does not come within the intendment of the act of Congress granting donations from the right of settlement, and, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 39. MARIA SIMIEN, free negress, claims two arpents of land in front, with the depth of forty arpents, in the Big Woods, by virtue of inheritance from her son, who purchased it from the widow Rideau. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from the widow Rideau to Antoine Simien, dated in 1801, and a plat of survey of the land by Luke Collins, deputy surveyor under the Spanish Government, dated 31st December, 1800; the said surveyor setting forth, in his process verbal, that it is part of a tract of twelve arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, granted to Michel Brignac, the 5th of March, 1778. The title to Brignac has been confirmed by the Board, by certificate A, No. 1,918, of which this claim is believed to be a part, and, therefore, needs no further confirmation.

No. 40. FRANÇOIS SOUBADON claims forty arpents front of land, by the depth of forty arpents, on the right bank of the Mississippi river, between Red river and Chafalaya, by virtue of his petition, and the consequent decree of Governor Miro. The claimant having filed with the notice of his claim the order of survey by Governor Miro, dated 7th February, 1785, on which the claim is founded, and which being for the quantity of twelve arpents front by the depth of forty arpents only, the claim for that quantity has been confirmed by the certificate of the commissioners, marked B, No. 1,037. The residue of the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 41. JOHN SIBLEY claims, under Paul Boit Lafitte, a tract of land containing about six and a half arpents, more or less, fronting Red river, with the usual depth of forty arpents back, bounded southerly, or down the river, by Louis St. Prie or Pierre Benoist, and northerly, or up the river, by the mouth of a large bayou called Coochenaha. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a certified copy of a deed of sale from Paul Boit Lafitte to John Sibley, dated 12th March, 1807, of which the following is a translation: "Before Marcell. de Soto, commandant, civil and military, at bayou Pierre, in the province of Texas, on the 12th March, 1807, Boit Lafitte, inhabitant of bayou Pierre, declares to have sold to John Sibley a tract of land in the vicinity of Grand Ecor, bounded above by the river and Benoist Montanery, until it strikes the bayou Coachenaha." John Ris, aged about fifty-three years, before the Board, 18th February, 1813, hath deposed, "that the land has been inhabited and cultivated for more than thirty consecutive years preceding this date." No other evidence of title has been adduced in support of the claim. The 2d section of the act of Congress of the 3d March, 1807, on which this claim is founded, restricts the benefit granted by that section to the person in possession, or the legal representative of the person in possession of the land, on the 20th December, 1803. It does not appear, from the evidence adduced, that Paul Boit Lafitte was in possession of the land on the 20th December, 1803, and the Board is disposed to believe he was not so in possession, because it has been suggested by Major E. Lamorandier, who is acquainted with Lafitte, that he has been many years an inhabitant of the bayou Pierre settlement, where he was residing at the time of executing the sale, and because no document of title has been adduced to establish such possession. Even if it had been ascertained that he was the person in possession of the land as aforesaid, the commissioners would not be inclined to recognise as legal and valid a deed of sale executed before a person subscribing himself "Commandant for the district of bayou Pierre, in the province of Texas, in the year 1807;" 1st, because they have no means of knowing that he ever held such an office; and, 2d, because it is contended that that settlement is within the proper limits of Louisiana, as ceded by the French republic to the United States. The present claimant cannot, therefore, be considered the legal representative of Lafitte. For these reasons, the commissioners are of opinion the claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 42. JOHN SIBLEY claims, under John Horn, one hundred and ninety-five and thirty-five one-hundredths acres of land in the county of Natchitoches, on the west side of Red river, about one mile below the town of Natchitoches, bounded east by that part of the river called False river, north and south by land supposed to be vacant, and west by Lake Terre Blanc, as it is called. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, by a deputy surveyor, dated the 7th February, 1806, and a certified copy of a deed of sale from John Horn to John Sibley, dated 31st May, 1806, neither of which documents was presented to be filed, with the notice of the claim, until the 7th April, 1814. The courses of the upper and lower lines of the plat, extending from the river to the lake, appear to have been altered, the one from S. 43° E. to S. 83° E., and the other from N. 43° W. to N. 83° W., the last mentioned courses agreeing with those inserted in the deed of sale. A duplicate of the plat being filed in the office of the principal deputy surveyor, by the said deputy, is found to correspond with what appears to have been the courses originally set on the lines of the plat, filed in the claim, viz: the upper and lower sides, extending from the river to the lake, are S. 43° E. and N. 43° W. Pierre Elie, before the Board the 16th June, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land has been inhabited and cultivated for more than twenty consecutive years, first by Madame Sans Regret, and others claiming under her, to this day. No other evidence has been offered in support of the claim." The evidence of Pierre Elie, making it appear that Madame Sans Regret was the original claimant, and there being no document adduced to show that she had transferred her claim, or by which the nature and extent of the claim, as originally held, might be ascertained; and the other documents being unsatisfactory, together with the circumstance of there being one claim, under an order of survey to John Horn, confirmed, as may appear by the commissioners' certificate B, No. 1,953, this claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed, and they report it accordingly.

No. 43. JOHN SIBLEY claims a lot of land in the town of Natchitoches, on which he resides, bounded on the south by the river, and by the lot on which the church stands, west by a public road or street, and extending back two hundred poles. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a certified copy of a deed of sale from John B. Ailhaud St. Ann to Augustin Le Clerk, dated in 1801, for a lot of ground in the village of Natchitoches, containing half an arpent front on the river, bounded below by the church lot, above by the large road, and in the depth by the gully bordering the hill, which ——— presented to have been the property of the said Ann, by purchase from John Lambre, as per deed in the records of the post of Natchitoches. A deed of sale from Louis Beltemaux, as testamentary executor of the estate of Le Clerk, to John Sibley and Timothy Terrel, dated 28th March, 1803, for said lot, with the house on it, and a receipt for the payment, dated 20th February, 1804; also, the release of said Terrel to Sibley, in the same year, for all his right and title in the said lot, and a plat of survey, by a deputy surveyor, dated in February, 1806, which last document was filed, in the claim, in April, 1814. Barthelemy Rachel, before the Board, the 23d January, 1812, hath deposed, "that the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated by the claimant, and those under whom he claims, for more than thirty consecutive years immediately preceding this date." John Ris, on the 18th February, 1813, hath deposed, "that the said lot has been inhabited and cultivated for a garden for more than thirty years immediately preceding this date." The plat of survey, filed in the claim, not appearing to have marked the gully, as a boundary, on the back of the lot, conformably to the deed of sale from Ailhaud St. Ann, the commissioners have required a re-survey of this, with the other lots in the village of Natchitoches, but not having been able to obtain it, on account (as the deputy surveyor of the district has asserted) of contentions between adjoining proprietors, this claim is reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed for the quantity which, from a satisfactory survey, shall be found within the proper limits of the lot.

No. 44. JOHN SIBLEY claims, under François Mercier and wife, fifteen arpents front on the north, and ten arpents front on the opposite side of Red river, with the depth of forty arpents on each side, say one thousand superficial arpents. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a deed of sale from Louis Mercier and wife to John Sibley, dated 25th January, 1806, for all their right and pretensions to a tract of land on which the said Mercier and wife then resided, and on which they had lived for three years then last past; the situation and extent of which tract of land is not set forth in the deed of sale, but reference is had to the certificate of Felix Trudeau, of the same date with the deed, 25th January, 1806, written on the back of the paper containing the deed of sale, and of which certificate the following is a translation, in substance: "Felix Trudeau, captain of infantry, heretofore commandant of Natchitoches for His Majesty, certifies that, in the year 1802, he gave permission to Louis Mercier and his family to settle on a tract of land about the Lake Paulideau, and on the river, bounded above by land of Antoine Poisot, and below by the bayou, and ten arpents on the opposite side." The quantity of land to which Louis Mercier and wife might have set up a claim, under the permission of Mr. Trudeau, as above stated, is uncertain and undetermined, and the evidence of permission is, from having been given since the change of Government, and not under the solemnity of an oath, insufficient. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced, and the claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed. The notice is supposed to be erroneous in claiming under François, instead of Louis Mercier, whose deed is filed.

No. 45. NICHOLAS THIBEDEAU claims six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the bayou Teche, county of Attakapas, and twelve arpents, superficial, on the opposite side of said bayou, at the Prairie Grocheveriel, by virtue of a sale from Don Louis De Clouet. The notice is accompanied by a deed of sale from said De Clouet to the claimant, dated 2d May, 1796, for a tract of land situate on both sides of the river Teche, at a place called Grand Point, to wit, six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the left or east bank, and twelve superficial arpents (four arpents front, by the depth of three arpents) on the right or west bank of said river; bounded, on one side, by land of Jesse E. Lacy, and, on the other side, by land of the seller. No proof has been offered to establish occupancy or possession. The commissioners are of opinion that the deed passed before the commandant, and duly enregistered, ought to be taken as evidence of title, and that the claim ought to be confirmed.

No. 46. WIDOW OLIVIER THIBEDEAU claims ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the river Teche, at a place called Prairie Grocheveriel, and twenty-one superficial arpents on the west side of said river, county of Attakapas, by virtue of a purchase from Jesse E. Lacy, by her deceased husband. The notice of the claim is accompanied by the deed of sale from Chevalier De Clouet, acting for his brother Louis De Clouet, to Jesse E. Lacy, dated 2d May, 1796, for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, at a place called Grand Point, on the east bank of the bayou Teche, joining land sold by same to Pierre Guidry, on one side, and, on the other side, by land of the seller, and seven arpents front, by the depth of three arpents, on the west side of the Teche, descending from a place opposite the boundary of Pierre Guidry. The claimant has produced no evidence of occupancy, nor does it appear how De Clouet became the proprietor of the land. The commissioners are of opinion, however, that the sale executed before the commandant, as early as 1796, should be taken as evidence that De Clouet had a valid title in the land at that time. This deed being in the possession of, and produced by, the claimant, is, at least, strong presumptive evidence of Lacy's having transferred his title, as stated in the notice. The claim is, therefore, reported as one which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed to the present claimant, conformably to the sale from De Clouet to Lacy.

No. 47. WIDOW OLIVIER THIBEDEAU claims four arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the bayou Teche, at the Prairie Grocheveriel, by virtue of a sale from Pierre Broussard to her deceased husband. Although no original document of title, nor proof of occupancy has been adduced in this claim, the introduction of an authentic deed of sale from Pierre Broussard to the deceased husband of the claimant, passed before the proper authority, under the Spanish Government, is such evidence of title as to induce the commissioners to report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed.

No. 48. JULIEN THOMAS (widow) claims a tract of land of seven arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, say two hundred and eighty superficial arpents, in the prairie of the Hill, county of Opelousas, by virtue of two complete titles, one to Pedro Bourdelon, and the other to ———, and by occupancy and regular conveyances. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, made for Pedro Bourdelon, by the late Surveyor General, Charles Trudeau, for six arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, dated in 1791, and by no other document or evidence of title. Although the claim is unsupported by any evidence of occupancy, and no grant is found in the name of Pedro Bourdelon, on the abstract of complete titles furnished the Board, yet the plat of survey by the Surveyor General under the Spanish Government, so early as the year 1791, ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be taken as sufficient evidence of title, and the claim confirmed for the land included in the survey. The residue of this claim, to wit, one arpent front, by the depth of forty arpents, being unsupported by any evidence of title, cannot be recommended for confirmation.

No. 49. LOUIS VEILLON claims twelve arpents of land front, by the depth of forty arpents, in the Prairie Grocheveriel, county of Attakapas, by virtue of a purchase from Martin Sondrique. Andre Martin, before the Board, the 11th May, 1813, hath deposed, "that the land claimed is part of Louise and Carline De Clouet's concession, and sold to Martin Sondrique, who inhabited and cultivated the same constantly for twenty years past, and until he sold the same to Louis Veillon, who continued to have the land inhabited and cultivated to this day." The claimant, in his notice, refers to a plat of survey which is believed to be the same filed in the claim of Pierre Broussard, which appears to have been made for Martin Sondrique, and for the quantity of land claimed by Veillon. The claim, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed for the land claimed, if found within the tract conceded to Louise and Carline De Clouet, and on the claimant's producing the transfers necessary to establish his right.

No. 50. CHARLES VEGER claims seven arpents and a half front, with the depth to the gully, which divides his land from that of Noel Vasseur and his front line, six arpents and a half of which front is part of a survey of fourteen arpents front, made by the late Surveyor General, Carlos Trudeau, on a deed of sale from Chevalier Villier to François Fontenot, who sold it to John Baptiste Demarais, who sold to the claimant. The residue, to wit, one arpent front, is claimed as a part of a tract granted to Jo. Baptiste Figurant. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, by Carlos Trudeau, late Surveyor General of the Spanish Government, dated in 1794, embracing four arpents front, by the depth of forty, for Baptiste Demarais, the said surveyor setting forth in his process-verbal, that a contestation between Baptiste Demarais and Joseph Andrepont, each having a concession for the same land, had been settled by establishing Demarais on four arpents front, and Joseph Andrepont on the residue of the tract. A deed of conveyance from François Fontenot to John Baptiste Demarais, for six and a half arpents front, with the depth from the gully, which is the limit of the land of Victor Forrest, and running ———

Prairie, called Joseph Forrest, ——— 1801, and also a deed of sale, from John Baptiste Demarais to the claimant, for seven and a half arpents front, dated 4th January, 1804. No proof to establish occupancy has been taken in the claim. The commissioners are of opinion, that the plat of survey by the Surveyor General, filed in the claim, and the deed of transfer from Fontenot to Demarais, which has been regularly passed before the commandant, in the year 1801, should be taken as sufficient evidence of title; and, therefore, report the claim as one which, in their opinion, ought to be confirmed for the quantity claimed, not exceeding three hundred arpents, equal to seven and a half arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, to be ascertained by the survey.

No. 51. MICHEL LE VILLAIN LA CHAPPELLE claims three hundred and sixty arpents of land on the bayou Siard, one hundred and sixty arpents of which he claims under an order of survey to William Dawson, and the remaining two hundred arpents by right of settlement. A plat of survey, by James McLaughlin, a deputy surveyor, under the Spanish Government, dated 26th February, 1801, embracing four arpents and a half front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of said bayou Siard, is filed in the claim, together with the order of survey and deeds of sale to the claimant. By the testimony of James McLaughlin, taken in the claim, it is established, that on one side of the bayou, which is prairie land, and held under the order of survey, has been settled and cultivated from the year 1795, and that the tract, on the opposite side of the bayou, is woodland, unfit for culture. The claim to one hundred and sixty arpents, held under the order of survey, has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 416, leaving the residue, two hundred arpents of woodland, the claim to which, being unsupported by any document of title, except the plat of survey, and no proof of occupancy, is reported as a claim which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed.

Signed duplicates, one whereof transmitted to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in the Treasury Department, the other deposited in the office of the Register of the Land Office, at Opelousas.

MILITARY BOUNTY LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, FEBRUARY 6, 1816.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

FEBRUARY 6, 1816.

It is represented that the lands in the Michigan Territory, designated by law, towards satisfying the land bounties promised to the soldiers of the late army, are so covered with swamps and lakes, or otherwise unfit for cultivation, that a very inconsiderable proportion can be applied to the intended grants. I recommend, therefore, that other lands be designated by Congress for the purpose of supplying the deficiency.

JAMES MADISON.

[The following documents were subsequently submitted to the Senate by the Committee on Military Affairs:]

SIR:

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, February 16, 1816.

The enclosed papers contain all the information which the Department can give upon the several subjects embraced by the resolution of the Senate, transmitted to me in your letter of the 25th ultimo.

It is known that desertion to a very considerable extent, both before and since the peace, prevailed in the army. That portion of the men who now compose the peace establishment will not be entitled to their warrants until the expiration of their term of service. It is, therefore, probable, that the appropriation of lands will not be found insufficient to satisfy the demands of those whose claim to military lands is now complete.

From the evidence transmitted, it is manifest that a change ought to be made in the location of the military tract lying in the Michigan Territory. The opinion of the Commissioner of the General Land Office will direct the attention of the committee to the lands which may be given in exchange for that tract.

I have the honor to be, respectfully, your most obedient and humble servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. JAMES BARBOUR, Chairman of the Military Committee of the Senate.

SIR:

ADJUTANT AND INSPECTOR GENERAL'S OFFICE, September 25, 1815.

It will undoubtedly become necessary for Congress, at their next session, to make further appropriations of land, to enable the Government to fulfil its contracts with soldiers who enlisted into the army under the several acts of December 24, 1811, January 11, 1812, and December 10, 1814. To ascertain the quantity, reference must be had to the enlistments, conformably to those acts.

The recruiting accounts furnish the best evidence; and, in fact, no other exists. The casualties of service were not reported to this office in the early part of the war; and it was not until after I came into the office that returns were procured, by which I can only ascertain the number of men in service after the last campaign.

Reference must, therefore, be had to the recruiting accounts of all officers, as rendered to your Department for settlement. A list, showing the names of officers who have rendered recruiting accounts, the number of men enlisted by each, stating the number for five years, for the war, for one year, and for eighteen months, since the passing of the act of December 24, 1811, will furnish the necessary data, and enable me to make the estimate required. It is presumed nearly all the enlistments will have come in by the 1st of December next, at which time the information will be wanted.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

D. PARKER, Adjutant and Inspector General.

ROBERT BRENT, Esq., Paymaster of the Army.

SIR:

ARMY PAY OFFICE, CITY OF WASHINGTON, December 23, 1815.

In answer to your letter of the 25th of September, I herewith enclose to you a statement, showing—

1st. The number of recruits enlisted prior to the 10th of December, 1814, for the several periods of "during the war," "five years," "eighteen months," and "twelve months."

2d. The number enlisted since the 10th of December, 1814, for the periods of "during the war," and "five years;" and

3d. The aggregate or whole number enlisted since the 24th of December, 1811.

This statement, it must be borne in mind, is necessarily imperfect, and falls far short of the number actually enlisted, and for the following reasons:

1st. Because it does not include any of the recruits contained in recruiting accounts which were settled in this office previous to the 24th of August, 1814, the copies of which were destroyed by the enemy; the originals were, as usual, sent up to the other offices of the Government.

2d. Because there may be, as there undoubtedly are, many recruiting accounts not yet lodged in this office; whilst there are probably others that have been lost or destroyed by unavoidable casualty, and never can be lodged here by the officers to whom they belonged.

I have taken the 10th of December, 1814, as a dividing point between the enlistments, on account of the increase of the land bounty from one hundred and sixty to three hundred and twenty acres, by the law of that date.

I am respectfully, sir, your most obedient,

ROBERT BRENT, Paymaster, U. S. Army.

Brigadier General DANIEL PARKER,

Adjutant and Inspector General, U. S. Army.

Statement showing, as far as can be well ascertained from the accounts rendered to this office, the number of recruits enlisted under the several acts of Congress, passed since the 24th of December, 1811, for the several periods of "during the war," "for five years," "for eighteen months," and "for twelve months;" taken from the recruiting accounts which have been settled since the 24th of August, 1814, and from those remaining unsettled.

ROBERT BRENT, Paymaster, U. S. Army.

SIR:

ADJUTANT AND INSPECTOR GENERAL'S OFFICE, February 9, 1816.

Conformably to your orders I have the honor to lay before you the best information I have been able to collect relative to the number of men who are entitled to lands for military services during the late war.

The imperfection and irregularity of the returns in the early part of the war, compelled me to resort to the recruiting accounts as rendered to the Pay Office; and I enclose the report of the paymaster of the army on this subject, by which it will appear that he has no certain information of more than 34,617, who were enlisted under the acts giving bounty lands. The first correct report I was able to obtain, after I entered on the duties of this office, was a return and descriptive list of the army in February, 1815, by which it appears there were in service, at the close of the war, 34,000, who had been enlisted conformably to the acts giving bounty lands for military services. If to this number be added those of the same description whose enlistments have been returned to the accounting officers, it will give an estimated aggregate of 68,500 men, who are entitled to 160 acres each, equal to 10,960,000 acres of land for military services, rendered by the non-commissioned officers, musicians, and privates, of the army, during the late war.

I have the honor to be, with perfect respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

D. PARKER, Adjutant and Inspector General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

SIR:

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, January 22, 1816.

It appears from the representations of the persons employed in surveying the lands in the Michigan Territory, designated by an act of Congress for satisfying the land bounties promised to the soldiers of the late army, that the greatest portion of those lands are not fit for cultivation, and cannot, according to the provisions of that act, be granted in discharge of the obligation on the part of the Government to grant lands fit for cultivation. As it is presumed that Congress will appropriate other lands in lieu of those which have been found to be unfit for cultivation, I will thank you to designate the tract of country which it will be most expedient to set apart for that purpose. It may also enter into the policy of Congress to change the location of the military tract upon the Arkansas to the public lands east of the Mississippi, if such change can be made without injury to the public interest. Any information which you may be able to furnish upon this subject will oblige, sir, &c.

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq.,
Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 26, 1816.

Your note of the 22d of this month was received yesterday. It requests me to designate a tract of country, which it may be most expedient to set apart for satisfying military land bounties for services during the late war, in the place of two millions of acres directed to be surveyed in the Territory of Michigan.

It is believed, from the representations made to this office from the Surveyor General, (of which a copy accompanies this,) that a sufficient quantity of land cannot be found in that Territory, of such quality as was intended by law to be applied to the reward of the soldiers of the late army.

The tract of country ceded by the treaty of St. Louis, November 3, 1804, contains, by estimation, at least nineteen millions of acres. This tract is believed to be generally very good land. Two millions of acres, lying in the fork of the rivers Mississippi and Illinois, are now surveying. I, therefore, recommend that two millions of acres, in lieu of that in the Territory of Michigan, be appropriated in the Illinois cession.

Should it be the policy of Congress to change the location of the military tract upon the Arkansas, I recommend that the appropriation be on that tract which was ceded by the treaty of Fort Wayne, September 30, 1809, which is commonly called Harrison's Purchase.

This tract contains about two millions eight hundred and thirty-four thousand acres; it is already surveyed; it is excellent land; and, if offered at public sale, would speedily be purchased.

There are large quantities of land in the several land districts northwest of the Ohio, which are now in market at two dollars an acre. Whether it may consist with good policy to permit the application of any part of those lands to the satisfaction of military claims, must be left to the wisdom of Congress to decide.

I have the honor, to be, very respectfully yours,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

HON. WM. H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of War.

SURVEYOR GENERAL'S OFFICE, CHILICOTHE, November 30, 1815.

The surveyors, who went to survey the military land in Michigan Territory, have been obliged to suspend their operations until the country shall be sufficiently frozen so as to bear man and beast. Knowing the desire of the Government to have the lands surveyed as soon as practicable, and my earnest importunities to urge the work forward, they continued at work, suffering incredible hardships, until both men and beasts were literally wore down with extreme sufferings and fatigue. The frost set in early, and the ice covered nearly the whole country, but broke through at every step, and the packhorses could not be got along with them. They were, therefore, obliged to submit to the climate and its attendant rigors, and desist for a while, intending to attack them again so soon as they think it possible to proceed.

I annex a description of the country, which has been sent to me, and which, I am informed, all the surveyors concur in; it was only yesterday I received it, and heard of their return. So soon as their health and strength is recruited, I expect to see them all, only one of them having been here yet. In the mean time, I think it my duty to give you the information, believing that it is the wish of the Government that the soldiers should have (as the act of Congress expresses) lands fit for cultivation; and that the whole of the two millions of acres appropriated in the Territory of Michigan will not contain any thing like one-hundredth part of that quantity, or is worth the expense of surveying it. Perhaps you may think with me, that it will be proper to make this representation to the President of the United States, and he may arrest all further proceedings, by directing me to pay off what has been done, and abandon the country.

Congress being in session, other lands could be appropriated in lieu of these, and might be surveyed as soon as those in Michigan; for when the ice is sufficiently strong to bear man and beast, a deep snow would still embarrass the surveyors. I shall, therefore, wait to hear your answer to this communication before I proceed any further, thinking I should be unfaithful to my trust if I had lost any time in communicating the information received.

Description of the military lands in Michigan Territory.

The country on the Indian boundary line from the mouth of the great Auglaize river, and running thence for about fifty miles, is (with some few exceptions) low wet land, with a thick growth of underbrush, intermixed with very bad marshes, but generally very heavy timbered with beech, cottonwood, oak, &c.; from thence continuing north and extending from the Indian boundary line eastward, the number and extent of the swamps increases with the addition of numbers of lakes from twenty chains to two and three miles across: many of the lakes have extensive marshes adjoining their margins, sometimes thickly covered with a species of pine called "tamarak," and other places covered with a coarse high grass, and uniformly covered from six inches to three feet (and more at times) with water: the margins of the lakes are not the only places where swamps are found, for they are interspersed throughout the whole country, and filled with water as above stated, and varying in extent. The intermediate space between the swamps and lakes, which is probably near one half of the country, is, with a very exceptions, a poor barren, sandy land, on which scarcely any vegetation grows, except very small scrubby oaks. In many places, that part which may be called dry land, is composed of little short sand hills, forming a kind of deep basins, the bottom of many of which are composed of a marsh similar to those above described. The streams are generally narrow, and very deep, compared with their width; the shores and bottoms of which are (with a very few exceptions) swampy beyond description; and it is with the utmost difficulty that a place can be found over which horses can be conveyed. A circumstance peculiar to that country is exhibited in many of the marshes, by their being thinly covered with a sward of grass, by walking on which evinced the existence of water, or a very thin mud, immediately under that thin covering, which sinks from six to eighteen inches from the pressure of the foot at every step, and at the same time rising before and behind the person passing over. The margins of many of the lakes and streams are in a similar situation, and in many places are literally afloat. On approaching the eastern part of the military lands, towards the private claims, in the straits and lakes, the country does not contain so many swamps and lakes, but the extreme sterility and barrenness of the soil continues the same. Taking the country altogether, so far as has been explored, and to all appearance, together with the information received concurring, the balance is as bad, there would not be more than one acre out of a hundred, if there would be one out of a thousand, that would, in any case, admit of cultivation.

With great respect, I am your obedient servant,

EDWARD TIFFIN.

The Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office, Washington.

Extract of a letter from the same to the same, dated December 11, 1815.

I am very anxious to hear from you since my representation of Michigan went on. Subsequent accounts confirm the statements, and make the country out worse (if possible) than I had represented it to be.

[1st SESSION.]

CONFLICTING CLAIMS UNDER BRITISH AND SPANISH GRANTS IN THE MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, FEBRUARY 12, 1816.

Mr. ROBERTSON made the following report:

The Committee on the Public Lands, to whom were referred the memorial of the House of Representatives of the Mississippi Territory, and the memorials of sundry inhabitants of said Territory, as also the memorial of Seth Hunt on the same subject, respectfully submit the following report:

The Legislature and people of the Mississippi Territory express much solicitude in relation to a general and grievous litigation which is likely to arise in that section of country between residents claiming lands under Spanish grants, and non-residents claiming the same lands under British grants, and pray that Congress may interpose to prevent the consequences which such a state of things may produce.

As this is a subject of considerable interest, and one which requires much investigation, the committee have given it particular attention, and have now to submit the following views to the consideration of the House:

In the year 1763 the British Government obtained from France, by treaty, all that part of Louisiana which lies east of the Mississippi river and island of New Orleans; and, in some short time afterwards, added to it the adjacent Territory extending eastwardly to the Appalachicola and northwardly to the Yazoo, and called the whole West Florida. In 1780, during our revolutionary war, this country fell into the hands of Spain, by conquest, limited as above described. By the preliminary articles of peace between the United States and Great Britain, signed in November, 1782, the thirty-first degree of north latitude was agreed upon as our southern boundary. By the preliminary articles of peace between Spain and Great Britain, signed in January, 1783, West Florida was ceded to the former; and by the treaties of peace concluded in September, 1783, the above preliminaries were finally confirmed.

Notwithstanding our southern limit was thus clearly defined, Spain continued to hold possession of the country as far north as the mouth of the Yazoo, which lies in about thirty-two degrees thirty seconds north latitude, under the pretence that it formed a part of West Florida, which had been ceded to her. In 1795 a treaty was concluded between that country and the United States, by which the thirty-first degree of north latitude, established in 1782 and 1783, is again acknowledged to be our rightful boundary; and the territory lying between that line and the mouth of the Yazoo was delivered up to us in 1798.

It has been before stated that, from 1764 to 1780, this country belonged to England. Whilst in her possession a large portion of it was granted away to her subjects in tracts of various magnitude. It has been also stated that, from the latter period to 1798, it remained in the possession of Spain. Spain exercised complete jurisdiction over it during this time, followed the example of England, and made grants of land to the inhabitants as her subjects. These latter grants covered many tracts for which British patents had previously issued; and hence the conflicting claims to a great portion of the most valuable settled lands in the Mississippi Territory.

A concise view of the principles which influenced the different Governments, through whose hands this country has passed, in granting lands to their subjects, will not be deemed improper, and may facilitate the decision of the question which is submitted to the consideration of the House.

It will appear, from an examination of a proclamation of the King of England, dated on the 7th of October, 1763, (see Land Laws, page 14,) that it was an early policy of the Government to increase the population of the province by making moderate concessions of royal domain to actual settlers. This principle, it is believed, was seldom departed from. It had before regulated the French Government, whilst the country below the thirty-first degree of latitude belonged to France. Although some large grants have been made, it is probable that this was done under special circumstances, or was a departure from the usual policy of the country. It will be seen, too, from the instrument above alluded to, that cultivation and improvement were conditions of the grants; and that the power to issue them was given to the Governor alone. These principles were recognised and acted upon by the Spanish Government, when the country subsequently fell under their administration. It appears from the treaty between these two Powers, dated in 1783, that the subjects of His Britannic Majesty were secured in their rights of property, or authorized to sell their estates, and remove their effects as well as their persons. Time was given for these sales to be effected; and subsequently, the lands not actually possessed and occupied in virtue of British grants, were regranted by the Spanish Government to the inhabitants and settlers as vacant land appertaining to the royal domain.

It is not for the committee to say whether the British grants are void on account of their magnitude, because the conditions on which they were made may not have been performed, or because they were disregarded by the Spanish authorities, and the tracts covered by them regranted as vacant land. Nor do they deem it incumbent on them to decide how far Spain was founded in keeping possession, granting lands, and performing other acts of sovereignty over a country, from the date of the treaty of peace of 1793, to the time of her yielding it up in 1798; or how far she had a right to annul the grants previously made by the British Government. In ascending to the source of the evils which exist, and which threaten with vexations the most intolerable, or entire ruin, a numerous and respectable portion of our fellow-citizens, they are found to flow from an omission on the part of the United States to take an earlier possession of the country in question; and, therefore, the present inhabitants, who may be the innocent victims of the course pursued, are, in the opinion of the committee, clearly entitled to the just and benevolent interposition of their Government.

Having concisely examined the proceedings of the British and Spanish Governments in relation to this subject, it may be proper now to inquire what has been done by our own, and what, in some measure in consequence thereof, yet remains to be done.

The State of Georgia claimed, in her individual capacity, the tract of country composing the Mississippi Territory. By certain articles of agreement between that State and the United States, the former cedes to the latter that district under various stipulations. Among these is the following in relation to British and Spanish grants:

Article the second provides, "that all persons who, on the 27th day of October, 1795, were actual settlers within the Territory thus ceded, shall be confirmed in all the grants legally and fully executed prior to that day by the former British Government of West Florida, or by the Government of Spain."

It would seem that the principle expressed in the above mentioned articles of agreement, is, in some measure, departed from by Congress in subsequent proceedings relative to the adjustment of private claims in the Mississippi Territory.

By the sixth section of the act of March 3, 1803, the commissioners are authorized to give certificates stating that claimants are confirmed in their titles by virtue of the said articles; but, by a subsequent clause, this confirmation amounts to nothing more than a relinquishment of claim on the part of the United States. It may be proper further to state, that, by the first section of the above recited act, certain incomplete titles derived from Spain are confirmed by the United States; that, by the second section, donations are made to one description of actual settlers; and that, by the third, rights of pre-emption are given to another description. But, by the sixth section, already referred to, if any of the lands claimed by virtue of either of these three sections, are also claimed under a British grant legally and fully executed, and recorded according to law, the commissioners are to state in the certificates the existence of the adverse (British) claim; and the claimants under this act are not entitled to a patent, unless they shall have obtained in their favor a judicial decision in a court having jurisdiction of the case.

It will appear from the above, that, by the articles of agreement with Georgia, the inhabitants of the Mississippi Territory, who hold Spanish grants legally and fully executed, are confirmed in their titles; and that, by the act of Congress referred to, the confirmation of these titles is made to depend on a circumstance superadded, viz: that the lands claimed by them should not have been before granted by the British Government. Thus their rights have been rendered less secure, and the British grantees encouraged to come forward with their claims, which, by the acts of the Spanish Government, and by the articles above mentioned, were, if not annulled, at least disregarded.

Under this view of the case, it becomes a question how far the Government of the United States would be bound in law to compensate the Spanish grantees for the losses they may sustain by any decision which would transfer the lands to British grantees. Without deciding it, the committee are of opinion that, considering the omission of the Government to take earlier possession of the country in question, the acts passed subsequently to the agreement with Georgia, the vexatious litigation to which the inhabitants are liable, and the ruin which may, by possibility, be brought upon them, it becomes the justice as well as the beneficence of Government, to avert the evil, by appointing some tribunal to decide on the validity of the British grants, and, in the event of their being established, to make those interested in them that compensation with which they will probably be satisfied; and thus rescue from ruin those who have expended their labor and industry on lands which have been held quietly for years past, by themselves or their predecessors, and which, had the dominion of Spain continued, never would have been claimed, much less taken from them.

The committee, therefore, respectfully submit a bill for quieting and adjusting claims to lands in the Mississippi Territory.

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled:

The Legislative Council and House of Representatives of the Mississippi Territory, in General Assembly convened, view, with anxious solicitude and sympathy of feeling, the dangerous and distressed situation to which a numerous part of their fellow-citizens are exposed by pretended claims, under British patents, to a great portion of the lands situated in this district, now held by virtue of Spanish patents, and claims derived from the United States by donation and purchase.

Although your memorialists are not of opinion that the said British claimants are legally or justly entitled to the lands claimed by them, still they are apprised of the trouble, vexation, and uncertainty of a lengthy law suit, which must finally be determined in the federal court of the United States, and not by a jury of the country. Your memorialists, therefore, appeal to your honorable body, and pray that you will, in the plenitude of your power, put the subject at rest, by a compromise or otherwise, as to you, in your wisdom and justice, may seem most proper.

As there are, perhaps, many of your honorable body who, from distance of residence, may not be entirely acquainted with the nature of those conflicting claims, your memorialists beg leave to state such facts as may be of importance.

The patents by which those British claims are held, were granted prior to the treaty of 1783. The tracts of land covered by them are, for the most part, of enormous size, and granted to the favorites of England. In many cases the lines were never run, nor had they any other than natural boundaries, and but few of the grantees, if any, were ever in possession. One great ground upon which they assert their claims is, the treaty commonly known by the name of Jay's treaty; but it appears to your memorialists that they could not have been included in the just meaning of that treaty, as the United States were not in the possession of the Territory at its date; but if those claimants were included therein, their claims were forfeited by their laches, under proclamations of the Spanish Government.

At the close of the revolutionary war, the Spaniards were left in possession of this part of the Territory, as the sovereign of the soil. The Government of Spain, seeing the evil consequences which would result to the country from land claims lying dormant, issued several proclamations, which had extensive publicity in the dominions of Great Britain, requiring those claimants to come forward by a given time, and manifest their titles, or they should be considered as forfeited and re-granted. They either neglected or refused to comply, and the Government of Spain accordingly proceeded to re-grant those lands. The present holders, or persons from whom they have purchased for valuable consideration, under the full faith and credit of the Spanish Government, received those grants, and, wading through all the toil, difficulty, and danger attending the settlement of a new country, have improved those lands (which, at that time, were considered of little or no value) at the expense of vast labor and treasure, until they have risen in value from ten to thirty dollars per acre. Under the Spanish Government those settlers remained in quiet and peaceable enjoyment of their lands, because the British claims, with which our citizens are now threatened, were considered as invalid. They lay dormant, and would forever have slept, had it not been for the event of the United States getting possession of the Territory, an event which has been hailed by every emigrant from the United States, and of whose Government they have shown themselves worthy, and have handsomely supported by their conduct during the late war.

Whether Spain was entitled to the sovereignty or not, your memorialists consider alike immaterial, as it is an immutable principle in all Governments that the acts of the ruling power, even of an usurper, have always, we believe, been considered valid by the succeeding Government. The United States have confirmed every act of the Spanish Government, except that making void British claims; and this, although not confirmed, is not disavowed, but left yet to be determined. The United States have considered that not only the grantees of the Spanish Government, who were actual settlers at a certain time, but even those who had made settlement under expectation of obtaining patents, should be confirmed in their claims. Can it, then, be just, can it be reasonable, that the subjects of Great Britain, who, from their laches, forfeited under one Government their claim to those lands, should be put in possession of immense bodies of the most valuable and fertile part of our country, which has been highly improved at the expense of the vast labor and treasure of that numerous and respectable portion of our citizens, who must either become tenants or be ousted from their possessions? Common sense forbids it.

In behalf of these distressed people, your memorialists appeal to your honorable body as the only power that can afford them relief; as a body not bound down by what may be conceived the strict rules of jurisprudence, but whose province it is to legislate from the immutable principles of justice, from a sense of the moral and political fitness of things; and pray that in your wisdom your honorable body will reconsider the subject touching a compromise of those conflicting claims.

And your memorialists, as in duty bound, will forever pray, &c.

VIRGINIA MILITARY BOUNTY LAND CLAIMS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, FEBRUARY 13, 1816.

Mr. BARBOUR, from the committee to whom was referred the resolution relating to the claims of the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on State and continental establishment, for bounty lands, reported:

That it appears to your committee that sundry laws to promote and encourage the raising troops to carry on the war of the revolution, were passed by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia, by which certain bounties in land were promised to such meritorious persons as should, by their military services, bring themselves within the provisions of such laws. There were other laws enacted by the same authority, whereby, in consideration of military services already performed, this Commonwealth was pledged to remunerate other meritorious persons with a donation of public lands. That, in pursuance of their public engagements, many warrants for land were issued by that Commonwealth, which yet remain unsatisfied; that, to discharge these promises, Virginia had set apart her vacant and unappropriated lands lying upon the waters of the Cumberland, on the confines of the State of North Carolina. The boundary line between Virginia and North Carolina was not then settled; but this being afterwards fixed upon principles of justice and equity between the States, a portion of this land, which had been supposed to belong to Virginia, actually proved to belong to North Carolina; and so this land fund, set apart to satisfy the bounties, became inadequate to its object. That there were lying within the chartered limits of the Commonwealth of Virginia other large tracts of unsettled lands, which were considered, at least by the people of that State, as the property of the Commonwealth, from which it was intended that these bounties, on the failure of the fund first appropriated for their satisfaction, should be fully discharged. That the old Congress, to promote the general interests of the Union, had recommended to the several States holding tracts of unsettled lands, to cede them to the United States for the purpose of forming one common fund for the benefit of the whole. The Commonwealth of Virginia, with promptitude, obeyed the patriotic call. On the 2d day of January, 1781, the Legislature of that State adopted resolutions containing propositions to cede to the United States all her vacant lands lying northwest of the river Ohio; but knowing that her troops, both on continental and State establishment, had claims upon her for bounties promised for military services, she annexed to the proposals for this session stipulations for these bounties for her troops; that, among the terms proposed, the following were contained:

"TUESDAY, January 2, 1781.

"General Assembly Resolve.

"That, in case the quantity of good lands of the southeast side of the Ohio, upon the waters of the Cumberland river, and between the Green river and the Tennessee river, which have been reserved by law for the Virginia troops upon continental establishment, and upon their own State establishment, should, from the North Carolina line bearing in further upon the Cumberland lands than was expected, prove insufficient for their legal bounties, the deficiency shall be made up to the said troops in good lands, to be laid off between the rivers Scioto and Little Miami, on the northwest side of the river Ohio."

In this resolution provision is proposed to be made for the Virginia troops, both on the State and continental establishment, to satisfy their promised bounties in lands. These proposals for the cession of public lands, on the part of Virginia, were transmitted to Congress. Some of them were accepted by Congress unconditionally; others were accepted with alterations and modifications; and others were totally rejected. This proposal respecting the bounty lands, denominated the fifth in the series of propositions, was accepted by Congress as reasonable. But your committee find that, in transcribing this proposition, as appears on the journals of the old Congress, an omission of the words "on State establishment" occurs; the cause of which cannot be pronounced upon with certainty. But as no discrimination is made between the officers and soldiers on the different establishments in approving the condition proposed by Virginia in regard thereto, the inference may be fairly deduced, that the omission of those on State establishment was accidental. This opinion is fortified by the consideration, that, where the terms of this cession did not meet their approbation, the objections are stated at length, and supported by reasons. On the contrary, where they were approved, their approbation was given without remark, save only that they were reasonable. This omission pervades all the subsequent legislative acts relating to this cession, and in the deed of cession, made in pursuance of legal authority by the Virginia commissioners, transferring to the United States the lands northwest of the river Ohio, the omission equally exists.

Your committee submit to your consideration whether, as this condition being found in the original terms proposed for the cession, as appears by the journals of the General Assembly of Virginia, embracing the troops on State establishment, of which they consider that the old Congress must have had notice, and being afterwards casually pretermitted, it would not comport with the equity and justice due from this nation to the revolutionary soldiers to supply this accidental omission. It is worthy of remark that the laws of Virginia, promising these bounties in lands to her State troops, were adopted previously to the cession made to the United States of her vacant lands; and, in a court of honor and conscience, it would perhaps be hardly questioned whether some latent equity to this subject was not created in behalf of these meritorious characters; and whether it would not follow this subject in the transfer to the United States, and in their possession. Your committee further submit to your consideration whether, if the incapacity of Virginia to fulfil her engagement to her State troops has resulted from this accidental omission, it would comport with the magnanimity or justice of the United States to compel a member of the confederacy to be guilty of a breach of faith, whose consequences would affect the claims of the widows and orphans of the heroes of the revolution by whose valorous spirit the independence of these States was achieved, and who have every claim to the gratitude as well as the justice of their country.

The committee forbear to enter into an inquiry of the original title of Virginia to the ceded Territory, as that question has already been decided by the acquiescence of the Union. It is from Virginia that the United States hold the Territory, and subject to the conditions which she prescribed. Virginia asks of the Union scarcely one-thousandth part of those fertile regions which she ceded without compensation, and she asks not for herself but for the surviving relatives of those of her citizens who fought the battles of the revolution, many of whom are pining in want; for, unfortunately, the loss has fallen chiefly on orphans and the poorest of her citizens.

This view of the subject leads the committee to recommend the following resolution:

Resolved, That provision should be made, by law, for satisfying the claims for land bounty of the officers and soldiers of the said State on her own establishment.

LANDS CONTAINING PRECIOUS METALS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, FEBRUARY 13, 1816.

Mr. MIDDLETON, from the Select Committee, to whom was referred the petition of Lewis Bringier, praying "that a law be passed permitting citizens of the United States, upon certain conditions, to open and work mines of the precious metals discovered upon the public lands," respectfully submit the following report:

That, by an ordinance of Congress under the confederation, bearing date the 20th of May, 1785, for the regulation of the sale of lands situated within the territories ceded by the individual States to the United States, and purchased of the Indian inhabitants, one-third part of all gold, silver, lead, and copper mines, was reserved to be disposed of as should be thereafter directed; and, by all the subsequent acts of Congress relating to the disposal of lands acquired since that period by treaty or otherwise, salt springs and lead mines only are reserved to the public. Under the existing laws, therefore, of the United States, there is no prohibition to the granting such tracts that may contain mines of the precious metals, such grants being, nevertheless, subject to the aforesaid reservations, when situated within the aforesaid limits respectively. The mines of the precious metals, presumed to exist upon the testimony of the petitioner, are by him represented as being situated westward of the Mississippi, in a tract of country not yet surveyed or offered for sale under the public authority, although the Indian title thereto appears to have been extinguished previous to the acquisition of Louisiana by the United States.

Your committee deem it unnecessary to inquire whether any, or what, precise degree of encouragement should be given in the present state of our country to the opening and working of mines of the precious metals. They are not unaware that the true wealth of a nation consists in the abundance of those articles of prime necessity, which either serve to the subsistence of man, or which exercise his industry; yet, the precious metals, in themselves destitute of intrinsic value, having become the conventional signs of value among all civilized nations, their abundance or scarcity cannot be a matter of indifference; the search for them, wherever they are to be found, is a pursuit of the most inviting kind, and powerfully stimulates the cupidity of mankind. If, then, it be a fact that nature has placed any portion of these metallic riches within the bounds of our territories, it cannot be doubted but that the progress of population, and of national industry, will lead our citizens to avail themselves of the advantages to be derived from their extraction and purification; and, in such case, it must be desirable so to direct and control the operation, as to enable the Government simultaneously to derive a fair advantage from its possessions, without imposing such tax or duty as might induce the clandestine and fraudulent extraction of the precious metals from the public domain.

With a view to the attainment of this object, and to avoid acting upon the subject of the petition without the necessary information, your committee would recommend a reference of the whole matter to the Executive Department of the Government; for which purpose they ask leave to report a bill enabling the President to lease out or grant for a term of years mines of the precious metals discovered upon the public lands.

CLAIM OF GABRIEL WINTER AND OTHERS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, MARCH 8, 1816.

Mr. ROBERTSON, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Gabriel Winter and others, reported:

That, on the 27th day of June, 1797, the Governor General of the province of Louisiana and East Florida, then in the possession of Spain, conceded to Elisha Winter one thousand arpents of land square, in the district of Arkansas; and to William Winter and Gabriel Winter, sons of Elisha Winter, each five hundred arpents square in the same district, by a deed of concession of that date. That the same was made upon the application of Elisha Winter, who was a citizen of the United States, and who had, previous to that time, erected at New Orleans, upon land granted by the provincial Government, an extensive rope-walk. The petitioners were required, by the terms of the concession, as a condition precedent to the completion of their title to the lands thus conceded, to make settlements upon their respective tracts within the period of one year from the date of the concession; upon failure to comply with this condition, the concession was declared void. The petitioners were put into possession of their respective tracts in a short time after the concession was made by the commandant of the district of Arkansas, who was charged by the Governor General with the execution of the designs of the Spanish Government in this respect. It has not been proven to the committee that the condition of the settlement has been complied with by any of the original grantees, except William Winter, who, with Elisha Winter, made an actual settlement upon William's tract agreeably to the terms of the concession, and erected a dwelling-house, and cleared land at great expense.

They continued to occupy and cultivate the land thus settled from the time of the settlement until the country was taken possession of by the United States. The provisions of the law, respecting land titles in that section of country have been complied with by the petitioners, and their title papers and other proofs of their claims recorded in the proper office. The encouragement of agriculture, and the population of the district, are the reasons assigned upon the face of the concession for its execution. In addition to these, it is proven that the Messrs. Winters were favorites with the Governor General of the province; and that Elisha Winter, the father, had experienced great losses in the destruction of his rope-walk at New Orleans by fire; this, it may be well presumed, was a strong inducement with the Governor for making so large a concession. It is as well proven as any fact of the kind can be, that if the Spanish Government had retained the title to this country the claim thus conceded would have been perfected by a complete grant.

The principal difficulty in deciding in favor of the claims of the petitioners arises from the quantity contained in the concessions. It has been the invariable practice of this Government to confirm to all claimants their concessions for the usual quantity of land conceded to settlers by the Governors of the province, upon the proofs of a concession similar to the one made to the petitioners. The committee cannot say, with certainty, as to the extent of the powers of the Governors in making grants; they, however, believe that, when the grant was simply for land, their powers were very limited. They are of opinion that the concession, so far as it relates to the five hundred arpents square, ought to be confirmed to the heirs of Elisha Winter, and that the prayer of the petitioners, as to the balance of the claim, be rejected. They report a bill for that purpose.

LAND TITLES IN LOUISIANA AND MISSOURI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, MARCH 23, 1816.

Mr. ROBERTSON made the following report:

The Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the resolution of the 18th December last, instructing them to inquire what amendments, if any, are necessary to the act of 12th April, 1814, "for the final adjustment of land titles in the State of Louisiana, and Territory of Missouri," and certain resolutions of the General Assembly of the Territory of Missouri, presented on the 14th day of February last, as well as the petitions of sundry of the inhabitants of the State of Louisiana and Territory of Missouri, report:

That, soon after the acquirement of Louisiana by the United States, an act of Congress passed for ascertaining and adjusting the titles and claims to lands in that Territory, the principles of which were variously modified, and, in some instances enlarged, by several successive acts, until that of 12th of April, 1814. In all the preceding acts, the basis of confirmation or of grant was the acts of the claimant, to wit, the inhabitation, cultivation or possession, of the lands claimed. The rigor of principle and of construction discoverable in these preceding acts, and in their execution, is supposed to have arisen from a distrust which was justly entertained by the Government of the genuineness or authenticity of some of the papers, purporting to be orders of survey which were presented at the public offices; but, after repeated adjudications and reviews, during ten years, it was fairly to be presumed that what was antedated or otherwise fraudulent, had been discriminated from the bona fide pretensions of the people. Congress, therefore, (the rubbish being thus cleared,) assumed enlarged and liberal principles, the exercise of which, at an earlier period, might have fostered speculations, which it was their desire to repress with every harshness consistent with the rights of the honest and the undesigning. We find them, in their act of 12th April, 1814, with great propriety, confirming on the acts of the late Spanish Government, without very strictly inquiring as to the particular acts of ownership exercised by the claimant. Had these general provisions been made, in the first instance, every class of claim might have been expected to occupy its proper place in the report of the commissioners, according to its respective grade of merit; but as the business has been conducted, much injury has been suffered, which we doubt not Congress will be disposed to remedy as far as circumstances will now permit. We find that, by the third section of the act of 13th June, 1812, the permission to settle, required by former laws, as well as the cultivation prior to, and on the 20th December, 1803, are dispensed with, if the party shall have cultivated eight months thereafter; and, in the following section of the same act, the recorder of land titles is required to make, without delay, an extract from the books of the commissioners of those cases thus entitled to grant, when it is probable that, as cultivation on 20th August, 1804, was not sufficient, under former laws, for the grant of a claim, no evidence in relation to such a fact could be found on the books of the commissioners as a matter of official course. There are, indeed, instances of their reporting facts of a later date, but we have been assured that it was contrary to the usual order in which their business was transacted. The committee are of opinion that time should be given for the introduction of testimony as to cases of this description.

The fourth section of the act of 3d March, 1813, provides that, where the principle of donation has been previously settled by the commissioners or by the recorder, and less granted than six hundred and forty acres, there shall be an extension to that quantity, provided the party claimed as much, and provided he were possessed thereof by known and ascertained boundaries. The committee remark that, under the pre-existent laws, and the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury, by virtue of the eighth section of the act of 21st April, 1806, the general impression must have been that the claimant, under settlement right, could only be entitled to quantity according to the number of his family, that is to say, one hundred arpents on his own account, one hundred arpents for his wife, fifty arpents for each child, and twenty-five arpents for each slave, and that he would probably claim only in that proportion, and we are assured that he did frequently claim only in that proportion. We think, therefore, that this extension should be made general, and not confined to those who disregard the former arrangements, by claiming more than under that state of things they were entitled to hold.

The first section of the act of 12th April, 1814, provides for the confirmation of incomplete French and Spanish grants, or concessions, warrants, or orders of survey, with certain limitations therein expressed, provided the same contained a special location, or had been surveyed at the times respectively when the lower and upper provinces were actually transferred. At this period Congress appears, for the first time, (for very sufficient reasons already stated,) to rest the validity of claims on the acts of the predecessor Government, and to avow the determination to complete all those which had been regularly inchoated. Why, then, so peremptorily insist on a survey? The party was in possession of the concession, order, or warrant, and it might, and probably was his misfortune, and not his fault, that it remained unexecuted. The surveying districts were extensive, and it was frequently a length of time, after the receipt of an order, before the officer was at leisure to describe the lands by metes and bounds. After the cession it became a penal offence to intrude upon the public lands, under whatever pretext, and no holder of these warrants or concessions could cause them to be surveyed until their abstract validity were recognised by the United States' Government. Thus has this class of claimants been kept out of rights derived from a former Government; wherefore, the committee desire that justice, however tardy, be now done, and provision made for the confirmation of such claims.

To the Honorable JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner of the General Land Office, in the Treasury Department of the United States:

The Register of the Land Office and Receiver of Public Moneys of the western district of the late Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana, have the honor to report their decisions and opinions for the revision of Congress on the following claims to land within the said district, which were filed with the Register pursuant to the acts of Congress, entitled "An act giving further time for registering claims to land in the western district of the Territory of Orleans," passed the 10th March, 1812, and the act entitled "An act giving further time for registering claims to lands in the eastern and western districts of the Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana," passed the 27th February, 1813, classing and arranging the same as follows, viz:

Class No. 1, will comprise claims for lands held under complete patents of unquestionable authenticity, which, having been filed with the Register previous to the dissolution of the Board of Commissioners appointed for the purpose of ascertaining and adjusting titles and claims to lands in the said district, and found of record, have been transferred to the said Board for confirmation, pursuant to the fifth section of an act of Congress entitled "An act for ascertaining and adjusting titles and claims to lands, &c." passed the 2d March, 1805. See note A, at the end of the report.

Class No. 2, will comprise claims founded on authentic orders of survey conceded by the Spanish Government of Louisiana, which, with or without proof of occupancy, ought, in the opinion of the said Register and Receiver, to be confirmed. See note B, at the end of the report.

Class No. 3, will comprise claims founded on requêtes, approved and sanctioned by the competent Spanish authority, or for lands which may have been surveyed by an authorized Spanish surveyor previous to the change of Government; and which, whether accompanied or not by proof of occupancy, ought, in the opinion of the said Register and Receiver, to be confirmed. See note C, at the end of the report.

Class No. 4, will comprise claims unsupported by any requête or concession under the former Government of Louisiana; but which, from regular transfers of title, bearing date anterior to the change of Government, before the authority competent to judge, and whose duty it was to decide on the validity of the title of the seller, whether supported or not by evidence of occupancy, ought, in the opinion of the said Register and Receiver, to be confirmed. See note D, at the end of the report.

Class No. 5, will comprise claims for lands which have been occupied or possessed ten consecutive years previous to the 20th day of December, 1803, which, in the opinion of the said Register and Receiver, ought to be confirmed for the quantity of land claimed, or within the acknowledged and ascertained limits thereof, provided the same shall not exceed the quantity of two thousand acres, pursuant to the second section of the act of Congress of the 3d March, 1807. See note E, at the end of the report.

Class No. 6, will comprise claims for lands on which settlements had been made prior to the 1st day of October, 1800; and inhabited and cultivated for three consecutive years from that date by persons over the age of twenty-one years, or the heads of families, and not claiming or holding, in their own right, any grants or concessions for other lands from the French or Spanish Governments, ought to be, in the opinion of the said Register and Receiver, confirmed, pursuant to the first section of the act of Congress of the 21st April, 1806, for the quantity claimed, or within the acknowledged and ascertained limits of the same, not exceeding one mile square, or six hundred and forty acres. See note G, at the end of the report.

Class No. 8, will comprise claims which, being accompanied by no document of title of date anterior to the 20th day of December, 1803, nor proof of occupancy and cultivation prior to the 12th of April, 1814, ought not, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed. See note H, at the end of the report.

Class No. 9, will comprise claims for land occupied as vacheries; and whether with or without evidence of occupancy, ought not, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed. See note I, at the end of the report.

The requête accompanies the notice. The evidence of Joseph Saunier, aged fifty-seven years, and of Ceril Thibedeau, aged forty years, taken the 19th September, 1812, the first of whom proves the verbal sale of the land from Corkran to Joseph Bourque, about thirty years ago; and that verbal sales, in good faith, were very usual at that period. The second proves that, upwards of twenty years ago, Corkran resided on the land, but whether he cultivated any part, or how long he resided thereon, he cannot say; and that, for the last two years, it has been occupied by Jo. Doucet, who keeps a vacherie for Madame Latite, he believes, by permission of Madame Bourque. Also, the evidence of Joseph Young, taken the 17th November, 1813, states that the well, sunk by Corkran more than twenty years ago, is still on the land; that he has seen the house built thereon by said Corkran, which has been since burned, and does not believe the land ever was cultivated by Corkran, its first cultivation being last year by Jo. The evidence of John Amon, aged twenty-five years, taken the 26th December, 1813, states that Milling Wooley was inhabiting the land about twelve or thirteen years ago, where he remained three or four years, when, removing, the land has not been occupied since, to deponent's knowledge, who does not recollect if any part of said land was cultivated by said Wooley, who was a merchant, and since whose removal deponent has always heard the land spoken of as his property, and has been informed and believes it has been regularly taxed as his property. Also, the evidence of Milling Wooley, taken by commission the 28th May, 1814, states that some time, he believes, in 1797, he petitioned the Spanish Government, through Cesar Archinard, then alcaid of Rapide, for four hundred acres of land in that district, which was obtained, a survey of the land made, and possession given him; that he remained in possession two or three years, and cultivated during that time a small part of it, erected a dwelling-house and store, and sunk a well. No. 152.—510. Joseph Grange claims for himself and others a tract of land in the Prairie Sorrel, county of Attakapas, being such part of said prairie as may not be embraced by the confirmation of the former Board of Commissioners. By the commissioners' certificates, Nos. 2,065, 2,066, 2,067, and 2,068, it appears that eight hundred and twenty arpents of land have already been granted to Dugas and others, making a part of the Prairie Sorrel, a small portion of which remains unconfirmed; and, as the Spanish Government appears to have relinquished its title to all the said prairie, the confirmation of the remainder contained in the vacancy between Trahan and Thibedeau is recommended to the claimants, on their producing a plat of survey for the same.

No. 153.—652. Sarah Collins claims eight hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: twenty arpents front, by forty deep, situated in the bayou Chicot, commonly called the Pine prairie, county of Opelousas. Accompanying the notice, is the contract of marriage between Julien Lesassier and the claimant, passed the 26th October, 1786, before the then commandant, Le Chev. De Clouet, in which mention is made of a tract of land belonging to Sarah Collins, and making part of her marriage portion, situated in the bayou Chicot, having the number of arpents, &c. conformable to the titles, estimated at six hundred dollars. The evidence of William L. Collins, taken the 30th May, 1813, states, "that, about the year 1784 or 1785, Chevalier De Clouet, then commandant of the post, granted to this deponent, his father, brother, and sister, the present claimant, each a tract of land of twenty arpents front, by eighty deep, situated in the Pine prairie, adjoining lands granted at the same time to Charles Percy; that the usual papers were made out by De Clouet for each tract, which, two or three years afterwards, were taken to New Orleans by deponent's father, and the titles in form obtained, as his father informed him, but were forgot, and remained in Miro's hands, and have not since been heard of, nor any steps taken for their recovery, being considered as safe in Miro's possession; that these lands, being all in the family, were considered as joint property; the stock of cattle has always been kept there, and persons employed to take care of it and the lands."

From the marriage contract, dated twenty-nine years ago, the clause of which that affects this claim is in the well-known hand-writing of Mr. De Clouet, then commandant of the posts of Attakapas and Opelousas, it appears that a tract of land in the bayou Chicot prairie, contents not mentioned, but admitted to be the lawful property of the now claimant, was estimated at six hundred dollars, which, as lands are believed to have been valued at that time, is considered a high valuation for eight hundred arpents. Although no document to establish a title under the Spanish Government, except the marriage contract, has been adduced, yet it is presumed that the land would not have been inserted therein unless the commandant had been well assured of the claimant's right thereto; and further, as it is in his own hand-writing, and he mentions titles for the same, referring thereto for particulars, the claim is recommended for confirmation for the quantity as claimed.

The evidence of Michel Broussard and François Broussard, taken the 5th October, 1812, establishes the land to have been inhabited and cultivated by the claimant for twenty-five consecutive years preceding that date. Deponents cannot say whether the habitation of the claimant, during that term, has been on the tract claimed, the line between it and the adjoining tract below not having been run, but they have reason to believe, when said line shall be correctly run, it will be found to pass within three arpents of the claimant's place of residence; and the evidence of Olidon Broussard, Valery Broussard, and Pierre Maux, taken the 14th February, 1814, establishes the occupancy and cultivation of the land for twenty-five or thirty consecutive years preceding that date. The claimant is sixty-five years of age, and has a family of nineteen children.

No. 201.—28. Margaret Boutin, widow of John Savoy, claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, situated on the left bank of bayou Caron Crow, in the county of Opelousas, bounded below by other land of the claimant, and on other sides by vacant. The evidence of David Guidry, aged forty-two years, taken the 8th July, 1812, establishes the cultivation of the land by the claimant, and her deceased husband, for more than thirty consecutive years preceding that date; one year of which term it was actually inhabited, and has always been respected by the neighbors as the property of said Savoy and his heirs.

No. 202.—86. Pierre Forest claims about eighty superficial arpents of land in the Prairie de Langlois, county of Opelousas, bounded by lands of Joseph Andrepont, Jacques Dupré, Baptiste Johnson, and the claimant. The evidence of Baptiste Johnson, aged thirty-eight years, taken the 30th July, 1812, establishes the land to have been inhabited and cultivated for twenty consecutive years preceding this date; first by the widow of Pierre Peter, whom the claimant married about seventeen years ago, and, subsequently, by the claimant and his family.

No. 203.—88. Antoine, Pierre, Louis, Charles, Augustin, Joseph, Adelaide, and Eugenie Godo, children and heirs of Antoine Godo, deceased, claim two thousand superficial arpents of land, viz: fifty arpents front, by forty deep, situated in bayou Rouge Prairie, county of Rapide. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey for two thousand arpents, by C. M. Lawson, a United States' deputy surveyor, dated the 27th September, 1812. The evidence of William L. Collins, aged fifty years, taken the 5th October, 1812, states that he was informed by Joseph Jaffrion, former alcaid in Avoyelles, that the chief of the Tunica tribe of Indians, Penroy, had sold the claim of said tribe to one-half the island and Prairie Rouge to Antoine Godo and others, extending from the east to the west fork of bayou Rouge; and that, to his knowledge, the tract claimed by Antoine Godo, has been inhabited and cultivated by said Godo and heirs, for nineteen or twenty consecutive years preceding this date.

No. 204.—80. François Broussard claims one hundred and twenty superficial arpents of land, viz: three arpents front, by forty deep, situated on the right bank of bayou Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas, bounded below by land of the heirs of Maux, and above by that of Claude Broussard. The evidence of Olidon Broussard, Valerie Broussard, and François Broussard, taken the 14th February, 1814, states that the claimant has been in the constant practice of cutting his fire-wood and other timber on this land, for the use of his plantation on the other side of the bayou, and which has no wood, for these thirty-five or forty years past; that, thirty years ago, he sold or exchanged with Michel Maux that part which is prairie, and which has now improvements on it, to the amount of two thousand dollars, and for which he is accountable under his warranty deed, and that the land has always been considered and respected by the neighbors as his property. Also, the evidence of Isaac Baldwin, Esq., taken the 21st September, 1815, states, "that he is well acquainted with this claim, and all the facts on which it is founded, from original title papers, deeds of conveyance, and oral testimony, as well as from common information, statements made, and facts which have come to his knowledge, during a long and legal investigation of the true location of a grant made to René Trahan, which was immediately connected with the present claim, and in which he was counsel for one of the defendants. The facts are these: On the 4th of May, 1776, René Trahan obtained a grant from the Spanish Government for forty arpents front on each side of the bayou Vermilion, by forty deep, and a grant made to Michel Maux, of the said date, joined this. The grants were located to bind on each other by the claimants, and on the 20th July, 1778, Trahan sold to François Broussard, the present claimant, two arpents front, on each side of said Vermilion, by forty deep, part of said grant to bind on the lower line of the tract of the said Maux, and which two arpents on one side of the Vermilion is the tract now claimed. These two tracts remained as they had been thus located, joining each other, and the said Trahan sold off other tracts or parcels of said grant, and put the purchasers in possession, as it had been thus located, and no opposition was made to it until the year

1796, when, a dispute arising, it was contended that the location was improperly made; a suit was instituted during the time of the Spanish Government, and was not finally determined until the year 1807, when it was adjudged that the said grant ought not to begin on Maux's line and run up the river for quantity, on the west side, but that it ought to begin at a place called the Gum Island, and run towards Maux's grant, or, in other words, run down the said Vermilion for quantity. By running it in this manner the grant to Trahan did not include the two arpents now claimed, but left it on vacant land. Maux's tract still remains in the same situation as located, and those holding parts of it have remained in peaceable possession to this day, except one trespass committed on it, for which suit has been brought, and is yet undetermined."

No. 205.—91. Jean Charles Dugas claims a tract of land of five arpents front, on the right bank of bayou Teche, with the depth to the bayou Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas, bounded by the land of Joseph Castille on the lower side, and on the upper by that of François Moreau. The evidence of Andrew Martin, aged forty-two years, taken the 6th August, 1812, states that this tract of land is well known to him to be included in a tract of ninety-two arpents front, on the right bank of bayou Teche, with depth to the Vermilion bayou, and forty arpents deep on the left bank of said Teche, conceded by the Spanish Government to François Ledée; that, in the year 1785, Solomon Maliens, testamentary executor of said Ledée, came from New Orleans to Attakapas, accompanied by the then Surveyor General, Carlos Laveau Trudeau, and that the said surveyor then proceeded to lay off said land into nine lots, eight of ten arpents front, and one of twelve arpents; that said executor then proceeded to sell, at public outcry, the said lots, pursuant to the will of the testator, which were purchased and taken possession of by different persons, among whom was Joseph Martin, under whom J. C. Dugas claims, having married said Martin's daughter; that, from the date of the sale as aforesaid, the various portions of said land have been constantly inhabited and cultivated by the different purchasers, or those claiming under them; that the said lands have since been subdivided, and are now in possession of about thirty different persons, viz: the claimant, Jean Charles Dugas, François Moreau, holding five arpents front, on the right bank of the Teche, with depth to the Vermilion; Henry Hebert, six arpents front, by the same depth; Dominique Melançon, four arpents front, same side and depth; Adelaide Breaud, four arpents front, same side and depth; Margaret Breaud, six arpents front, same side and depth; François Bernard, ten arpents front, same side and depth, with two and a half arpents, by forty deep, on the left; widow Dorien, six arpents front, on the right bank of the Teche, with depth to the Vermilion; François Begnaud, fifteen arpents front, same side and depth; Charles Valot, one arpent front, same side, by forty deep; Charles C. No. 235.—149. Narcisse Mayeux claims one hundred and sixty superficial arpents of land, viz: four arpents front, by forty deep, situated in the Avoyelles prairie, county of Rapides, bounded on one side by land of Joseph Gautiere, and on the other by that of Jacques Paul. This notice is accompanied by a deed of sale from Nicholas Tassin to Julien Poydrass, dated the 20th of October, 1791, passed before Noel Soileau, then commandant, [it appears to be a copy, but is not certified as such,] for twenty arpents front, by forty deep. A plat of survey by K. McCrummin, a United States' deputy surveyor, for $135\frac{44}{100}$ acres, dated the 24th September, 1812, and a certified copy of a deed of sale from John Mayeux, fils, to the claimant, dated the 7th April, 1809, before F. Oliver, judge of the parish of Avoyelles, for four arpents front, by forty deep. The evidence of Pierre Mayeux, taken the 24th August, 1812, states, that Nicholas Tassin, to whom a tract of land was conceded by the Spanish Government, (the land claimed forming a part thereof,) settled on the land twenty-six or twenty-seven years ago; and that said land has been inhabited and cultivated constantly ever since, either by Tassin or those claiming under him, and the evidence of J. B. Dozat corroborates the above testimony. This evidence refers to reported Nos. 245 to 249.

No. 236.—151. Lambert De Sell claims $133\frac{13}{100}$ superficial arpents of land, viz: about five arpents front, by the depth represented in the plat of survey filed with the notice dated the 30th August, 1806, by Matthew Stone, a United States' deputy surveyor, in favor of Thomas West, situated on the southwest side of Grand river, in the county of Rapides. The claimant refers to the testimony of Pierre Mayeux, taken in the claim of François Bordelon, reported No. 176, this being a part of the original tract of fifty arpents.

No. 237.—161. Louis St. Julien claims one thousand two hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: fifteen arpents front, by eighty deep, situated on the southwest side of bayou Tortue, in the county of Attakapas, bounded above by land of C. Carriere, and below by that of Forstall and Gravier. The notice is accompanied by a plat of survey by J. L. Johnson, a United States' deputy surveyor, for $573\frac{30}{100}$ acres, dated the 14th March, 1813. The evidence of David Caruthers, aged forty-six years, taken the 28th March, 1814, establishes the land to have been inhabited and cultivated for twenty-five consecutive years preceding this date, the first eight years by De la Villebeuvre, then by his widow three or four years, when it was sold at auction, and deponent's father became the purchaser; and, after staying on it four or five years, being unable to pay the purchase money, he gave it up to Beauvre's heirs, who sold it to the claimant, who has cultivated it ever since; also, the evidence of Joseph Boudreau, aged forty-seven years, taken the same day, states the land to have been constantly inhabited and cultivated for twenty-six years, about which time the house had the appearance of being three or four years old. The claimant, in his notice, refers to a document filed in the claim of Gravier and Forstall, recorded in page 262 of the Attakapas records, from which it appears that, on the 8th December, 1775, Le Chevalier De Clouet, in pursuance of an order from Governor Unzaga, puts Mr. Dauterieve in possession of a tract of land situated on the west side of the bayou Tortue, in the county of Attakapas, of one and a half leagues front, by half a league in depth. It appears from the plat filed with the notice, that the regular front of this tract measures thirty-four chains ninety-one links, which, with the depth of half a league, say one hundred and twenty-one chains twenty-one links, will give an area of $423\frac{14}{100}$ American acres, to which quantity the claim should be reduced, striking off the excess at the back of the tract, allowing the irregular part of the bayou, as is represented in said plat.

No. 238.—180. Joshua Lewis claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, viz: sixteen acres front, by forty deep, situated on lake Flamin, at the "Nid d'Aigle," in the county of Attakapas. The deposition of Louis Pellerin, sworn to the 28th April, 1814, before a justice of the peace in New Orleans, states that he has resided upwards of thirty years in Attakapas, and knows that the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated for nearly or quite twenty years, either by the first settlers, who were put in possession at the time Governor Galvez made his expedition against Baton Rouge, or those claiming under them. Also, the evidence of François Gonssoulin, taken by commission, the 23d September, 1814, states that he knows the claimant purchased a tract of land of sixteen arpents front at Nid d'Aigle, which was cultivated from 1780 and 1783, inclusive, by the proprietors; that, one year after his arrival in the parish, viz: in 1779, the said land belonged to some Spanish families, who continued in their possession until they sold to Mr. Petavin; said land was afterwards sold to the deponent, to Barriere, to Forstall, to Dominique Bouligny, and, lastly, to the claimant. And a letter from the judge of the parish of St. Martin, wherein he mentions that, in the archives of the parish, he finds a regular chain of conveyance for the land as claimed, viz: April 11, 1795, Gabriel Lopez and Jn. Garridio to Jn. Baptiste Petavin; and from said Petavin to Gonssoulin, May 4, 1795; and from said Gonssoulin to the Rev. M. B. Barriere, July 1, 1800. The other sales mentioned in Gonssoulin's deposition he does not find.

NOTE.—As the claimant produces no sale from Barriere, the confirmation is recommended to the legal representatives of the Rev. M. B. Barriere.

No. 239.—214. Augustin Berza claims eighty superficial arpents of land, viz: two arpents front, by forty deep, situated in the Grand Prairie, in the county of Opelousas, bounded on one side by land of Pierre Baptiste Fontenot, and on the other by that of Henry Fontenot, accompanied by an authentic deed of sale from S. Bellevue Fontenot to the claimant, dated the 11th of November, 1811. The evidence of Jean Lafleur, aged forty-six years, taken the 19th March, 1814, establishes the land to have been constantly inhabited and cultivated from his earliest recollection, for the last seven years, by the claimant, aged forty-five or forty-six years; and the head of a family, and thirty years previous thereto by Jacques Lafleur, deponent's father, who sold eight arpents to P. B. Fontenot, and two arpents to S. B. Fontenot, who sold to the claimant.

No. 240.—247. Maria Jeanne Crette, widow of Louis Anty, claims two hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: five arpents front, by forty deep, situated on the left bank of bayou Canes, in the county of Natchitoches, bounded above by land of Gaspard Lacour, and below by that of Alexis Cloutier, accompanied by an authentic deed of sale from John Baptiste Anty to the claimant, for five arpents front, by the depth that may be, dated the 17th July, 1810; and a plat of survey dated the 24th January, 1813, by J. Irwin, a United States' deputy surveyor, for twenty-six and six one-hundredths superficial acres in favor of the claimant. The evidence of Pierre Baudin, taken the 9th October, 1812, establishes the land to have been inhabited and cultivated for twenty-four consecutive years preceding said date, the first seven years by J. B. Anty, and the last seventeen by the claimant and her husband.

No. 241.—249. Alexis Cloutier claims one hundred and sixty superficial arpents of land, viz: two arpents front, by forty deep, on each side of Red river, in the county of Natchitoches, bounded above by land of Athanase La Cour, and below by that of Charles Dagneau, accompanied by a deed of sale from the sheriff of Natchitoches to the claimant, sold as the property of C. Dagneau, dated the 19th May, 1805. The evidence of Pierre Labombarde, taken the 9th October, 1812, establishes the land to have been inhabited and cultivated for twenty consecutive years preceding this date, the first thirteen years by C. Dagneau, and subsequently by tenants of the claimant.

No. 242.—256. Jean François Girod claims two hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: five arpents front, by forty deep, situated in Prairie Chicot or Manoire, on the left bank of Washita river, in the county of Washita, bounded on one side by land of Joseph Barbier, and on the other by that of Pierre Olivas. The affidavit of John Filhiol, a commandant under the Spanish Government, sworn to before the judge of the parish of Washita, states, that, when he arrived in Washita in 1782, Joseph Etier was then established on the land, and that Grandpré, during his stay in Avoyelles, ordered Etier to trace a road between that post and Washita, and, as a recompense, accorded him a tract of land in Prairie Chicot, of five arpents front, by forty deep. As the claimant produces no sale from Joseph Etier, the confirmation is recommended to the legal representatives of said Etier.

No. 243.—257. The widow and heirs of Joseph Etier claim eight hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: twenty arpents front, by forty deep, situated in Prairie Du Lait, on the left bank of Washita river, in the county of Washita, commencing at the mouth of bayou Du Lait, and running up the river, bounded above by vacant lands. The evidence of Nicholas Fogle, aged forty years, taken the 9th October, 1812, establishes that said land has been constantly inhabited and cultivated from his earliest recollection to the present date, by Joseph Etier and family. From the evidence of Filhiol in the preceding claim, the evidence of Fogle in this claim is rendered questionable: a further investigation is therefore recommended.

No. 244.—261. Pierre Baudin claims six hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: seven arpents front, by forty deep on the right bank, and eight arpents front, by forty deep on the left bank of that part of Red river called the "Rivière aux Cannes," in the county of Natchitoches, bounded above by other lands of the claimant, and below by that of J. B. Brosset, accompanied by a plat of survey by Jo. Irwin, Jun., United States' deputy surveyor, for one hundred and eighty and sixteen one-hundredths acres, viz: one hundred and thirty-six and forty one-hundredths acres on the right bank, and forty-three, and seventy-six one hundredths acres on the left bank. Deponent knows positively that the land has been inhabited and cultivated constantly for the last sixteen years. At his earliest recollection, it was respected as the property of Poydrass, who had a vacherie on it, and whose negroes cultivated for his use. That the several claimants before mentioned are now residing on their respective parts, and have so resided on and cultivated the same, some about twelve years, others not more than five or six; and that they are all heads of families. The widow and heirs of Martin claim one thousand seven hundred and thirty-six superficial arpents of land, being an undivided fourth of a tract of land conceded by the Spanish Government to the heirs of Martin, situated at a place called Bermudas, county of Natchitoches. Accompanying the notice is a permission to the heirs of Martin to settle on the quantity of land they may think necessary at the Bermudas, on condition they conform to the laws, and subject themselves to the superiors of the province of Texas, dated at Nacogdoches, the 18th October, 1791, signed by Antonio Gil Harvo, captain, &c., of Nacogdoches and its dependencies. The evidence of Michel du Roy, taken by commission the 3d August, 1814, states the land to have been settled for twenty-two consecutive years preceding that date—first by the widow, and then by a Spaniard, the heirs put on after her death. A like quantity of land is claimed by each of the other heirs of Martin, under this permission of A. Gil Harvo; but it is not known how far the commandants of Nacogdoches were authorized to grant such large tracts of land: the permission here filed is kept entirely out of view, and the confirmation recommended on the settlement alone, to the heirs in general, for six hundred and forty acres. See reported Nos. 1,103, 1,104, and 1,105.

No. 352.—830. Louis Derbonne claims $79\frac{68}{100}$ superficial acres of land, situated on the right bank of Red river, county of Natchitoches, as is represented in a plat of survey by Jo. Irwin a United States' deputy surveyor, filed with the notice. The evidence of Jn. Bte. Anty, fils, aged thirty-six years, taken the 15th September, 1813, states that the claimant, aged about forty-five years, and the head of a family, "has resided on the land in question for at least twenty-five consecutive years preceding said date, but has cultivated largely on both sides during that time, and has always been considered as the lawful proprietor of the land on both sides."

No. 353.—992. Jean Baptiste Piedferme claims eight hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: ten arpents front, on each side of Red river, by forty deep, at a place called Le Lac Poule d'Eau, county of Natchitoches, bounded above by land of Hypolite Bordelon, and below by that of Stephen Duquet. The notice is accompanied by a certified copy of a sale from Antoine Lenoir to the claimant for the land as claimed, dated the 27th June, 1808. The evidence of Pierre Mailleux, taken by commission the 6th January, 1814, that, to his knowledge, the land has been inhabited and cultivated for fifteen consecutive years preceding said date, if not more; that the claimant is at least seventy-five years of age, and the head of a family.

No. 354.—993. William Lacey claims one hundred and sixty-seven superficial acres of land, situated in the prairie of Cattahoula, county of Rapides, bounded on the north by land of David Devor, and on the south by that of Jesse Harper, being part of a tract originally granted to Thomas Dyson. Accompanying the notice is a plat of survey by C. M. Lawson, a United States' deputy surveyor for the land as claimed, on which is delineated that of J. Harper's, and that claimed in the next succeeding number, the whole being the tract granted to Dyson; and a private bond for titles to this land, dated the 5th January, 1806, from William Mock and David Devoir to Jesse Harper, and by him assigned to the claimant. Reference is had in the notice to book A, folio 157, and the evidence adduced in confirmed No. 928, in the Register's office, from which it appears that, on the 19th August, 1800, there was accorded to Thomas Dyson a tract of land of twenty arpents front, by the ordinary depth. Said Dyson having sold a part of said grant to Jesse Harper, there was confirmed to him $277\frac{25}{100}$ acres, under certificate B, No. 928, leaving the tract now claimed, together with the next succeeding claim, unconfirmed; which two tracts lie on each side of Harper's land, within the bounds of the original grant, and, as sufficient evidence of occupancy had been adduced before the former Board of Commissioners for the whole of the tract, the confirmation is recommended for the quantity claimed in this as well as the next succeeding claim, to the legal representatives of said Dyson, as the claimant produces no authentic deed of sale from said Dyson to induce a recommendation in his favor.

No. 355.—994. William Lacey claims $103\frac{75}{100}$ superficial acres of land, situated in the prairie of Cattahoula, county of Rapides, bounded on the northwest by land of Jesse Harper, and on the southeast by that of William Mock, being part of a tract originally granted to Thomas Dyson. See the preceding claim reported No. 354—this being recommended for confirmation therein.

No. 356.—443. Everiste Love claims eighty superficial arpents of land, viz: two arpents front, by forty deep, situated on the right bank of Red river, in the county of Natchitoches, bounded on one side by land of the claimant, and on the other by that of James Blutworth. The notice is accompanied by a certified copy of a sale from the Adleys to the claimant, dated the 29th October, 1811, for eight arpents front on each side of the river. The evidence of Bertrand Plaisance, aged thirty-eight years, taken the 24th October, 1812, establishes the land to have been inhabited and cultivated from his earliest recollection. The title to this tract of land appears, from evidence before the late Board of Commissioners, to have been derived from the settlement of Athanase Poissot. By a deed of gift from Nicholas Lauve to John Adley and his wife and nine children, for the tract in question, it was represented as containing eight arpents front, with forty arpents in depth, on each side of Red river; bounded by land of Edward D. Turner above, and that of Murphey below. This front and depth would have given an area of six hundred and forty arpents, equal to about five hundred and forty-two acres, whereas, from the documents before the late Board, they were induced to confirm the claim of the Adleys for only $256\frac{63}{100}$ acres of the land. See certificate B, No. 1,877. Everiste Love now produces a deed by which the Adleys convey to him not only the land, of which the claim has been confirmed to them by the certificate of the commissioners before recited, but all the land which they could rightfully hold under the deed of gift from Nicholas Lauve. The present claimant is, therefore, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, entitled to a confirmation of his claim to the residue of the land between the lines of Murphey and Turner, provided it does not exceed, with the quantity already confirmed to the Adleys, six hundred and forty arpents.

De Villier, aged sixty-two years, taken 2d September, 1812, states, "that, about twelve years ago, the land was settled by one Houquine, who sold to Frugée, who resided thereon four or five years, to deponent's knowledge, and has reason to believe it has been constantly inhabited and cultivated from Houquine's first settlement to the present date." His habitation was on the left bank of the bayou, but he cultivated both sides in 1798. Said Walker informed this deponent that he had bartered a part of his land to one Marcott, for other lands on the Avoyelles; and this deponent was on the land in 1799, when he found Marcott residing in the house formerly occupied by G. Duplechin, who sold to A. Dozat, and he to the claimant, who has inhabited and cultivated the same for the last five years. It being only fourteen years since deponent went to reside in Avoyelles, he cannot say that the land was settled at an earlier period, but has often heard from old inhabitants that the land in question was among the earliest established of the parish. Michel Barry has a certificate, No. 1,527, founded on settlement and permission."

No. 374.—159. The evidence of Louis St. Julian, taken the 28th March, 1814, states that the land has been constantly inhabited and cultivated from 1796 to the present date, at which time the fields of the claimants were forty-seven arpents from the bayou, and that the front tract is low and unfit for culture. It appears to the Register and Receiver that this land must have been claimed merely because the fields under cultivation have been extended to it from the front tract, which, in their opinion, cannot entitle the claimant to a donation from the United States.

No. 376.—167. Resin Bowie, Sen. claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, situated on the right bank of bayou Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas. The evidence of several persons was taken in this claim

The evidence of Thomas Going, a free man of color, aged fifty years, taken the 6th October, 1812, states that he has known the land for seven years, and that for the last three years it has been inhabited and cultivated by Littlepage Robertson and the claimant; Robertson was the first settler known to this deponent. And the evidence of John Brown, aged thirty-four years, taken the 27th November, 1812, states that, in the year 1799, he, in company with two families, two of the name of Brown, and one Robinson, ascended the bayou Vermilion for the purpose of making an establishment; that Robinson did at that time settle on the tract of land now claimed, and at present occupied by S. Porter; that Robinson continued to inhabit and cultivate the same until 1804, at which time deponent removed, and did not return till 1811, when he found the claimant residing on and cultivating said land. The evidence of Theodore Broussard and Michel Pevoto, taken January, 1803, the first of whom states that he believes no establishment was made below Little bayou until, about four years ago, one Resin Bowie settled sixty or seventy arpents below said bayou; and that no persons, to his knowledge, by the name of Brown or Robinson, settled on said land in 1799 or 1800. The second states that he knows of no families ever having settled in that quarter until, about four or five years ago, one Robinson settled about one league and a half above Little bayou.

No. 378.—172. The legal representatives of John Coleman, Jun. claim one hundred and sixty superficial acres of land, situated about twenty arpents from the right bank of bayou Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas, bounded below by land of Michel Meaux, and above by vacant land. A plat by the claimant is filed with notice. The evidence of Joseph Watson, taken by commission, states that, from the year 1802 until 1804, he saw the land in cultivation, and is certain Jarvis had the land in cultivation on the 20th December, 1803, and that the deponent generally understood the claimant settled by permission of Vidal, but does not know whether it was written or verbal.

No. 380.—176. William H. Collins claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, situated on the right bank of the Mississippi river, about three miles above the Heights, in the county of Concordia. With the notice is filed a receipt for the surveying fees, by Hugh Coyle, dated 24th June, 1801. Also, the deposition of George Rowe, taken before William H. Ruffin, certified by the Governor of the Mississippi Territory to be a justice of the peace thereof, stating that, in 1802, he petitioned the commandant, Cæsar Archinard, for three hundred arpents of land on bayou Bœuf, which was granted, the survey made, and the fees paid to Hugh Coyle, surveyor, which papers were put into the hands of Robert Cochran, to have recorded in New Orleans, from whom, on account of his delirium, he has not been able to obtain them. Also, a deposition taken before the same justice of the peace the 14th December, 1814, of Antoine Fournelle, stating that, in 1802, he was present on bayou Bœuf, and witnessed the surveying, marking, and laying off, by Hugh Coyle, a Spanish surveyor, of three hundred arpents for George Rowe, on the west side of said bayou; the deponent understood, from the said Coyle, the survey was made in virtue of a Spanish requête or order of survey; the said Rowe was there put in possession of said land, by Coyle. Accompanying the notice is a requête by Firman Bro, dated the 19th June, 1797, stating "that, by a survey made last year of the land on the west side of the Vermilion, by Gonssoulin, he finds his habitation is removed in spite of twenty-two years' possession, and notwithstanding that the deceased, De Clouet, then acting as surveyor and commandant, had planted the corners of said land, the said Gonssoulin, by a different operation from that he had run the year before, throws the petitioner seventeen arpents lower down, on a place uninhabitable, and leaves seventeen arpents by this means to the domain, which were demanded by new comers immediately afterwards, to the great prejudice of the petitioner, who prays redress, &c." And, on the margin of said requête, signed by Carondelet, are the following words: "New Orleans, 19th July, 1797. The surveyor, Carlos Trudeau, will inform himself." Also, the evidence of Seth Hanchette, aged sixty-four years, taken the 17th of August, 1815, states that D. Callaghan had always been in the practice of cutting his timber, and taking his bark off of said land for the use of his tanyard on the adjoining tract, upwards of twenty-five years ago; and ever since that time said land has always been considered and respected as belonging to said Callaghan; and those claiming, or holding under him, have constantly, from the aforesaid period to the present date, cut their necessary timber off of said land; and that Callaghan had, from the said time, uniformly claimed the land as his property, until he sold to William Shields; and that this deponent and said Callaghan cut a road through said land, and built a bridge over the bayou that divides said land from the adjoining tracts of said Callaghan. The evidence refers to reported Nos. 1056, 1091, and 1093. See note V.

The evidence of André Martin, aged forty-four years, taken the 14th of April, 1814, establishes the consecutive occupancy and cultivation of the land from the year 1800 to 1807, by the negroes of the claimant, and subsequently by the claimant himself, who was a merchant, and, for the first five or six years, resided at J. B. Broussard's, near said land.

No. 546.—251. Alexis Cloutier claims one hundred and sixty superficial arpents of land, viz: four arpents front, by forty deep, situated on the east bank of the river Aux Cannes, in the county of Natchitoches, bounded above by land of Baptiste Anty, Sen. The notice is accompanied by a certified copy of a deed of sale from William Owen to the claimant, dated the 7th of May, 1810, and a plat of survey by Joseph Irwin, dated the 24th of January, 1813, for $33\frac{47}{100}$ acres on the left bank. The evidence of Louis Derbonne, taken the 9th of October, 1812, states that, twenty-five or twenty-six years ago, the land was inhabited by Pierre Captain, a Christian Indian, who continued thereon to the time of his death, about four or five years ago; that his son continued on the land until the claimant took possession about a year ago; and that William Owen, who sold to Cloutier, claimed it on account of a debt owing to him by said Indian, but is not positive that this is the case. See note M.

No. 547.—82. James Bludsworth claims one thousand six hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: forty arpents front, by forty deep, situated on the left bank of Red river, opposite to the Petite Ecore, in the county of Natchitoches, claimed under a requête and order of survey, to François Rouquiere for forty arpents front, by forty deep, dated the 27th of May, 1786, and signed by Estevan Miro, then Governor of Louisiana; which said order of survey, together with a plat of survey for $1,361\frac{20}{100}$ arpents by Jo. Irwin, an authorized deputy surveyor, dated the 12th of April, 1813, accompanies the notice. The evidence of Charles Pavy, taken the 23d of February, 1813, states that, in the year 1800, he was on the land, when he found it inhabited and cultivated, and from the old appearance of the houses, and other improvements on both sides of the river, as well as from common report, he has no doubt but that it had been inhabited and cultivated for many years previous to said date; that, in 1803, the land was occupied and in cultivation, and that the lands on both sides of the river, as well anterior as subsequent to said dates, have been respected as the property of François Rouquier. On this order of survey, a tract of like quantity, on the opposite side of the river, has already been confirmed to the legal representatives of said Rouquier, by certificate B, No. 2,069. But the claimant contends "that the said order of survey was intended to be given, and was given in such manner as to embrace the lands on both sides of the river, as there is a part of said instrument which has been eaten by worms, a sufficient space between the words, which remain legible, for the usual expressions "de cada lado," and the sense could only be completed by supplying them. It is the requête that is defaced, and sufficient space is left for the words de cada lado, but the sense is complete without such addition, and as Miro only concedes by the order of survey "forty arpents of land, by the ordinary depth of forty, at the place solicited." The claim ought not to be confirmed, unless the claimant can show that the land was actually located on both sides of the river previous to the change of Government in 1803.

Fort Miro. The notice is accompanied by a certificate of Gilbert Leonard, formerly fiscal in the time of the Spanish Government. An affidavit of Juan Bte. Bermudez, formerly a writer in the Intendancy at New Orleans, and an affidavit of Nicholas Roche, all dated February, 1809, of the following tenor, viz: that L. Sigur, in the year 1795, sent off a boat for Washita, with one of his sons and several slaves, for the purpose of settling a cypress swamp in that post, to cut masts for His Catholic Majesty's navy, for which he was contractor, from whence he furnished, and still furnishes, masts for said use; that, in 1796, he presented a petition to Carondelet for eighty arpents front on each side of a canal he had cut to get out said masts, by eighty arpents in depth, which was granted, registered, and left in the office. Some years after, Sigur applied several times at the office to obtain said concessions, but they were refused to him, under the pretence that they were lost or mislaid, and that said concessions were put among the archives, and sent to Pensacola, when the province was evacuated. The evidence of John Ryan, taken by commission the 1st February, 1814, states that the claimant, aged twenty-two years, never did inhabit the land, but that his father commenced cultivating about sixteen years ago, and continued so to do for four years, and caused the land to be surveyed for his son in 1790, by Hugh Coyle, for which reason, together with his cultivation of the land, it has ever since been considered as the property of the Bakers. The land must have been surveyed in anticipation of claimant's birth by two years. Such evidence is not entitled to credence.

No. 1099.—220. Augustin Remy Boudreau claims a tract of land, (superficial contents unknown,) situated in the little cove of the Prairie Grand Coteau, in the county of Opelousas, bounded by bayou Bourbeux, bayou des Allemandes, and the lands of David Guidry, excepting from the tract embraced by the foregoing boundaries, six arpents front, by forty deep, sold by J. C. Benoist to Philip Richard and Louis Laverne. The superficial contents of the part claimed will be established by a plat of survey to be hereafter filed by the claimant. Accompanying the notice is a deed of sale from the claimant to C. M. Lawson, for an undivided half of the land claimed, dated the 25th July, 1812. The evidence of James Haggard (a deputy surveyor) states that he was employed in the latter part of 1806 to survey several tracts of land on bayou Bourbeux, among which were the claimant's two tracts; that, to enable him to perform his duties with correctness, he applied for the papers, when the claimant produced a requête of one Lemel, he believes Dennis Lemel, who prayed for the vacant land in the cove of the bayou, to which was affixed De Clouet's certificate, that fifteen arpents front would be the extent of the vacant land; and the Governor, in his order of survey, granted fifteen arpents front; that the deponent considered himself only authorized to survey fifteen arpents front, but the claimant objected to such a survey, contending that he was entitled to all the land in the cove; and, on this objection, the survey was not at this time made; that Boudreau moving out of the county, L. Chacheré, claimant's agent, employed this deponent to survey said land, which he did, laying off fifteen arpents front, as the papers of Lemel called for.

No. 1100.—223. Louis Judice claims one hundred and sixty superficial arpents of land, viz: four arpents front, by forty deep, being the third depth, or second continuation from the bayou Teche, county of Attakapas. Reference is had in the notice to Attakapas record book, pages 213 and 214, for further explanation; upon examination of which, it does not appear that any thing contained therein is relevant to the claim in question, or ought to entitle the claimant to his land.

No. 1101.—567. John Adley claims half a league square of land on the right bank of bayou Pierre, on what has heretofore been called Neutral Ground, county of Natchitoches. Accompanying the notice is a paper which, from what can be deciphered of it, appears to be a requête procès of possession, and a decree in favor of the claimant, dated the 27th December, 1795, for the land as claimed by Bernardo Hernandez, commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, certified as a copy from the archives of Nacogdoches, the 30th May, 1796, by Bernardo Ferme.

NOTE.—The Register and Receiver, being unacquainted with the signature of the Governor of Nacogdoches, as well as with that of the person who certifies said document to be a true copy, cannot take upon themselves to say that the said document is genuine; and, being perfectly unacquainted with the laws, usages, and customs of the province of Texas, of which the Government of Nacogdoches forms a part, or how far the jurisdiction of that place extended, or if the Governor thereof was authorized to grant such large tracts of land, have placed the present claim in this class, leaving it to Congress to point out, by law, some means of ascertaining those facts, and allowing to the claimants their respective tracts of land, should it be found that they are justly entitled thereto.

No. 1102.—583. Pierre Dolet claims two leagues square of land on bayou Pierre, county of Natchitoches. Accompanying the notice is a paper which, from what can be deciphered of it, appears to be a requête procès of possession and decree, in favor of the claimant, dated the 14th January, 1796, for the land as claimed by Bernardo Hernandez, commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, certified as a copy from the archives of Nacogdoches, the 30th May, 1796, by Bernardo Ferme. See the note in the preceding claim, reported No. 1101.

No. 1103.—692. Luke Martin, as one of the heirs of Martin, deceased, claims one thousand seven hundred and thirty-six superficial arpents of land, being an undivided fourth of a tract of land granted to the heirs of Martin, by Antonio Gil Harvo, at a place called Bermudes, county of Natchitoches. The evidence of Michel Du Roy, taken by commission the 3d August, 1814, states that the land was settled as a vacherie twenty-two years ago by the claimant, aged forty-three years, and the head of a family, who has inhabited and cultivated the same ever since. The permission alluded to is filed in reported No. 351.

No. 1104.—693. Dominique Martin, as one of the heirs of Martin, deceased, claims one thousand seven hundred and thirty-six superficial arpents of land, being an undivided fourth of a tract of land granted to the heirs of Martin, by Antonio Gil Harvo, at a place called Bermudes, county of Natchitoches. The evidence of Michel Du Roy, taken by commission the 3d August, 1814, states that the land was settled by the claimant, aged forty-five years, and the head of a family, twenty-two years ago, and has been inhabited and cultivated by him and his hirelings ever since. The permission alluded to is filed in reported No. 351.

No. 1105.—694. Theresa Martin, as one of the heirs of Martin, deceased, claims one thousand seven hundred and thirty-six superficial arpents of land, being an undivided fourth of a tract of land granted to the heirs of Martin, by Antonio Gil Harvo, at a place called Bermudes, county of Natchitoches, which permission is filed in reported No. 351.

No. 1106.—761. John and Edward Bollen claim one thousand six hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: forty arpents front, by forty deep, situated about seven leagues above the village of Natchitoches, on the road to bayou Pierre. Accompanying the notice is a concession from Antonio Gil Harvo, Lieutenant Governor and commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, to Francisco Morven, dated the 16th October, 1790, giving him permission to settle on lands on the road leading to bayou Pierre. A deed of sale from the widow Morven to the claimants, dated the 10th January, 1810, for the land as claimed, and a plat of survey by Lacey Rumsey, assistant for S. Cook, dated the 30th May, 1812, for one thousand six hundred acres. As no proof of occupancy is produced, this claim comes under the note in reported No. 1101.

No. 1107.—876. Madalaine Le Berry claims one hundred and eighty superficial acres of land, situated on the west bank of Red river, county of Natchitoches, as per plat of survey, by J. Irwin, dated the 9th July, 1814, filed with the notice, together with a certified copy of the judicial sale of the land to the claimant, by Felix Trudeau, commandant of the post, dated the 29th December, 1799, for ten arpents front on each side of the river; and a certificate of said Trudeau's, dated the 19th June, 1813, certifying that the land came into the claimant's possession at the judicial sale of the estate of Jo. Martineau, deceased. It appears, from commissioners' certificate B, No. 1895, to which reference is made in the notice, that the claimant has been confirmed to all the land to which she was rightfully entitled under the said sale. The confirmation is, therefore, not recommended.

No. 1108.—1016. Bartholomew McCarty claims one thousand six hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: forty arpents front, by forty deep, situated at the Point of Pines, in the county of Opelousas. Reference is had in the notice to Attakapas record book, page 374, for the extract of an order of survey in his favor, from which it appears that the land is granted in the county of Attakapas; it therefore has no relevancy to the present claim, and the report of the former Board of Commissioners on the claims in the county of Attakapas will be found to embrace all the land that the McCartys are entitled to.

No. 1109.—1017. Edmond McCarty claims one thousand six hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: forty arpents front, by forty deep, situated at the Point of Pines, in the county of Opelousas. Reference is had in the notice to Attakapas record book, page 374, for the extract of an order of survey in his favor, from which it appears that the land is granted in the county of Attakapas; it therefore has no relevancy to the present claim, and the report of the former Board of Commissioners on claims in the county of Attakapas will be found to embrace all the land that the McCartys are entitled to.

No. 1110.—1018. The legal representatives of John Baptiste McCarty claim one thousand six hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: forty arpents front, by forty deep, situated at the Point of Pines, in the county of Opelousas. Reference is had in the notice to Attakapas record book, page 374, for an extract of an order of survey in J. B. McCarty's favor, from which it appears that the land is granted in the county of Attakapas; it therefore has no relevancy to the present claim, and the report of the former Board of Commissioners on claims in the county of Attakapas will be found to embrace all the land that the McCartys are entitled to.

No. 1111.—446. Louis Lambre claims a tract of land, the quantity of which cannot be ascertained until it shall have been surveyed. The claimant alleges that his claim before the former Board of Commissioners has not been confirmed for the full quantity of land to which he is entitled by the concession from the Spanish Government; that the survey made in conformity with the certificate of confirmation would not include his habitation, and that he is entitled to a larger quantity on account of the opening of lines of depth. It appears that the confirmation, commissioners' certificate B, No. 1793, embraces all the land which the claimant can rightfully hold under the order of survey, which is the basis of his title.

NINTH CLASS.

No. 1112.—17. Onizeme Guidry claims six hundred and forty acres of land on bayou Caron Crow, county of Opelousas. The evidence of Pierre Le Berré, taken the 20th June, 1812, states that, thirteen or fourteen years ago, he assisted in making pens on the land, it being designed for a vacherie; same year a house was built, deponent thinks, on the dividing line between this land and that of Mouton's; a Mr. Socks was put in possession, who cultivated one year, and attended the cattle; and although the land has never been cultivated since Socks left, yet it and the adjoining tract have always been respected as the property of Mouton and Guidry, fathers of the two claimants, where their cattle have constantly grazed to the present date.

No. 1113.—18. Joseph Mouton claims six hundred and forty acres of land on bayou Caron Crow, county of Opelousas. See the evidence in the preceding claim.

No. 1114.—78. Antoine Patin claims one thousand two hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: thirty arpents front, by forty deep, situated on the east side of bayou Teche, at Patin's island, county of Attakapas. The evidence of Pierre Moreau, aged forty-five years, taken the 20th July, 1812, states that, from the year 1789 to 1803, or 1804, the land was occupied as a vacherie by the claimant, and superintended by this deponent, who united his stock with that of Patin's; that several of the claimant's negroes were inhabiting and cultivating the land until 1803 or 1804. Deponent recollects to have seen an order of survey for the land, signed by Miro, in favor of the claimant, but which, he has reason to believe, has been lost. Also, the evidence of Nicholas Pellerin, aged fifty-nine years, taken the 5th April, 1813, states that he has resided on the land for seven or eight years preceding this date, by Patin's permission; that seventeen or eighteen years previous to his being put in possession, he knows the negroes of the claimant occupied it as a vacherie, under the superintendence of one Moreau; and that, from the marks of culture on the land when he took possession, it must have been cultivated.

No. 1115.—138. Michel Cormier claims five hundred superficial arpents of land, viz: twelve and a half arpents front, by forty arpents deep, situated at the end of forty arpents of C. Guilbeau, on the right bank of bayou Caron Crow, county of Attakapas. Accompanying the notice is a certificate of Cadet St. Julien, dated the 26th April, 1801, certifying that he had deposited in the office of C. L. Trudeau, Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, a concession in favor of Michel Cormier. The evidence of Auguste Roy, taken the 22d October, 1812, states, that the land has been occupied as a vacherie by the claimant, for fourteen consecutive years preceding said date, but never inhabited or cultivated, nor were cattle ever penned there.

No. 1116.—204. Manuel Rachal claims six hundred and forty acres of land on L'Isle à Noel, county of Natchitoches. See the evidence in reported No. 1118.

No. 1117.—205. Hilaire Rachal claims six hundred and forty acres of land on L'Isle à Noel, county of Natchitoches. See the evidence in reported No. 1118.

No. 1118.—206. Antoine Rachal claims six hundred and forty acres of land on L'Isle à Noel, county of Natchitoches. In these three claims, reported Nos. 1116, 1117, and 1118, the evidence of Bertrand Plaisance, taken the 28th September, 1812, establishes the occupancy of the lands as a vacherie, for sixteen consecutive years preceding this date, by the claimants; that the tracts in question have not been inhabited or cultivated, being subject to inundation.

No. 1119.—207. Bertrand Plaisance claims six hundred and forty acres of land on Little Tiger island, county of Natchitoches. The evidence of Manuel Rachal, taken the 28th September, 1812, establishes the occupancy of the land by the claimant as a vacherie for fourteen or fifteen years preceding this date; the claimant resides on another tract about twelve arpents from the land. Deponent does not believe the land was ever inhabited or cultivated, being subject to inundation, and only fit for pasturage.

No. 1120.—225. Littlepage Robertson claims one league square of land, situated on the right bank of bayou Boine, about seven leagues west of the town of Natchitoches, and one mile above the old town of Adaye, in the county of Natchitoches. The evidence of William McCarty, taken the 7th October, 1812, states that, eighteen or twenty years ago, the claimant resided on the land, where he kept a stock, but does not know if he cultivated. At the time of deponent's removal, about two years after, claimant was then on the land. Also, the evidence of James Quinnelly, aged thirty-eight years, taken the 28th December, 1813, states that the claimant inhabited and cultivated the land for three years about twenty-two years ago, when, removing, it has been uninhabited ever since.

No. 1121.—245. Alexis Cloutier claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, situated on the right bank of bayou Derbonne, in the county of Natchitoches; accompanying the notice is a plat of survey, by Jo. Irwin, dated the 10th March, 1813, for six hundred and forty acres. The evidence of Nicholas Boudin, taken the 19th October, 1813, states that, twenty-four years ago, he made for claimant's use an establishment on the land with three negroes, for a vacherie, where he remained one year, but that it has been occupied and cultivated by the claimant's negroes from that time to the present date.

No. 1122.—367. Alexandre Plauché claims one thousand and eighty superficial arpents of land, situated in the parish of Avoyelles. A certified copy of sale from Julien Poydrass to Plauché's brothers, selling the land, stock, and negroes, dated the 18th October, 1808, accompanies the notice. The evidence of Cyprien La Cour, aged thirty-five years, taken the 21st October, 1812, states that this land is part of a tract conceded to one Bermondez, who occupied it as a vacherie several years previous to his selling to Poydrass, about seventeen years ago; that the land has been inhabited and cultivated, as is usual on vacheries, by Poydrass's negroes, for the last seventeen years. Also, the evidence of Bellony Chattelin, aged forty-five years, taken the 21st October, 1812, confirms the testimony of La Cour; and further states that, from long residence in the Avoyelles, he knows that the land has been occupied as a vacherie by Bermondez, and those holding under him, for twenty-five consecutive years preceding this date.

No. 1123.—369. Alexandre Plauché claims six hundred and forty-three superficial acres of land, situated in the prairie of Avoyelles, county of Rapides. A plat of survey by K. McCrummin, dated the 12th September, 1812, for five hundred and twenty-seven acres, accompanies the notice. The evidence of Cyprien La Cour, aged thirty-five years, taken the 21st October, 1812, states that it was well understood in Avoyelles that this land was conceded to Jacques Gagnard, a former commandant of that post, by whom it was occupied many years ago; that, on deponent's removal to Avoyelles eighteen years ago, he found it occupied by Poydrass's negroes as a vacherie, and that it has been so occupied ever since until Poydrass sold to Plauché. Also, the evidence of Bellona Chattelin states that, thirty years ago, on settling in Avoyelles, Jacques Gagnard, then commandant of the post, was residing on the land, and that it has been constantly occupied ever since, either by said Gagnard or those holding under him.

No. 1124.—416. Paul Bonain, Jun. claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, situated on the west side of bayou Teche, in the county of Attakapas, fronting on the back line of the land of Paul Bonain, Sen. The evidence of Frederick Louvier, taken the 23d October, 1812, states that, twenty years ago, the family of the Bonains had fields on this land, and cultivated the same seven or eight years; that a vacherie has been kept on the land for fifteen or sixteen years past by the sons of Bonain, who have resided during that time in their father's family; that no person at present inhabits the land, nor has it been cultivated since the establishment of the vacherie. Claimant resides at the Acadian point.

No. 1125.—429. Eugene Borel claims six hundred and forty superficial acres of land, situated on the west side of bayou Teche, in the county of Attakapas, fronting on the back line of Joseph Sorrel's land. The evidence of Pierre Bouveillon, aged forty-one years, taken the 16th June, 1813, states that, about thirteen or fourteen years ago, the claimant established Charles Numil on the land as vacherie keeper, who remained one year, and cultivated a small field of corn, since when it has remained unoccupied; that the claimant made some inconsiderable improvements on the land after Numil's removal, with an intention (as deponent supposes) to show he did not abandon his claim.

No. 1126.—449. Therese Lamalathie (widow) claims one league square of land, measure of Paris, situated about thirty miles west of the village, in the county of Natchitoches, bounded on the lower side by land of Elizabeth David. The evidence is accompanied by a plat of survey by Joseph Irwin, dated in 1814, for four thousand eight hundred acres. The evidence of Bertrand Plaisance, taken the 16th October, 1812, states that, eighteen years ago, one Kaitan was sent by the commandant of Nacogdoches with the claimant to choose a situation for a vacherie, and that said Kaitan was established on the land as stock-keeper, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same until about a year ago, when he, as well as many others, abandoned their lands on account of robbers infesting that part of the country. Deponent knows that it was the constant practice of the commandants of the posts of Nacogdoches and Natchitoches, to give verbal permission for land to applicants; and persons occupying lands, under such permission, have generally reposed as much confidence in them as those who had titles in form; and that it was usual, at the time this land was granted, for very large tracts to be granted as vacheries, and especially in the quarter where this land is situated. Deponent has understood and believes the claimant was authorized to occupy a league or more square.

No. 1127.—450. Elizabeth David claims one league square of land, Paris measure, situated about thirty miles to eastward of the village, in the county of Natchitoches, bounded above by land of Therese Lamalathie. Accompanying the notice is a plat of survey by Joseph Irwin for four thousand eight hundred acres of land, dated 1814. The evidence of Bertrand Plaisance, taken the 16th October, 1812, states that this land was settled about the same time, abandoned for the same reasons, and was for the same extent as that of Madame Lamalathie, claimant's aunt, by whom she was advised to apply for land, having been left an orphan at an early age, and inheriting a considerable stock of cattle, and a little of other property. Also, the evidence of Jean Lalonde, stating that the facts stated by B. No. 1213.—989. Jean Morven claims one league square of land on Red river, county of Natchitoches. See reported No. —. These twenty-six claims, reported Nos. 1188 to 1213 inclusive, were entered under the act of Congress of the 27th of February, 1813, by Richard K. McLaughlin, as agent for the claimants, who applied for, and obtained, on the written affidavits of the claimants, commissions to take testimony before the judge of the parish of Natchitoches, or any justice of the peace thereof; and, on the 25th of April, 1814, the said commissions were returned to the office with the depositions of different persons thereto annexed; these depositions being in the English language, and signed by one Marcel De Soto, a Frenchman, as having been taken before him as a justice of the peace for said parish. A day or two previous to the said returns being sent to the office, the judge of said parish, P. D. Lafontaine, had sent to the Receiver and Register an authenticated copy of a protest made before him by the aforesaid De Soto, protesting against the said McLaughlin and all others concerned, as having surreptitiously obtained his signature to the said returns, they being in a language he was totally ignorant of. This protest, with the several attending circumstances, viz: the affidavits, returns, signatures, &c., being apparently in the said McLaughlin's hand-writing; the names of several of the claimants being found, upon inquiry, to be fictitious, together with the said McLaughlin's having left the State without attempting to counteract the effects of the protest, although personally shown to him, proves sufficiently the fraudulent intent, and overthrows the validity of said testimony. It is, therefore, deemed unnecessary to swell the report by transcribing the same.

No. 1214.—312. William Banks claims six hundred and forty acres of land on the river Mississippi, county of Concordia. The evidence of Ezekiel Williams, taken the 20th December, 1813, proves the first settlement of the land in 1802, by John Smith, who, having occupied it three years, sold to the claimant, whose overseer and negroes have occupied and cultivated the same ever since. See reported No. 1227.

The evidence of Ezekiel Williams, aged fifty-seven years, taken the 20th December, 1813, states that Springer settled on the land in February or March, 1800; that he still inhabits the land; and deponent has reason to believe that he has constantly inhabited and cultivated the same from 1800 to the present date, the last two years as tenant to the claimant. See reported No. 1227.

No. 1224.—1070. Mirrel Boudin claims three hundred and twenty acres of land in prairie Jacob, parish of Catta-houla. The affidavit of Heziel Williamson, sworn to before Samuel Lightner, judge of the parish of Catta-houla, the 7th January, 1814, states that, some time in the year 1800, he passed through the west end of prairie Jacob, and there found two young men, named John and Mirrel Boudin, occupying two separate tracts of land, which they now occupy, and which deponent has reason to believe they have constantly occupied from 1800 to the present date, having frequently visited that part of the country, and always found them there. See reported No. 1227.

The evidence of William Gardner, aged forty-seven years, taken in the claims of Edward Dorsey and others, reported Nos. 1214 to 1227, inclusive, the 20th December, 1805, being sworn before the Register and Receiver, deposeth that, in the spring and summer of the year 1807, he explored the lands on the Washita river, the river of Bœuf, bayou Mason, and prairie Jacob, in the parish of Catta-houla, with a view of establishing himself in that quarter, at which time he recollects to have been at the cabin of Seth Dean, who had, that spring, commenced a settlement on the left bank of bayou Mason, not far above its mouth. The deponent further saith, that he knows of no settlements on the bayou Mason, nor any in the prairie Jacob, at the date above mentioned, except the one made by said Dean, and has good reason to believe that no settlements were made on said bayou, or in prairie Jacob, earlier than the year 1807; he is the more inclined to believe so, from knowing that Mr. Dean was under the necessity of sending to Mr. Lovelace's, on Sicily island, for his seed corn, which it is presumable he would not have done if he could have procured it nearer to him. Edmund Johnson, aged fifty-three years, being sworn in the same claims, deposes that he was on the Washita, and in the prairie Jacob, in the year 1807, when he recollects to have gathered cucumbers on the place where said Gardner had settled that spring; and, having heard the evidence of said Gardner, knows that the facts therein stated are substantially true. The evidence of Jonas Segars, taken the 19th November, 1813, states that the land has been cultivated, to his knowledge, for the last seventeen years, and has reason to believe it was occupied previous to his becoming acquainted with it; that the deponent purchased the land from one McCounts, the original occupant, but believes he got no written transfer; that the claimant resides on an adjoining tract, but has cultivated for several years the land in question. See report No. 1,233.

TWELFTH CLASS.

No. 1252.—170. Bosra, an Indian, claims three hundred and one superficial acres of land, situated on the southwest side of Avoyelles prairie, county of Rapides, bounded on one side by lands of Hypolite Freon, and on the other by that of Joseph Carmouche, as per plat of survey by K. C. McCrummin, dated the 7th May, 1808, filed with the notice, together with a certified copy of a letter from Governor Miro to Jacques Gagnard, commandant of the post of Avoyelles, under date of the 6th October, 1786, of which the following is a translation, viz: "Having informed myself of the Indians, about the abandonment of the land which you speak of in yours of the 20th of June last, they exclaim very much against it, saying that they have but one league of land, that consequently they have use for their land for their cattle. You will, therefore, tell Mr. Bordelon and Vitrine to look out for some other part to place themselves, as the lands they demand belong to the Indians, and that they cannot have them but by a formal sale, as the Indians have known rights that ought to be respected every where."

It appears from the plat filed in this claim that the Indian is bounded on each by the claims of other persons, by which he is confined to the small quantity claimed. The Register and Receiver are of opinion that Bosra has a valid title in the land claimed, with the restriction imposed on other Indian titles within the limits of the United States; they, therefore, recommend the claim for confirmation.

The following are claims which were reported by the late Board of Commissioners for adjusting claims to land in the western district of the late Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana, in which "written evidence or other testimony" has been adduced, in conformity with the second section of an act of Congress, passed the 27th February, 1813, entitled "An act giving further time for registering claims to land in the eastern and western districts of the Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana."

CLAIMS TO LAND IN THE COUNTY OF CONCORDIA.

No. 1253.—3. In the claim of Robert Ashley, reported under the No. 3, the evidence of Peter Smith, taken by commission issued by the former Board of Commissioners, the 25th of May, 1812, and returned by John Melikan, judge of the parish of Warren, county of Concordia, as having been duly taken before him on the 9th April, 1813, states "that he does not recollect as to the date the land was first settled, but knows that a Mr. Reding and Mr. Sheridan were all the people who lived on the lake, except Cushin and Spellers and Thomas Oliver; deponent does not know whether permission to settle was given; he knows that troops passed down the river while he lived there, and knows that Job Rauth did not settle there for one or two years after, thinks in 1806." The Register and Receiver discover nothing in the evidence now adduced to induce them to differ in opinion from the late Board of Commissioners in this case. The claim, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 1254.—147. In the claim of Richard McFarland, reported under the No. 147, the following documents were filed with the Register in due time, viz: a deed of sale from the judge of the parish of Concordia to Charles B. Green, dated the 23d October, 1809, selling a tract of land as the property of Richard McFarland for the taxes, situated on the west margin of the river Mississippi, adjoining lands of Solomon Phelps and others, about twelve or fourteen miles above the post of Concordia, containing four hundred and ten acres, more or less, and an authenticated deed of sale from said Green to John Perkins for the same land, dated the 22d February, 1810, the evidence of Sarah Gibbs, taken by a commission issued by the Register and Receiver, the 11th August, 1813, and returned by Samuel Brooks, a justice of the quorum for Adams county, Mississippi Territory, as having been duly taken before him on the 21st August, 1813, states "that she is acquainted with the land claimed, containing four hundred acres, opposite Fairchild's creek, about a mile below the bayou Argent; that she knows the land was in cultivation, a small part of it cleared, and a cabin erected on it in the year 1804, and that the cultivation has continued ever since, except when the occupants were obliged to leave it on account of high water; that McFarland is about forty years of age, and the head of a family, and John Perkins is about thirty-one or two years of age, and the head of a family, about seven years since. From the evidence now offered, the legal representatives of Richard McFarland will be entitled to the right of pre-emption in a quarter-section, of the land claimed.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN THE COUNTY OF WASHITA.

No. 1255.—3. In the claim of Joseph Bonaventure, reported under No. 3, the evidence of François Duval, Sen., aged sixty-four years, taken by a commission issued by the Register and Receiver the 26th November, 1813, and returned by Oliver J. Morgan, judge of the parish of Washita, as having been duly taken before him on the 11th December, 1813, states that he knew the claimant fifty years ago, and is well acquainted with the situation of the land, which is on bayou Berthelemy, at a place well known by the name of the Old Cabins; that he well knows the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated by the claimant upwards of thirty years ago, continued until the time of his death, and since by his representatives, or some person for them; that the claimant was at least seventy years of age when he died, leaving a large family of children; he was the head of a family when deponent first knew him, and that the claimant purchased the land of one Gallion upwards of thirty years ago. From the evidence now adduced, this claim is within the fifth class of claims in this report. The legal representatives of the claimant are, therefore, entitled to a confirmation of their claim. It is, however, incumbent on them to show that there is so much land within the acknowledged and ascertained boundaries of the tract claimed. This may possibly be established by producing the deed of sale under which the claimant acquired his title.

No. 1256.—5 and 6. In the claims of Henry Bry, reported under Nos. 5 and 6, John Hughes, Esq., being sworn before the Register and Receiver on the 26th November, 1813, deposeth that, on his arrival in the district of Washita, in June, 1799, both those tracts of land were inhabited and cultivated, and continued to be so until some years subsequent to the change of Government by which Louisiana was transferred to the United States. The claimant is entitled, from the evidence now adduced, to a confirmation of his claim to one of the tracts of land. The same person could not have inhabited and cultivated two tracts of land at the same time. Settlement appears to be the basis of the title in both cases, and both derived from the same person.

No. 1257.—7. In the claim of Jean Baptiste Bayargan, reported under No. 7, John Hebert, Sen., aged about fifty-seven, being sworn the 26th November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth, that Jean Bte. Bayargan, a man more than fifty years of age, and the head of a family, was inhabiting and cultivating the land claimed in the year 1799 or 1800, and that the land in question has been constantly inhabited and cultivated ever since, either by the claimant or some person for his use. The evidence now adduced brings this claim within the sixth class of this report. It ought, therefore, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed.

No. 1258.—13. In the claim of Charles Betin, reported under No. 13, the affidavit of John Filhiot, sworn to before A. Breard, justice of the peace in the parish of Washita, the 4th September, 1812, states that Charles Betin has obtained a tract of land of four arpents and a half each side of the bayou De Saird, joining the plantation of the said Charles Betin, bought from Jacob Stroops, Sen.; that the said tract has been given to him by the Government for cutting the road and making the bridges, &c., and that nobody would take the said tract of land, being too much work on so small a tract. It will be seen that the confirmation of this claim has already been recommended by the late Board of Commissioners. The certificate, under oath, of Mr. Filhiot, late commandant of the post of Washita, now presented, does, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, give some additional force to the claimant's title.

No. 1259.—17. In the claim of William Campbell, reported under No. 17, the evidence of William Dawson, taken by a commission issued by the Register and Receiver the 26th November, 1813, and returned by Oliver J. Morgan, judge of the parish of Washita, as having been duly taken before him, states that he is well acquainted with the claimant, William Campbell; that the land is situated on bayou Siard, adjoining lands formerly belonging to Francis Cavit, purchased by said Campbell of Patrick Finn; that he knows the land has been inhabited and cultivated in 1801, and continued about six years thereafter; that he believes the claimant to be about forty years of age, and that he has been the head of a family about eleven years. From the evidence now adduced, it appears the land was inhabited and cultivated in 1801, and for five or six years subsequently to that date. From the documents referred to in the report of the late Board of Commissioners, it appears the land was surveyed under the authority of the Spanish Government, in 1802, for Patrick Finn, who afterwards transferred his right to the present claimant. The Register and Receiver are, therefore, of opinion that this claim now comes properly within the fourth class of this report, and ought to be confirmed.

No. 1260.—24. In the claim of François Duval, reported under the No. 24, the following is a translation of a private certificate of John Filhiot, filed with the Register in due time, viz: "I, the undersigned, declare that I have no knowledge that Mr. François Duval did demand or obtain, during the space of eighteen years that I commanded at Washita, any requête for land on the bayou Berthelemy; that I am not ignorant that, although he sojourned in different places, he never had a fixed residence; for which reason, according to the Spanish ordinances, he could not become proprietor of the places he inhabited, although he should have had the concessions. In testimony of which, I have signed at Washita, the 10th of June, 1808. Signed, Filhiot." From the above certificate, the Register and Receiver cannot but concur in opinion with the late Board of Commissioners, that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 1261.—29. In the claim of Charles Gwyn, reported under No. 29, James Segars, aged about sixty years, being sworn the 19th of November, 1813, before the Register and Receiver, deposeth that the 19th of April next will complete the eighteenth year since deponent arrived in the parish of Washita, where he has resided ever since; that Charles Gwyn, a man more than fifty years of age, and the head of a family, came in company with the deponent to Washita, soon after which said Gwyn was put in possession of the land now claimed by him, where the deponent, though he has not been to the house of Gwyn for several years, has reason to believe he has resided on and cultivated ever since. The Register and Receiver are constrained to consider this claim in the same light as though no testimony had been adduced, being unwilling, for the reason assigned in reported No. —, to give any credit to the evidence of Jonas Segars.

No. 1262.—36. In the claim of John Pierre Landerneau, Jun., reported under the No. 36, John Hughes, Esq., being sworn the 25th of November, 1813, before the Register and Receiver, deposeth that the claimant, a man more than thirty years of age, and the head of a family, took possession of the land claimed in the spring of 1802 or 1813, and has inhabited and cultivated the same from that date to the present time. On reference to the late Board of Commissioners in this case, it will be seen that a survey was made of the land in question, by a surveyor under the authority of the Spanish Government, in 1802, which, with the evidence of occupancy now offered, brings this claim within the fourth class of this report. It ought, therefore, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed.

No. 1263.—37. In the claim of John Pierre Landerneau, Sen., reported under the No. 37, John Hughes, Esq., being sworn the 25th of November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth that the claimant, a man nearly seventy years of age, and the father and grandfather of a numerous offspring, has inhabited and cultivated the land in question constantly from the year 1802 to the present date. In the claim of Abraham Moorehouse, reported by the late Board of Commissioners, Nos. 42, 43, and 44, of Washita report, it appears that the title to one of the tracts of land is derived from an order of survey conceded to John Pierre Landerneau, whose claim to a donation from the United States is thereby barred. But, from the above evidence, this claim comes properly within the seventh class of this report, entitling the claimant to the pre-emption right of one-quarter section.

No. 1264.—45. In the claim of George McIntire, reported under the No. 45, the evidence of William Dawson, taken by commission, issued by the Register and Receiver the 26th of November, 1813, and returned by Oliver J. Morgan, judge of the parish of Washita, as having been duly taken before him, states that he is acquainted with the claimant, George McIntire; the land is situated on the bayou Siard, adjoining land, of the deponent, who has no knowledge of the land being inhabited or cultivated; that the claimant is about fifty years of age, and has been the head of a family these six years. Although there has been no evidence of the land having been actually inhabited and cultivated, it appearing from the plat filed in the claim, as reported by the late Board of Commissioners, that the claimant was legally put in possession of the land, under the Spanish Government, the claim comes within the fourth class of these reports, and ought, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed.

No. 1265.—47. In the claim of James McMahan, reported under the No. 47, George Hooke, aged thirty-nine years, sworn the 19th of November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth that he is well acquainted with the land claimed, which is understood to be within the limits of a body of land claimed by the Baron Bastrop; that the claimant, a man about forty years of age, the head of a family, settled on the land in question in the year 1802, from which time to the present the land has been constantly cultivated, either by the claimant or for his use. From the testimony now offered, the claimant can only be entitled to the right of pre-emption in a quarter-section of the land. The claim, therefore, comes within the seventh class of these reports.

No. 1266.—51. In the claim of the heirs of Augustin Roy, reported under the No. 51, John Hebert, Sen., being sworn the 26th of November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth that the land claimed was inhabited and cultivated in the year 1799 or 1800, by Augustin Roy, who continued thereon till the time of his death, which, to the best of the recollection of the deponent, happened in the year 1801 or 1802; subsequent to which time the land has been constantly occupied and cultivated either by the widow and heirs of the deceased Mr. Roy, or some person for their use. From the evidence now offered in this claim, it will come within the sixth class of this report, and ought, therefore, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed.

No. 1267.—52. In the claim of Mordecai Richard, reported under the No. 52, Jonas Segars being sworn the 19th of November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth and saith that he is well acquainted with the land in question, and was acquainted also with Mordecai Richard; that the said Mordecai Richard settled on the land in the spring of the year 1803, and continued to inhabit and cultivate it until the United States obtained possession of the country, after which the said Richard removed out of the country, and, as this deponent has been informed, and believes, sold his land to Mr Nancarrow. The confirmation of this claim was recommended by the late Board of Commissioners, and their decision is concurred in by the Register and Receiver, from the consideration that the land was surveyed under the authority of the Spanish Government, without giving any credit to the evidence of Jonas Segars, for the reasons assigned in reported No. —. See note L.

No. 1268.—53. In the claim of George Stewart, reported under the No. 53, George Hooke, aged thirty-nine years, being sworn the 19th of November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth and saith that the land in question has been constantly inhabited and cultivated from the year 1802 to the present date, either by the original claimant and proprietor, or those claiming under him. From the evidence now offered, and considering that the land was surveyed, and deeds of transfer executed, under the authority of the Spanish Government, this claim comes properly within the fourth class of this report, and, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, ought to be confirmed.

No. 1269.—55. In the claim of John Segars, reported under No. 55, there was filed with the Register, in due time, a requête by Joseph Segars, dated the 12th of May, 1798, in which he prays for the land on which he works, containing ten arpents front on Washita river, between two marais, bounded on the south and southwest by bayou Toupaz, and on the north by vacant land. Filhiot certifies the land to be vacant same date; and, on the 11th of June, 1798, Estevan Miro grants the land as being petitioned for, viz: ten arpents front, by forty deep. George Hooke, aged thirty-nine years, being sworn the 19th of November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth that the land claimed has been constantly inhabited and cultivated by the claimant, a man more than fifty years of age, and the head of a family from the year 1802 to the present date. The production of the order of survey brings this claim within the second class of this report. It ought, therefore, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed.

The name of Joseph, in the requête to which the order of survey is annexed, is believed to be a mistake, originating in the claimant's agent in his application to the Spanish Government. It should have been Jonas.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN THE COUNTY OF RAPIDES.

No. 1270.—3. In the claim of Maturin Babin, reported under the No. 3, a plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated the 3d October, 1807, was filed in due time, representing the land as lying on the south side of bayou Cattahoula, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. John Hebert, aged fifty-seven years, sworn the 26th November, 1813, before the Register, deposeth, that the claimant, a man about thirty-seven years of age, and unmarried, was inhabiting the land claimed as early as the year 1800, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same from that time to the year 1804 or 1805. The evidence now adduced brings this claim within the sixth class of this report. It ought, therefore, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, to be confirmed.

No. 1271.—24. In the claim of John Carrol, reported under the No. 24, the evidence of John Rutledge, aged fifty years, sworn the 15th December, 1813, before the Register, deposeth, that he is well acquainted with the land claimed, and with Mary Campbell, the widow of the deceased John Campbell, who was, with her children, residing on and cultivating the land claimed, throughout the whole of the year 1803, and ever since. The deponent has reason to believe that he does not assert it of his own knowledge, that the family was residing on the land in question several years before 1803. The Register and Receiver are of opinion that no credit should be given to the evidence of John Rutledge, who is the same person that gave testimony in reported Nos. —. See note L.

No. 1272.—56. In the claim of Richard Earl, reported under the No. 56, the evidence of John Lovelace, Sen., taken by a commission issued by the Register and Receiver, the 15th December, 1813, and returned by Samuel Ligner, judge of the parish of Cattahoula, as having been taken before him, states that, in the year 1796, passing through the Cattahoula prairie, (the country was very much inundated,) he came to Richard Earl's recent habitation, joining the prairie; he knows the land has been inhabited and cultivated in the years 1803 and 1804; he rode past Mr. Earl's settlement, and believes he was still inhabiting the same place; he never heard of his moving, and has reason to believe he still inhabits the same place; that Richard Earl is between fifty and sixty years of age, and was the head of a family in 1796. The confirmation of this claim has already been recommended by the late Board of Commissioners, and in their decision the Register and Receiver concur.

No. 1273.—67. In the claim of Joseph Gillard, reported under the No. 67, Placide Bossier, being sworn the 27th October, 1813, before the Register, deposeth, that he has been well acquainted with the land on Red river, in the vicinity of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, for twenty-four consecutive years preceding the present date; that he was an inhabitant of the district of Natchitoches at the time that Mr. Louis C. De Blanc made a purchase of a tract of land below the mouth of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, from the Pascagoula Indians, for Collin Lacour; that, in the year 1796, this deponent, in descending Red river, met Collin Lacour and his family, then ascending the river for the purpose of settling on the land which had been purchased by said De Blanc from the said Indians, at which time they did actually settle on the place now occupied by Joseph Gillard, who, after the death of the said Collin, intermarried with his widow; that Collin Lacour died in a few years, perhaps in less than two, after taking possession of the land in question, but the deponent cannot be very positive as to the precise time of his death; he knows, however, that, within the life-time of the said Collin, Mr. De Blanc established a tract of land on Red river, adjoining the land claimed by Lacour, and lying immediately above it, which, the deponent has understood, was conceded by the Spanish Government to the said De Blanc; that, in the year 1798, calling at the house of Madame Lacour, the then widow of Collin, who, as administratrix, or by purchase, had become the owner of the land purchased from the Indians as aforesaid, she, the said widow, proposed to sell the said tract of land to the deponent for the consideration of six hundred dollars, and then actually pointed out to the deponent the upper boundary of the tract of land which she claimed, and which was a large bayou called La Varange, about one mile above the habitation of the lady in question, and which separated her land from the land of Mr. De Blanc, above mentioned. The deponent further saith, that, from the upper boundary line of the land claimed by Mr. De Blanc, to the lower boundary of a tract of land conceded by the Spanish Government to François Bossier, the brother of the deponent, which now belongs to Pierre Joseph Mais, and which lies below the mouth of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, there is a space of at least two leagues and a half, which has always been respected as land belonging to the Spanish Government before the change of Government, and, subsequently to that change, as belonging to the Government of the United States. The evidence of Jean Varangue, taken before P. D. C. Lafontaine, judge of the parish of Natchitoches, authorized to that effect by a commission from the Register and Receiver, states that he is acquainted with the lands and the settlements on Red river, in the vicinity of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, and with the tract of land claimed by Joseph Gillard, for the legal representatives of Collin Lacour; that he acted as interpreter, when L. C. De Blanc contracted with the Pascagoula Indians, in behalf of Collin Lacour, for the purchase of the tract of land on which Mr. Gillard now resides, the upper boundary of which was determined in presence of this deponent, by the parties, at bayou Descôtés, and the lower boundary was also fixed in his presence in the bayou de la Borne, called, also, bayou des Apalaches, which he thinks forty acres in depth, each side of the river; that he knew that tract of land on Red river, which was conceded by Baron de Carondelet to Louis C. De Blanc, Jun., the lower boundary thereof is five or six arpents above Mr. Gillard's house; that he knows of but the Indians who came and settled themselves on that tract of land, and Mr. Gillard ordered them out; he knows, by late Mr. Lacour, that the lower boundary was fixed to the bayou Descôtés, up Red river, and no further; that he knows nothing about the extent of front which the tract of land should have on the river, nor its depth on either side; nor does he know that said land was ever taxed, or given in to be taxed. Also, the evidence of Jean Jacques Paillette, taken in the same manner as the preceding, states that he is acquainted with the lands and the settlements on Red river, in the vicinity of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, having surveyed one part of them; that he is acquainted with the tract of land claimed by Joseph Gillard; that he does not know the extent of the purchase made at that time from the Indians, but knows that the upper boundary of the purchase made by Lacour is on each side of Red river, at about a league and a half below Rigolet du Bon Dieu, at bayou Descôtés, situated above the principal house of the late Lacour; that boundary was shown to him by Mr. Gillard, with a decree from the Spanish Government, dated the 25th June, 1792, which determines the same boundary; that he does know a tract of land conceded on the 6th May, 1795, by Baron de Carondelet to Mr. De Blanc, Jun., the lower boundary of that tract of land is placed in the bayou Descôtés, a little — the house of Mr. Gillard, formerly the house of Lacour; that tract of land extends itself twenty acres front, on each side, going up Red river; and that he knows Mr. Joseph Gillard has paid taxes for that tract of land. And the evidence of Louis Lambre, taken in the same manner as the two preceding, states that he is acquainted with the land and settlements on Red river, in the vicinity of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, and with the tract of land claimed by Joseph Gillard; the upper boundary of the purchase was determined in his presence, by the parties, in the bayou Descôtés, so was fixed the lower, and in the bayou des Apalaches, with forty acres in depth, on each side of the river; that he knows that tract of land on Red river, which was conceded by Baron de Carondelet to Louis C. De Blanc, Jun., the lower boundary thereof is five or six arpents above Mr. Gillard's house; that he knows of but the Indians who came and settled themselves on that tract of land, and Mr. Gillard ordered them out; and knows, by late Mr. Lacour, that the lower boundary was fixed to the bayou Descôtés, up Red river, and no further; that he knows nothing about the extent of front which the tract of land should have on the river, nor its depth on either side; nor does he know that said land was ever taxed, or given in to be taxed.

The following is a delineation of a plat [see plate 1, figure 1,] and transcript of the process, verbal certificate attached thereto: Certified, 13th December, 1813, by the judge of the parish of Natchitoches, to be a true copy from the original, as the same is recorded in the records of the said parish:

This 27th day of June, 1805, having repaired to the quarters of Pascagoula, county of Natchitoches, present, Messrs. Joseph Gillard, inhabitant and proprietor, Joseph Lambre and Louis Lambre, neighbors and witnesses, Mr. Gillard presented to us a title and decree of the Spanish Government, of the 6th May, 1795, accorded to Mr. De Blanc, and by a subsequent act, now in possession of the said Joseph Gillard, of twenty arpents front setting out from the bayou Descôtés, at a little distance above the house of said proprietor, who made known to us the upper boundary of his property, which takes from the said bayou, and runs on the right bank south fifty-seven degrees west, and on the left bank north fifty-seven degrees east, in consequence of the right given the limits which were fixed by a decree of the Government, dated the 25th June, 1792, which he exhibited to us, requiring us to measure to him, according to the tenor of his decree of concession, the twenty arpents front on each side. We established our line of measure on the dividing line at the angle of the bayou on the right bank, directing it north fifty-seven degrees east, where we measured, on a standing wood with a beat road, twenty arpents on level ground, after which we established our dividing line with the lands of the domain, running south fifty-seven degrees west, and planted a post three perches from the river, six inches square, and a second one arpent from the first, and terminated our dividing line forty arpents from the river, in a pine wood on the left bank; also, planted two posts, one at three perches, and the second one arpent from the first, and ended our line at forty arpents in a standing wood, north fifty-seven degrees east, as appears by the annexed plan. The result of our operation has given us a superficial quantity of about one thousand six hundred arpents square, bounded below by the plantation of said Gillard, proprietor, and on the other three sides by public land, made duplicates. Done by us, surveyors of the county, year and date as above, after the receding.

GILLARD.

Witnesses: PAILLETTE LOUIS LAMBRE,
JOHN LAMBRE.

Before me,

P. D. CAILLEAN LAFONTAIGNE, Judge of the parish of Natchitoches.

Appeared in my office, on this 26th November, 1813, J. Jacques Paillette and Louis Lambre, of this parish, who, being duly sworn, declareth and say that they acknowledge their signatures to the above instruments of writing, and they acknowledge the signatures of Gillard and Joseph Lambre thereto affixed, and further declare that they have seen them sign.

PAILLETTE LOUIS LAMBRE.
P. D. CAILLEAN LAFONTAIGNE, J. P. N.

It should be noticed that the delineation now given is taken from the records of the parish of Natchitoches, and certified by the judge of the parish to be a faithful copy; that Joseph Gillard, who is acting in the claim under consideration in behalf of the representatives of Lacour, has, by his signature to the procès-verbal (certificate) of the surveyor annexed to the plat, sanctioned the operations of the said surveyor. This delineation is to be understood as representing the tract conceded to De Blanc, Jun. and the bayou therein represented, called Descôtés, is, doubtless, the same that is laid down in the plat which accompanied the report of the late Board of Commissioners, as forming a communication between Red river and the lake which the surveyor has called Varrant. This bayou seems to be well understood to be the lower boundary of the tract conceded to De Blanc, and, consequently, the upper boundary of the tract which was purchased from the Indians for the late Collin Lacour, which would reduce the front of the latter tract to about two miles, producing, with forty arpents of depth on each side of the river, an area of about three thousand five hundred and twenty-four American acres. Although the oral and documental evidence, now before the Register and Receiver, so strongly corroborate each other, and are so clear and conclusive as to leave no doubt but the claim under consideration ought to be limited above by the said bayou Descôtés, yet, as the testimony adverse to the original pretensions of the claimants has been taken without their being previously notified, and as it is contended that some of the witnesses were interested in invalidating the title of Lacour, a further investigation of the title, by a confidential agent on the premises, might be conducive of justice, and is, therefore, recommended.

No. 1274.—73. In the claim of Philip Green, reported under No. 73, the evidence of William Mock, taken on the 9th November, 1813, before James Macom, a justice of the peace for the parish of Cattaoula, authorized to that effect by the former Board of Commissioners, dated the 28th October, 1812; that he is well acquainted with the land claimed, which is situated about two miles from the Cattaoula prairie, on Green Mill creek; that it was actually inhabited and in cultivation on and before the 20th day of December, 1803, and for two or three years previous to that date; that it was settled by himself, and cultivated uninterruptedly by him, and ever since known as his property. And the evidence of William Roe, taken before the same person, states that he is well acquainted with the claimant and with the land claimed, which is situated about one mile and a half from Cattaoula prairie, on Green Mill creek, and was actually inhabited and in cultivation on and before the 20th day of December, 1803, and was three years previous to that date inhabited by permission of the Spanish Government, from what he has generally understood. From the evidence now adduced, the claimant, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, is entitled to a confirmation of his claim, which comes within the sixth class of claims in this report.

No. 1275.—80. In the claim of Thomas Hubbs, reported under the No. 80, the evidence of William Roe, taken on the 9th November, 1812, before James Macom, justice of the peace for the parish of Cattaoula, authorized to that effect by a commission from the former Board of Commissioners, dated the 28th October, 1812, states that he is well acquainted with the land, which is situated near the Big Prairie, about three miles from the Washita river, and about four or five miles from the Cattaoula court-house, adjoining lands originally owned by Resin Bowie, now the property of Abraham Bird; that it was actually settled and in cultivation on and before the 20th day of December, 1803, being first settled in the summer of 1803 by Resin Bowie, and afterwards by Thomas Hubbs, for years, and always known and called the property of said Hubbs. And the evidence of William Mock, taken before the same person, states that he is well acquainted with the land which is situated in the Big Prairie, about three or four miles from the Washita river, adjoining land formerly claimed by Resin Bowie; and that it was actually inhabited and in cultivation on and before the 20th day of December, 1803, being first settled and cultivated, to his knowledge, by R. Bowie, for about eleven or twelve years, or upwards; afterwards, about one year, Thomas Hubbs claimed the land, by purchase from said Bowie, and continued to occupy said land, and known as his property ever since, without interference by other claimants. From the foregoing evidence, the claimant can only be entitled to the right of pre-emption in a quarter of a section, one hundred and sixty acres of the land claimed. The claim consequently comes within the seventh class of this report.

No. 1276.—81. In the claim of John Hebert, Jun., reported under the No. 81, Stephen Lamorandier, Jun., sworn before the Register the 25th November, 1813, deposeth, that the claimant, John Hebert, Sen., was residing on the land in question in the year 1791, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same for five or six years subsequent to that date; that the deponent, removing from the parish of Avoyelles in the year 1795 or 1796, cannot say, of his own knowledge, that the land has been occupied since that date, though he has been informed, and has reason to believe, that it has been constantly occupied to the time of the change of Government, when Louisiana was ceded to the United States, if not to the present date. A certified copy from the records of the eastern district of a warrant of survey is (translated) of the following import: "25th February, 1793. To John Hebert, in the post of Avoyelles, ten arpents of land front, with forty deep, contiguous to the land of Madame Widow Bordelon, which formerly belonged to Mayeux." It will be observed in the report of the late Board of Commissioners in this case, that they were under an impression that the certificate B, 1339, issued to François Tournier, was for the same land which is claimed by Hebrard. The Register and Receiver are now satisfied, as well from information as the document produced from the office of the Register of the eastern district, that they are distinct tracts; and that the claim under consideration, coming within the second class of this report, ought to be confirmed for the quantity expressed in the order of survey, four hundred superficial arpents.

No. 1277.—87. In the claim of Marchal Jones, reported under the No. 87, the evidence of Valentine Laysard, taken the 29th December, 1813, before W. P. Cannon, judge of the parish of Rapides, authorized to that effect by a commission from the Register and Receiver, dated the 7th September, 1813, states that he does not recollect, while acting as commandant of the post of Rapides, to have given the said Marchal Jones permission to settle a tract of land in the district; he does not recollect whether it was given verbally or in writing, but recollects that Marchal Jones obtained permission, three or four years before the change of Government, to settle a tract of land on Big creek, about four miles on this side of Little river, on which said tract of land David Jones now lives; that he knows Mr. Jones, and thinks he is about the age of forty; he knows not if he is the head of a family, nor if he cultivated said land, but the same was granted three or four years before the change of Government, and has been cultivated a number of years by his brother David Jones, the precise time he does not recollect. From the above evidence, the claimant can only be entitled to the right of pre-emption in a quarter-section of one hundred and sixty acres of the land claimed. The claim, therefore, comes within the seventh class of this report.

No. 1278.—88. In the claim of Benjamin Jones, reported under the No. 88, the evidence of William Mock, taken the 9th November, 1812, before James Macom, justice of the peace for the parish of Cattaoula, authorized to that effect by a commission from the former Board of Commissioners, dated the 28th October, 1812, states that he is well acquainted with the land, which is situated about one mile from the Cattaoula prairie, on Green Mill creek, about four miles from Bushley creek; and that it was actually inhabited, and considerable labor done thereon; and, before the 20th day of December, 1803, the settlement was first made, to his knowledge, by Besy Jones, about ten or eleven years since, at which time he labored himself about six weeks. And the evidence of William Roe, taken same day, after describing the situation of the land to be the same as stated by W. Mock, deposes that the land claimed by Benj. Jones was actually inhabited, and labor done thereon, on and before the 20th day of December, 1803, and three years actually settled previous to that date; that Jones was the first who inhabited and labored thereon, and it was always known as his property. From the evidence of William Mock, which the Register and Receiver are more inclined to respect than that of William Roe, it does not appear that the land was actually inhabited and cultivated three consecutive years before the 20th December, 1803. The claim, therefore, comes within the seventh class of this report, entitling the claimant to the right of pre-emption in a quarter-section, one hundred and sixty acres of the land claimed.

No. 1279.—124. In the claim of Hugh Mulhollan, reported under the No. 124, the evidence of Valentine Layssard, taken the 22d April, 1813, before R. Claiborne, judge of the parish of Rapides, authorized to that effect by a commission from the former Board of Commissioners, dated the 25th March, 1813, states that the nation of Choctaw Indians had a grant from the Baron de Carondelet for the land which Father Maguire purchased of the said nation of Indians, lying on bayou Bœuf, and sold to Hugh Mulhollan. The circumstance of the Indians having a grant from the Spanish Government for the land in question can give the claimant no better title to the land he claims, because it was not less necessary, on that account, that the sale of the Indians should have received the sanction of the Governor of the province. The Register and Receiver, therefore, concur in opinion with the late Board of Commissioners, that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

No. 1280.—125. In the claim of William Miller and Alexander Fulton, reported under the No. 125, the evidence of Charles Trudeau, taken the 8th April, 1813, before Joshua Lewis, judge of the city of New Orleans, authorized to that effect by a commission from the former Board of Commissioners, dated the 15th November, 1812, states that he knows of no ordinances or regulations under any Governor of Louisiana, except O'Reilly, by which the Indians, inhabiting lands within the province, ever limited in their possession to one league square about their villages; but this resolution has not been adhered to by any of his successors. This deponent knows that the custom was, that when a tribe of Indians settled a village, by the consent of Government, that the chief fixed the boundary; and, where there are one or more neighboring villages, the respective chiefs of their villages agreed upon and fixed the boundary between themselves; and whenever any tribe sold out its village, the commandant uniformly made the conveyance according to the limits pointed out by the chief. This deponent says that he has substantially answered in his answer to the first, that the lands claimed by the Indians around their villages were always considered as their own, and were always protected in the unmolested enjoyment of it by the Government against all the world, and has always passed from one generation to another, so long as it was possessed by them as their own property; that the Indians could always sell their lands with the consent of Government; and if, after selling their village, and the lands around it, they should, by the permission of Government, establish themselves elsewhere, they might again sell, having first obtained the permission of Government, and so on, as often as such permission was obtained, and no instance is ever known where such permission has ever been refused or withheld. These sales were passed before the commandant of the district, and were always considered good and valid without any from the Governor. The following interrogatory was put by the agent of the claimant, in his behalf: In making your survey as Surveyor General did you always confine yourself to the precise quantity called for in the warrant or order of survey? To which the deponent answered: I was governed by circumstances and localities when, from the situation of the land, the quantity could not be given without running into the lands of another. I surveyed less, and, sometimes, from certain local conveniences to the grantee, I surveyed more than the warrant or order of survey called for, and the grant always issued conformably to the plat and certificate of survey so made. On the evidence now adduced, the Register and Receiver have only to observe, that they are strengthened in their opinion of the validity of the claim under consideration, and, consequently, concur in opinion with the late Board of Commissioners, that it ought to be confirmed, with the limits, however, which have been assigned to it in their report.

No. 1281.—140. In the claim of Benjamin Ritchey, reported under No. 140, the evidence of Valentine Layssard, taken before Benjamin Miller, justice of the peace for the parish of Rapides, authorized to that effect by a commission from the Register and Receiver, dated the 31st December, 1831, states that, in 1801 or 1802, he left Rapides on public business, and empowered J. C. Poirer, a syndic, to act for him during his absence, who, on his return, reported that he had given permission to one Ben. Ritchey to take a piece of land in the pine woods to settle upon, which permission was in writing; but whether for ten or twenty arpents front, he does not know. B. Ritchey was a married man when he moved to the post, between twenty and twenty-five years of age; and that it was very customary to grant twenty arpents front on the north side of Red river; that B. Ritchey lived on the land in 1802, but how long he continued thereon he cannot say. The evidence now adduced corroborates that heretofore taken. The Register and Receiver, therefore, concur with the late Board of Commissioners in recommending the confirmation of this claim.

No. 1282.—144. In the claim of John Roe, reported under No. 144, John Rutledge being sworn the 15th December, 1803, deposes that John Roe, now about twenty-seven years of age, and the head of a family, has inhabited and cultivated the land claimed constantly from the year 1803 to the present date. The evidence of John Rutledge is, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, entitled to no credit for the reasons assigned in note L. This claim is, therefore, still rejected.

No. 1283.—126. In the claim of Miller & Fulton for a tract of land on Red river, reported under No. 126, a doubt entertained by the late Board of Commissioners has been removed by the production of the original letter of Governor Salcedo; the genuineness of which is, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, unquestionable. They, however, deem it a duty to lay before the Government a communication made by Dr. John Sibley, then agent of Indian affairs, in a letter addressed to the Register of the Land Office at Opelousas, in the words following:

SIR:

NATCHITOCHES, January 20, 1814.

Captain Louis, the chief of the Appalaches village, or tribe of Indians, who live on Red river, about twenty miles above the Rapides, has just been with me, with a number of the principal men of the village, to represent that Colonel Fulton and his associates are making them uneasy about their lands. They state that, after the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, they were continually advising them to sell their lands; that the country then belonged to the United States, who would take it from them, and give them nothing for it, and they had better get something for it than have it taken for nothing; that they could find, at that time, nobody who could or would advise them better; and that, finally, they consented, and did pass to them a sale for the consideration of three thousand dollars, which has never been paid, nor any part of it. If their statement is correct, by the laws of the United States, the sale is not only null and void, but the purchaser is guilty of a misdemeanor for which a penalty is incurred. They state that Colonel Fulton and his associates are pursuing their claim before your Board. It is proper for me to state these facts to you, which I have other reasons than the Indian's story, to believe are true, and entering my protest and caveat against your issuing a certificate to those claimants for the land in question. In the year 1805 I received some special instructions from the Executive of the United States, relative to Indian lands, to prevent white people from disturbing them, or encroaching upon them. The lands of the Appalaches I had surveyed by a public surveyor, a plat made, a copy of which is filed in the War Office at Washington, and was approved by Government, and I shall do all that is incumbent on me to protect the Indians, even by calling on the military force, should it be necessary, and intend to have every transaction scrutinized that is connected with their rights. I do know that, in proving claims before your Board, you have been most egregiously imposed upon, and those who have imposed upon you have boasted of their acuteness. Indeed, there has been so much false swearing to obtain your certificates, that it is doubtful whether truth or falsehood would preponderate were an estimate of both made. I have been determined to attempt to have some persons indicted for the false testimony given before you, but it has been so common, and within the knowledge of almost every grand-juryman, and many of them would not have to search beyond themselves for an instance, that I do not believe any grand jury, in this part of the country, could be found, who would present a person for proving a claim before your Board, however false it might appear.

I am, sir, with very great respect and esteem, your obedient servant,

JOHN SIBLEY.

LEVIN WAILES, Esq.

On the 14th June, 1814, Louis, chief of the Appalachee tribe of Indians, attended by Faluktée and Baptiste, two principal men of said tribe, and Louis Deville, their interpreter, presented themselves at the office of the Register, at Opelousas, and delivered the letter, of which the foregoing is a transcript, which being read, and through the interpreter explained to the said Indians, they, with one voice, declare that so much of it as relates to their transaction with Mr. Fulton, is true; that they did consent to sell their lands to Mr. Fulton, after the American people took possession of Louisiana, and had the promise of Mr. Fulton to pay them, at the end of three months, about five thousand dollars; but said Fulton not having, in about ten years which have elapsed since the contract, paid them so much as the value of one picaune, (six and a quarter cents,) they contend that the sale ought to be void, and wish it to be understood that they now enter their caveat and protest against the claim of the said Mr. Fulton and his associates. Being informed by the Register, that it is stated in a deed which they made to Miller & Fulton, before Mr. Enemon Meullion, dated 16th December, 1803, that they had purchased goods from, and were indebted to, Messrs. Miller & Fulton the sum of about two thousand six hundred dollars at the date of their sale, they deny having contracted any debt with those gentlemen for merchandise, or on any other account; but admit that the Conchatté tribe of Indians was at that time largely indebted to Miller & Fulton for goods. They allege, however, that those Indians were only occupying and cultivating the lands of the Appalachees by courtesy, and having not the least right to them, they cannot consent that they shall be made answerable for their debts. Being interrogated as to the present state of population, and the present pursuit of the inhabitants of their village, they answer that the village of the Appalachees consists of about twenty-five families, whose pursuits are divided between hunting and agriculture.

NOTES.

A. By the 11th section of the act of Congress, passed the 2d March, 1805, it is provided that the Board of Commissioners shall have power "to decide, in a summary way, according to justice and equity, on all claims filed with the Register or Recorder, in conformity with the provisions of this act, and on all complete French and Spanish grants, the evidence of which, though not thus filed, may be found of record," &c. See book entitled "Land Laws," page 308.

B. The Register and Receiver are of opinion that, in justice and equity, all claims founded on orders of survey ought to be confirmed, and especially those in the western district. The conditions, on the performance of which the completion of the title depended, being inapplicable to the local circumstances and situation of the country, it is believed were never insisted upon. Indeed, by clearing the fronts of their lands to a certain depth, the proprietors must, in most instances, have deprived themselves even of fuel. Cutting roads were necessary in very few instances, and making levees in scarcely any. Even claims founded on orders of survey, without special locations, conceded, for example, for any vacant land in the post of Opelousas, are considered as valid. It is known that such concessions were sometimes made for the remuneration of persons, from whom lands had been taken by the Spanish Government for garrisons, or other public uses. The property so taken from the claimant or his ancestor has, by the cession of Louisiana, become vested in the United States. Would it then be just to withhold the indemnity for which the former Government had become pledged? There are but few claims of this description, and, if allowed, provision ought to be made for locating them so as to avoid conflicting with other private claims, though founded on titles of subsequent date, or with tracts of land to which occupants, under existing acts of Congress, are entitled to the right of pre-emption.

C. Finding that many persons in the western district, holding lands under no other title than the requête, with the commandant's approval, considered that entirely sufficient, and entertained no apprehensions of being disturbed in their possessions; seeing that lands held under no other title have, in numberless instances, been taken into the inventory of the estates of deceased persons, without any inquiry as to the occupancy; that such lands have sometimes been levied on and sold to satisfy judgments obtained against the proprietors of them; and reflecting on the difficulty with which the inhabitants of this district, and especially the indigent part of them, could procure their titles to be perfected, the late Board of Commissioners for adjusting land claims were induced to think favorably of this description of title. The minds of the Register and Receiver were also favorably impressed towards them, when they began to arrange this report; but, in the progress of investigation, it has appeared to them singularly remarkable, that so many claimants holding requêtes should have delayed to make their entries until the passage of the two last laws granting indulgence to claimants, and especially in the counties of Rapides and Attakapas, where most of those claims appear to exist, and in both of which deputy Registers have resided for the purpose of taking entries under the late Register. The Register and Receiver, therefore, consider it a duty to recommend the adoption of some measure calculated to investigate this description of title more scrupulously than they have had the power of doing. It should be noticed that no means have been afforded them of obtaining evidence against claims.

D. Under the Spanish Government, it seems to have been made the duty of commandants in passing sales, transferring titles in lands, to inform themselves of the titles of the sellers. Deeds of sale executed with the requisite formalities, before the change of Government, ought, therefore, to be respected as among the highest evidences of title.

E. Many claimants in the fifth class, seem to have considered themselves entitled to two thousand acres of land, from having occupied or possessed it, as the law requires, ten consecutive years preceding the change of Government, and there are reasons to believe, in some instances, title papers have been kept out of view for the purpose of claiming a larger quantity of land than had been conceded by the Spanish Government. To entitle claimants in this class to a confirmation of their claims, it ought to be incumbent on them to adduce evidence, written or oral, to establish satisfactorily the quantity to which they might have been entitled under the Spanish Government.

F. Some of the remarks in note C are applicable to claims in class six. It is remarkable that so many claimants should have omitted to avail themselves of the indulgence granted by former laws. When it is considered that the Register and Receiver must necessarily have been ignorant of the characters of many witnesses who have been introduced for the purpose of establishing titles by proving occupancy, and especially when it is known that some base attempts to impose on the Government have been detected, as will be seen by remarks on claims in the eleventh class, Congress must be aware of the necessity of adopting such measures as they may deem necessary, to scrutinize the claims in this class, for the purpose of arresting, as far as possible, the further progress of fraud.

G. The act of Congress granting pre-emption rights, which has been referred to in the seventh class, is silent as to the date at which lands should have been settled. The Register and Receiver have construed the law as granting the right of pre-emption, as far as one-quarter of a section, to any person who may have inhabited and cultivated the tract claimed, at any time previous to the 12th April, 1814, the day on which the act was passed.

H. Although they have not adduced evidence, it is known that many claimants in this class will be able to establish rights under the pre-emption law. It will be seen that most of the claims in this class have been abridged; it was deemed best not to swell the report by stating more fully claims not sufficiently supported by documental or oral evidence to entitle them to confirmation.

I. From the information which the Register and Receiver have been enabled to obtain respecting the usages of the Spanish Government, they are of opinion, that the mere occupancy of land as pasturage for cattle, without any concession from the Government, gave no title to the individual so occupying.

K. To the claim of Pierre Arsenau, reported by the late Board of Commissioners under the No. 1, of Opelousas claims, the Register and Receiver refer for an examination of the Indian title generally, and the rights of persons claiming under purchase from Indians.

L. The Register and Receiver have made up their opinions of such documents of title as accompany claims reported in this class, from the signatures subscribed thereto of persons who are said to have held offices under the Spanish Government, and from the general aspect of the papers themselves. In the claims reported under the Nos. 1184, 1185, 1186, and 1187, the documents of title were presented at the Register's office at the same time, and it is remarkable that, although some of them differ as much as six years in their dates, it is evident from the size and texture of the paper, that every sheet must have been taken from the same quire. It is, moreover, very apparent that attempts have been made to give these papers an old appearance.

All claims on bayou Masson, and those in which Henry Combs and John Rutledge have given evidence, have been entered in this class. The Register and Receiver refer to the following letter from the honorable Josiah S. Johnston, judge of the district court for the district of the State of Louisiana, on the subject of the claims above alluded to:

DEAR SIR:

ALEXANDRIA, March 15, 1814.

I have just returned from Cattahoula court; a recent and shocking murder there has opened a scene of fraud and perjury of considerable extent, of which it is proper you should be apprised. Several persons have associated for the purpose of obtaining land titles. One of the party has entered a considerable number of claims in fictitious names, one or two others prove the settlements, and another passes the sales. It is said in Cattahoula that one Hagarty has been several times at Opelousas, and perhaps had the entries made. A man by the name of Rutledge has been used as a witness, and perhaps others. The lands were entered in different places, but principally on the bayou Nassan or Masson. A man by the name of Mecom was killed, it is said, in consequence of a dispute about the division; two sales of land were found in his possession, one in the name of Fitzgerald, and one in the name of Downey, both on Masson; a man by the name of Combs is accused of the murder, and has made his escape as well as Rutledge. It is to be strongly suspected that many of the late entries are fraudulent, and supported by perjury. I believe it may be taken for granted, all the claims on the bayou Masson are false, as there was no establishment there during the Spanish Government. It may be strongly suspected, also, if any individual is conducting an unusual number of claims without written titles, that there is something wrong, or if they are proven by the same witness. These hints will enable you to detect the plot. I shall be in Opelousas at court, and will give such information as I may receive; in the mean time this letter is not to be considered as public; on the contrary, private and confidential.

Yours respectfully,

J. S. JOHNSTON.

NOTE BY THE REGISTER. Since the receipt of the foregoing letter by the Register, Judge Johnston consented, in a verbal conversation with him at Opelousas, to take off the injunction of secrecy, so far as to permit the letter to be used in reporting the claims to which it refers.

As further evidence of the fraudulent intentions of the claimants for lands on the bayou Masson, or their agents who filed the notices, and the corruption of the witnesses, see the testimony of Edmund Johnson and William Gardener, both persons of unquestionable probity, in the claim of Edward Dorsey, reported No. 1216. All the claims for lands, in which Ezekiel Williams has sworn to the settlement, have been entered in this class, his evidence being rendered questionable from his testifying to claims on bayou Masson. All the claims in which Jonas Segars has sworn to the settlement, have been entered in this class, his evidence being rendered questionable from the testimony of John Hughes and John Hebert, which see in reported No. 1233.

M. The claimants ought to produce authenticated deeds of sale from the previous occupants. It does not necessarily follow that because A had occupied a tract of land in time to entitle him to a donation from the United States, and abandoned his claim thereto, that B, a subsequent settler on the same land, not within the provisions of the law, and without having obtained a legal transfer of the title of A, should be in like manner entitled. The Register and Receiver have, therefore, reported against such claims; claimants in all such cases having the right of pre-emption.

N. The mere certificate or testimony of a person, who may have acted as a commandant, cannot be taken as evidence of permission to settle under the former Government. See remarks of the late Board of Commissioners, in their report on Concordia claims, on the letter of J. Vidal, formerly a commandant of that post.

O. The cultivation of land by the hirelings or negroes of the claimant, and which he himself does not actually inhabit, is not deemed sufficient to give a title to a donation from the United States.

P. No quantity is expressed in the title under which the claimants hold. They should be confined to the quantity which may be ascertained from survey to be within the proper limits.

Q. The Register and Receiver are of opinion, upon a re-investigation of these claims, that they ought not to be confirmed.

R. The late Board of Commissioners, by their certificate No. 2046, have confirmed to the claimants, on evidence of occupancy, the title for a tract of land of six hundred and forty acres. In their notice before the Register and Receiver, the claimants to the number of six, to wit: Michel, François, Pierre, Athanase, Thule, Meaux, and Vital Lapointe, state that they were most of them of lawful age at the change of Government, and, therefore, think themselves entitled each to six hundred and forty acres of land, making altogether three thousand eight hundred and forty acres, from which, deducting the six hundred and forty acres they have a confirmation for, there remains the quantity now claimed. The Register and Receiver know of no law providing for such a case, and, therefore, cannot recommend the claim for confirmation.

S. The evidence of this witness is rendered questionable from having testified to so many as eighteen claims, and stating, in such a summary way in them all, the very facts necessary to entitle claimants to hold under the acts of Congress granting donations to settlers. He may have testified truly, but the Register and Receiver are of opinion that a further investigation of these claims ought to take place before they are confirmed.

T. From the statements of persons, who have held offices under the Spanish Government, the Register and Receiver are induced to recommend a further investigation of this claim before it is finally decided against. It is believed to have been very customary, under the Spanish Government, to remunerate services to the crown by grants of land.

V. It is understood that the tract of land in question, as well as those reported under the Nos. 1056, 1091, and 1093, lie adjacent to two tracts of woodland conceded by the Spanish Government to Daniel Callaghan, and it appears very evident that the witnesses giving evidence in this claim confound it with those held under said concessions, and, even if they had testified clearly that the timber and tan-bark were taken off the tract now claimed, the Register and Receiver are of opinion that such occupancy would not have been sufficient to entitle the claimants even to the right of pre-emption, far less to a donation from the United States.

All which is respectfully submitted.

The claims included in the first six classes of this report are confirmed by the act of the 5th of February, 1825, entitled "An act confirming certain claims to land in the western district of Louisiana."

No. 246.

[2d Session.]

LAND TITLES IN THE MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, DECEMBER 6, 1816.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled: the petition of the subscribers, inhabitants of that part of the Mississippi Territory formerly included in the province of West Florida, humbly sets forth:

That your petitioners have awaited for three years in patient expectation of your honorable body's passing a law for confirming their land claims, and in the confident hope that such law would be conceived in that spirit of liberality and justice that has ever distinguished all your acts. The appearance of the act of 13th April, 1814, "for the final adjustment of land titles in the State of Louisiana and Territory of Missouri," assured them further that their confidence was well grounded. The principle consecrated by that act, of confirming all French and Spanish grants in those Territories up to the day when possession of them was respectively taken, dissipated even their slightest apprehensions, and it never entered into their imaginations that the future law that should be passed in their case would, to them, be less liberal or less just.

It was, therefore, (may it be said without offence to your honorable body,) with sensations of the utmost surprise, and most poignant anxiety, that they learned, towards the close of your last session, that a bill was in progress through the Senate, which, if passed into a law, would blast their hopes completely, would ravish from them what they had fairly obtained from the preceding Government of Spain, and would expose their tenure of the little pittance left to the utmost uncertainty, from the conflicting titles of a host of long forgotten and justly deprived British claimants.

As this bill has not yet become the act of your honorable body, and as the principal object of your petitioners, in their present address, is, humbly but most earnestly to beseech and pray that it be rejected, and a more equitable law be substituted in its place, we beg that no offence may be taken (as surely none is intended) at the free exposure of its features that we shall here attempt. It is incumbent on us to defend our rights, and this privilege will not be denied to us by an American Congress.

The first section enacts "that all claims to land, founded on complete grants from the French, British, and Spanish Governments, which claims are, in the opinion of the commissioners, valid, agreeable to the laws, usages, and customs of the said Governments, be, and the same are hereby, recognised as valid and complete titles against any claim on the part of the United States, or right derived from the United States."

On a perusal of this section any one would imagine that complete titles from any of the Governments mentioned were confirmed as regarded the United States; for, although it is expressed, "which claims are, in the opinion of the commissioners, valid, agreeable to the laws, usages, and customs of the said Governments," no one could conceive that the commissioners could doubt the validity of a complete title issued, of course, agreeably to the laws and customs of the granting Government; nor could any one imagine that they could have given an opinion otherwise than in conformity; yet here it was, may it please your honorable body, that the surprise of your petitioners commenced; for they found, on a particular inquiry, that the minds of the commissioners had not been left free, but that they had been ordered, by instructions from the Secretary of the Treasury, to govern their opinions, and the classification of the claims, by sundry acts of Congress, passed previous to the taking possession of this country by the United States; and particularly by an act of March 26, 1804, "for dividing Louisiana into two Territories, and providing for their Government;" in which section 14 declares null, ab initio, all acts of the Spanish Government relative to grants of land in Louisiana posterior to the date of the treaty of St. Ildefonso. Thus, then, this first section of the bill, which professes, on the face of it, to judge all complete titles according to their validity under the different Governments that issued them, (the only rule by which we conceive in justice they ought to be judged,) when more narrowly examined into, holds a language diametrically opposite with regard to those issued by Spain subsequent to the date of the treaty of St. Ildefonso; the intrinsic merits of these, this bill will not regard, but condemns them in toto, by a silent and secret reference to an act, passed upwards of nine years before this country came under the Government of the United States; an act that, it is firmly believed, not one person in this country ever before heard of.

The second and third sections of this bill speak the same language openly, and refer your distressed petitioners to the date of the treaty of St. Ildefonso, as the period after which all their rights derived from Spain become null and void.

Your honorable body will perceive at once the extremely perplexing dilemma in which your humble petitioners are thus placed; that they cannot defend their dearest rights, their property, thus assailed by this bill, without attacking the principle on which its framer has rested its provisions. After the passage of the act before alluded to, for settling the land claims in the Missouri and Orleans Territories, we reposed in the confident hope that so highly disagreeable a necessity would never exist. In the hard alternative, however, that is thus placed before us, we earnestly beseech your honorable body to condescend to take this our most peculiar situation into your just consideration, and, should any part of our defence be such as not to meet your approval, deign to pardon it.

In addressing your honorable body, your humble petitioners dare not attempt a discussion of the question whether this country was ceded by Spain by the treaty of St. Ildefonso. That important question has been agitated by the diplomatic agents of the United States at the courts both of France and Spain, and the negotiations terminated in 1805 by the positive declaration of both courts, that it was not intended to be included. Be this, however, as it may, your petitioners will claim the liberty to observe that, for a series of years after the cession and delivery of Louisiana proper, the United States, not only tacitly, but by deeds and acts, acknowledged the sovereignty of Spain over this country. They paid, at different times, duties to that Government on their own goods, passing by the port of Mobile to Fort Stoddart, for the use of their Indian factories; and, on one memorable occasion, so late as the year 1812, after your honorable body had passed an act for annexing this district to the Mississippi Territory, and in consequence of that act, the judge of the Washington district, the honorable Harry Toulmin, had acquitted a vessel libelled for a breach of the embargo law, as having touched at Mobile on her passage from New Orleans to Fort Stoddart, the honorable Secretary of the Treasury gave orders to the collector of that district to take out a writ of error for the purpose of having the judgment reversed, and commanded him, on all occasions and to all intents, to consider Mobile as a foreign port, whilst Spain held possession of it. Could your petitioners, who were witnesses of these facts, imagine that the sovereignty of Spain over this country was not complete? Or could they anticipate that grants of land derived, or purchases made from that Government, would one day be annulled by the very power who thus acknowledged it? Certainly not. This bill, against which your petitioners now humbly represent, refers them, in the way that has been mentioned, for the annulment of their land titles subsequent to October, 1800, to the act of Congress before alluded to, of 26th March, 1804. Now, may we be permitted to say, that it does appear to us that this act was not intended to be applied to this part of the Territory. In the first place, mention is only made therein of Louisiana, and nothing said of West Florida; and, in the next, a power is given to the President to employ military force to remove settlers from public lands, and to prevent surveys or locations of such. We conceive this power to have been granted as to Louisiana proper only, and not as to this country; or, if intended to be extended to this country, it was at least never exercised; had it been so, the question would have been brought to its proper issue at once, and many of your petitioners, and others who have obtained grants subsequently from the Spanish Government, would have had no room for complaint.

Your petitioners have, moreover, ever been under the impression that, before laws can claim obedience, they must be promulgated in the country where this obedience is claimed. Now, neither this law, nor any other of the United States, ever was or could be promulgated in West Florida until it had passed under the Government of those States; but even had it been, by some unaccountable means, published here, your petitioners would pray permission to observe that they were then subjects of Spain, owing obedience to her laws, and only to her's, while her flag waved over and afforded them protection.

Your petitioners beg leave to submit a case: Suppose that, instead of the extraordinary events which have taken place, such a state of things had arisen as should have prevented the United States from obtaining possession for fifty years yet to come, could the inhabitants of this country, during such a period, be with justice deprived of the most essential right of man, that of acquiring and holding a property in the soil, because there existed a vague dormant dispute between the two Governments, as to their right to the territory? And supposing the United States finally to get possession at the close of such a period, could they be justified in then applying, as a measure of right, to all the property in the country this law of 1804? If this cannot be affirmed of the longer period of fifty years, by what rule can such a proceeding be justified after a lapse of ten?

Your petitioners are little versed in subjects involving legal questions, but they have been taught to believe (and it is consonant to reason) that it is a principle of the law of nations, that a sovereign de facto is, as to his contracts and deeds that regard the subject, a sovereign de jure, and that his acts in this respect are, and ought to be, binding on succeeding sovereigns or Governments. Your petitioners pretend not to penetrate the reasons that influenced the United States in their acquiescence in the complete possession of the sovereignty by Spain, for so long a period after they set forth their claim; but natural reason seems to authorize them in saying, that since, from whatever motives those States did think fit to permit Spain to hold and exercise the unmolested sovereignty, they are, by every moral tie, bound to acquiesce in and confirm her acts.

The first public notice that could be said to be given to the inhabitants of this country of the claim of the United States, was the proclamation of the President of 27th October, 1810, which came accompanied by a force that dispossessed the Government of Spain, and established that under which we now have the happiness to live. In this proclamation, however, his excellency still engaged that the question of title should remain open for negotiation; but, above all, we pray your honorable body to observe, he promised that the peaceable inhabitants should be protected in their liberty, their property, and religion. We confine ourselves, may it please your honorable body, to this last clause, in which the faith of the united American nation is solemnly pledged, by its Chief Magistrate, to the people of this country, for the protection and security of their property—we again beg leave to observe, their property, with all its rights, privileges, and immunities, certainly as it stood vested at that date, and not as it was upwards of ten years before.

It is on this solemn pledge, and on the principles consecrated by your own honorable body in the act of 12th April, 1814, before cited, which are also the immutable principles of justice, that we mainly rely for the success of this our humble appeal to your honorable body, in defence of our rights. If the principles of that act were just in regard to Louisiana proper, we humbly conceive that we have, on many accounts, a greatly superior claim to have them extended to us.

But, may it please your honorable body, should this bill pass into a law, an event that we most earnestly deprecate, it will not only, as we have mentioned in the beginning of this address, ravish from us the greater part of our property, fairly obtained from the preceding Government of Spain, but would expose the tenure of the small pittance left to the utmost uncertainty, from the conflicting titles of a host of long forgotten and justly deprived British claimants.

To enter on a long argument to prove that they were justly deprived, would be a waste of words. Spain acquired West Florida by the fifth article of the treaty of peace of 1783. By that article British subjects were allowed eighteen months, after the ratification, to sell their estates, and remove their effects: that term was allowed to them, and a further prorogation of it was also given, during which they might either have disposed of their property, or have claimed and held it on the easy condition of becoming subjects of Spain. Those who did neither, ipso facto abandoned their property, which, of course, escheated to the crown of Spain, and was by that power regranted to others, her subjects. Whilst Spain held the country, neither these men nor their claims were ever heard of, nor would have been heard of had she retained possession. But, since the change of Government, a host of these claimants have sprung up from the ground, like Cadmus's men of old, and armed with musty parchments, dug up from holes and corners where they had for these thirty-five years lain mouldering, they threaten to drive all the Spanish inhabitants from their possessions entirely.

What new rights can these men have acquired by the change of Government? If this country is claimed under the treaties of St. Idefonso and of Paris, was it for their benefit that Spain ceded, France sold, and the United States acquired? Was it to them that the third article of the treaty of Paris secures the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and religion? And was it to them that the President, in his proclamation before alluded to, pledged the faith of the nation for that free security and protection? Undoubtedly not! Their claims are visionary, destitute of all foundation in right reason, and ought not for a moment to be listened to.

No fact is better ascertained than that those claims, by the non-compliance of the holders with the terms of the treaty, and the conditions on which they were allowed to be held, were completely barred before the Spanish tribunals, who were in law and duty bound to defend the grants and liege subjects of the sovereign from molestation by these foreign, long-abandoned, and forfeited claims. The Government of the United States has succeeded to that of Spain. The people of this country now owe to the former that dutiful allegiance that they formerly owed and paid to the latter, and they consequently have an incontrovertible claim to an equal measure of security and protection.

Your petitioners, therefore, do hope, and most earnestly pray, that your honorable body will, in any law that you may pass on this subject, declare a preference of Spanish grants to those held by, or in any way emanating from, British claimants—save where those were allowed and possessed by them or their representatives under the Government of Spain. A contrary procedure would open a scene of distress that your petitioners want words to describe. It would be equivalent to a decree of confiscation against all the ancient inhabitants.

Finally, your petitioners pray permission to reduce the sum of these observations to this principle, which they believe to be a correct one, viz: that the change of the Government ought not, in any way, to deteriorate their rights of property, but that these ought to stand secure and undiminished in the same situation that they did under the Government of Spain, and that the United States found them in on taking actual possession of the country. On this principle your humble petitioners do most earnestly supplicate and pray that the bill in question be rejected by your honorable body, and a law be substituted in its stead that shall confirm all authentic Spanish grants, warrants, and orders of survey of land lying within the district formerly forming part of West Florida, which were issued prior to the taking of actual possession thereof by the United States, and which shall give to actual settlers, without title, on lands not covered by other claims, such donations as in your munificence you may deem proper, and as have usually been given in similar cases in other districts and Territories of the United States: and your humble petitioners will ever pray.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, JANUARY 20, 1817.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 16, 1817.

I have the honor to transmit, herewith, the report of the commissioners for ascertaining and adjusting claims to land in the eastern district of the State of Louisiana, which report I request may be returned at the close of the session: the only copy of it which has been made has been transmitted to the House of Representatives.

I have the honor to be, most respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

The Hon. the PRESIDENT of the Senate.

To the Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, General Land Commissioner, are respectfully addressed, for the revision of Congress, the following reports of the Register and Receiver of public moneys of the eastern district of the State of Louisiana, on land claims filed in the Register's office, in pursuance of the act of Congress passed on the 27th day of February, 1813, entitled "An act giving further time for registering claims to lands in the eastern and western districts of the Territory of Orleans, now State of Louisiana."

The following claims to lands are divided into three general classes:

First class comprehends such claims as stand confirmed by law.

Second class comprehends such claims as, in the opinion of the Register and Receiver, ought to be confirmed.

Third class comprehends such claims as, in their opinion, cannot be confirmed under existing laws.

First class comprehends the following species of claims:

1st. Claims founded on complete titles, granted by the French or Spanish Governments.

2d. Claims founded on incomplete French or Spanish grants or concessions, warrants, or orders of survey, granted prior to the 20th of December, 1803.

3d. Claims formerly rejected by the Board of Commissioners for the eastern district of Louisiana, merely because the lands claimed were not inhabited on the 20th December, 1803.

Second class comprehends the following species of claims:

1st. Claims founded on possession and cultivation for ten consecutive years prior to the 20th of December, 1803.

2d. Claims founded on possession and cultivation, began prior to the 1st day of October, 1800.

3d. Claims founded on permission of the proper Spanish officer to settle on lands prior to the 20th of December, 1803.

Third class comprehends the following species of claims:

1st. Claims unsupported by evidence.

2d. Claims not embraced by existing laws.

3d. Claims, although not embraced by existing laws, yet being considered equitable, are therefore recommended for confirmation.

FIRST CLASS.

Although the claimant has not positively shown a transfer of this land to himself, yet we are of opinion that the circumstance of his having the order of survey in his possession is sufficient evidence of the fact: for, under the Spanish Government, it was the duty of the vender to deliver to the vendee all his titles; and, among illiterate people, the mere delivery of those titles was thought a sufficient conveyance.

This claim measures eighteen arpents front, and running back to intersect the lines of the plantations of Gentilly. This claim is founded on a petition or requête, and rejected by the late Board of Commissioners for this district, merely because the land claimed was not inhabited on the 20th December, 1803. We are of opinion the claimant ought to be confirmed in his claim to the quantity of six hundred and forty acres only.

Charles Hebert claims a tract of land, situate on the right bank of the bayou Plaquemine, in the county of Iberville, containing ten arpents in front, by forty arpents in depth, bounded on the upper side by lands of Joseph Le Blanc, and on the other by vacant lands. This claim was formerly rejected by the Board of Commissioners, as it appears, merely because it was not inhabited and cultivated on the 20th December, 1801; the claimant having in the year 1801 petitioned the Intendant General of the province for said land, and obtained the commandant's certificate that the land was vacant.

No. 569. Bella Hubbard claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of the canal leading to Lake Verret, containing three hundred and forty-five acres, and adjoining on one side lands of Raphael Landry, and on the other by those of Julien Ozelet. This claim is founded on the permission of the commandant of the district in 1802, to settle there. There is evidence of settlement, but the late Board of Commissioners rejected the claim merely because the land was not inhabited on the 20th December, 1803.

No. 570. Francis Frillon claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of the canal leading to lake Verret, containing two hundred and ninety-four sixteen one-hundredths superficial acres. SECOND CLASS.

SPECIES FIRST:

Including claims founded on possession and cultivation for ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 416. William S. Watkins claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Acadia, on the left bank of bayou Lafourche, measuring thirty-eight and twenty-seven one-hundredths acres in superficie, bounded on one side by lands of Joseph Monsassat, and on the other by lands of the claimant. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated for more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 417. John McDonough Jun. & Co. claim a tract of land, situate in the county of Orleans, on the west bank of the Mississippi containing twenty-seven arpents and twenty toises front, by forty arpents in depth. It appears probable, from some documents on the record, that there has been originally a complete title for this tract, but there is no positive evidence of the fact. There is, however, satisfactory proof of its having been occupied at least ninety years by those under whom the claimant holds.

No. 424. Widow Dupare claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Acadia, on the right bank of the Mississippi, containing eight arpents sixteen toises and two feet front on the Mississippi, with a depth of eighty arpents, and bounded on one side by lands of Saturnin Bruno, and on the other by lands of Peter Berteau. The evidence in this claim is the same, in substance, with that at No. 416.

No. 429. Bartholomew Hamilton claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, being a second depth to a tract of land of three acres in front on the Mississippi, with the ordinary depth. This claim was rejected by the late Board of Commissioners for want of sufficient testimony of title, but the claimant has since produced evidence of habitation and cultivation for more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 431. Widow Olivier Hernandez claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, containing three arpents front on the Mississippi, by forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by lands of N. Meriam, and on the other by lands of Dornet. It is proved that this tract of land was inhabited and cultivated by the husband of the claimant from the year 1792. This is a second tract claimed by the claimant; but, as both do not make the quantity of land contained in one mile square, and as the granting of more than one tract to the same individual, in some cases, was conformable to the regulation of the Spanish Government in the year 1799, we are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed.

No. 432. N. Meriam claims a tract of land, situate in the parish of Iberville, on the west bank of the Mississippi, containing two and one-half arpents in front, by a depth of forty arpents, bounded above by lands of the claimant, and below by lands of Olivier Hernandez. It is proved that this land has been inhabited and cultivated for more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th of December, 1803, by the claimant, and those under whom he claims.

No. 433. The parish of Iberville claims a tract of land, situate in the county and parish of Iberville, containing two arpents in front, by forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by lands of B. Hamilton, and on the other by lands of N. Meriam. No. 445. Francis Hacket claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, on the right bank of the Mississippi, containing four hundred and ten superficial acres. Thuillier claims a tract of land, situate in the parish of Baton Rouge, on the east side of the Mississippi, having six arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, bounded above by lands of Belony Hebert, and below by lands of Pierre Palleau. No. 452.—C. B. Dufau claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Orleans, on the left bank of the Mississippi, having thirty-one arpents front, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of Daquin, and on the other by lands of James Vinet. The claimant proves that this claim was occupied and cultivated, by those under whom he claims, more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 456. The heirs of Michel Muhers claim a tract of land, situate on the west side of the river Mississippi, in the county of Iberville, and district of Baton Rouge, having twenty arpents front, and forty arpents depth, bounded on each side by vacant lands. This land has been before claimed before the late Board of Commissioners for the district, who confirmed the claimant in ten and a half arpents front of said land instead of the quantity claimed, without assigning any reason for so doing, as habitation and cultivation was proved from the year 1792. We think it was an oversight in the Board, and, therefore, are of opinion that the balance of the claim, to wit, nine and a half arpents front, by forty in depth, ought to be confirmed.

No. 464. John Baptiste Poeyfarré claims two tracts of land, adjoining each other, situate in the parish of St. James, on the right bank of the Mississippi, one containing eight arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, the other having five arpents front, and eighty arpents depth. The late Board of Commissioners rejected this claim for want of evidence of settlement, but the claimants now prove settlement and cultivation from the year 1775 until after the 20th December, 1803.

James Regaud claims a tract of land, situate on the right bank of the bayou Lafourche, about twelve leagues from the mouth of said bayou, having a front of sixty arpents, and a depth of forty arpents. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th of December, 1803. The claimant, in our opinion, is entitled to two thousand acres only.

No. 612. John B. Vardin, Alexander Vardin, and Peter Vardin claim a tract of land on both sides of bayou Derbonne, in the county of Lafourche, containing six hundred and twenty-six and thirty-six one-hundredths superficial acres. This claim was rejected by the late Board of Commissioners of this district, under a belief that it had been abandoned, but the claimants have since proved that it had been inhabited and cultivated much more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803, and on that day.

No. 614. Mathurin Daigle claims a tract of land, situate on the right bank of bayou Lafourche, containing one hundred and sixteen acres and forty chains in superficie. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 615. Joseph Marlborough claims a second depth of thirty arpents in depth, lying immediately behind a front of six arpents, and a depth of forty arpents, situated on the right bank of the bayou Lafourche, in the county of Lafourche. The late Board of Commissioners rejected this claim, alleging that the possession of the front did not entitle the claimant to the second depth; but as he has proved possession and cultivation of the whole for more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th of December, 1803, we are of opinion he is entitled to any quantity less than two thousand acres, and, therefore, ought to be confirmed in his claim.

No. 634. Samuel M. Spraggins claims a tract of land, situated in the parish of Iberville, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of seven arpents, four arpents of which has a depth of eighty arpents, and the other three have a depth of forty arpents. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th of December, 1803.

No. 636. Joseph Ervin claims a tract of land, by purchase, situate in the county of Iberville, on the river Mississippi, having a front of three arpents, and a depth of eighty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of Lewis Leonard, and on the other by those of widow Pradier. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated, by those under whom the claimant holds, more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 637. Hypolite Tivolier claims a tract of land, situate in the district of Iberville, on the left bank of the Mississippi, bounded on one side by lands of Mr. Perret, and on the other by those of Francis Riano, having a front of ten arpents, and a depth of forty arpents. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated, by those under whom the claimant derives his title, more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th of December, 1802.

No. 641. Michael Friloux claims a tract of land, by purchase, situated in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having ten arpents and sixteen feet front, and forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by lands of Mr. Lartigue, and on the other side by lands of Mr. Baudorier. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated by those under whom the claimant holds more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 643. Peter Reine claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of eight arpents and a half, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded above by Madame Trepagnier, and below by Mr. Cabarco. It is proved that this land has been cultivated more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 644. Baptiste Daspit St. Amant claims a tract of land, by purchase, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a depth of forty arpents, with a front of fourteen arpents twenty-seven toises on the Mississippi. The claimant proves that this land was possessed and cultivated by those, under whom he claims, more than ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803.

All the claims reported in the foregoing species we are of opinion ought to be confirmed.

SPECIES SECOND:

Including claims founded on possession and cultivation, prior to the 1st of October, 1800.

No. 434. James Devilliers claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, at point Manchac, having forty-seven arpents in front, and a short depth, measuring superficially eight hundred and seventy-four arpents, bounded above and below by lands of Urbain Gagné. The claimant proves possession and cultivation before the 1st of October, 1800, and after the 20th December, 1803, and although the quantity claimed exceeds that contained in a mile square, yet as it is shown that this tract is so situated as to make it necessary to make a levee forty-seven arpents in front, which the claimant has always kept up at great expense ever since the year 1797, and as this front is greatly disproportionate to the depth, according to the Spanish law upon this subject, we are of opinion the claimant ought to have the quantity claimed.

No. 454. C. B. Dufau claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Orleans, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of five arpents, and forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by lands of V. Lafrance, and on the other side by those of V. Dobar. No. 469. Augustin Serapeyrac claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Acadia, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of three toises and one foot, and a depth of forty arpents. John Baptiste Guidry claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Acadia, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of two arpents, and a depth of thirteen arpents, bounded on one side by lands of Antoine Perceire, and on the other side by those of Antonio Gomez. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated from before the 1st of October, 1800, until after the 20th December, 1803.

No. 534. John Louis Belson claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of three arpents and twenty-seven toises and one foot, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of H. Zeringue, and on the other by those of Francis Fancheane. The claimant proves that he purchased this land in the year 1795, and that he has occupied and cultivated it ever since.

No. 541. Joseph Chaixnaitre claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of one arpent and twenty-seven toises and three feet, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by land of Joseph Wagespack, and on the other by those of John Robert. The claimant proves that this land has been possessed and cultivated by himself, and those from whom he purchased, ever since the year 1797.

No. 542. Joseph Wagespack claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of seven arpents two toises and one foot, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of George Rixnor, and on the other by those of Joseph Saixnaitre. The claimant proves possession and cultivation of this land since April, 1800.

No. 544. Antoine Morin claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of four arpents twenty toises and two feet, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of George Saixnaitre, and on the other by widow Leger. The claimant proves possession and cultivation of this tract from the year 1799 up to the present time.

No. 549. Peter Foxelair claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of eight arpents, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of George Beaumont, and on the other by those of widow Peter Brown. The claimant proves habitation and cultivation of this land before the 1st of October, 1800, and after the 20th of December, 1803.

No. 558. Peter Brotencourt and widow Michel Brotencourt claim a tract of land, situate in the parish of West Baton Rouge, about three leagues below the fort, containing $134\frac{7.9}{100}$ superficial acres. The claimants prove possession and cultivation ever since the year 1795.

No. 559. William Hardy and John B. Ramin claim a tract of land, situated in the parish of West Baton Rouge, on the right bank of the Mississippi, containing $234\frac{32}{100}$ superficial acres. The claimants prove possession and cultivation of this land ever since the year 1795.

No. 582. Peter Bergeron claims a tract of land, situate on both sides of bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and forty superficial acres. The claimant proves settlement and cultivation of this land ever since the year 1798.

No. 586. Constant Pitre claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and forty superficial acres. The claimant proves possession and cultivation of this land from before the 1st of October, 1803.

No. 587. Laurent Pichoff claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on bayou Derbonne, containing $569\frac{1.9}{100}$ superficial acres. It is proved that this land was in possession and cultivation in the year 1798, and that it was so on the 20th December, 1803.

No. 588. Pierre Dufresne claims a tract of land, situate on bayou Derbonne, measuring six hundred and forty acres, superficially. The claimant proves possession and cultivation of this tract of land, begun in the year 1798, and continued long after the 20th December, 1803.

No. 606. John Boudreaux claims a tract of land, situate on bayou Lafourche, containing $123\frac{47}{100}$ superficial acres. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated from before the 1st of October, 1800, until after the 20th December, 1803.

No. 617. Henry S. Thibodeaux claims three islands, called, 1st. Island Timbalier, situate near the mouth of Lafourche; 2d. Island Calina, near the mouth of bayou Derbonne; and 3d. Island Casta, near the mouth of said bayou. The claimant purchased these islands, and proves that those, under whom he claims, inhabited and cultivated them several years before the 1st of October, 1800, but does not show that they were cultivated ten consecutive years prior to the 20th December, 1803. We are, therefore, of opinion that, in strictness, he is not entitled to more than six hundred and forty acres.

No. 619. Henry S. Thibodeau, executor of John Roger, deceased, claims for the heirs a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on bayou Derbonne, having a front of forty arpents, and a depth of forty arpents. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated during the Spanish Government; that the then commandant granted to the said Roger the privilege of taking this tract of forty arpents front, in consideration of having but a short depth of cultivable lands, and of his having a wife and numerous family of children. We are of opinion that, according to the Spanish laws and usages, the land claimed ought to be confirmed to the heirs in its whole extent.

No. 630. Etienne Bion claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of bayou Derbonne, containing three hundred and fifty-eight superficial acres, bounded on one side by Pierre Bion, and on the other side by Thomas Clark. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated from before the 1st of October, 1800, until after the 20th December, 1803.

We are of opinion that the claims found in the preceding species ought to be confirmed.

SAMUEL H. HARPER, Register.
ALFRED LORRAIN, Receiver.

SPECIES THIRD:

Including claims founded on permission of the proper Spanish officer, to settle on lands given prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 413. Alexander Landry claims a tract of land of forty arpents, being a second depth to one of the same front, situate in the county of Lafourche, at a place commonly called Grand Bruslé, in the parish of Assumption. This claim was rejected by the late Board of Commissioners for want of proof of settlement. The claimant has produced a permission from the proper Spanish officer, dated prior to the 20th of December, 1803; and, also, proof of cultivation on that day.

No. 419. Pierre Minou claims a tract of land, situated on both sides of bayou Derbonne, about sixteen miles from Lafourche, containing six hundred and forty superficial acres. The claimant proves permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803, to settle said land, and also proves cultivation on that day.

No. 425. John Baptiste Le Blanc, as tutor of the minor children of Joseph Le Blanc, claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, having a front of ten arpents on the Mississippi, and forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by Paul Sharp. This claim is founded on permission to settle, by the proper Spanish officer, dated in the year 1801, and cultivation from that time.

No. 426. Michel Lambremont claims a tract of land, situated in the parish of Iberville, having a front of three and two-thirds arpents, and forty arpents in depth, being a second depth, and immediately back of a first, belonging to the claimant, bounded on one side by lands of Anne Brunteau, and on the other by those of Jacques Le Blanc. This claim is founded on permission of the proper Spanish officer, given prior to the 20th December, 1803, and subsequent cultivation.

No. 428. Widow Olivier Hernandez claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, having four arpents front, and forty arpents in depth, being a second depth of a front one, and immediately behind it, belonging to the claimant, on the west shore of the Mississippi, bounded on one side by lands of Joseph Hebert, and on the other side by those of Thomas Hebert. This claim is founded on permission from the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803, to settle this land.

No. 468. Walker Gilbert claims, by purchase, a tract of land, situated on bayou Derbonne, in the county of Lafourche, containing six hundred and seventy superficial acres. The claimant has proved permission of the proper Spanish officer, given to Estevan Hernandez prior to the 20th December, 1803, and also cultivation. But as settlers by permission are not entitled by law to more land than the quantity contained in a mile square, we are of opinion that the present claimant is entitled to only six hundred and forty acres.

No. 499. Francis Troxclair claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of four arpents, and forty arpents in depth. The claimant proves the permission of the proper Spanish officer to settle this land prior to the 20th of December, 1803, and cultivation.

No. 536. George Kinclair claims a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having a front of two arpents twenty-three toises and four feet, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by Henry Delmaine, and on the other side by lands of John Robert. The claimant proves that this land is held by purchase; that the act of sale was passed before the Spanish commandant of the county, on the 3d of July, 1801; and that the land was then inhabited and cultivated. We are of opinion that an act of sale passed before a commandant is tantamount to a permission to settle, and, therefore, that this claim ought to be confirmed.

No. 550. Zenon and James Rixner claim a tract of land, situate in the county of German Coast, on the right bank of the Mississippi, having three arpents in front, and forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by lands of Edmond Fortier, and on the other by lands of Allain Lavergne. The same facts and principle exist in this case as in the one immediately preceding; our opinion is, therefore, the same.

No. 562. Francis Marionnaud claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, on the right bank of the Mississippi, and forming a second depth to his plantation, having a front of seven arpents and fourteen feet, and a depth of forty arpents, bounded on one side by lands of Magloire Dupuis, and on the other side by those of — Leonard. This claim was rejected by the late Board of Commissioners, acting under the then existing laws; but the claimant proves a permission to settle on this land, from the proper Spanish officer, dated in the year 1801.

No. 566. Celestin Dupré claims a tract of land situate in the county of Orleans, seven leagues below the city of New Orleans, on the left bank of the Mississippi, having a front of ten arpents, and forty arpents in depth; bounded, in the year 1774, on one side by lands of M. Caminada, and on the other by lands of Louis Duchesne. Permission to settle this land, given by the proper Spanish officer prior to the 20th of December, 1803, is satisfactorily proved.

No. 568. Joseph Michel Le Blanc claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Iberville, as a second depth to his plantation, having a front of four arpents and a half, by forty in depth, bounded on one side by lands of Joseph J. Landry, and on the other side by those of Simon Melançon. The claimant proves that the person, under whom he claims, obtained for this land, in the year 1802, permission from the proper Spanish officer to settle the same.

No. 583. Augustus Babin claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of the bayou Derbonne, containing five hundred and sixty-seven and forty-five one-hundredths superficial acres. It is proved that this land was settled, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, previous to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 584. Hubert Bellanger claims a tract of land on bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and sixty-three and forty-eight one-hundredths superficial acres. It is proved that this land was settled, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803; but, as no settler by permission is entitled to more land than six hundred and forty acres, we are of opinion that the present claimant cannot be entitled to a greater quantity.

No. 585. Henry S. Thibodaux claims a tract of land, situate on bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and two and thirty-seven one-hundredths superficial acres. It is proved that this land was settled, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803, and cultivated.

No. 589. John Bte. Belgeron claims a tract of land, situate on the bayou Derbonne, containing five hundred and sixty-two acres and eight-tenths, superficial. It is proved that the father of the claimant obtained from the Spanish commandant permission, in writing, to settle on public lands; and that, in conformity thereto, in 1802, he settled on this tract, and cultivated the same.

No. 597. Michel Dirdia claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of the bayou Derbonne, containing three hundred and thirty superficial acres, bounded on one side by lands of Joseph Ganoe, and on the other side by those of Pierre Bion. It is proved that this land was settled and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 598. Pierre Chasson claims a tract of land on both sides of bayou Derbonne, containing two hundred and forty superficial acres. It is proved that this land was settled and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 616. Pierre Menoux claims a tract of land, situate on both sides of bayou Derbonne, having a front of thirty-eight arpents, and four arpents in depth. It is proved that this land was settled and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803. We have, at No. 419 of this species, reported in favor of Pierre Menoux; but, from circumstances, we are inclined to believe the present claimant is the son of Pierre Menoux, and, as such, entitled to the land claimed.

No. 618. Jeremiah Everton claims a tract of land, situate forty arpents from bayou Lafourche, in the rear of L. Wells's plantation, containing six hundred and thirty-nine and twenty one-hundredths superficial acres. It is proved that this land was settled and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 620. Pierre Ganoe claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and forty superficial acres, bounded on one side by lands of Pierre Cazo, and on the other by those of Joseph Ganoe. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 621. Joseph Ganoe claims a tract of land, situate on both sides of bayou Derbonne, containing two hundred and ninety-three and forty-five one-hundredths acres. It is proved that this land was settled and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, in the year 1801.

No. 639. Joseph Orillon claims a tract of land, situate on the right bank of bayou Plaquemine, having a front of twenty arpents, and forty arpents in depth. The claimant proves possession and cultivation of this land, from the year 1799, by permission of the proper Spanish officer; but we are of opinion he is entitled to no more than six hundred and forty acres, by virtue of that permission.

No. 645. Baptiste Daspit St. Amant claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Orleans, on the Mississippi, containing one hundred and forty-two superficial arpents, bounded on one side by lands of Etienne Reine, and on the other side by those of Andre Chaixnaitre. It is proved that this land was settled and cultivated, by permission of the proper Spanish officer, in the year 1799. We are of opinion all the claims of the last species ought to be confirmed.

SPECIES SECOND:

Including claims not embraced by existing laws.

No. 625. The Homas tribe of Indians claims a tract of land lying on bayou Bœuf, or Black bayou, containing twelve sections. We know of no law of the United States by which a tribe of Indians have a right to claim lands as a donation.

No. 640. Joseph Orillon claims a tract of land as a second depth to one of six arpents front, by forty in depth, situated in the county of Iberville, on the right bank of the Mississippi. The claimant claims this land by virtue of settlement made in the year 1799. We have already reported in his favor a tract of six hundred and forty acres by virtue of permission to settle, and we know of no law by which he is entitled to any more land by virtue of such settlement.

SPECIES THIRD:

Including claims which, though not embraced by existing laws, yet being considered equitable, are therefore recommended for confirmation.

No. 447. Ambroise Garidel claims a tract of land, situate in the county of La Fourche, and on the river La Fourche, having one arpent and three-quarters front, by forty in depth. The claim to this tract of land is founded on settlement. The claimant proves that he purchased this land at sheriff's sale in the year 1812, but there is no evidence when the original possession commenced. The claim resting on settlement, and the date of that settlement not being shown, we know of no law by which the claimant is entitled to this land; yet we have very little doubt that this claim has been long inhabited. This is inferred from its having been in a state of cultivation when the claimant purchased it, and from its being in an old settled part of the country.

No. 475. Charles Gross contains a tract of land situate in the county of Point Coupee, on the west bank of the Mississippi, containing nine arpents in front, by forty arpents in depth, being part of a larger tract heretofore claimed by the late Board of Commissioners for this district, and by them rejected. The claimant holds by purchase at public sale, and the evidence he adduces, in support of his claim, is as follows: He proves by two old respectable neighboring planters, that Joseph Dufresne obtained a grant from the French Government for eighteen arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, of which this claim is a part. That the said eighteen arpents were confirmed to Peter Freret, representative of Joseph Dufresne, by Governor Galvez, about the year 1776 or 1777, when grants were issued by said Governor for all the lands in that neighborhood; that levees, or dikes, a public road, houses, and other improvements, were on this tract, and that it was inhabited a great number of years by said Dufresne and his representatives. That, in the summer of 1779, all dikes, levees, houses, &c., were swept away by the impetuosity of the water of the river, in consequence of its extraordinary rise; so that all the inhabitants of that part of the country were compelled to leave their habitations or settlements. That they, however, always maintained a kind of possession by cutting timber, taking fire-wood, &c. That said Dufresne never abandoned (except by compulsion as aforesaid) this tract of land; but that his heirs afterwards maintained peaceable possession of the same. The same witness further swears that no person was permitted to settle on lands in that part of the country, without having previously obtained a grant from the commandant or Governor, but that the people in general, ignorant of the importance of land titles, often lost their grants. It appears from the decisions of the commissioners that they rejected this claim, and others of a similar nature, principally on the ground of abandonment by the occupant, alleging that the Spanish Government would have, upon application, granted the same laws to others, and that it was the custom of that Government to grant other lands in lieu of those which the grantee might be compelled to abandon. We are of opinion, also, that the Spanish Government would have re-granted this land, and those held by similar claims, to others upon application; but the land being uninhabitable during a number of years, we presume was never applied for, there being no evidence of its ever being re-granted; neither does it appear that other lands were given in lieu of those which are inundated, but it does appear that those lands have been reoccupied by the original possessors, or their representatives, since they became habitable. Had the first proprietor voluntarily abandoned this land it would have amounted to a forfeiture of his claim, but his removal therefrom was involuntary and forced. We consider the present claimant as being the legal representative of the original occupants in as much as he purchased their property or claim under execution. This claim, resting solely on settlement, (the grant for it, if ever one existed, being lost,) and as there is no evidence of that consecutive or uninterrupted possession and cultivation which the law seems to require, we know of no law which exactly embraces this case, either operating its rejection or confirmation; but we think it would be an act of justice, under all the circumstances of the case, to confirm the claim.

No. 477. William G. Johnston claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Point Coupee, having fifteen arpents front, and a depth of forty arpents. This claim is founded on purchase at sheriff's sale. All the material facts and principles involved in the preceding claim at No. 475, are also contained in this; our opinion is, therefore, the same.

No. 478. Claude Tremé claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Point Coupee, on the west side of the Mississippi, containing $236\frac{22}{100}$ superficial arpents. The circumstances of this claim, and the principles which it involves, are substantially the same with those at No. 475, to which we refer, except that this claimant appears to have been one of the original occupants, and not a purchaser.

No. 561. John Marie Durand claims a tract of land, situate in the parish of West Baton Rouge, having a front of ten arpents, and forty arpents in depth, bounded on one side by lands of Mr. Jean Marie Durand, and on the other by those of — Magloire. It appears the claimant, in 1809, purchased this claim from a person deriving title under François Clause, for the sum of twelve hundred and seventy dollars. All the material facts and circumstances attending the original claim of said Clause, are substantially the same with those disclosed in the claim of Charles Gross, at No. 475, to which we refer for the deductions we have made, and the opinion we have expressed.

No. 590. Nicholas Leret claims a tract of land, situate on bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and forty superficial acres. This claim is founded on a certificate of the former Spanish commandant of that district, stating that a person, under whom the claimant holds, had a concession title for said land. We are of opinion that a certificate, not made under oath, is not legal evidence of the facts therein stated, or as such as the law recognises as being sufficient to support a claim. Yet we have no doubt of the truth of the declaration of the commandant, and, therefore, think it would be an act of justice to confirm this claim.

No. 591. Hypolite Hebert claims a tract of land on bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and twenty-five and six-tenths superficial acres. There is evidence of settlement and cultivation of this land in the year 1801, and ever since, but no proof of permission to settle by the proper Spanish officer. The epoch at which we positively know it was settled, to wit, in 1801, is not the length of time prior to the 20th December, 1803, in which the law raises a presumption of permission from the proper officer to settle; yet, from the magnitude of the improvements in the year 1801, we think it a fair inference that it was inhabited a considerable time before, and, therefore, are of opinion that it would be an act of justice to confirm this claim.

No. 596. Charles Bergeron claims a tract of land situate in the county of Lafourche, on both sides of bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and forty acres, about nine miles from the river Lafourche, adjoining the land of Hugh G. Johnson above, and below by those of P. C. Bergeron. The claimant proves that he is entitled to this land by virtue of settlement; but the late Board of Commissioners, through a mistake of the surveyor, confirmed to the claimant, at No. 470 of their decisions, another tract of land on the ground of settlement. The claimant now prays to be confirmed in this claim instead of the tract confirmed to him through mistake. Not possessing the power to revoke or correct the decision of the former Board, we can only recommend this case to consideration.

No. 622. Pierre Cazo claims a tract of land on the bayou Derbonne, containing six hundred and forty acres, bounded on one side by land of John Dupre, Jun., and on the other by those of Pierre Ganoé. It is proved that this land was inhabited and cultivated prior to 1803, but there is no evidence of the precise period when it was first settled, nor is there any evidence of permission to settle by the proper Spanish officer. We consider it as resting on the same circumstances with the claim of Hypolite Hebert, at No. 591, in these reports, to which we refer for our opinion.

No. 642. Michel Friloux claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Orleans, on the right bank of the Mississippi, bounded above by lands of Valentine Roussel, and below by those of the claimant, containing fifteen toises in front, by a depth of forty arpents. The claimant purchased this land at public vendue in the month of April, 1806, with such improvements thereon as induce us to believe that it was long inhabited, although there is no positive evidence of the time when it was first settled. We think it similarly situated to that of Hypolite Hebert, at No. 591 of these reports, to which we refer for our opinion.

No. 646. Ebenezer Cooley claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Point Coupee, on the right bank of the Mississippi, containing two thousand superficial acres and a fraction. Part of this claim was formerly enregistered in the books of William Wikoff, deputy Register of this district, but never acted on by the late Board of Commissioners, apparently through oversight, and the balance of this tract enregistered at New Orleans, which part was rejected by the Board for reasons assigned in decision at No. 155. The whole of the claim depends upon similar facts, circumstances, and principles, with that of Charles Gross, at No. 475 of these reports, to which we refer for our opinion.

“REGISTER'S OFFICE, March 23, 1816.

“Ebenezer Cooley claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Point Coupee, on the west bank of the Mississippi, containing 2,084 superficial acres, and bounded on the upper side by C. Tremé, and on the lower side by vacant land, which the claimant purchased from Madame Bougeat, to whom she executed an act of sale, as appears of record.

"A part of said land has been claimed before the late Board of Commissioners, and by them rejected, on the ground that it had been abandoned by the original proprietor.

"The other part of the claim has never been acted upon from some cause; but most probably through oversight.

"Since the rejection of the claim aforesaid, the claimant has produced further evidence in support of it, the substance of which is as follows:

"The depositions of Simon Croizet and Baptiste Lafleur, both very old inhabitants of Point Coupee, taken before Robert McShane, judge of said county, on the 3d of March, 1811, prove satisfactorily that said land was granted to Joseph Bougeat, husband of Madame Bougeat, under whom the claimant derives his title, in the year 1767; that said Bougeat cultivated the same as an indigo plantation.

"The fact of the settlement in the year 1767, and continued occupancy, is also proved by the deposition of François Gremillon, before the said Robert McShane, on the 5th of March, 1811.

"In further support of this claim, the claimant has produced the certificates of several inhabitants of the aforesaid county, to which, though not sworn to, we are inclined to give full credit, from the respectability of the persons who have given them, and particularly that which we find endorsed on the back of the act of sale made by said Madame Bougeat to the claimant, which, being concise, we transcribe it at length; it is as follows:

"County of Point Coupee, this eighth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and six, I hereby certify that the within named Madame Bougeat has held, occupied, and enjoyed, a peaceful possession of the within mentioned and designated tract or parcel of land for more than twenty-five years, to my knowledge,

"JULIAN POYDRASS,

"NEW ORLEANS, March 22, 1816.

"The other certificates state the same fact in substance—

"Taking into consideration the additional testimony adduced in this case, and the repeal of that part of the act of Congress which required cultivation on the 20th of December, 1803, in force, when this claim was rejected, we are of opinion that the claimant ought to be confirmed in his claim to the extent of two thousand acres.

No. 647. Joseph Gabon claims a tract of land lying and being on bayou Bœuf, county of Lafourche, containing eighty arpents front on each side of said bayou, by forty arpents in depth on each side of the same. The claimant obtained from the Baron de Carondelet, on the 5th of November, 1794, a regular order of survey for the above quantity of land, but we have no evidence of its ever having been located, although we think it probable. If this claim has not been located, and the place designated in the order of survey be still vacant, we are of opinion that the claimant ought, in justice, to have the land claimed.

No. 648. Joseph Felice claims a tract of land, situate in the county of Lafourche, on bayou Bœuf, having a front of one league on each side of said bayou, and a depth of forty arpents on each side of the bayou. The claimant, on the 29th of December, 1794, obtained from the Baron de Carondelet an order of survey for this land, but there is no evidence of location. Our opinion with respect to this claim is the same with that expressed in the preceding, at No. 647.

No. 649. Joseph Talbo claims a tract of land, situate on bayou Caillon, in the county of Lafourche, having a league in front on each side of said bayou, and a depth of forty arpents on each side of the bayou. The claimant obtained for this land an order of survey, dated the 21st of December, 1794, from the Baron de Carondelet. This claim is similarly situated with the two preceding ones, to which we refer.

No. 650. John Talredo claims a tract of land on bayou Caillon, county of Lafourche, having a league front on each side of the bayou, and forty arpents in depth on each side of the same. This claim is in all respects similar to that at No. 647 preceding, to which we refer.

The equitable circumstances attending the claims of this species induce us to recommend them for confirmation.

APPENDIX.

Remarks on the preceding reports.

These reports include all the claims to land filed and enregistered under the last acts of Congress extending the time for that purpose, beginning with No. 405, and ending in No. 675. The reason that the notices of claims are thus numbered, because the then Register thought proper to follow, in numerical succession, the claims enregistered at New Orleans, and decided by the late Board of Commissioners, which ended at No. 404.

In classing the claims, we thought it proper to subdivide those classes into species; for, although we believe that all the claims reported in the first and second classes are, or ought to be, confirmed under existing laws, yet those laws do not confirm them all to the same extent, nor demand the same requisites equally in all to entitle claimants to their lands. Hence, for the sake of perspicuity, and to pursue as nearly as possible the different kinds of claims pointed out by the various acts of Congress, we have adopted the preceding arrangement of claims as being, in our opinion, the best mode.

In the examination of these reports one case under each division will suffice to determine the correctness of the reports on all that species; for it will be found that all the claims in each species depend upon facts substantially the same, (except where peculiar circumstances sometimes made it necessary to make a special report,) and therefore the law applied to any one case must decide the whole of that kind.

The opinion which we have expressed on land claims, as they are arranged in these reports, have been governed by the following laws and principles:

Those claims which are found under species first of the first class, being founded on complete grants of former Governments, we think are good in themselves on general principles, and therefore require no confirmation by the Government of the United States to give them validity.

With respect to the second species of claims in the first class, which are bottomed on incomplete titles, the law at present appears to be this: Every claim to land, supported by an order of survey, granted by the proper Spanish officer prior to the first day of October, 1800, in favor of persons residing in Louisiana on that day, and who have fulfilled the conditions attached to their concessions, must be confirmed in their claims without limitation as to quantity; but when all the conditions attached to the concession have not been fulfilled, yet if it appears that the land has been actually located and surveyed by a proper officer before the 20th December, 1803, it must be confirmed to the claimant, to an extent not exceeding one league square, provided the order of survey bears date prior to the 20th of December, 1803, and provided also, that the claimant has not received, in his own right, a donation grant from the United States in the State of Louisiana.

These principles, we think, are deducible from the acts of Congress passed on the 2d March, 1805, and 12th of April, 1814. Although the last mentioned act seems to apply chiefly to claims heretofore acted upon and rejected by the Board of Commissioners, yet, we think the same liberal principles, in the spirit of the law, were intended to apply to claims since entered under the laws extending the time for filing claims, and we have, therefore, reported on those claims according to this impression.

By the second section of the act of Congress of the 12th April, 1814, it is provided, with respect to certain claims, that, where they have been rejected merely because they were not inhabited on the 20th December, 1803, still those claims are confirmed.

Of this description are the claims found under the third species of the first class. In many instances persons having claims of this nature, and which were rejected by the late Board of Commissioners, have re-entered them in pursuance of the acts giving further time for enregistering claims; to which cases we have applied the provisions of the second section of the act of the 12th of April, 1814, and, consequently, have reported in their favor.

After taking into consideration the various acts of Congress relative to claims depending on possession and permission to settle on lands by the proper Spanish officer, we are of opinion that the law now amounts to this: That claims to land, founded on possession and cultivation during ten consecutive years prior to the 20th day of December, 1803, must be confirmed, provided the quantity of land claimed does not exceed two thousand acres; and provided also, that the claimant has not received in his own right any donation grant from the United States; that claims founded on settlements commenced prior to the 1st day of October, 1800, and inhabited three years consecutively, are good to the extent of six hundred and forty acres; and that claims depending on express permission to settle, obtained from the proper Spanish officer prior to the 20th day of December, 1803, when followed by actual settlement, are good to the extent of six hundred and forty acres, provided the claimants in these two last cases have received no donation grants from the United States.

Having this view of the subject, we have reported favorably on all the claims arranged under the three species of the second class.

Those claims found in the third class, which are unsupported by evidence, and which, in many instances, exhibit no description of the land claimed, either as to quantity or locality, we think, of course, must be rejected; but we think it probable that many of those claims are made bona fide, and are susceptible of proof, but, owing to the negligence of some, and the ignorance of others of the laws of the United States, and of even the language in which they are written, the proof which is necessary to support their claims has not been made. This, however, is a subject for the consideration of Congress.

As to the claims found under the second species of the third class, which, in our opinion, are unfounded in law, we have nothing to add to the opinion already expressed at the end of that species. But with respect to the claims which we have recommended for confirmation, we will just observe, in addition to what we have said on that subject, that, from instances now on the record, persons residing in that part of the country which was inundated, having found and produced regular grants for their lands, we are inclined to give full credit to that which the witnesses swore in the case of Charles Gross and others, at No. 475, that is, that grants were issued for all the lands in that district of country, but through negligence have been lost or mislaid.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

NEW ORLEANS, November 20, 1816.

Special report of the Register and Receiver of Public Moneys of the eastern district of the State of Louisiana.

Charles Morgan claims a tract of land situated in the county of Point Coupee, on the west bank of the Mississippi, containing twelve hundred and twenty-four acres, superficial measure; which claim does not appear in the reports exhibited to Congress, through a mistake hereinafter explained.

In the year 1806 the said Charles Morgan filed before the Board of Commissioners of Land Claims two notices of claim for two several tracts of land, situate in the county of Point Coupee, on the west side of the Mississippi; the one measuring six hundred and forty acres, and the other twelve hundred and twenty-four. Neither of these claims having been confirmed by the Commissioners, in 1813, while Mr. Lawson was Register, the aforesaid Charles Morgan filed in this office, as additional evidence in support of one of these claims, an order of survey, issued by Governor Galvez, in the year 1777, for a tract of land of eighteen arpents in front, by forty in depth. This evidence has been filed in support of the claim to the tract of twelve hundred and twenty-four acres; but as the same was, as it appears on the record, unaccompanied by a notice descriptive of this tract, or mentioning that the opening of the lines produced that superficial extent, it was naturally construed, in framing the reports, (supposing the lines running parallel,) to be in support of the claim to six hundred and forty acres, which has been reported on in our reports, exhibited to Congress at No. 480 of the second species of the first class, instead of the aforesaid tract of twelve hundred and twenty-four acres.

Now, therefore, we, Samuel H. Harper and Alfred Lorrain, Register and Receiver, as aforesaid, do hereby report, that the claim of the said Charles Morgan to the said tract of land of twelve hundred and twenty-four acres, superficial measure, ought to be considered as reported in our reports of the Register and Receiver of Public Moneys of the eastern district of the State of Louisiana, on land claims filed in the office of the Register, in pursuance of the act of Congress passed on the 27th day of February, 1813, entitled "An act giving further time for registering claims to lands in the eastern and western districts of the State of Louisiana," instead of the claim of six hundred and forty acres; and that the said claim to twelve hundred and twenty-four acres, ought, in our opinion, in virtue of the existing laws, to be confirmed to the claimant.

LEAD MINES AND SALINES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JANUARY 21, 1817.

SIR:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 20, 1817.

In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 17th of April, 1816, requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to procure all the information which he is able to obtain in relation to the lead mines of the United States, in the counties of Washington and St. Genevieve, in the Mississippi Territory, and to report the same to the House of Representatives at the next session of Congress, I have the honor to transmit the enclosed correspondence between the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and the Registers and other officers employed in the Land Department, and other persons possessing information upon the subject.

I have the honor to be, your most obedient and very humble servant,

W. H. CRAWFORD.

Honorable HENRY CLAY, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 19, 1816.

On the 29th of June last I received a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, requesting me to communicate such information as I possessed, or could obtain, relative to the lead mines and salines belonging to the United States, viz:

- 1st. The situation of the lead mines; their extent; their products; the general character of the ore; their value.
- 2d. The nature of the adjacent country; the proximity of towns and settlements; the facilities of land and water transportation.
- 3d. The state of the title generally; the grants and leases of the mines and neighboring lands; the intrusions, either permanent or transitory; the improvements.
- 4th. The terms on which grants or leases may be made most advantageously to the public; the reservations that should be made; the extent of the lease and limitation of the demise; the improvements to be made in buildings, works, fences; the timber to be preserved.
- 5th. Similar information relative to salt works and salt springs.

A circular letter was sent from this office, on the 3d of July last, to the Registers of Land Offices, to the Surveyor General, to the United States' agent for the saline in Illinois Territory, to the recorder of land titles in Missouri Territory, and to several gentlemen, (not in the public service,) from whom valuable information was expected.

The substance of the information hitherto received is herewith presented in the papers No. 1 to 12, accompanied with topographical sketches.

Among those papers the most interesting appear to be No. 11, from Moses Austin, Esq., relative to lead mines, and No. 12, those of the agent for the saline in the Illinois Territory, and of Nathaniel Pope, Esq., delegate from that Territory.

From the report No. 9, it appears probable that salines of great value exist in the Missouri Territory, about one hundred and fifty or two hundred miles westwardly of St. Louis.

From the whole of the information hitherto received, it appears that lead, in considerable quantities, is found only on the west side of the Mississippi; that salines are not unfrequent in the States of Ohio and Indiana, and in the Territories of Illinois and Missouri, in Western Louisiana, and in the Mississippi Territory; and that the future management and regulation of the lead mines in Missouri, and of the saline on the Wabash, are evidently of more importance than any other on which information has been obtained.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, yours,

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

I.—LEAD MINES AND SALT SPRINGS, OR SALINES.

Report of David Hoyer, Register of the Land Office at Steubenville, Ohio, August 5, 1806.

1. No lead mines in Ohio yet discovered.
2. One salt spring in Yellow creek, in sect. 3, T. 11, R. 3, twenty miles northwesterly of Steubenville.
3. The existing lease of this spring will expire August 12, 1817.

4. This spring yields about twelve bushels a day. It is badly managed.
5. On Yellow creek are about twelve salt works. From four to six cords of wood consumed to make twelve bushels.
6. Policy of reserving salt springs doubtful. Leases should be at least for a term of ten years.
7. Discovery by small crystals of salt in the beds of water courses in hot and dry weather, and by bees collecting on the gravel.
8. Yellow creek is about twenty miles long. It flows through townships 12, 11, 8, 9, of ranges 4, 3, 2, 1, and enters the river Ohio, in sect. 3, T. 9, R. 2. [See plate 1, fig. 2.]

II.—LEAD MINES AND SALT SPRINGS.

Report of Wyllys Silliman, Register of the Land Office at Zanesville, Ohio.

No lead mines have been discovered in the district of Zanesville.

Salt water is found in great quantities, and of good quality in many parts of the district. The quality is inferior to that found on the Kenawha, Virginia, from whence a large proportion of the salt used in this part of Ohio is brought.

One salt spring only belongs to the United States, viz: sect. 9, T. 11, R. 13, on the banks of the Muskingum. Its situation eligible. Navigation to the place, and for many miles above, (and to the Ohio,) good for large boats five or six months of the year, and for large keel boats at all times.

This section contains but little more than five hundred acres. Several sections adjoining it on the south are vacant, and tolerably well timbered. Good policy to reserve the sections adjoining. [See plate 1, fig. 3.]

III.—LEAD MINES AND SALINES.

Report of Thomas Freeman, Surveyor General for lands south of Tennessee, St. Stephen's, September 30, 1816.

1. No lead mines within the district of the United States, south of Tennessee.
2. There are two or three small salt springs in the land district east of Pearl river, on the east side of Tombigbee river.
3. There are extensive salt works and springs in the north district of the State of Louisiana, about ten miles north of the town of Natchitoches, on a branch of Red river.
4. There is a large and valuable salt spring on the Sabine river, in the southwest district of Louisiana. Promises further information. [See plate 1, fig. 4.]

IV.—LEAD MINES AND SALINES.

Report of Lewis Sewall, Register of the Land Office at St. Stephen's, dated August 12, 1816

1. The only salines in this district, where salt has been made for sale, lie on the east side of Tombigbee. There are three: the first, two or three miles from St. Stephen's; the second and third are lower down the river.
2. At one of these salines, one hundred and twenty gallons of water yield one bushel of salt of fifty-two pounds, and water sufficient to yield two hundred and fifty bushels a day.
3. At another, two hundred gallons are necessary for one bushel, and water for three hundred bushels a day.
4. At the third saline, two hundred and forty gallons of water are required for one bushel, and two hundred bushels may be made in a day.
5. The vicinity of these salines to the ocean, and the river being navigable higher up than the salines, for vessels of a considerable burden, renders these salines of little value, except in time of war, when external supplies may be cut off.
6. Good roads are, or may be made from the salines to the river, which affords an inland barge navigation two hundred miles to the northward.
7. Recommends a reservation of two sections of land for fuel for each saline.
8. Leases ought to be for at least ten years.
9. An offer has been made to employ two hundred kettles, to sell the salt at the works, at seventy-five cents a bushel or fifty pounds weight, and to pay a rent of two hundred dollars a year for three years.
10. No lead mines in the district.

The Register has not given precise descriptions of the position of the salines, but they are below St. Stephen's. [See plate 1, fig. 5.]

V.—LEAD MINES AND SALINES.

Report of Reasin Beall, Register of the Land Office for the district of Canton, dated Wooster, Sept. 6, 1816.

1. No lead mines in the district.
 2. One saline marked on the general plat of surveys, viz: sec. 9, T. 19, R. 16, on Clear Fork of Mohegan creek, a branch of the Muskingum, navigable for small craft.
 3. The sections 4, 8, 10, in the vicinity, are reserved for the use of this saline:
 4. He believes that no one will lease the salines under the existing laws, because, 1st. The term of three years is too short to justify expenses of the experiment. 2d. In the vicinity of this saline, and, indeed, in almost any place near the streams in this district, where the hills are high and the valleys narrow, salt water can be obtained at the depth of from two hundred to three hundred feet, with as much certainty at least as to sink at the licks, which must be done in the first instance. Of course, those who incline to embark in salt-making will prefer trying the experiment on their own lands.
 5. Recommends a public sale of the saline (sect. 9, T. 19, R. 16) and the adjoining tracts, (viz: sec. 4, 8, 10,) as promising greater advantages to the United States than the leasing of those on any terms that could be obtained.
- Mohegan creek is a branch of the river Muskingum. Sections 4, 8, 10 are reserved for the use of the saline, which is in section 9. [See plate 1, fig. 6.]

VI.—LEAD MINES AND SALINES.

Report of Daniel Symmes, Register of the Land Office at Cincinnati, dated September 15, 1816:

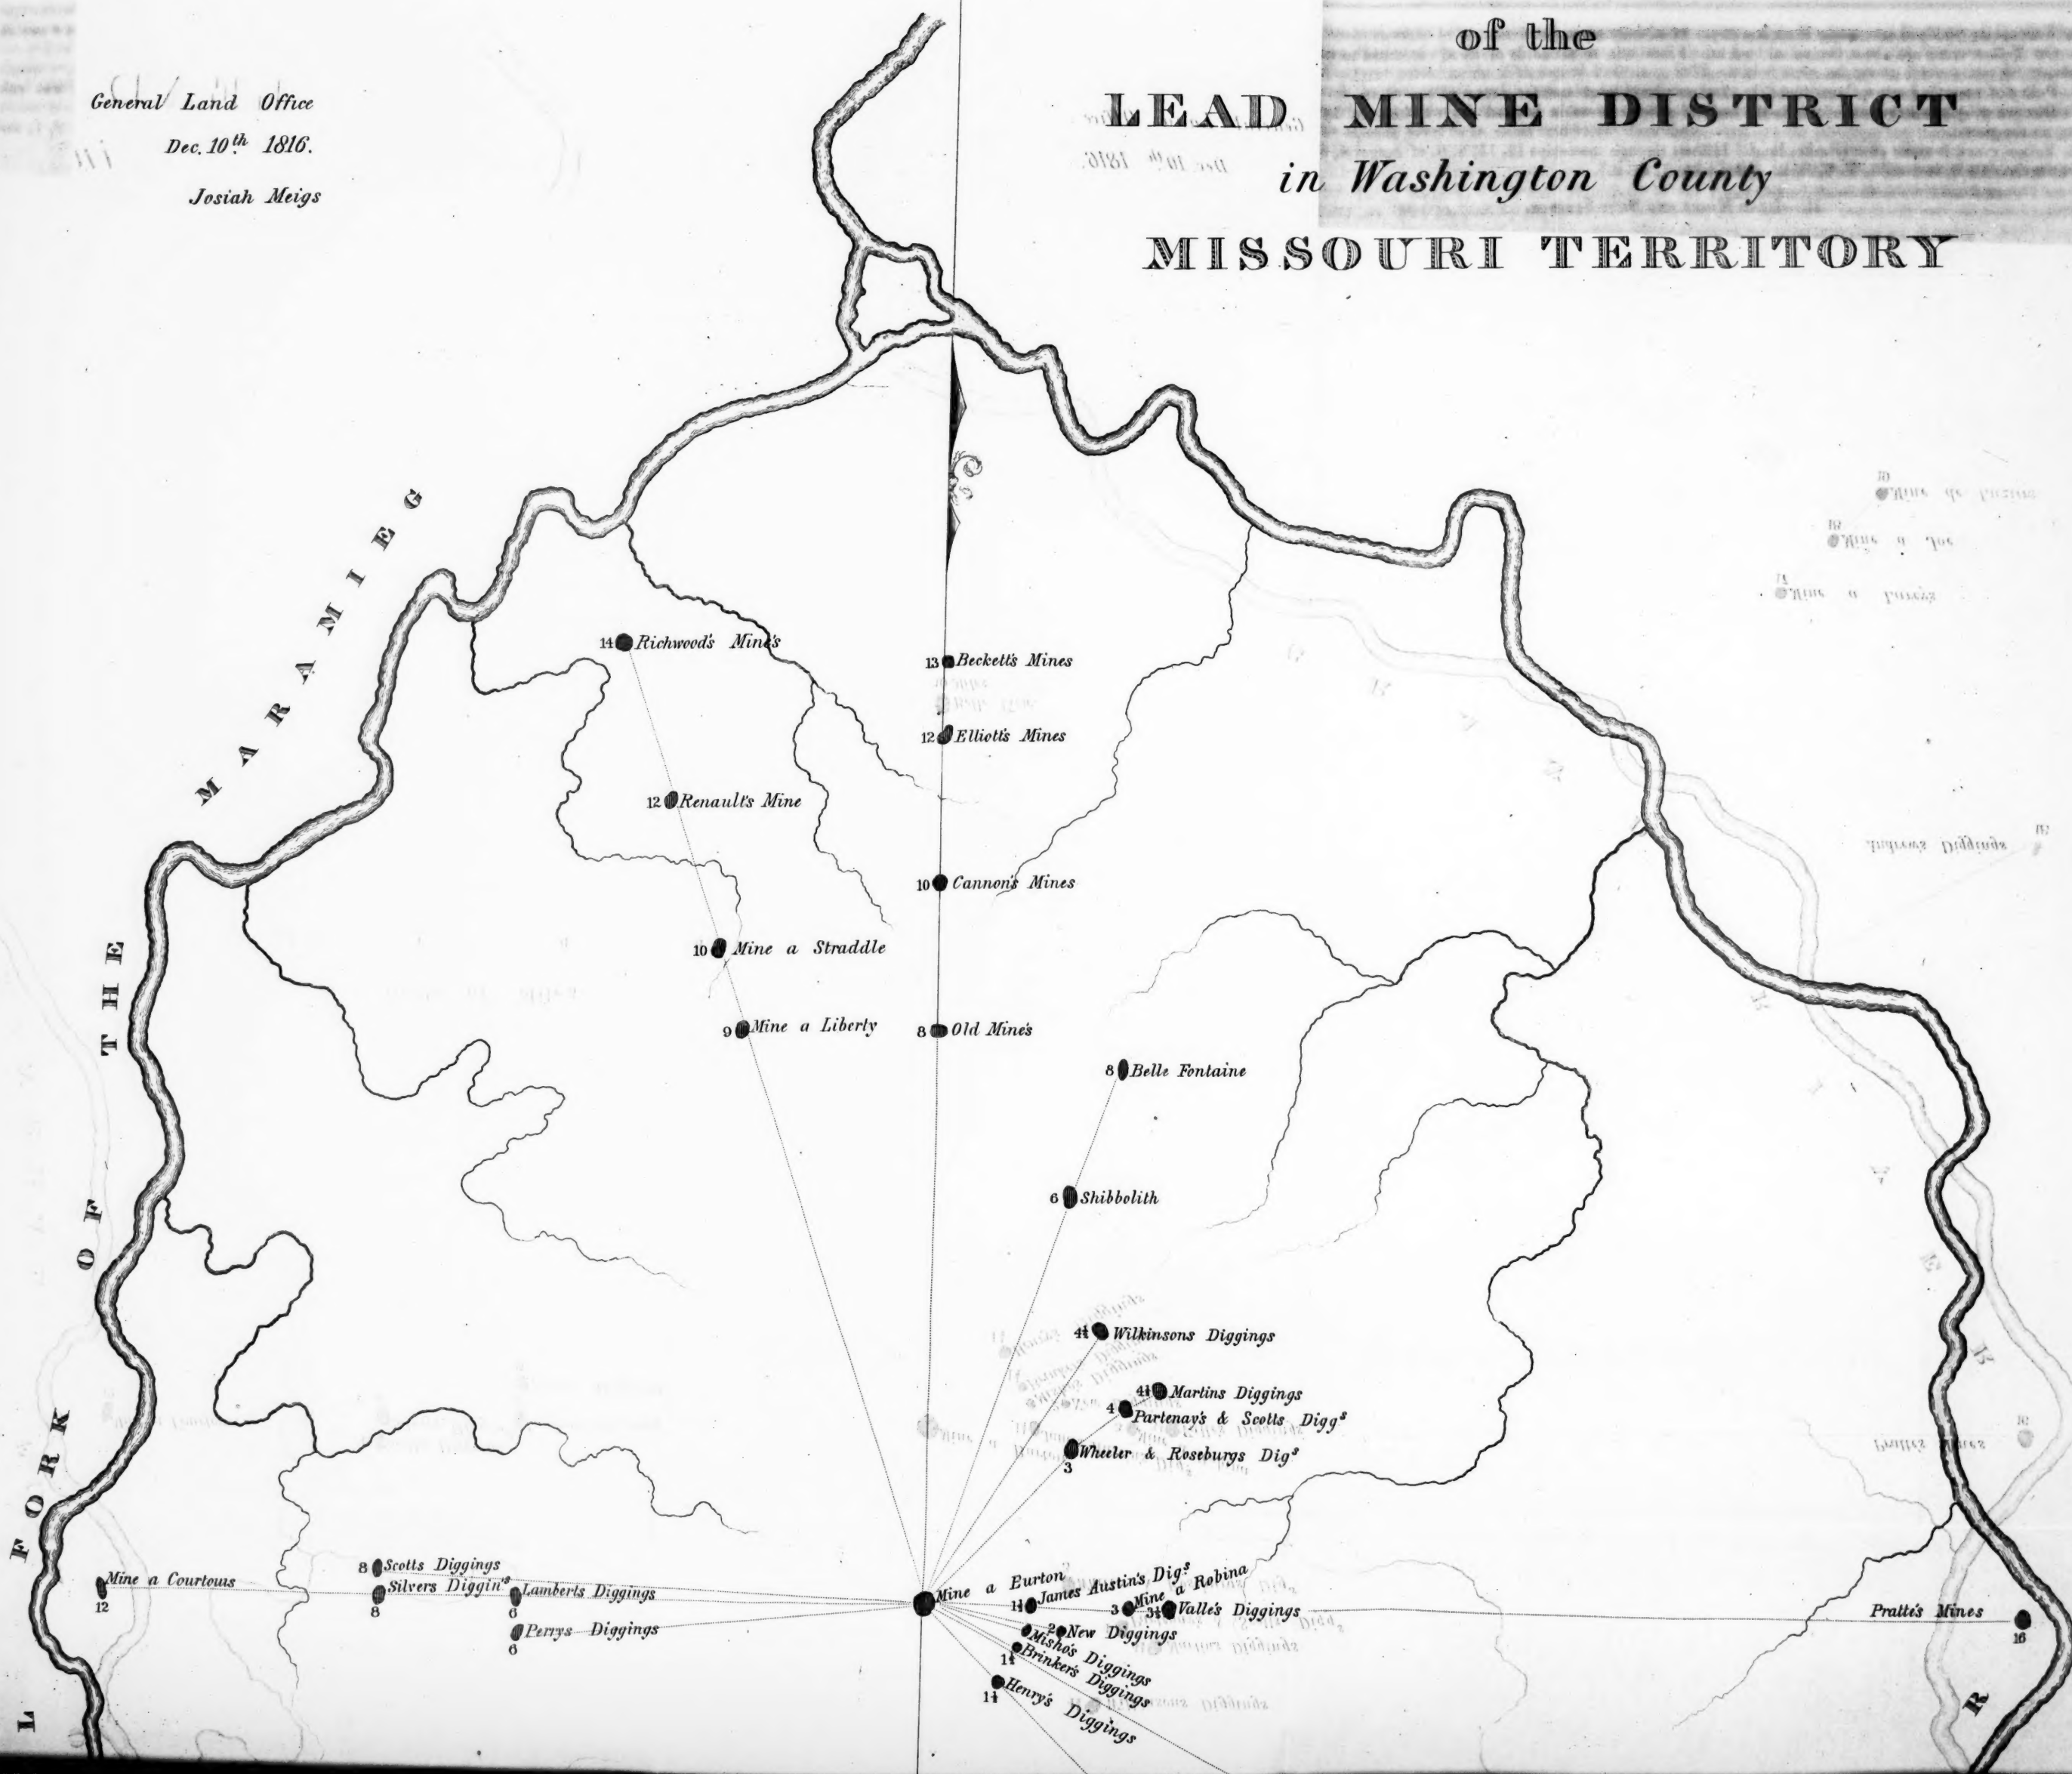

1. No lead mine yet known in the district.
2. Several attempts have been made to obtain salt water by boring, but none has hitherto been discovered worth the trouble of improving.

vations, it is thought, will be sufficient to save the most valuable of those mines. Should the President avail himself of the stipulation, the sooner those mines are selected and worked the better it will be; because, otherwise, the Indians will begin to think we have no right to them, which happens in most cases where they are left for any considerable time in the possession of property they are stipulated to cede.

Those mines are a considerable distance from the settled parts of the Territory, and the greatest difficulty will be in supplying the necessary provisions upon the cheapest terms, by producing a competition amongst them.

For this purpose, I think it would be advisable that an agent should be appointed to reside at the mines, who should permit all persons who may go up to work such parts of them as may be unoccupied, for such a portion of the mineral as experience shall show to be just and reasonable, without confining them to a longer term than they shall choose to continue.

By these means it is believed that those mines will the sooner be explored, and more extensively worked than by leasing them to individuals or companies for a term of years; or, if a better plan should be preferred, it ought not to be to the entire exclusion of the farmer; for if the farmers of this country, when carrying up a boat load of provisions, be permitted to work a part of the mines upon reasonable terms, until, by this means and the sale of provisions, they could get a boat load of lead to return with, there are a vast number of them who would avail themselves of all leisure seasons for those purposes; which of all other plans would have the greatest tendency to render provisions cheap and plenty.

Of salt springs, I know of none in this Territory, except the United States' Wabash saline, which I passed through on my way to this place, and one on Muddy I have been informed of; both of which I believe are in operation under leases of the Government; and even of them, I know too little to justify me in giving any opinion concerning them. I am informed, and have reason to believe, that there are several valuable salines north of the river Illinois; but, owing to the late war with the Indians, and to the tract of country in which they are contained, having until lately been disputed, they have not been sufficiently tested to warrant me in making any representations at present concerning them.

I am, sir, respectfully, your most obedient servant,

JOHN McKEE,

Register of the Land Office at Edwardsville.

Mr. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SIR:

UNITED STATES' SALINE, November 15, 1816.

In addition to a communication I had the honor of making to you on the 17th August, I will beg leave to add that, for some time, I have been convinced that the works at this place have been extended beyond the real interest of the United States. To explain this fact, I have caused a survey of the place to be made, a plat of which I herewith transmit. [See plate II, fig. 1.] By comparing it with one I transmitted in the year 1810, you will at once observe that, at that time, there were fourteen wells worked, and five useless; at this time there are thirty wells used, and twelve thrown idle. In 1810 there were five establishments, working four furnaces each, which manufactured at the rate of one hundred and twenty-six thousand bushels of salt per annum; a greater quantity than has ever been returned to me since, and I believe a greater quantity than has been made. In 1814 there was made one hundred and twenty-four thousand eight hundred and eighty-five bushels; in 1815 I received no return, but I believe there was not so much made, notwithstanding the increased number of wells and establishments; and, it is a fact, the water has been getting weaker as the number of wells increase; which I account for in this way, that scarcely a spring season arrives but what the wells are overflowed, and there being so many to receive and retain the fresh water, and particularly those that are not worked at all, out of which this water is not drawn, and from which it communicates to those that are worked; not only so, but those wells are thrown away, because they get too fresh to be worked, by fresh water breaking into them, and being very near to those that are worked, they communicate with them, and it follows, of course, that the whole becomes weaker. To obviate this, I presume if all the useless wells were filled up with earth, and no more suffered to be dug, it would have a good effect; indeed, I believe if all the wells were filled up, except sixteen, the water would shortly be as good as ever it was. Heretofore, the Government have required the lessees to make more salt than there really was water to do it with; this, I presume, was done to make the article as plenty and as cheap as possible to the consumer; but there is now no necessity for this precaution, because the article has become so plenty, from the Kenawha and other places, that it has brought the price almost below what it can be made for at this place, and I am of opinion that no person will be found to lease it in the way that it has heretofore been leased, to wit, pay for the metal and improvements in advance; but I think it may be leased if the Government furnishes the metal, &c., to be returned at the expiration of the lease, in as good order as when they were received. I would also beg leave to suggest the propriety of leasing, some time previous to the expiration of the present lease, so as to give the new lessees an opportunity of procuring the supplies necessary to carry on the works. I have the honor, &c.,

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq.,
Commissioner General Land Office.

LEON'D WHITE,
Agent United States' Saline.

SIR:

UNITED STATES' SALINE, August 17, 1816.

I have had the honor to receive yours of the 3d ultimo, wherein I am requested to communicate to you any information I may possess relating to lead mines and salt springs belonging to the United States.

As respects lead mines, I possess but little information on that subject, never having had my attention drawn to that object.

Salt springs, as they are the only salt springs belonging to the United States with which I am particularly acquainted, I will confine my observations to them alone, and, more particularly, to your fourth proposition.

The present lease for this place expires on the 17th day of March next, upon which I will beg leave to observe that, hitherto, the United States have required the new lessee to pay to the old the price of the metal and improvements, which amounted to a considerable sum, and has operated as a bar to the practical salt-makers, and prevents them from engaging with the United States in the business, and, consequently, they become sub-lessees under the lessee, and thereby creates a third party over whom the United States have no immediate control.

Under the present lease there are so many more of this class that can actually get water, that they have injured the place considerably, first, in using so much more timber for pipes, troughs, &c., than was really necessary; and, secondly, by erecting so many establishments; all of which, for the want of water, making no more salt than perhaps little more than half the number would have done; by which means the expenses of the place were greatly augmented, and the means of payment not increased in proportion, thereby injuring the credit of the place.

To avoid which I would beg leave most respectfully to suggest the following plan for leasing this place: The United States to own all the property attached to the premises, including kettles, (the present being a favorable time to do so, the lessees being largely indebted to them,) and divide the lick into five parts: the half-moon lick composing four parts, and the saline spring or lower lick one.

Lease the kettles, &c., with the premises, to be returned in as good order as when they received them, to any persons who will give the greatest quantity of salt per annum, payable weekly or monthly, and for a failure to pay rent, or a breach of any of the stipulations of his contract, to be dispossessed, binding him, as at present, to commit no waste of timber. By this means the United States could, at any time, when improper conduct existed, get into possession, and lease again without doing any individual a great injury, as the only property belonging to the salt-maker would be moveable.

Should this plan meet the approbation of Government, the extent to be leased by each one ought to be laid off previous to leasing, both for water and wood, off of which he ought not to be suffered to go while any timber remained on his lot. This would prevent them from trespassing on one another. Improvements for salt-making are rather of a temporary nature, (being often removed,) and ought to be made by the salt-maker.

Though there are some improvements that might be an advantage to the United States to make. A tavern, for the accommodation of travellers and others, appears to be indispensably necessary, and, for the want of a convenient house, this has been hitherto badly done.

I would also suggest the propriety of the Government building a tolerably comfortable house for the residence of the United States' agent. The reservation for this place.

The intruders on this tract increase, and experience convinces me that their improvements must be destroyed before they will leave it. In fact, if one set leaves it, another comes on it immediately, and they no longer pay any attention to a threat from me.

I am, &c.,

LEONARD WHITE.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS.

SIR:

WASHINGTON, December 12, 1816.

Having called on you a few days ago, to remind you that the present lease of the United States' saline near the Wabash, in the Illinois Territory, was about to expire, and having been requested by you to suggest a projet for leasing it, I beg leave to submit the following remarks:

Shall the saline be leased entire or divided? If divided, into how many parts?

In few instances have the lessees manufactured salt themselves; but they generally sub-leased the saline in fractions to individuals, having no unity of interest, who found no obstacles to a fair and friendly partition of the water. It is fairly inferrible that the lessees made such terms with the manufacturers as secured to themselves some profit upon their contract with the United States. If this be the fact, it necessarily results that the Government lets the saline to the lessees on terms more advantageous to them than could be obtained of the manufacturer, who is the only meritorious person, if it were leased in fractions. It is as obvious that, whatever profit is pocketed by the lessee, in so much is the price of salt enhanced, because no man can doubt that the manufacturer would contract with the Government on the same terms that he does with the lessee, perhaps better, as he would have more confidence. Men of competent capital to work the whole establishment are generally devoid of the required information, which can only be acquired by a long apprenticeship in the school of experience. That information is most frequently found in men of moderate capital. As those are in fact the manufacturers of the salt on their own funds, it is justice to allow and secure to them all profits derivable therefrom.

If the lessee can subdivide the saline, and create rival interests there, and preserve harmony among his tenants, I see nothing to prevent the United States adopting with success the same plan. I believe the fact to be, that if any collisions appeared at the saline they arose between the lessee and his tenants, and not between the tenants themselves.

The Old Spring and Half Moon are distant from each other upwards of four miles; they are easily divided. The Half Moon is now, and has for many years, been partitioned out among different persons, without the least jostling, which clearly proves the practicability of the measure. I suppose it might be divided into any number not exceeding five parts. A multiplication beyond that number would tend to diminish the quantity of salt, in consequence of the increased waste and deterioration of the salt water. The removal of the water from the wells to the wood is always attended with a certain and not inconsiderable loss of water, which loss is not much varied by the quantity conveyed: e. g. the loss on a hundred thousand gallons will not much exceed that on fifty thousand, while the expense is almost the same on both quantities.

As to the deterioration of the water. It is believed by the best informed, that all the wells in the Half Moon derive their supplies from the same fountain or stratum of salt water, and that that fountain or stratum is not inexhaustible, and, as the site is liable to annual inundations, (at least,) it must be clear that the more apertures that are made into it by digging wells, the more fresh water will find its way to mingle with the salt water, and thereby augment the expense of restoring the salt water to its wonted state of impregnation.

Would it not be expedient for the United States to settle with the present lessee, and pay for all such stock and improvements as he is, by the terms of the lease, entitled to pay for? The moment is propitious, as it is clear the lessee will be in arrear. Upon making a new lease, the tenant shall take the lick, or his part of it, with its appurtenances, and also the kettles, &c., under such stipulations for restitution as the nature of the business shall indicate. The new tenant would then have it in his power to employ all his funds in providing the "ways and means" for a successful prosecution of business. It is also worthy of remark, that the amount to be advanced by new tenants is always wrapt in obscurity, and the old tenant, either from a desire to deter persons from bidding, or from a disposition of human nature to over-rate our own, does not fail to make the impression that the improvements, and stock on hand to be paid for, will amount to a fearful sum.

As to the price of salt. It is impossible to speak on this subject with confidence, unless I could look forward, and with certainty see what regulations will be adopted relative to the currency of the United States, and of the States respectively. It is very clear to my mind that, if no change be effected, the evil will reach us in the west, and produce an enhanced price of labor and provisions, and, consequently, of salt. But as the Government will have the power of affording appropriate relief, I do not hesitate to recommend that one dollar and twenty-five cents be assumed as the maximum price of the saline. It seems to me that the United States have committed a capital error in stipulating not to sell the rent salt at less than the maximum. If it were desired to raise the price of salt, no better plan could have been adopted, because it withdrew from the market all the rent salt, thereby enhancing the price of that necessary article. This stipulation was the offspring of fears, suggested by the lessees, that the rent salt would be carried into the market in competition with theirs. What has been the consequence? The consequence has been, that the United States' salt was wasted on hand, while the lessees were, under cover of it, extorting from the people a higher price than would have been asked or paid, if all the salt made had been in the market. Let the Government bind itself to sell none for less than one dollar at the lick, and at no other place for less than that, adding thereto costs of transportation and loss; but with some reservations; for example, reserve the Mississippi and the country near it in the Illinois Territory, and also the Illinois side of the Wabash. I recommend this reservation, because the saline belongs to the Illinois Territory, and also because it would avoid competition with the lessees, who have hitherto sent no salt up the Mississippi, (at least very little.) Some of the United States' salt has been sold at Kaskaskia, but upon hard terms. At the time that the lessees were selling salt at one dollar, we were obliged to pay at Kaskaskia one and a quarter, adding thereto carriage and loss. If this plan be adopted, the rent salt will be of some use. Therefore, let the Government reserve the right to sell, as it pleases, its rent salt in those sections of country, without reference to the wishes or interest of the lessees.

As to the duration of the lease. On this subject I have no doubt. The best lessons of experience admonish me that short leases are very unfriendly to the salt-making business. Much time is elapsed before the works are put into operation, and at the conclusion they are declining, so that it may safely be computed that, in a lease of three years, from six to nine months are either lost or unprofitably spent. I am persuaded that the public good would be consulted by adopting the longest term.

I cannot refrain from suggesting the policy of allowing each lessee to cultivate ground enough to supply him with hay, and perhaps corn. The former article is so difficult to be procured, that none is used, though much wanted.

As to the rent. It should be let to the highest bidder, payable in salt, monthly, (not quarterly, too much would then be on hand at once, and much loss insured,) retaining a right to distrain and oust for a violation of the stipulations of the lease, allowing reasonable time to get his works in operation. This ought to be confided to the discretion of the agent who leases or superintends the saline, who, from a knowledge of the situation of the establishment, and its state of repair, can form an estimate of the time to be allowed.

The stand for a tavern, store, and blacksmith's shop, must also be rented by the United States. They are very useful, I may say essential. Would it not be well to allow the tavern-keeper to make a meadow?

Upon the whole, I do most humbly submit, that the clear profits of the saline ought to be expended in improvements in the Territory to which it belongs, say in roads. The General Government will be well remunerated in the appreciation of its public lands, through which the roads shall pass. Every road would throw into demand all the lands on or near its borders.

I have, &c.

NATHANIEL POPE.

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq.

[2d SESSION.]

LAND CLAIMS IN TENNESSEE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JANUARY 28, 1817.

Mr. GASTON made the following report:

The committee, to whom was referred the memorial of the Legislature of North Carolina, remonstrating against the act of Congress passed in the year 1806, entitled "An act to authorize the State of Tennessee to issue grants and perfect titles to certain lands therein described, and to settle the claims to the vacant and unappropriated lands within the same," have taken the subject of the said memorial into their serious consideration, and submit their views thereof in the following report:

The General Assembly of the State of North Carolina, by an act passed at their session begun and held on the second of November, 1789, empowered and required its Senators in Congress to execute a deed on the part and in behalf of the said State, conveying to the United States of America all the right and title which the said State had to the sovereignty and property of a vast tract of western lands, out of which has been since formed the State of Tennessee, but which were then comprehended within the acknowledged limits of North Carolina. In this act the General Assembly declared that the conveyance aforesaid was to take place upon, and subject to, certain conditions therein expressed. Among these conditions were the following: the land laid off, or directed to be laid off, by former laws of North Carolina, for the benefit of the officers and soldiers of the continental line of that State, should enure to their benefit; and if a deficiency should be found of land fit for cultivation within the limits of the district assigned for that purpose, the officer or soldier not getting his allotment should be permitted to take his quota, or so much of it as was deficient, out of any other unappropriated part of the territory ceded.

Moreover, the Governor of North Carolina was to retain the power of completing, by grant, all entries and other imperfect titles; and all such titles, until so perfected, were, after the cession, to have the force and effect which they then had under the laws of that State.

Furthermore, when an entry had been made of any tract of land in the office usually called John Armstrong's office, and located on a spot covered by a previous entry, such location might be removed to any lands on which no entry had been specially located, or to any vacant lands within the ceded territory.

In pursuance of this act, on the 25th of February, 1790, Samuel Johnston and Benjamin Hawkins, being then the Senators of the State of North Carolina in the Congress of the United States, duly executed a deed unto the United States of America, wherein the said act of North Carolina is recited at length; and whereby, in virtue of the authority delegated to them by the said act, the said Senators, in the name and on behalf of the said State, did convey to the United States all the right and title of North Carolina to the sovereignty and territory of the lands described in the aforesaid act, to and for the uses and purposes, and on the conditions, mentioned in the said act. This deed was declared by act of Congress of the 2d of April, 1790, to be accepted by the United States.

The power which, by the aforesaid act and deed of cession, was reserved to North Carolina over the ceded territory, was, for several years, exercised by her without restraint. But from this exercise many inconveniences were found to arise; particularly it was discovered that, in procuring the consummation of imperfect titles, many frauds were attempted to be committed, which the Government of North Carolina could not readily prevent or detect, and which, in their consequences, were productive of great embarrassment and injustice to the land-holders and residents of Tennessee. To remedy these evils, and, at the same time, secure the fulfilment of the yet unsatisfied obligations of justice and gratitude recognised by North Carolina in the alienation of this territory, a provisional compact was formed between the States of North Carolina and Tennessee, which required for its validity the sanction of the Congress of the United States. This compact, as contained in the act of North Carolina of the year 1803, chapter 3d, entitled "An act to authorize the State of Tennessee to perfect titles to lands reserved to this State by the cession act," and in the act of the Legislature of Tennessee of the year 1804, chapter 14th, ratifying and confirming the said act of North Carolina, provides that, upon the assent of Congress being obtained thereto, the State of Tennessee shall have power and authority to issue grants and perfect titles on all claims of land lying within that State; which, by the act of cession, were reserved to be issued and perfected by North Carolina, in as full and ample manner as the latter State possessed the same, but under certain conditions and restrictions. One of these conditions is, that, in entering and obtaining titles to lands, no preference shall be given to the citizens of Tennessee over citizens of any other State claiming under the State of North Carolina; nor shall any occupancy or possession give preference in entering or obtaining titles, so as to injure or take away the right of any person now claiming by entry, grant, or otherwise, under North Carolina. [The other conditions, with the exception of that which reserves to North Carolina the exclusive right of issuing military warrants, seem designed to provide in detail for the fair, complete, and effectual performance, by Tennessee, of such of the obligations acknowledged by North Carolina in her act of cession, as had not been discharged since the cession under the powers then reserved for that purpose. The only assent given by Congress, to any part of the compact between these States, is contained in the act of the 18th April, 1806, against which act the remonstrance of the memorialists is directed.]

This act of Congress makes, on the part of the United States, a compact with the State of Tennessee, by which, in consideration of the State of Tennessee relinquishing to the United States all right and title to the lands in that State lying to the south and west of a certain line therein described, and of the said State agreeing and declaring that the said lands shall be and remain at the sole and entire disposition of the United States, the United States cede and convey to the State of Tennessee the lands within its limits lying to the east and north of this line, and authorize the State of Tennessee to issue grants and perfect titles as to these last mentioned lands, according to the conditions of the original cession act, and of the act of North Carolina of 1803, before mentioned, "to which act the assent of Congress is thereby given, so far as is necessary to carry into effect the objects of the compact" between the United States and Tennessee. Besides this assent, in part, to the act of North Carolina of 1803, is declared to be subject to certain express conditions, not to be found in that act, viz: the appropriation by the State of Tennessee, out of the territory to the north and east of the aforesaid line, of two hundred thousand acres for colleges and academies, and of six hundred and forty acres out of every six miles square in the said territory, where existing claims will permit, for the use of schools. This act of Congress provides that all the entries, warrants, and locations removable under the terms of the cession of North Carolina, which were not actually located before the cession to the west and south of the before described line, shall be located, and the titles thereto perfected within the territory to the north and east of that line; but enacts that if this territory shall not contain a sufficient quantity of land fit for cultivation to satisfy these removable claims according to the true intent of the cession, Congress will hereafter provide by law for perfecting such of them as cannot be there located, out of the territory west and south of that line. The State of Tennessee accepted of the terms, proposed by this act of Congress, and became a party to this compact with the United States. Proceeding in the spirit of this compact, she has set apart, out of the territory north and east of the line described in the act of Congress, two hundred thousand acres for colleges and academies, and six hundred and forty acres out of every six miles square thereof for public schools, and has appropriated the residue only of this territory for the satisfaction of claims under North Carolina. By the regulations of her land laws, which conform to this compact, she permits not entries, which have been especially located on the lands to the south and west of the Congressional line, either to be surveyed there or removed to the lands which are to the east and north of that line; nor does she allow (and, according to this compact, cannot allow) the removal to the Congressional reservation of the unsatisfied warrants of the officers and soldiers of the continental line of North Carolina, or of the entries in John Armstrong's office, which have been located on spots covered by previous entries. The State of North Carolina, contending that the right to perfect titles in the lands to the west and south of the Congressional line, upon claims recognised in the original cession, and therein reserved to be completed by North Carolina, had not been transferred to Tennessee, because of the want of assent on the part of Congress unto so much of the compact between the two States, has proceeded to make surveys and issue grants thereon; and the result has been a conflict between the two States every way adverse to the ascertainment and satisfaction of the claims, for the faithful discharge whereof the honor of North Carolina, of Tennessee, and of the United States, is equally plighted.

The committee have deemed it proper to present this compendious statement to the House, that it may be possessed of the facts necessary for the understanding of the unpleasant controversy referred to in the memorial. If they had deemed it necessary for any practical purposes of justice or policy, to examine into the legal character of the pretensions asserted by the parties to this controversy, and to make an application to these facts of the principles of public law, assuredly they would not have shrunk from the inquiry, however arduous, important, or delicate.

It will readily be perceived that a faithful comparison of the various provisions of the original cession of 1789, and of the act of North Carolina of 1803, with the terms of the act of Congress of 1806, and the ascertainment how far the objects compared exhibit a coincidence of views and a harmony of design; still more the distinguishing (should any variance be found to exist) between those differences, which may be regarded as formal and unessential, and the repugnancies which ought to be viewed as substantial and important, and yet further, between those repugnances that are the result of omission, and readily susceptible of remedy, and such as may operate a nullity either in the whole or in part of the act of 1803, or even, perhaps, of the original cession, would be an undertaking not of easy accomplishment, and connected with questions embarrassing in themselves, and leading to consequences very momentous. The committee are satisfied that such an undertaking would be as superfluous as unpleasant.

There cannot be a doubt but that entries legally made before the cession of North Carolina upon lands which, by the act of 1806, are placed at the sole and entire disposition of the United States, and whereto the Indian title is extinguished, ought to be perfected into grants. Congress have also declared in their act of 1806, that, if the territory thereby conveyed to Tennessee should not contain a sufficient quantity of land fit for cultivation to satisfy the removable entries and locations recognised in the cession of North Carolina, they will provide for the perfecting of them out of the territory in that act reserved to Congress. This fact notoriously exists. There is a deficiency of land fit for cultivation on the north and east of the Congressional line, and without the Indian limits, to satisfy these claims, after the appropriations warranted by the act of 1806. The States of North Carolina and Tennessee can have but one true and substantial interest on this occasion. They are deeply, perhaps equally concerned, that the honest claims of both descriptions, above referred to, belonging to their citizens, respectively, should be satisfied, and that spurious and fraudulent claims, of either kind, should be rejected. The United States alone have the means of completely carrying this object into effect, and they are bound by the principles of justice as well as by their express undertaking, to supply these means, so far as they may be otherwise deficient, out of the Congressional reservation. The committee have, therefore, no hesitation in recommending a substantial compliance with the first alternative in the prayer of the memorialists. Provision ought to be made, by law, for perfecting titles of the kind, referred to by the memorialists, on the south and west, as well as on the east and north of the Congressional line; and it is but fair that, in a case involving the interests of the United States, of North Carolina, and of Tennessee, they should all have a voice in the adjudication of the warrants and entries to be perfected. But the committee believe that North Carolina, having this voice in the appointment of the commissioners empowered to pronounce on the legality of these claims, will, in the spirit of accommodation, acquiesce in the consummation of the titles being made by the State of Tennessee. It is obvious that this form of proceeding, if not inconsistent with the substantial rights of any, is most appropriate in itself, and most convenient to all.

In the hope that it will terminate the unpleasant controversy which has subsisted between two respectable States; that it will prevent the confusion and perplexity of titles which must result from the exercise of conflicting claims of territory; and that it will render effectual justice to claims which the United States are bound to see satisfied, the committee beg leave to report, herewith, a bill entitled "An act supplementary to an act entitled 'An act to authorize the State of Tennessee to issue grants and perfect titles to certain lands therein described, and to settle the claims to the vacant and unappropriated lands within the same.'"

[2d SESSION.]

INDIAN GRANTS IN LOUISIANA CONFIRMED.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JANUARY 29, 1817.

Mr. ROBERTSON made the following report:

The Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of the executors of Alexander Fulton, the executors of Levi Wells, the executors of Hatch Dent, William Miller, William Barrow, Josiah S. Johnston, George Matthews, John and Leonard Compton, Isaac H. Robinet, and Chew and Relf, and others, have had the same under consideration, and report as follows:

The petitioners claim a tract of land on the bayou Bœuf, in the State of Louisiana, by virtue of a purchase from three tribes of Indians, approved by the Spanish Government in the year one thousand eight hundred and two.

It appears that, about forty years ago, the nation of Indians called the Choctaux received a concession or allotment of land on the bayou Bœuf, from the proper officer of the Spanish Government, where they were established, and continued to reside for many years. About twenty-one or two years ago the Choctaux, desirous of settling the Pascagoula and Belluxi Indians near them, gave up a portion of their lands to them, upon which they were established by the agent of Indian affairs, which was approved by the Baron de Carondelet.

Miller and Fulton, under whom the petitioners claim, enjoyed, for some years previous to the change of Government, an exclusive privilege of trading with the Indians in that quarter, and were in the habit of making them considerable advances in merchandise. In the month of May, one thousand eight hundred and two, the Indians, moved by several causes, but principally with a view to discharge these debts, as well as the debts which they had contracted with other persons, and to obtain additional supplies of goods, obtained the consent of Don Valentine Layssard, the agent of Indian affairs, and the sub-delegate of the Intendant, to dispose of their lands. On the 14th day of May, 1802, the Choctaux Indians made a sale of their land from the marked boundary near the bayou Clear, down to the upper boundary of the Pascagoulas. This sale is signed by the chiefs and warriors of the tribe, attested by several witnesses, done by the commandant of the post, and ratified by Don Valentine Layssard. The consideration of this sale is $3,724, to wit, $2,302 due from the Indians to the purchasers, and the sum of $1,422 paid to the different persons by their order. This sale was approved by the Governor General of Louisiana, in the following form: "New Orleans, 20th June, 1802. Let this deed of sale be approved in all its parts. Salcedo." "Pierre Pedesclaux, notary." "Daniel Clarke." On the same day, the 14th of May, 1802, the chiefs and warriors of the Pascagoula and Billoxie tribes made a sale of their land to Miller and Fulton, from the Choctaux line down to the domain of His Majesty, in consideration of a discharge and acquittance of their debts, and the sum of $1,500 to be paid in merchandise, at cost in New Orleans. This sale is made and signed by the chiefs and warriors of the two tribes, in the presence of the witnesses, and authenticated by the Indian agent thus: "I, Don Valentine Layssard, certify that the above named chiefs and warriors have granted this sale to Messrs. Miller and Fulton, of their free will, and in the best requisite form; and the interpreters, not knowing how to write, have made their marks in the presence of my assisting witnesses." This sale was transmitted to the Governor General for his sanction, which was given in the following words: "I approve the preceding sale being made in due form, and made before the commandant, Don Valentine Layssard, by whom it appears to have been authorized and sanctioned, due faith and credit being due to it in court and out of it, and that it may so appear, I sign it in New Orleans, the 19th July, 1802. Manuel Salcedo." "Andre Lopez Armisto, (then Secretary to the Government.) Pierre Pedesclaux, notary." The Surveyor General issued the following order of survey: "I give special power to Mr. Samuel Levi Wells to proceed as my representative, and in my name, to the surveying of a tract of land sold by the Choctaux nation to Messrs. Miller and Fulton, in conformity with the deed passed before the commandant, Don Valentine Layssard, dated 14th May, 1802, and ratified by the Governor General in date the 20th of June, of the same year, &c." 12th October, 1803. A plat of survey was returned in the year 1804. The signatures to the above acts were satisfactorily proven to the commissioners. It appears by the evidence that the accounts of the Indians were liquidated and settled by the Indian agent; that the other sums of money to be paid to other persons were duly paid, and that the merchandise was delivered to them agreeably to the contract. It has been given in the evidence, that the lands in the province of Louisiana, during the Spanish Government, had little value, and it was the policy of the Government to give them to every applicant; that the price paid was higher than other lands could have been had for that were better situated; and that the principal reason for making this purchase was to secure the amount of the debts due by the Indians. This claim was entered with the Board of Commissioners in the year 1805, with all the sales and acts of approval, which, together with the evidence, have been reported, and are now before the committee, to which reference may be had. The commissioners conclude their opinion on this claim in these words: "The ratification of these sales by the Governor of the province, anterior to the change of Government, as established by the documents Nos. 2 and 3, is sufficient, in the opinion of the commissioners, to give validity to the claim: their greatest doubt is respecting the quantity of land. They are induced to recommend a confirmation of forty arpents in depth on each side of the bayou, because it will be found to comport with the general uses of the Spanish Government in cases where occupants resided on one side of the bayou, and cultivated on the opposite side, as seems to have been the case in the claim under consideration. They would also limit the front above by the marked boundary near the bayou Clear, and below by the lower line, marked by Mr. Wells, the surveyor, because it has not been satisfactorily established, as contended by the complainants, that the Indians had a right to the land, and did sell their claim down to the upper boundary of the Alabama lands. This would reduce the claim to about twenty-three thousand four hundred arpents, equal to nineteen thousand eight hundred American acres." Your committee have had before them sundry depositions, the object of which was to prove that the lower boundary was the bayou Sans-façon, which is twenty or thirty arpents front, higher up than the marked boundary recommended to be confirmed by the commissioners, and which would reduce the claim to about two thousand arpents. They have weighed all the evidence and circumstances before them, and report a bill.

[2d SESSION.]

DIVISION OF QUARTER SECTIONS OF LAND.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, FEBRUARY 3, 1817.

SIR:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, February 3, 1817.

I beg leave, very respectfully, to offer some observations on the bill before the Senate, "providing for the division of certain quarter sections in future sales of public lands," and to transmit to you a copy of a letter written by Mr. Mansfield, Surveyor General, when a similar bill was before Congress in the year 1812.

If quarter sections are divided, all the good land will frequently be on one side of the divisional line; the consequence will be, that the good land will be purchased, and the remainder will serve the purchaser as a wood lot for perhaps half a century.

Probably so soon as this law has passed, capitalists will send explorers upon the lands, and, on the first of September next, purchase all the half quarters that are good land. By paying the first instalment, they will have five years (without any further advance of capital) to sponge upon poor emigrants.

If quarter sections are divided, the trouble to the district land officers, to the clerks in this office, the expense of books, first certificates, final certificates, and patents, will be the same upon eighty acres of land, as at present attends the sale of six hundred and forty acres.

I presume the object of the committee is to accommodate poor persons; I am apprehensive that no accommodation will be produced, but, on the contrary, they will become the prey of speculators. At present a man who has eighty dollars, can have from the public a farm of one hundred and sixty acres for five years; if he cannot then pay the balance he has not paid a heavy rent; if he has improved his farm, and it sells for more than is due to the United States, he receives the surplus money; if he has not improved it so much as to make it sell, it reverts to the United States, and he may for eighty dollars take it for five years longer.

I trust, sir, that my anxiety for the poorer class of citizens, and for the productiveness of the public lands to the Treasury, will be a sufficient apology for obtruding those observations upon you and the committee. Whatever weight my observations have, the remarks of the Surveyor General have more.

I have the honor to be, most respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

HON. JEREMIAH MORROW, Chairman of the Land Committee, Senate U. S.

SIR:

CINCINNATI, March 16, 1812.

I have seen a report of the committee of the Senate of the United States, respecting alterations of the present landed system. My sentiments, as I conceived it my duty, have been communicated long before this to you on the principal topics of that report. The object of this letter is merely to advert to that part of the report which says, "that the exterior lines being surveyed or established, the expense of surveying an interior line to each tract would be inconsiderable."

Now, the exterior lines of quarter sections are no where established at public expense. In the new surveys (in Indiana Territory, &c.) quarter section corners are established on all the lines, but the exterior lines of quarter sections are not established; whence it will follow that, even here, where the division into half sections can be made with the least trouble, that the lines for the quarter sections must be run before those of half sections be attempted, and both together will amount to four miles of surveying for each section, or to twice the quantity of surveying which has been already executed, or for a township to one hundred and forty-four miles. In the old surveys, where two quarter section corners only have been marked, the surveying will amount to six miles per section, &c

It is manifest that, if it be intended to prepare all the lands of the United States which remain unsold, by subdivisions into half quarter sections, by surveying them at public expense, very great appropriations, more than all hitherto made for surveying, will be necessary; but if it be intended that the district surveyors perform the work at the expense of individuals, a great difficulty will arise respecting their fees, a difficulty which already exists in degree as to those of quarter section surveys. If a single half quarter in a section be sold, and it be required by the land officers that the contents and boundaries be established by the district surveyor before the purchaser is entitled to a final certificate, from sixteen to twenty-four dollars must be paid to the surveyor (otherwise he must be supposed to do this service without compensation) by a purchaser of a single half quarter. It is certain that the surveys ought to be made, whatever the expense and difficulty may be, before the sales are actually completed, as any other system would be productive of the greatest evils to individuals, not so much from the variation of contents, as of the boundaries. While these are undetermined, the advantages of springs, streams, or a favorable and inviting situation, which lie near the boundaries not ascertained, scarcely ever fail to induce the ignorant and presumptuous purchaser to consider them as his own, and he commences his improvements with those impressions. By and by, when the true division is made, a part, or perhaps the whole of his most valuable improvements are taken from him and assigned to another, or declared to belong to the United States. Such has been the case in many instances which have come to my knowledge, and the sufferers, though such merely in consequence of their own acts, complain loudly of injustice, and cannot be convinced that the Government have it not in their power to relieve them. Many applications have been made to me for relief from the evils produced by establishing the real and true lines of the subdivided tracts. There could be no such evils, if purchasers had not foolishly assumed a position for their lands which their own inclination, or a reliance on their own judgments, had directed. If the lines be not actually run and marked, they might, indeed, have reason to complain that they must be under the necessity of relying on their own discretion and judgment.

I thought it necessary to advert to the mistake of the report respecting the expense of surveying half quarter sections. This might be considered as incumbent on me from my official situation.

I am, with the highest respect, your obedient humble servant,

JARED MANSFIELD.

Hon. ALBERT GALLATIN, Secretary of the Treasury.

INDIAN GRANT IN LOUISIANA CONFIRMED.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, ON THE 10TH FEBRUARY, 1817.

Mr. ROBERTSON made the following report:

The Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the claim of Joseph Gillard, have had the same under consideration, and report:

That Joseph Gillard claims a tract of land, by virtue of an Indian sale, and confirmation by the Governor of the province of Louisiana.

It appears that the land had been allotted to the Indians by an act signed Joseph De La Pena, then commandant of Natchitoches, the 12th September, 1787, which was formally approved by two successive Governors, to wit: Governor Miro, without date, and of the Governor General, the Baron de Carondelet, in these words: "In virtue of the powers vested in me by His Majesty, I confirm this present concession. New Orleans, June 15, 1792." On the 9th of April, 1795, a sale of the said land was made to Colin Lacom, and duly approved by the Governor, the Baron de Carondelet, who had, on the 9th of March previous, written to the Indian agent to engage the Indians to remove to another place, and to give them more considerable annual presents. All these documents, and the evidence taken in the claim, are on file, and may be referred to. The commissioners who investigated the title, and ascertained the boundaries, have recommended for confirmation nine thousand three hundred American acres.

Your committee, having attentively examined the title of Joseph Gillard, are of opinion that it is a legal and valid title, according to the laws and usages of the Spanish Government, and recommend the same for confirmation for the quantity of nine thousand three hundred acres, and report a bill.

RECOGNITION OF THE CLAIM OF MARQUIS DE MAISON ROUGE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, FEBRUARY 10, 1817.

Mr. ROBERTSON made the following report:

The Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Chew and Relf, owners and representatives of the owners of the claim of the Marquis de Maison Rouge, on the Ouachita river, State of Louisiana, have had the same under consideration, and report as follows:

The Marquis de Maison Rouge obtained, in consequence of a contract with the Governor of Louisiana, dated 17th of March, 1795, which was duly approved by the King of Spain, the 14th of July, 1795, a title to a tract of land, of which the following is a copy:

NEW ORLEANS, June 20, 1797.

The Baron de Carondelet, Knight of the Order of St. John, marshal de camp of the royal armies, Governor General, vice patron of the provinces of Louisiana and West Florida, inspector, &c.: Forasmuch as the Marquis de Maison Rouge is near completing the establishment of the Ouachita, (Washita,) which he was authorized to make for thirty families, by the royal order of July, 1795, and desirous to remove, for the future, all doubt respecting other families or colonists who may come to establish themselves:

We destine and appropriate, exclusively for the establishment of the aforesaid Marquis de Maison Rouge, by virtue of the powers granted to us by the King, the thirty superficial leagues marked in the plan annexed to this instrument, with the limits and boundaries designated, with our approbation, by the Surveyor General, Don Carlos Trudeau, under the terms stipulated and contracted for by the said Marquis de Maison Rouge; and, that it may at all times stand good, we give the present, signed with our hands, sealed with our seal at arms, and countersigned by the underwritten honorary Commissary at War, and Secretary for His Majesty for this commandancy general.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET,
ANDRE LOPES ARMISTO.

NOTE.—That, in conformity with his contract, the Marquis de Maison Rouge is not to admit or establish any American on the land included in this grant.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

The committee, having duly examined the above title, are of opinion that it is a legal and formal title, according to the laws and usages of the province of Louisiana, and that the same ought to be confirmed, and report a bill.

CLAIM OF GEORGIA FOR THE CESSION OF THE YAZOO COUNTRY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, FEBRUARY 11, 1817.

Mr. HALL, from the committee to whom was referred the message of the President of the United States of the 6th instant, calling the attention of Congress to the interference of an act passed on the 31st of March, 1814, providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory, with the rights and interest of the State of Georgia, reported:

That, by the articles of agreement and cession, entered into on the 24th day of April, 1802, between the State of Georgia and the United States, the State of Georgia cedes to the United States all the right, title, and claim which the said State has to the jurisdiction and soil of the lands situated within the boundaries of the United States south of the State of Tennessee, with the extent and limits therein mentioned, upon the following express conditions, and subject thereto; that is to say, that, out of the first nett proceeds of the sales of the lands thus ceded, which nett proceeds shall be estimated by deducting from the gross amount of sales the expense incurred in surveying, and incident to the sale, the United States shall pay, at their Treasury, one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to the State of Georgia. A provision in the same instrument authorizes the United States to appropriate five millions of acres, or the proceeds thereof, to satisfy, quiet, or compensating for any claims other than those before recognised, in such manner as not to interfere with the above mentioned payment to the State of Georgia. The 4th section of the act of the 31st of March, 1814, provides that the stock, or certificates to be issued under the authority thereof, shall be receivable in payment of the public lands in the Mississippi Territory after the date of such certificate. This section, your committee conceive, if carried into full operation, would be a departure from the compact entered into with the State of Georgia, and a violation of her rights and interest secured by the articles of agreement and cession. In order, therefore, that justice may be done, and the faith of the United States remain unimpaired, your committee recommend that provision be made by law for paying to the State of Georgia the amount in money which may be received by the United States in stock for lands sold in the Mississippi Territory, until the balance now due that State shall be discharged, and ask leave to report a bill for that purpose.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

FEBRUARY 6, 1817.

On comparing the fourth section of the act of Congress, passed March 31, 1814, providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory, with the article of agreement and cession between the United States and State of Georgia, bearing date April 30, 1802, it appears that the engagements entered into with the claimants interfere with the rights and interests secured to that State. I recommend to Congress that provision be made, by law, for payments to the State of Georgia, equal to the amount of Mississippi stock which shall be paid into the Treasury, until the stipulated sum of $1,250,000 shall be completed.

JAMES MADISON.

The following papers, on the same subject, were subsequently laid before the Senate by the Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands:

SIR:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 13, 1817.

In answer to the inquiry contained in your letter of the 11th instant, I have the honor to state—

1st. That there has been paid to the State of Georgia, out of the moneys arising from the sale of the public lands in the Mississippi Territory, the sum of $313,441 33, as per statement A, from the Register's office, herewith enclosed.

2d. That the sum remaining in the Treasury of the State of Georgia of the money deposited by the Yazoo purchasers, and amounting, according to the report of the Commissioners of the United States, bearing date November, 1804, to \$189,304 85 $\frac{1}{2}$, has not been carried to the credit of the United States. The fifth section providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory, directs the commissioners to pay over the money referred to to the State of Georgia in part payment of the one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, after sufficient releases from the claimants to the United States shall have been lodged in the office of the Secretary of State. This payment has not been made, and the money remains in the State treasury, equally useless to the State of Georgia and to the United States. It is believed that most of the claimants have complied with the provisions of the law in question, and that this money might now, with great propriety, be transferred to the State.

3d. By the returns made to this Department, and the report of the persons appointed to examine the books of the Receivers of Public Moneys in the Mississippi Territory, it appears that there has been received about one hundred thousand dollars of Mississippi stock.

On the first day of October, 1815, the whole amount of money due for lands in the Mississippi Territory is ascertained to have been \$643,448 74 $\frac{1}{2}$. As the Mississippi stock was issued principally in the months of July and August of that year, a small portion of the amount above stated may be discharged in that stock.

The papers, marked B, show the receipts from the public lands in that Territory from the 30th September, 1815, to the 30th November, 1816, to the amount of \$464,850 28, which, after deducting the amount of Mississippi stock received, may be stated in round numbers at \$350,000. As the expenses of surveying and of sale are to be deducted, this sum will be subject to a further reduction, so that the amount now payable to the State cannot be safely estimated at more than \$300,000. This sum, added to that which has been already paid, and to the amount now in the treasury of Georgia, form together the sum of \$802,746 18 $\frac{1}{2}$; which, being deducted from \$1,250,000, leaves \$447,253 81 $\frac{1}{2}$ yet to be paid to Georgia. Of the sum due on the 30th September, 1815, and receivable into the Treasury in cash, to the exclusion of Mississippi stock, it is not probable that more than \$150,000 will be paid during the present year, whilst the amount of Mississippi stock will probably exceed one million of dollars. An appropriation of \$300,000, or of \$350,000, payable as the stock shall be received, will probably be sufficient to carry into effect the recommendation of the President.

I have the honor to be, your most obedient and very humble servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

RECOGNITION OF A FRENCH GRANT IN ILLINOIS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, FEBRUARY 18, 1817.

Mr. SHARP made the following report:

The Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Madame Renaut Maynoud de Pancement, heiress of Philip Renaut, and of her husband, Jean Baptiste François Maynoud de Pancement, by their agent, Philip Mercier, have had the subject under consideration, and beg leave to report:

That, in the year 1717, the King of France granted to the company of the "West" all the country watered by the Mississippi, under the name of Louisiana; that, in the year 1723, the agent of the company, and the officer of the Crown granted, in free allodial tenure, to the said Philip Renault, "one league in front at the Pemeteau village, on the river of the Illinois, looking to the east, and bounding on the lake which bears the same name as the village, and on the other side by the bluffs opposite the village, half a league above, by five leagues in depth, the point of the compass following the river of the Illinois down the same upon one side, and ascending by the river Arcoury, which forms the middle through the rest of the depth." The committee are fully satisfied that the grant to Renault is genuine, and made by competent authority. It is not thought necessary to trace Renault and his heirs to this period. The company of the west failed in 1730, and, in the following year, the country was re-annexed to the Crown of France, without prejudice to grants made in the mean time by the company. Other land was granted in 1723 to Renault, by the same authority, which he disposed of about twenty years thereafter.

In 1763, that part of Louisiana, east of the Mississippi, and north of the thirty-third degree of north latitude, passed under the dominion of Great Britain, and, by the treaty of 1783, was acquired by the United States.

By the act of Congress of the 26th of March, 1804, any person claiming land "by virtue of any legal grant made by the French Government, prior to the treaty of Paris of the 10th of February, 1763, is authorized to file with the Register of the Land Office of the district, a notice of his claim." By this act, full power is given to the Register and Receiver of Public Moneys to determine, according to justice and equity, upon all claims that shall be so filed. Under this act the representatives of Renaut exhibited to the Register and Receiver this claim; a special report was made by them on this claim, on the 24th of February, 1810, in which they detailed the facts, but declined giving a decision. Mr. Gallatin, then Secretary of the Treasury, addressed a letter to them, requiring them to make up a decision. In answer, they express doubts of their power at that time to act; but they say, if we have such power, we declare our opinion to be in favor of the claim. Their letter is not to be found, but its existence is positively proved by the honorable Jeremiah Morrow and Samuel McKee, who were formerly members of the Committee on Public Lands.

Upon the whole, the members of the committee are unanimously of opinion that the claim ought to be confirmed, and report a bill for that purpose.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN TENNESSEE, UNDER GRANTS FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, DECEMBER 16, 1817.

To the honorable the Congress of the United States:

NOVEMBER 25, 1817.

The General Assembly of the State of Tennessee would be unmindful of one of the first duties which they owe, not only to the State, but to many individuals whose interest they represent, should they omit to bring to your recollection the subject upon which they cannot but feel great solicitude. In the year 1783, while the State of North Carolina was a sovereign and independent State, when she had an acknowledged right to make what disposition she deemed most proper of any vacant land within her limits, and while Tennessee was a part of that State, she passed "an act for opening the land office for the redemption of specie and other certificates, and discharging the arrears due to the army;" and, in and by the provisions of that act, offered for sale a large quantity of her western lands, at the price of ten pounds per hundred acres. Shortly afterwards many of her citizens, as they were well authorized to do, repaired to the office thus opened, made entries of land, and paid the consideration money required of them, for the quantities by them respectively purchased.

That State, through the agency of her officers, procured to have surveys made and grants issued to many of these individuals, as by her laws she had promised. Upon some of those entries, no surveys have ever yet been made or patents issued.

Had the citizens who made these purchases chose immediately afterwards to have taken possession of their respective tracts, no power could have made any legal objection thereto. The State of North Carolina, afterwards, by her act of cession, in the year 1789, and her deed in pursuance thereof, granted to the United States all her lands which lay within the limits of what is now the State of Tennessee; but to this grant she attached several conditions, among which is one saving the right which individuals had acquired to lands under her authority.

In the constitution of the United States it is expressly provided, that private property shall not be taken for public purposes, without making just compensation therefor.

Although individuals had made purchases, paid the consideration money, and many of them had procured grants, the highest evidence of title, and others were entitled to grants upon their entries, yet the United States, after those rights had been thus acquired, made treaties with that tribe of Indians called Chickasaws, by virtue of which they have guarantied to them the possession and enjoyment of large quantities of those lands which now lie within the limits of this State, and have, as far as their statutory provisions can make it so, rendered it unlawful for those individuals to occupy or even to visit their lands.

Of those treaties and statutes, this General Assembly believe they have much cause to complain. By virtue of them, as well their citizens as those of North Carolina, have long been prohibited from the use and occupation of land for which they had paid an adequate consideration from thirty to forty years ago, and this without any thing like compensation having been either made or offered, at the same time that this prohibition is in force, of a people who have not either a hut or a habitation upon lands within the limits of this State. The consequences of these regulations are most injurious to the State of Tennessee; she is by them deprived of that strength and influence to which her limits entitle her, and of those resources and improvements which settlements upon these lands would naturally afford.

But if these regulations have been and are injurious to the State, the evils have not stopped here. They have, without doubt, heretofore been, in a great degree, and, if these restrictions are not speedily removed, must soon be entirely destructive of most if not all those private rights so fairly acquired.

Time must soon (if it has not already done so) so deface or obliterate the marks by which claims can either be identified, or the boundaries ascertained, that, although our citizens may have the highest evidence of title, with which men can be furnished, to the enjoyment of landed property, yet, because they have been deprived of the possession of this property, they will be forever unable to ascertain the spot covered by those evidences.

This General Assembly have too much confidence in the justice of your honorable body to believe that you will suffer this state of things much longer to continue. They must, therefore, respectfully but earnestly urge that such steps may be taken as will remove those obstructions which the treaties and acts of Congress have thrown in the way of the possession and occupation of these lands, purchased by individuals under the laws of the State of North Carolina.

LAND TITLES IN FLORIDA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, DECEMBER 19, 1817.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, the memorial of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana:

Your memorialists beg leave to address you on a subject of great importance to the interests and happiness of a portion of their constituents, the situation of the land titles in Florida, and to pray from your honorable body the enactment of such laws upon the subject as justice and sound policy may dictate.

With regard to the land titles of that portion of our State, they are of a nature so peculiar to themselves, and they have been created by a state of things, in relation to the different Governments of that country, so extraordinary and unexampled, that no right understanding can be attained, with regard to them, without taking a retrospect of its history, of the different nations who have owned it, the period of time they remained in possession, and the conduct and policy of each, as it regarded the settlement of the country, and the disposal of the public lands.

The following concise, but, it is believed, correct view, is submitted to Congress:

At an early period, France possessed and exercised sovereignty over Florida, as far east from the Mississippi as the river Perdido. While in possession of that country, her first and continued policy was to accomplish its settlement. For this purpose, land was granted freely to individuals, and on the most easy conditions. From every information which can be acquired on the subject, it appears that this Government endeavored, by every possible inducement, to establish a population in that part of her American provinces. Encouragement, therefore, of the most liberal kind was given to settlers, agreeably to this policy, during the possession of France, up to 1763.

At this last mentioned epoch, France, by treaty, transfers to Great Britain the sovereignty of the country, and the policy of that Government, while in possession of it, seems to have been little different from that which governed its first owners. Although the form and mode of obtaining titles for land may have been, in some measure, different, the same feelings and same necessity produced the same results, and grants for different quantities of land were liberally conceded. In effect, without such a policy, that country could have been of little or no value to either of the before mentioned Powers. Settlement alone could give to the colony security, permanency, or value; and, without great inducements from the mother country, men could not be expected to establish themselves in a remote province, whose advantages were as yet merely speculative, where the proximity of Indian nations rendered their lives and properties insecure, and where the apprehension of a deleterious and unhealthy climate all tended to check and repulse that emigration which might have flowed into it under more favorable auspices.

During the wars of the American revolution, the Government of Spain fitted out an expedition against West Florida, and conquered the whole of the province, together with the establishment of Natchez, Baton Rouge, and Mobile.

Your memorialists feel that it is scarcely necessary for them to state to your honorable body the kind and beneficent policy which the Spanish Government pursued with regard to her public lands in that province. Ample evidence of her generous conduct in that respect has been furnished by the land titles of Louisiana; and Congress have given their assent to that evidence, and their conviction of the extent of the liberality of the former sovereign, by the various acts passed in relation to the land titles of the former Territory of Orleans. But your memorialists cannot refrain from observing that, to every motive which induced Spain to grant freely her lands in that part of her possessions, there was superadded, with respect to Florida, the necessity of making it a barrier between them and the surrounding neighbors. On the western side Louisiana was bounded by Spanish provinces, and contained within it but small tribes of Indians, whose submission was ascertained, and their fidelity assured; on the eastern, however, a quite different state of things existed. Hence we find a more than usual degree of liberal policy pursued, with regard to her public lands in that section of country, and temptations of every kind held out to settlers. It is true that, in some instances, the lands were sold, but more generally they were granted as pure donations, which exhibit themselves in complete grants, warrants, orders of survey, and settlement rights.

From this short retrospect, it will be seen that, under every successive Government that has had dominion in West Florida, the same policy, with little variation, has been pursued, the same anxiety to people the province, the same liberality in conceding lands, the same indulgent spirit from the Government to those who settled or acquired property under it, has marked them all. French, British, and Spanish, up to the moment when the United States took possession, and it now remains for the national Government to decide whether this policy, so invariably pursued, will receive its sanction or not; whether the inhabitants of that country who rejoiced at the event that placed them under the American Government, and hailed the approach of its public functionaries as their deliverers and friends, shall find, in place of protection of already acquired rights, and security for future ones, a system introduced which shakes both the foundation, and refuses them the enjoyment of that which even a monarch bestowed on them.

But your memorialists beg leave to represent to your honorable body that, in their opinion, the giving effect to the policy of the former Government of Florida, with regard to land titles, is no longer a question of expediency with the United States: it is one of strict justice, flowing from the principles of good faith, and depending on the solemn stipulation of treaty. If Florida is considered as making a part of Louisiana, and as such transferred to the United States by the treaty with France, (and your memorialists know of no other title by which the American Government claims it,) that treaty secures to the people residing in it, among other things, the full enjoyment of their property. To ascertain what that propriety is as it respects lands, recourse must be had not to any rules which may now be arbitrarily established, but to those which formed the principles by which the Spanish Government was regulated. To every tract of soil, therefore, that is now claimed in that country, which, according to the laws, usages, and customs existing, and in force there while Spain was in possession, the claimant would have had a good title, your memorialists think an undoubted right now exists.

This construction of the treaty, by which the United States hold this country, is perfectly consonant with reason and justice, and has already the sanction of precedent to support it—a precedent established by no less authority than Congress, who, in various acts passed in relation to the land titles in the former Territory of Orleans, have uniformly taken this as the basis of every legislative provision they have passed on the subject, and in conformity to which they have confirmed every claim and title which was good under the former Government, or which would have been considered good by that Government had it still remained in possession of the colony.

Your memorialists ask for their constituents the enactment of the same wise and beneficent regulations which have already produced such happy effect in the other portion of the State of Louisiana. There is nothing in the character of the inhabitants of that division which does not entitle them to the same favor; the treaty by which the United States hold both is the same, and your memorialists trust that the same even-handed justice will be extended to each.

Your memorialists submit the following statement of the various claims which exist for land in Florida, and which they respectfully conceive Congress should confirm:

1. The patent or complete grant from the Spanish Government; also, British and French patents, when accompanied with a Spanish confirmation, and bearing date anterior to the change of sovereignty in 1813, where no evidence of fraud exists; provided, however, that no such confirmation is required to be made to the prejudice of an actual settlement made previous to the actual survey or location of such title.
2. All incomplete titles bearing date previous to the change of sovereignty in 1813, where actual survey or settlement has been made on the same to the extent of one league square. No more than one claim of this description is required to be confirmed to any one individual, unless they can show they are the representatives of another; and no confirmation of this description is requested to the prejudice of an actual settlement formed previous to the survey of such incomplete title.
3. Claims held under a settlement right within the limits of a mile square, and inhabited and cultivated anterior to the change of possession in 1813, and a right of preference in favor of such as may have settled since possession, up to the date of the law which Congress may pass regulating land titles in that country; that those settlers who have since settled may be enabled to purchase their improvements without competition from others bidding on their labor.

On these claims your memorialists do not feel it necessary to trouble your honorable body at length, as all of the same description have been confirmed in the old Territory of Orleans. If the mass of incomplete titles form a large portion of the claims, Congress in their wisdom cannot fail to ascribe it to the true cause, the negligence of the settlers. Where men enjoyed all the advantages, under an order of survey or requête, or settlement right which they had under a complete grant, it is not extraordinary if they took no pains to clothe the title with forms; and that, too, more especially when living under a Government where little or no attention was paid to these things, and where great indulgence in this respect on one hand was repaid by unbounded confidence on the other.

But your memorialists, in presenting the claims of their fellow-citizens, and in asking for them nothing more than they conceive strict justice requires, would fail to discharge their duty if they did not express to your honorable body their great anxiety and alarm at a bill introduced into the Senate of the United States at the last session of Congress, entitled "An act for adjusting the claims to land, and establishing a land office for the district of lands lying east of the Mississippi river and island of Orleans." The first section of that bill provides, among other things, that all British grants, which were valid agreeable to the laws, usages, and customs of that Government, shall be valid, and are recognised as complete titles against the United States, or against any title derived from the United States. Your memorialists beg leave to call the attention of Congress to the provisions of the treaty of 1783 between Great Britain and Spain, wherein the right of Spain is acknowledged to Florida. In that treaty it is provided that Spain shall allow, to such as do not choose to take the oath of allegiance, and become the subjects of Spain, a certain time to dispose of their property, and leave the country. In obedience to this treaty, the Spanish Government issued a proclamation requiring the inhabitants to come forward and enregister their claims, and, such as choose to reside in the county, to take the oath of allegiance, and receive a Spanish patent for the amount claimed in the original British concession, while those who did not intend to become subjects were advised, in the proclamation, of the time they were allowed in the treaty to dispose of their lands.

In a subsequent proclamation a prolongation of the time specified in the first was given, in which it was declared that those who did not, within the time then stated, comply with the conditions of the proclamation, should forever forfeit their claim to such lands, and that the same would be annexed to the royal domain. The British proprietors, by moving off in mass, yielded their assent to it. The land thus reannexed to the domain has since been granted out to different individuals, or is now held by settlement right under the Spanish Government, and it would produce the most disastrous consequences to the inhabitants of that portion of country, if a mass of titles which, for such a length of time, have been regarded as obsolete and extinct, should now be recalled into vigor by any law of the United States. The injury which is apprehended from Congress acknowledging this description of claims as good against the United States, is not confined to the injury it inflicts on all those claiming by donation from the United States, and conflicting with the British claims—some of which are settlements made by permission of the Spanish Government, and peaceably possessed for more than twenty years—but, armed with such an acknowledgment, it is apprehended they might successfully contend with an incomplete Spanish grant subsequently acquired, although predicated on the forfeiture of such British grant, under the Spanish Government, which, your memorialists are well persuaded, Congress never can intend. But your memorialists conceive, as they have once been rendered null by the former sovereign authority of that country, and as a considerable part of Florida has been settled under that conviction, that it is wholly impolitic and unwise for the Government of the United States (coming in possession of the country under Spain) to revive them; and by thus giving them additional force and authority, to render less secure those who claim the land under Spanish concessions, and who have their property, as it existed under the former Government, secured to them by the solemn stipulation of treaty.

Your memorialists have in vain sought for the cause of those distinctions, so unfriendly to the interests of Florida, which are found to exist between this bill and the laws regulating the land titles in the Territory of Orleans; whilst the period fixed on for the confirmation of complete titles in the old Territory of Orleans, is made the date of possession, we find the period fixed on in this bill, for the confirmation of complete titles in Florida, is not only anterior to the ratification, but even before the signing of the treaty, by which the United States profess to have acquired the country, and nearly thirteen years anterior to possession.

The distinction between incomplete titles in those two sections of the State, as established by this bill, is yet more wide and prejudicial to the interests of Florida; for, while the incomplete title in the old Territory of Orleans is confirmed to the extent of one league, up to the date of possession, the incomplete title of Florida, with the same qualifications, is made to depend on a gratuitous donation, confined to twelve hundred and eighty acres, for nearly thirteen years previous to possession.

Your memorialists are at a loss to conceive why this period of the 1st of October, 1800, is fixed in the bill as the time beyond which an incomplete title cannot be confirmed. If Congress, in legislating on the subject, has established that epoch as one at which the right of Spain ceased to that country, and that, consequently, all her acts afterwards were invalid, although she was supposed to remain in possession, and appear to all mankind as the sovereign; if such has been the ground of this claim in the bill, your memorialists trust they can convince your honorable body that it is as incorrect in principle as it would be cruel and unjust in operation.

It is universally known that Spain was permitted to remain in possession of Florida for a long time subsequent to the 1st of October, 1800. Her authority was not disputed by any official act or public declaration of the United States. Laws passed, from time to time, by Congress, considered it as a foreign country. The proclamation of the Spanish Commissioners, on transferring Louisiana to the French republic, expressly declared that this portion of country remained of right in the possession of Spain, and was not transferred to France. No public declaration of the Government of France, or of the United States, contradicted this for a long time subsequent, and if, as it were to establish the idea of the right of Spain, the Government of the Union paid duties on public goods in American vessels passing the Mobile.

From these facts, and the state of things growing out of them, there was no person that was not justified in believing that Spain was the true owner of West Florida. The real limits of the country, acquired by the United States by the treaty of Ildefonso, are not publicly ascertained to this day; it is possible that this portion made a part of Louisiana, and ought to have been transferred with the rest of the United States; but how could the world know this, when the American Government did, to all appearance, acquiesce in the boundaries established by Spain? or how, at least, could the Spanish subjects know that their Government, which, under such circumstances, was suffered to remain in possession of the country, had no right to the same? There is a maxim of public law pervading the system of every civilized country on earth, which makes a distinction between the acts of Government de facto and de jure, which recognises the authority of the first, and refuses it to the latter. Your memorialists ask the application of it here, on behalf of their constituents, and, if it is refused them, then they beg leave to say that every act done by Spain in that country, since the treaty of Ildefonso, is null, all her fiscal, all her judicial acts are void; and, by the magic of secret treaty, the inhabitants must have owed allegiance to the new Government before they even received an intimation that the sovereignty of the country was transferred.

There is scarcely any one prepared to go to this length; yet who can mark the distinction between acts of the one or the other description? between judgments given for the price of these lands in suits by individuals, and the act of the Government conceding them? between taxes regularly paid on property, and the right of the public to grant the object taxed? between the principal, which makes the subject, at the peril of his life, owe allegiance to the Government which is in possession of the country where he resides, and yet prohibits him from receiving that favor and protection which is the recompense of the fidelity he is sworn to preserve?

But if any other or third party could urge, as an objection to the claimants of lands in Florida, that the Government existing there from the year 1800 up to 1813, (the time when the American nation first unequivocally asserted their right to it,) had no authority to concede the soil, surely, at least, such an argument cannot come from the United States, by whose act alone this confusion and difficulty has been created. If their right was clear, why did they not assert it? If Spain was an usurper, why did they not evict her, or, at least, publicly assert their claim? And will the National Councils of a great and magnanimous people now say, that, after leaving this country for such a length of time in the possession of another Government, they will take advantage of an error created by themselves, and punish in this way an ignorance which flows from their own act? Your memorialists trust not; the wise and generous policy which Congress has pursued, with regard to the land titles of the former Territory of Orleans, teach them to expect the same liberality for the other portion of the State, and to confidently hope that the claims for land in Florida, as already mentioned in this memorial, may receive the sanction of the National Government.

In legislating on this subject, it is hoped and expected that the situation of many of those who are now settled in that portion of country will not escape the attention of Congress, nor fail to call forth their liberality in their behalf. For a considerable time, antecedent to the change of Government, great irregularity prevailed in the land office of Florida, an irregularity which was in no small degree heightened by its removal to Pensacola. The confusion, which was the natural consequence of this state of things, was so great, that, in many cases, a very erroneous knowledge existed of the land already conceded, so that, in many instances, it is apprehended, settlements have been located, and improvements made on land already granted. If, therefore, it should hereafter appear that any of the actual settlers shall be evicted from the land now held by them, by reason of titles existing for the tract, it is earnestly expected that Congress will issue them a warrant for the same quantity, with liberty to locate the same on any public land within the limits of the State of Louisiana. If the former Government remained in possession of the country, there is no doubt but, on the discovery of the error, that this course would be pursued; and justice requires that the United States should imitate their example. They have taken the place of Spain, and should extend to the actual settlers, at the change of possession, every right which they enjoyed when that change took place.

Your memorialists beg leave to represent to Congress, that a number of those claiming land in Florida have not enregistered their claims with the commissioner appointed for that purpose; some, for want of a knowledge that it was required; others, from the circumstance of the office of the commissioner having been closed before they expected it; and others, from absence, or being engaged in the service of the country during the dangers which threatened us previous to the close of the war. In this situation are many complete patents, and other claims of the fairest and most equitable nature. It is, therefore, hoped and solicited that Congress will appoint a commissioner, authorized to receive and enregister such claims as have not been yet entered, and receive additional testimony in confirmation of claims already entered.

Thus your memorialists have endeavored to trace the situation of Florida, and to show what the interest of that section of the State requires. The many privations and sufferings that portion of the State has sustained, give them strong claims on the indulgent generosity of the General Government; and on the justice of the Congress of the United States your memorialists rely with the most unqualified confidence.

No. 258.

LAND TITLES IN FLORIDA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE, DECEMBER 23, 1817.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress convened:

Possessing the necessary and constitutional right of remonstrance, the undersigned, members of the Legislature of Louisiana from the district of Florida, are compelled, by the most imperious motives of public duty, solemnly to protest against a certain memorial yesterday addressed by the said Legislature to the National Congress.

The grounds of their protest are as follows:

1st. They cannot discover any obligation, either legal or moral, on the part of the Government of the United States, to pursue the same policy, as to the confirmation of land titles in Florida, that was pursued in the old Territory of Orleans, the two sections of country being, in fact and in principle, widely different.

2d. Nearly the whole mass of titles, and particularly those of the large claims existing in Florida, having originated since the treaty of 1803, by no possible construction can the stipulations of that treaty have any effect in countenancing or favoring such claims.
